a blow? What kind of philanthropy must that be which can resolve on this, and survey, with a steady eye, the dreadful prospects of calamity and ruin which will immediately overwhelm the British Empire, if, by our tameness, or by American resolution, the Colonies are torn from us. Expedients, in a dispute so rooted as this is, were always ridiculous, and are now by all parties given up. What trivial nonsense are affidavits, to prove who fired first. The moment the Americans attempted to raise troops, with the avowed intention of resisting Government by force, the first bullet should have been fired; and that we have so long deferred it is an error, for which we shall be severely punished. We ought, long ere now, to have been as unanimous as the Americans in perceiving that the voice of necessity, and the great vortex of human affairs, is too powerful to be confined by the forms of a constitution. The sword alone can decide this dispute, and he is a traitor to his Country who does not contribute every thing in his power to prevent the ruin of the British Empire, which will immediately take place if we are defeated.

SOME THOUGHTS ON THE CONSTITUTION OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE, AND THE CONTROVERSY BETWEEN GREAT BRITAIN AND THE AMERICAN COLONIES.

Philadelphia, June 12, 1775.

As all lawful Government is founded in compact, it behooves those who claim authority, to prove that they have it. English Government is territorial, that is, it is limited to certain districts of territory; and owning lands within these limits gives a right to participate in the Government; and those who own the lands have a right to fix the terms on which others may reside within the jurisdiction. This principle seems to be founded on the law of nature, and therefore those who are not freeholders are justly bound by the laws of the land, though they have no vote in electing members of Parliament, and not on the principle of virtual representation; yet they have this security, that the freeholders and other inhabitants are governed by the same laws.

A civil society or state is a number of proprietors of land within certain limits, united by compact or mutual agreement for making laws, and appointing persons to execute those laws for their common benefit.

The British Empire consists of such societies, subject to one King, each having a distinct legislature: such is the Realm of Great Britain, the Realm of Ireland, and each English Colony in America.

This doctrine of distinct Dominions or States, subject to the same Crown, is not a new doctrine, but was known in the English Nation long before the settlement of the American Colonies, as is well known to all who are acquainted with the English history. One instance of this kind will appear by the following extract from a petition presented to the King of England by the inhabitants of the County palatine of Chester, in the year 1450, wherein they say: "The said County is and hath been a County palatine, as well before the conquest of England as continually since, within which County you and all your noble progenitors, since it came into your hands, have had your High Courts of Parliament, and no possessioners or inheritors within the said County be not chargeable or liable, nor have not been bounden, charged, nor hurt of their bodies, liberties, franchises, lands, goods, nor possessions, within the same County, but by such laws as they have agreed unto; and also, they have no Knights, Citizens, nor Burgesses, nor ever had of the said County to any Parliament holden out of the said County, whereby they might by any way of reason be bounded," &c. Whereupon the King discharged them from paying a subsidy granted by act of the Parliament of England held at Westminster, notwithstanding that County was expressly named in the act.

Whence, then, doth the Parliament of Great Britain derive the authority it claims to make statutes to bind the people of the Colonies in America, and other Dominions of the Crown not within that Realm, nor represented in that Parliament, but who have Parliaments of their own? Is this claim founded in compact? Where is the evidence of such a compact? The landholders in America are not incorporated with those of Britain for the purpose of legislation, nor does their being owners of real estates in America (to any amount) entitle them to a voice in the election of any members of the British Parliament. Should it be said that the Colonists were subjects of the Crown of England, and members of that State before their emigration, and therefore must continue so unless they can show that they are discharged by some express agreement; it may be answered, that their compact as members of that State was, in the nature of it, limited to their continuance in that Realm, and consequently was discharged by their emigration. Should it be farther inquired, how is it that they continue subjects of the Crown of England or Great Britain since their emigration, if their relation to that State was dissolved? I answer, that the people of each Colony, either before or soon after their emigration, entered into particular compacts with the Kings of England to continue in allegiance to them, their heirs, and successors, and also as to their particular forms of Government, which appears by Charters, royal Proclamations, and the laws and regulations in each Colony, made by the mutual consent of the King and the people. But it may be further objected, that the British Parliament hath, from time to time, made laws to bind the Colonies, which have been acquiesced in for more than a century past, by which it appears that it was mutually understood that the Parliament had authority to make such laws. To which it may be answered, that when the Parliament of England first attempted to exercise legislative authority over the Dominions of the Crown out of that Realm, their authority was denied by Ireland, Virginia, and the ancient Colony of the Massachusetts-Bay. The last mentioned Colony refused and neglected to yield any obedience to the acts of Parliament for regulating the Plantation trade in the reign of King Charles the Second, from the year 1660 to 1675, when the King wrote to the Governour and Company of that Colony, requiring their conformity to said acts; to which they returned an answer, that they had not conformed to them because they judged them to be an infringement of their rights, for that the authority of the Parliament was limited by the four seas; but as His Majesty had signified to them that it was his pleasure that they should conform to said regulations, they had enjoined obedience to them by an act of their own; for which the King, in another letter, returned them his thanks. This shows how some of the Colonies understood the Constitution while some persons were living who were active in settling the terms of it. Now, can the conformity of some individuals in the Colonies to acts of Parliament, from motives of necessity or convenience, be construed as the consent of the Colonies to the authority of the Parliament to make laws to bind them? Some suppose there is a superintending power in the British Parliament over the Colonies, resulting from the nature of colonization and their relation to the parent State, especially for regulating and restraining their trade. But how can parental authority be applied to support or illustrate such a principle? A parent has a natural right to govern his children during their minority and continuance in his family, but has no such authority over them after they arrive at full age, and are settled in families of their own. A mutual affection, friendship, and regard to each other's interests ought always to subsist between parents and children, and likewise between parent States and their Colonies, but no connexion in Government but what is founded in mutual compact. Nor can the arbitrary demands or exactions of any parent States from their Colonies, be a foundation to determine what is right in the present case.

It has been urged as a reason why the Colonies should acknowledge a right in the British Parliament to make laws to regulate their trade, that no Colony Legislature is competent for that purpose, their authority being confined to the limits of their respective Colonies. But if the authority of the British Parliament is limited to that Realm, it is no more competent to make a law to extend without the limit of its jurisdiction than a Colony Legislature. But it is further said that Great Britain, by her Navy, has power to enforce obedience to her laws of trade and navigation, therefore the people of the whole Empire must submit to them; and that she protects their trade, and therefore it is reasonable that she should regulate it so as may be most conducive to the good of the Nation. To which it may be replied, that upon the two last mentioned considerations the people of the Colonies have, for about a century past, cheerfully consented to the operation of such acts of the British Parliament as are limited to the regulation of their external commerce for the mutual advantage of Great Britain and her Colonies, and seem still disposed to persevere in the same line of conduct, so that no controversy will be likely to arise on that subject but what may relate to the justice or utility of particular regulations; and the only way to remove that ground of controversy is, for the Legislature of each Colony to confirm, by their own acts, all such laws of trade as are to be executed within their respective jurisdictions; which doubtless they would readily agree to, and by that means the acts of trade would be more strictly observed. But as the present inquiry is, whether the British Parliament hath authority to make laws to bind the people of the Colonies in any case without their consent, it may be well to consider that there is an important distinction between authority to command, and power to enforce submission, and also between an equitable claim in Great Britain to receive a compensation from the Colonies for protecting their trade, and her having a legislative authority over them to compel them to make that compensation in any particular way without their consent. And why has not the Parliament as good a right to compel them to make such compensation by laws imposing duties on their imports and exports, as by restraining their trade? But if all lawful Government is founded in compact, the Parliament cannot have right in either case to make laws to bind the people of the Colonies without their consent.

According to Lord Somer's opinion, the right of the people to share in legislation is so necessary for the preservation of the society, that they cannot part with it even by their own consent. Take the opinion of that celebrated author in his own words: "Amongst all the rights and privileges appertaining unto us, that of having a share in the legislation, and being to be governed by such laws as we ourselves shall choose, is the most fundamental and essential, as well as the most beneficial; for thereby we are enabled to make such successive and continual provisions as to the preservation of the society, and the promoting either the temporal or eternal welfare of the subject, as shall be found expedient, &c. No man or society of men have power to deliver their preservation, or the means of it, to the absolute will of any man, and they will have always a right to preserve what they have not power to part with."

Should it be inquired, what is the constitutional connexion between these several distinct States which compose the British Empire? it may be answered, they are all united under one Crown, subjects of the same Prince, whose person, crown, and dignity, they are all obliged to maintain and defend to their utmost ability, against all enemies and opposers whatsoever; therefore the enemies of any one of the Dominions of the Crown are the common enemies of all the subjects of the Crown, and it is the duty of all to afford their aid for common defence in time of war, and to be prepared for it in time of peace. Also, the supreme executive and one branch of the legislative authority being lodged in the Crown, a similarity in the laws and administration of justice is thereby preserved in all the several Dominions. Also, the King's subjects have a common right to participate in all privileges and immunities in any of the Dominions of the Crown, if they remove from one jurisdiction to another, unless that right be abridged by some positive law.

This union of Great Britain and the Colonies, under the same Crown, differs from the case of Hanover, which is at present subject to the same King, who holds that Dominion by a different title, and not as King of Great Britain. So that if he should resign the British Crown, his right of dominion over Hanover would remain, but not over the American Colonies; for they agreed with the Kings of England to be subject to them, their heirs, and successors, which will oblige them to be subject to the King of England for the time being, so long as it may be subservient to the great end of civil Government—the publick good. The union of Great Britain and the Colonies into one State is, from their situation, impracticable, and every beneficial purpose may, by a prudent administration, be well answered by their union in the Crown, while they continue distinct jurisdictions for civil Government.

The Legislature of each Dominion can grant the necessary aids for common defence, and agree to laws for regulating trade and other matters of general concern, which will bind the people within their respective jurisdictions. Their common safety and interest will induce them to agree to what may appear to be for the publick good; and to facilitate this agreement among the Colonies, Delegates may be chosen by their respective Assemblies, to meet in general Congress, to agree on such matters as shall be referred to their consideration, and report their opinion to the several Colony Legislatures for their final determination. Thus all may co-operate for their common benefit and security, while all enjoy equal privileges and immunities; and the British Empire, by a due attention to the true principles of the Constitution, may become the most powerful, happy, and glorious, of any in the world.

COMMITTEES IN ULSTER COUNTY TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Newburgh, June 12, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: In consequence of a resolve in Provincial Congress, passed the 7th instant, where it is declared that whenever doubts should arise in the minds of individuals relative to the resolutions and recommendations of either the Continental or our Provincial Congresses, it is the duty of such persons to apply to your Board for an explanation thereof: Therefore, gentlemen, willing to walk in the path of duty, as far as we have knowledge of the same, we, in behalf of the Committees for the Precincts of New-Marlborough, Newburgh, and New-Windsor, do hereby apply for an explanation of the words in your resolve of the 29th of May last, which is as follows: "And that such persons in those Counties or Districts who have not appointed Committees, as shall be appointed by the members of this Congress, respecting such Counties and Districts respectively," &c. As we cannot ascertain what ideas the honourable Congress means to convey by these words, they will pardon the freedom we take in requesting an explanation. We are at a loss, also, what is intended in the resolve of the Congress of the 31st of May last, where it is recommended to the inhabitants of this Colony in general to provide arms, &c., and to use all diligence in acquiring knowledge in the military art, and, if necessary, to join themselves into companies for the purpose aforesaid. With all due deference to the honourable Congress, we humbly conceive that the words "if necessary" leaves the matter indifferent whether the inhabitants of this Colony do form themselves into companies or not; if they do not, we beg to be informed which way we are to acquire the art recommended.

Gentlemen, your answer to our requests will much oblige a number of your constituents, as also your humble servants,

BENJAMIN CARPENTER,
Chairman of New-Marlborough.

SAMUEL BREWSTER,
Chairman of New-Windsor.

ISAAC BELKNAP,
Chairman pro tem. for Newburgh.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress for the Colony of New-York, now convened in the City of New-York.

ALEXANDER McDUGALL, TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

New-York Provincial Congress, June 12, 1775.

The President of your Congress, the General, and Chairman of the Committee of Supply for your Province, wrote to our Congress a few days since, complaining greatly of the want of powder, and earnestly soliciting our assistance.

We had it not then in our power to give it, but applied to our neighbours, and procured from them a small supply, which, together with all we could purchase, amount to six hundred and fifty-five pounds.

Our Congress wrote by this day's post to Governour Trumbull, requesting him to send this quantity to your camp from one of his eastern magazines, and that we would forward the above to replace it, to any Town in his Colony. At nine o'clock this night it will move hence in a wagon, accompanied by four or six trusty men; for it is necessary that no parade should be made on the road, to prevent a conclusion that this article is wanted with you. They will be directed to travel always at night, and put up in the day. It will be necessary in the way through that Colony, to inquire of Governour Trumbull whether he can comply with our request; if he can, to order what is on its way to such place as he shall think proper. If not, a disposition should be made to convey the article through Connecticut to your camp. I shall order it to be left with a safe Committee in Connecticut.

ALEXANDER McDUGALL TO JOSEPH WARREN.

New-York, June 12, 1775.

DEAR SIR: Your favour to our Congress on the subject of powder, filled us with great distress, which was greatly increased by our utter inability to supply you. We, however, wrote immediately to Jersey, where we procured a small quantity, which, with all we could purchase here, amount to six hundred and fifty-five pounds. The Congress wrote by this day's post to Governour Trumbull, to supply you with this quantity out of one of his easterly magazines, and we would replace.

For this purpose two wagons set off with the above, or to be forwarded to you, in case he can't comply with our request.

I am, Sir, in the utmost haste, your very humble servant,
ALEX. McDUGALL.

To Joseph Warren, Esq.

ALEXANDER McDUGALL TO THE COMMITTEE FOR GREENWICH, CONNECTICUT.

New-York, June 12, 1775.

SIR: This accompanies six hundred and fifty-five pounds of powder, which you are requested to forward, with the letter to Mr. Warren, to Hartford, there to be subject to the direction of your Governour, unless he should order the powder to be deposited in some magazine in your Colony before it reaches that place. Please to give Mr. Willett a receipt for the quantity of barrels, and the weight. It will be most expedient that the conveyance be at night, for reasons too obvious to be mentioned, but which Mr. Willett will explain, if necessary.

I am, Sir, with great truth and regard, your humble servant,
ALEXANDER McDUGALL.

P. S. The barrels should always be coopered before they are changed from cart to cart, and if they want coopering, it should be done with wooden tools.

Greenwich, June 13, 1775, five o'clock, P. M.

Received the above, and forwarded the same from Committee to Committee to Hartford, and if the Governour thinks best, to the Army at Cambridge. The powder is contained in two whole barrels, two half barrels, and fourteen quarter casks.

We are, gentlemen, your humble servants,

NEHEMIAH MEAD,
JOHN MACKAY,
AMOS MEAD,
TITUS MEAD, } Committee.

To the Committee at Stamford.

Stamford, June 13, 1775, eight o'clock, P. M.

Received from the Committee of Greenwich the quantity of powder as before desired. By us:

JOHN HAIT,
SAMUEL BROKER,
PETER HAIT,
SAMUEL HUTTON, } Committee.

Newport, Rhode-Island, June 12, 1775.

On Monday last the Honourable General Assembly of this Colony met at East-Greenwich, and passed the following Act:

"This Assembly, at the Session held at Providence on the first Wednesday in May last, having passed an Act prohibiting his Honour the Deputy Governour and the Assistants, from administering the oath of office to the Honourable Joseph Wanton, Esq., who was elected Governour of this Colony for the present year; and declaring all acts by him done in the pretended capacity of Governour, null and void, until he shall be engaged in open General Assembly, and with the consent of the General Assembly, &c.: and the said Joseph Wanton having appeared before this Assembly, and demanded that the oath of office be administered to him; and this Assembly having taken the same into consideration, do vote and resolve, and it is voted and resolved, that the said Joseph Wanton hath not given satisfaction to this Assembly, and that the said recited Act, passed at the last Session, continue and be in force until the rising of the General Assembly at the next Session; and that this Act be immediately published, by inserting a copy thereof in the Newport Mercury, and Providence Gazette."

Colony of Rhode-Island, &c.

The above is a true copy of an Act passed by the General Assembly, at the Session held at East-Greenwich, on the second Monday in June, A. D. 1775.

Witness: HENRY WARD, Secretary.

Whitehall, London, July 13, 1775.

Lieutenant-General Gage, in his letters to the Earl of Dartmouth, dated June 12, 1775, gives an account that the Town of Boston continued to be surrounded by a large body of rebel Provincials, and that all communication with the country was cut off; that the rebels had been burning houses, and driving sheep off an island that has easy communication with the main land, which drew on a skirmish with some Marines, who drove the rebels away; but that an armed schooner, that had been sent between the island and the main land, having got on shore at high water, there was no possibility of saving her, for as the tide fell, she was left quite dry, and burned by the rebels. Two men were killed, and a few wounded.

The first embarkation of Troops from Ireland, consisting of three Regiments of Infantry and one of Light Cavalry, had arrived at Boston; and General Gage had published a Proclamation, offering His Majesty's pardon to all persons who should immediately lay down their arms, (except Samuel Adams and John Hancock,) declaring all persons to be traitors who should aid and assist, or hold any correspondence with the rebels; and ordering martial law to be in force within the Province of Massachusetts-Bay, so long as the present unhappy occasions shall necessarily require it.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM GENERAL GAGE TO LORD DARTMOUTH.

Boston, June 12, 1775.

It has been mentioned to your Lordship, that the disaffected generally receive very quick intelligence of what is doing at home, and that those who have committed themselves most notoriously in acts of treason and rebellion, fled upon the arrival of a ship from England, some days before the Nautilus and Falcon sloops reached this place with your despatches. From what has passed, your Lordship will judge that a plan for rebellion has been long conceived, and the people's minds ripened for it, and it is now too open and manifest to need the opinion of the law officers. I hear that the rebels, after surprising Ticonderoga, made incursions and commenced hostilities upon the frontier of the Province of Quebeck, which will justify General Carleton to raise bodies of Canadians and Indians to attack them in return; and we need not be tender of calling on the Savages, as the rebels have shown us the example, by bringing as many Indians down against us here as they could collect.*

PROCLAMATION BY GOVERNOUR GAGE.

By His Excellency the Honourable THOMAS GAGE, Esquire, Governour and Commander-in-Chief, in and over His Majesty's Province of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, and Vice-Admiral of the same:

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas, the insatuated multitude, who have long suffered themselves to be conducted by certain well known incendiaries and traitors, in a fatal progression of crimes against the constitutional authority of the State, have at

* It is a singular fact that the first intelligence of the capture of Ticonderoga was communicated to General Gage through a letter from Doctor Joseph Warren to Mr. John Scollay, dated May 17th, at Wartown, just one month before he was slain at Bunker's-Hill. A copy of the letter was procured by General Gage, and sent by him to Lord Dartmouth. The following is an extract:

"Thus a war is begun, which I have frequently said to you and others would, if not timely prevented, overturn the British Empire; but I hope, after a full conviction both of our ability and resolution to maintain our rights, Britain will act with that wisdom which is so absolutely necessary for her preservation; this I most heartily wish, as I feel a warm affection still for the Parent State." Sparks's Washington, Vol. 3, p. 510.

length proceeded to avowed Rebellion; and the good effects which were expected to arise from the patience and lenity of the King's Government have been often frustrated, and are now rendered hopeless, by the influence of the same evil counsels; it only remains for those who are invested with supreme rule, as well for the punishment of the guilty, as the protection of the well-affected, to prove they do not bear the sword in vain.

The infringements which have been committed upon the most sacred rights of the Crown and People of Great Britain, are too many to enumerate on one side, and are all too atrocious to be paliated on the other. All unprejudiced people, who have been witnesses of the late transactions in this and the neighbouring Provinces, will find, upon a transient review, marks of premeditation and conspiracy, that would justify the fulness of chastisement; and even those who are least acquainted with facts, cannot fail to receive a just impression of their enormity, in proportion as they discover the arts and assiduity by which they have been falsified or concealed.

The authors of the present unnatural revolt, never daring to trust their cause or their actions to the judgment of an impartial publick, or even to the dispassionate reflection of their followers, have uniformly placed their chief confidence in the suppression of truth; and while indefatigable and shameless pains have been taken to obstruct every appeal to the real interest of the people of America, the grossest forgeries, calumnies and absurdities that ever insulted human understanding, have been imposed upon their credulity. The press, that distinguished appendage of publick liberty, and, when fairly and impartially employed, its best support, has been invariably prostituted to the most contrary purposes; the animated language of ancient and virtuous times, calculated to vindicate and promote the just rights and interests of mankind, have been applied to countenance the most abandoned violation of those sacred blessings; and not only from the flagitious prints, but from the popular harangues of the times, men have been taught to depend upon activity in treason, for the security of their persons and properties; till, to complete the horrid profanation of terms and of ideas, the name of God has been introduced in the pulpits, to excite and justify devastation and massacre.

The minds of men have been thus gradually prepared for the worst extremities. A number of armed persons, to the amount of many thousands, assembled on the 19th of April last, and from behind walls and lurking holes, attacked a detachment of the King's Troops, who, not suspecting so consummate an act of frenzy, unprepared for vengeance, and willing to decline it, made use of their arms only in their own defence. Since that period, the rebels, deriving confidence from impunity, have added insult to outrage; have repeatedly fired upon the King's ships and subjects, with cannon and small-arms; have possessed the roads, and other communications by which the Town of Boston was supplied with provisions; and with a preposterous parade of military arrangement, they affected to hold the Army besieged; while part of their body made daily and indiscriminate invasions upon private property, and, with a wantonness of cruelty ever incident to lawless tumult, carry depredation and distress wherever they turn their steps. The actions of the 19th of April are of such notoriety as must baffle all attempts to contradict them, and the flames of buildings and other property from the islands and adjacent country, for some weeks past, spread a melancholy confirmation of the subsequent assertions.

In this exigency of complicated calamities, I avail myself of the last effort within the bounds of my duty, to spare the effusion of blood; to offer, and I do hereby, in His Majesty's name, offer and promise his most gracious pardon to all persons who shall forthwith lay down their arms, and return to their duties of peaceable subjects, excepting only from the benefit of such pardon, Samuel Adams and John Hancock, whose offences are of too flagitious a nature to admit of any other consideration than that of condign punishment.

And to the end that no person within the limits of this offered mercy may plead ignorance of the consequences of refusing it; I, by these presents, proclaim not only the persons above named and excepted, but also all their adherents, associates, and abettors, (meaning to comprehend in those terms, all and every person and persons, of what class, denomination or description soever,) who have appeared in arms against the King's Government, and shall not lay down the same as afore-mentioned; and likewise all such as shall so take arms after the date hereof, or who shall in any wise protect or conceal such offenders, or assist them with money, provisions, cattle, arms, ammunition, carriages, or any other necessary for subsistence or offence; or shall hold secret correspondence with them by letter, message, single or otherwise, to be Rebels and Traitors, and as such to be treated.

And whereas, during the continuance of the present unnatural rebellion, justice cannot be administered by the common law of the land, the course whereof has for a long time past been violently impeded, and wholly interrupted, (from whence results a necessity of using and exercising the Law-Martial,) I have therefore thought fit, by the authority vested in me by the Royal Charter to this Province, to publish, and I do hereby publish, proclaim and order the use and exercise of the Law-Martial, within and throughout this Province for so long time as the present unhappy occasion shall necessarily require; whereof all persons are hereby required to take notice, and govern themselves, as well to maintain order and regularity among the peaceable inhabitants of the Province, as to resist, encounter, and subdue the Rebels and Traitors above described, by such as shall be called upon for those purposes.

To these inevitable, but, I trust, salutary measures, it is a far more pleasing part of my duty to add the assurance of my protection and support to all who, in so trying a crisis, shall manifest their allegiance to the King, and affection to the Parent State; so that such persons as may have been intimidated to quit their homes in the course of this alarm, may return to their respective callings and professions, and stand distinct and separate from the parricides of the Constitution, till God in his mercy shall restore to his creatures in this distracted land that system of happiness from which they have been seduced—the religion of peace, and liberty founded upon law.

Given at Boston, this 12th day of June, in the fifteenth year of the reign of His Majesty King George the Third, by the grace of God, of Great-Britain, France, and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c., Annoque Domini 1775.

THOMAS GAGE.

By His Excellency's command:

THOMAS FLUCKER, Secretary.

God save the King.

THE MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS TO THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

Watertown, June 12, 1775.

May it please your Honours:

The views of Administration having been made evident by their conduct for some years past, and the late regulations of civil and ecclesiastical polity of Quebeck having already discovered an intention to make up of the Canadians or Indians to reduce the Continent to slavery; it has been found absolutely necessary for the preservation of the liberties of America to take possession of the important pass of Ticonderoga, and to send forward a sufficient force to hold the same against any attempt which may be made to retake it, and to prevent General Carleton from sending forces, by the way of the Lakes, to annoy and distress the frontiers. But we apprehend there never has been any intention to give the least disturbance to our brethren of Canada, to whom we most sincerely wish the full and free enjoyment of their civil and religious rights.

We humbly request that your Honours would take such steps to prevent any false impressions which our enemies may attempt to make on their minds, concerning our designs, or to remove any such as have already been made, as you in your wisdom shall think most expedient; as we look upon it to be of the utmost importance that there should be no jealousies subsisting between them and the other Colonies; and we have wrote to our sister Colonies in New-England and to New-York, requesting they would make a similar application to you respecting this matter.

We are your most obedient humble servants.

To the Continental Congress.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress of MASSACHUSETTS, now sitting at WATERTOWN, within the County of MIDDLESEX, this twelfth day of JUNE, 1775:
The Memorial of HENRY HOWELL WILLIAMS humbly sheweth:

That your memorialist hath, for eleven years last past, dwelt on an island in Boston Bay, commonly called Noddle's Island, at a very high rent, and in order to pay the same was obliged to keep a large stock of horses, cattle, sheep, &c.; and that during all the years aforesaid hath paid very large taxes for said island, stock, &c., for the support of Government; and hath always endeavoured faithfully to discharge his duty, as a good member of society, towards all men, and all that was theirs. That on Saturday, the 27th day of May last, a number of armed troops, commonly called Provincials, came on to said island, by way of Hog Island, and did then and there kill or carry away eight horses and three cows, part of the aforesaid stock, and also burnt and destroyed one dwelling-house and barn, with all the household goods therein contained, wearing apparel, &c. That on Monday, the 29th of May, the same or another number of said armed troops, came again on to said island, and then and there did burn and destroy two other dwelling-houses, goods, &c., and three barns; and at the same time did take away and drive off from said island about five hundred old sheep, and about three hundred and forty lambs, with between thirty and forty head of horned cattle, the property of your memorialist, together with a further number of horses, hogs, &c., &c. And that on Tuesday, the 30th day of May aforesaid, they entered again on to said island, and then and there proceeded and burnt your memorialist's mansion house, with all the barns, corn-houses, and store houses, stores, provisions, goods, house furniture, wearing apparel, liquors, and utensils of all sorts, to a very considerable amount and value: And on Saturday, the 10th day of June, instant, entered again, and burnt and destroyed the warehouse, the last building on said island, by which means your poor memorialist is stripped almost naked, and destitute of any place to lay his head, with a very large family of children and servants, to the amount of between forty and fifty in number, that are destitute of any business or supplies but from your memorialist.

These are therefore to request your Honours will take his most distressed circumstances into your wise consideration, and make such order thereon as in your wisdom shall seem meet, and, as in duty bound, will pray.

HENRY HOWELL WILLIAMS.

SPRINGFIELD (MASSACHUSETTS) COMMITTEE.

Springfield, June 12, 1775.

Whereas, the Committee of Correspondence for this Town have signified to me, that many suspicions have been conceived of me, in this and other parts of the Country, respecting my disposition and conduct, in regard to our publick affairs; and have therefore, agreeable to the order of the Provincial Congress of the 8th of May last, thought proper to inquire into the same, and have called upon me for the assurance and satisfaction therein mentioned: in conformity to such request, I have assured said Committee, and beg leave respectfully to assure the publick, that I have always conceived a most tender regard for the liberty and privileges of my Country, and the greatest concern at every prospect of its injury or oppression; that however I may, as very probably I have, committed many errors and mistakes in the little part I have had in the publick affairs of the Province, yet that I never entertained a sentiment, or did any thing knowingly, that was unfriendly to its interest, but always endeavoured, according to my ability, with good conscience to promote it.

That wherein I have heretofore in any of those matters, unhappily thought differently from many of my brethren, I humbly apprehend I thought with modesty, and acted with integrity, moderation, and decency, and in some good degree as became one who realized the account he was to give of his conduct. That as a private member of society, I have long since submitted myself to the publick sense and opinion; that I have always conformed myself to the regulations of the former Continental Congress; that I will by no means obstruct any measures that may be taken for the common defence; that I am determined to conform myself to all such future regulations as may be dictated by the wisdom of the Continent; and to join my countrymen, on all occasions, according to my abilities, in defence of the rights and liberties of America.

JOHN WORTHINGTON.

In Committee of Correspondence, Springfield, }
 June 12, 1775. }

This Committee having examined John Worthington, Esq., with respect to his principles and conduct, agreeable to the order of the Provincial Congress of the 8th of May last, and having received full and ample assurance of his friendly disposition to his Country, and of his readiness to join in defence of its rights and liberties; hereby declare their full satisfaction and confidence therein; and recommend him to the favourable opinion of the publick, and to the treatment and respect due to a friend of his Country.

By order of the Committee:

NATHANIEL BREWER, Chairman.

N. B. This Town in town-meeting having heard him on the same matters, voted themselves also satisfied therewith.

COMMITTEES OF CHELMSFORD, ETC., MASSACHUSETTS.

Chelmsford, June 12, 1775.

Whereas, I, Timothy Brown of Tewksbury, have been suspected as an enemy to the liberties of America, I do hereby acknowledge that I have in times past said something (though with no inimical design) that were taken as of an inimical nature. I am heartily sorry I said those things, and desire the forgiveness of all persons that I have offended thereby; and do declare myself a friend to the Charter privileges of my Country, and that I will use all lawful endeavours to maintain and defend the same.

TIMOTHY BROWN.

The above written acknowledgment was accepted by the Committee of Correspondence for the Towns of Chelmsford, Billerica, and Tewksbury, and they do hereby recommend the above named Timothy Brown to the charity and friendship of the good people through the Country.

In the name and by order of the Committee of said Towns:

SIMEON SPALDING, Chairman.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, now sitting at WATERTOWN, in said Province:

The Petition of the Committee of Safety for and in behalf of the Town of KITTERY, humbly sheweth:

That the Committee of Safety for this Town earnestly desire the favour of making a representation to your Honours of the distresses and insults we are daily subjected to, from the hands of our enemies, being constrained thereto by the duty and regard we owe to said Town, our families, and the community.

Such threatenings being sent on shore, by letters and otherwise, from the Captains of the Scarborough and Canceaux men-of-war, as would disgrace us as Englishmen and rational beings, should we tamely pass over. We are told, that our houses shall be beat down, and the inhabitants made prisoners of, whenever it is in their power, with all the horrors of bloodshed and butchery laid before us. Three cannon-shot have already been fired upon the side opposite to this Town, among the houses, but providentially no lives lost. Although we keep a regular Watch, night and day, we are in expectation every moment, on the least pretence, of having our habitations and effects demolished, and our persons seized as aforesaid.

We are already cut off from all provisions, salt, and molasses, by water; and notwithstanding our being in some measure prepared to defend with musketry, we are destitute of the necessaries for the use of cannon, of which we have two very good ones, and a prospect of obtaining more, having also a very advantageous place for a battery, under some considerable improvement, erected by the late Sir William Pepperell, on the news of the Chebuca Fleets appearing on the Nova-Scotia shore. The inhabitants are willing and ready to exert themselves for the honour of the Province, as well as for the defence of themselves in particular.

We of this Committee, looking upon the said Town as very unhappy in such a defenceless situation, apply to your Honours, as the guardians of our rights, and beg leave to ask for supplies of powder and balls, for the use of the battery proposed, as a defence against the ravages of merciless men. If it should in your wisdom seem meet to grant us this favour, humbly desire your advice how far, and the manner in which we ought to proceed, as we should be utterly against taking any steps that might interrupt your deliberations. We ask not for this assistance because we are intimidated or dismayed, but that we may have an opportunity to distinguish ourselves in favour of a cause that appears to us so just and reasonable on our part, on the other to be fraught with cruelty and oppression beyond our abilities to set forth. Being reduced to this alternative, either to fight or perish by famine, we choose the first, if we can procure the rational means for defence. We submit the matter to your goodness and wisdom, and doubt not of your inclination to relieve us, if our request appears reasonable to you, and consistent with the general plan of operation.

By order of the Committee:

CHAS. CHAUNCEY, JUN., Chairman.

Kittery, June 12, 1775.

ELISHA PHELPS TO THE MASSACHUSETTS COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Lebanon, June 12, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: When I left you I came to this Town, and informed his Honour the Governour the distressing situation I was in concerning the team, and his Honour told me there was no difficulty; that I must apply to Albany, and they would pay me, and he would not have me fetch any cannon without orders from the Continental Congress, which advice I shall take. He also informed me that I was appointed Commissary-General for the Northern forces, so that you cannot expect any cannon by any of my assistance at present. I thought it my duty to let you know it; should be glad that this might be read in Congress, as I thought my fidelity suspected. Gentlemen, I am, with the greatest esteem, your very humble servant at command,

ELISHA PHELPS.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM NEWFOUNDLAND, DATED JUNE 12, 1775.

The necessities of the people here for bread are increasing daily; the labourers and fishermen have some time been at short allowance, and I am informed that many families here have not any to eat. The merchants have despatched vessels to England, Ireland, and Quebeck, in search for bread, and I doubt not many are gone and going to America on the same errand; but this is conjecture, founded on the knowledge and solicitations to undertake the voyage, of which I, being suspected and watched, can get no certain intelligence. The minds of the merchants are much agitated. As I transiently fall in company here, where my particular sentiments are not so well known, I hear merchants concerting schemes for their supplies, and complaining that they must discharge their men; then cursing New-York, "the only place," say they, "we depend on to assist us in subjugating the Americans;" then cursing the Continental Congress, and proposing the most inhuman procedure, whenever they shall fall into their hands; anon cursing the Poole Petition, and swearing they had no hand in it; that the Poole men had destroyed them. "However," say they, "when General Burgoyne arrives, he will draw in New-York, and we shall yet bring America to terms; but if he should fail, those Light-horse will soon secure the Continental Congress; our Troops will march through the Country, and make them feel the effects of their obstinacy; they have no Regular Troops, and what can they do with a few undisciplined men? but, damn them, what shall we do, if they are united; we shall never be able to do any thing with them." This, gentlemen, and much of the same nature, is the reward you have from a sample of England; blessings God has given to men, are secured to them.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM LONDON, DATED JUNE 13, 1775.

The troubles and misunderstandings between us and the Colonies are very much felt here. Remittances are unavoidably very long; and this, added to a total deprivation of trade, puts us in a dreadful situation, and has a still worse appearance to look onwards. The very people who first oppressed the Colonies here, in full assurance that all they asked must be complied with, now say, "What can we do? We have gone too far, but cannot recede." But I hope there are still left some able men, whose humanity will lead them to step forward, and by well-timed arguments will still adjust matters, and that we shall again see that good opinion between both which has hitherto made us great and powerful. This happy hour I most ardently wish for.

GOVERNOUR MARTIN TO HENRY WHITE.

Cape Fear, North-Carolina, June 13, 1775.

MY DEAR SIR: I take the liberty to enclose herewith a letter to Mrs. Martin, whose safe arrival I am most anxious to learn, the winds having been easterly almost ever since her departure.

I shall be extremely obliged to you if you can contrive to send me, with the royal standard I mentioned to you some time ago, or without it if that is not to be had, a good tent and marquee, of the size of the Colonel's tent in the Army, with a tent-bed to fit the boot of it, and furniture, viz: mattress, bolster, and pillows; to be sent by any vessel bound to Cape Fear River, or in default thereof to Newbern, directed to the care of Mr. Cornell.

I should rejoice to see a prospect of a happy termination of the present deplorable times, that more or less threatens the happiness of every man throughout the British Dominions.

My compliments and warmest good wishes attend you and Mrs. White and all your family; and I am, dear Sir, ever yours,

JO. MARTIN.

The Honourable Henry White, Esq., New-York.

P. S. I forbear to give you your due additions on the outside of my letter, to obviate prying curiosity.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM ONE OF THE VIRGINIA DELEGATES TO HIS FRIEND IN WILLIAMSBURGH, DATED PHILADELPHIA, JUNE 13, 1775.

Notwithstanding the many accounts of the sailing of the Troops from Ireland, a vessel has just arrived here from Newry, in five weeks, the Captain of which says that none had sailed; and that just as he was coming away, orders were said to have come to them to hold themselves in readiness to embark for Gibraltar.

Colonel Skene (owner of the schooner taken on Lake Champlain, whose son was also taken there, and is now prisoner in Connecticut) is just arrived from London with a commission to be Governour of Ticonderoga and Crown Point, but, private letters say, is charged with a power from Administration to influence the members of the Congress by arguments drawn on the Treasury, over which he has unlimited power; but as we have no occasion for his services at the forts, and do not intend to deal in his reasonings, he remains a prisoner upon his parole, to keep within eight miles of the city, between the two rivers, and not to correspond with any person on political subjects.

As to the two engagements at the islands near Boston, we are told, but not with a degree of confirmation, that the last on Noddle's Island was a very serious business, near fifteen hundred being engaged on each side, and that the Regulars had two hundred killed and wounded, the loss on the side of the Provincials being merely trifling.

I think we may finish in a fortnight, but can only guess, without forming any precise judgment about it.

CAROLINE COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

MR. PURDIE: Influenced by the best motives, and divested of national prejudice, the Committee of Caroline request you to publish the enclosed extracts. They mean nothing more by the publication than to excite in the breast of their countrymen an honest indignation against the authors of their present calamities; to animate them to a manly opposition against a ministerial system of politicks evidently calculated to enslave America; to stimulate them to that industry, and recommend that economy, which are requisite to a discharge of their just debts; and to expose the insidious arts and designs of British merchants and factors, who seem highly pleased with a prospect of having the power of seizing in an instant, with merciless rapacity, the property of the poor and laborious Colonist, by means of an establishment of a more compendious course of law.

SAMUEL HAWES, Clerk.

Extract of a Letter from D. Cross, Glasgow, to James Dunlop, merchant, Port-Royal, June 8, 1775:

I believe also when your courts are opened, you will meet with better and speedier justice than ever, and perhaps a different mode of having it administered. That you will see an immediate and heavy pressure, when this happens, upon certain classes of the debtors, and their property brought to market; for I believe the late confusions will have given to most individuals a character that is like a stamp upon them, and will, I believe, occasion what I have said, taking place, in a very extensive degree. I besides see in conversation, an uncommon backwardness still in people's trusting their property in America, nor can I help adopting and approving the sentiment, when I consider what strong reasons they have for it.

To James Dunlop and Patrick Kennan, merchants, on Rappahannock, June 13, 1775:

Let your list of debts, your books, and every other document and voucher you send to us, be all sworn to before a proper magistrate; take your assistants and book-keepers' oaths also in the same manner, and study to make every matter as authentick and firm as the nature of the things will admit. You ought to have done this with the last list of debts that you sent; you cannot now err on the side of too much precaution and care, for ascertaining things hereafter. You cannot suffer in taking paper money in payment, so far as you have occasion to pay it away again for debts that you owe; but beware of taking it farther, when you find the exchange affected much, or the difference between it and gold and silver considerable.

Mr. Dunlop, in his letter of the sixteenth of July, by the Jean, in case the trade opens again, recommends to us to put the collection of debts into other hands than the sale of goods, each to be under a different firm. This appears to us proper; and if Mr. Kennan is of the same opinion as to his business, he will please to mention it, and each will name the person he would choose to take charge of the collection, and powers will, in proper time, be given. We suppose yourselves would choose to take charge of the sales, and of the apparent new business.

Mr. Morris and Mr. Walsh would be the proper people to devolve the collection upon. If any others, let them be named.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM BALTIMORE, JUNE 13, 1775.

A gentleman who last night came here from Williamsburgh, which place he left on Friday last, June 9th, brings an account of Lord Dunmore having the day before gone on board a man-of-war, at York, with his lady and family. The Assembly sent a deputation to invite him to return, and assured him of protection, but he refused, and pretends to be afraid of being assassinated. He had dismissed the Indian hostages, and desired them to make the best of their way to their own country. Two of them have since surrendered themselves, the other is not yet found.

NEW-YORK CONGRESS TO THEIR DELEGATES IN CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 13, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: In consequence of one of your resolves, we appointed a Committee to view the post in the Highlands, whose report, with a map thereto annexed, you have enclosed, which is all we have as yet been able to do respecting that matter. As soon as the proper measures on that head are concluded, we will transmit them to you.

We are, gentlemen, your most obedient and humble servants. By order of the Congress:

P. V. B. LIVINGSTON, President.

To the New-York Delegates in Continental Congress.

BENEDICT ARNOLD TO THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

Crown Point, June 13, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: As commanding officer here, I think it my duty to acquaint you that having lately sent one Mr. Hait, an Indian interpreter, to Montreal and Caughnawaga, to consult with some gentlemen of my acquaintance in the former place, and with the Indians in the latter, to know their intentions in the present dispute, he has returned with the agreeable intelligence that the Indians are determined not to assist the King's Troops against us. They have made a law, that if any one of their tribe shall take up arms for that purpose, he shall immediately be put to death; this is confirmed by five of their chief men, who are now here with their wives and children, and press very hard for our Army to march into Canada, being much disgusted with the Regulars. The Stockbridge Indians, whom I lately sent to them with a belt of wampum and speech, confirm the above. My friend in Montreal, a merchant and gentleman of probity, writes that I may depend on the truth of the above, and that great numbers of the Canadians have expected a visit from us for some time, and are very impatient of our delay, as they are determined to join us whenever we appear in the Country with any force to support them. This I am confirmed in by a party of the Canadians, having just returned from a short excursion to the Ile-au-Noir, (Nut-Island), where a number of them offer to join us.

Governour Carleton, by every artifice, has been able to raise only about twenty Canadians, and those of the noblesse, who are in expectation of places of profit or honour. He is now at Montreal, and has threatened the English merchants, if they will not defend it in case of an attack, he will set fire to the city and retreat to Quebeck. There are now in Canada, of the Seventh and Twenty-Sixth Regiments, only five hundred and fifty effective men, who are quartered in the following manner: At St. John's and Chamblee, three hundred; at Montreal, forty; at Lachine, twelve; at Trois Rivières, forty; at Quebeck, one hundred and twenty; and some small parties at out-posts. From the foregoing matters of fact, which you may rely are undoubted, and from my personal knowledge of the country and disposition of the Canadians, I beg leave to observe, that if the honourable Congress should think proper to take possession of Montreal and Quebeck, I am positive two thousand men might very easily effect it; for which purpose I beg leave to recommend the following plan of operations:

The men to embark at Crown Point and proceed in the sloop, schooner, batteaus, &c., to within two miles of St. John's; seventeen hundred men to form a grand division, of which one thousand to proceed directly to Montreal; the other division of seven hundred to cut off the communication between St. John's, Chamblee, and Montreal, and the remainder to remain with the shipping to secure our retreat, who will be able, by a diversion in favour of the main body, until they show themselves off Montreal, whose gates, on our arrival at that place, will be opened by our friends there, in consequence of a plan for that purpose already entered into by them. Of course Chamblee and St. John's must fall into our hands, as well as Quebeck, unless a number of troops should arrive there before this plan can be carried into execution, the utility of which the honourable Congress will be the best judges. But I must beg to observe, it appears to me the reduction of those places would discourage the enemies of American liberty, and, in a great degree, frustrate their cruel and unjust plan of operation, and be the means of restoring that solid peace and harmony between Great Britain and her Colonies, so essential to the well being of both; at least if will, in my humble opinion, be more advantageous, and attended with less expense, to reduce Quebeck and keep possession, where provisions of every kind are plenty, and a strong fortress built to our hand, than rebuilding Ticonderoga, as it will entirely deprive Great Britain of the lucrative branch, (the fur trade,) and be an inexhaustible granary in case we are reduced to want, as there are annually shipped from Quebeck five hundred thousand bushels of wheat. I hope the exigency of the times, and my zeal in the service of my Country, will apologize for the liberty of giving my sentiments so freely on a subject which the honourable Congress are doubtless the best judges of, but which they in their hurry may not have paid that attention to the matter requires. I beg leave to add, that if no person appears who will undertake to carry the plan into execution, (if thought advisable,) I will undertake, and, with the smiles of Heaven, answer for the success of it, provided I am supplied with men, &c., to carry it into execution without loss of time. I must beg leave to refer you to the bearer, Captain Oswald, for particulars, who is entrusted with an imperfect memorandum of such articles as are most wanted.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest respect, gentlemen, your most devoted humble servant,

BENEDICT ARNOLD.

To the Honourable the Continental Congress, now sitting at Philadelphia.

P. S. The American Colonies in general are equally in danger from Canada, whether it remain in the hands of Britain, under the present form of its Government, or should be restored to the French, which many suspect is intended by the Ministry in England. But should Canada be placed under a free Government, agreeable to the English Constitution, like the other Colonies, we should forever after be secure from any danger that way, as it would ever remain an English Colony, even though by the treachery of the British Ministry it should be given up to France; so that this measure, though at first view it might seem like going beyond our own province to invade the rights of Great Britain, yet a due regard to our own defence, as well as the advantage of the inhabitants of that Country, makes it necessary.

B. A.

Memorandum.

Propose, in order to give satisfaction to the different Colonies, that Colonel Hinman's Regiment, now on their march from Connecticut to Ticonderoga, should form part of the Army—say one thousand men; 500 do. to be sent from New-York, including one company of one hundred men of the train of artillery, properly equipped; 500 do. B. Arnold's Regiment, including seamen and marines on board the vessels: (no Green Mountain Boys.) The men, as many as can be, to be supplied with bayonets, cartridge-boxes, and powder-horns: 2 able engineers: 2 good armourers and tools: 100 tents and marquees: 1000 blankets, one Regiment being already provided: proper camp-equipage, kettles, cups, &c., for one thousand men: 4 brass field-pieces and carriages furnished: two 7 & 8-inch brass mortars, do.: shells and shot of every kind for do.: 2000 pounds of gunpowder: 300 shovels and spades: 200 hoes: 200 pick-axes: 200 narrow do.: 50 broad do.: 500 hatchets: 50 hand-saws, sorted: 10 crosscut do.: 10 whip do.: 5 reams of cartridge paper: 10 pieces of raven's duck for sails: 50 pounds of sewing twine: needles, palms, &c.: match stuff, slow: 6 sets of house and ship carpenter's tools: 6 sets of harness for horses: necessary provisions for two thousand men for two months.

COLONEL B. ARNOLD TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Crown Point, June 13, 1775.

SIR: I have the pleasure to acquaint your Honour, that having lately sent one Hoit, and Indian interpreter, to Montreal to consult with some gentlemen of my acquaintance there, and with the Indians in Caughnawaga, to know their intentions in the present dispute, he has returned with the agreeable intelligence that the Indians are determined not to assist the King's Troops against us, and have passed a law that the first of their tribe who takes up arms against us shall be punished with death. This advice is confirmed by five chief men of their tribe who are now here with their wives and children, and press very hard for our Army to march into Canada, as they are much disgusted with the Regular Troops.

Three Indians of the Stockbridge Nation whom I lately sent to Caughnawaga, with a belt of wampum and a speech, confirm the above, which my friend, a gentleman of probity in Montreal, writes me may be depended on, and that great numbers of the Canadians have expected us there for some time, and are impatient of our delay, being determined to join us whenever we appear with a sufficient force to support them. This I am confirmed in by many of the Canadians themselves, having just returned from an excursion down the lake, where I saw numbers of them, who offered to join us. Governour Carleton has been able by every artifice to raise no more than twenty Canadians of the noblesse, who are in expectation of places of profit or honour. He is much disgusted with the merchants in Montreal, and has threatened them, if they will not defend the City in case of an attack, he will set fire to it, and retreat to Quebeck. He has in Canada only five hundred and fifty effective men of the King's Troops, so that it would be a very easy matter to possess ourselves of the country if thought expedient.

I have wrote very fully on the subject to the honourable Continental Congress, and sketched out a plan for taking possession of the country if thought advisable by them, which will not only deprive Great Britain of the lucrative branch of the fur-trade, but secure to us an inexhaustible granary, (as there is annually shipped at Quebeck, five hundred thousand bushels of wheat,) and may very possibly be a means of discouraging the British Ministry in their coercive measures, and restoring that peace and harmony between Great Britain and the American Colonies so essential to the well-being of both.

I am, very respectfully, your Honour's most obedient humble servant,

BENEDICT ARNOLD.

To the Honourable Jonathan Trumbull, Governour of the Colony of Connecticut.

P. S. The plan of our expedition to Canada, your Honour will please not to disclose.

B. A.

JOSEPH PALMER TO THE MASSACHUSETTS COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Cambridge, June 13, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: There is very great distress in this camp for want of tents or commodious barracks; I therefore humbly beg you will immediately take this important matter into serious consideration. Perhaps if a number of houses, contiguous to the parade, were hired of the owners by the Colony, and solely appropriated as barracks, the soldiery might be well accommodated; this, if recommended by Congress, it is probable might be effected. The least delay in this affair, it appears to me, will be attended with very bad consequences. I am, gentlemen, with the greatest respect, your most obedient humble servant,

JOSEPH PALMER, Quartermaster General.

To the Honourable Committee of Safety.

In Committee of Safety, Cambridge, June 13, 1775.

This Committee beg leave earnestly to recommend to the Honourable Congress, that the above representation from the Quartermaster General be taken into immediate consideration, especially as the Committee, from their own knowledge find the rooms too much crowded, and the healths and lives of the soldiers thereby greatly exposed; and if tents cannot be immediately furnished, that some barracks be forthwith erected.

BENJAMIN WHITE, Chairman.

N. B. It is presumed some lives are already lost from their being thus crowded.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress now sitting in WATERTOWN: the Petition of LEMUEL TRESCOTT, of BOSTON, humbly sheweth:

That before he left Boston he had, for a considerable time, assisted at Faneuil Hall in teaching a number of men the military art, and upon his arrival in the camp at Cambridge, he was, by some gentlemen of the Committee of Safety and Council of War, encouraged to raise a company out of those men, and to hope that a sufficient number of small-arms would be provided for them by the Colony, as, by the stipulation with General Gage, (which was consented to by the honourable Congress,) their own were lodged with the Selectmen of Boston; that he has now forty men, including officers, who have borne their share of camp duty since the 17th of last month; but the want of fire-arms not only prevents their perfecting themselves in military exercises, and is the reason why the company is not now complete, but leads those who are enlisted to fear they will soon be dismissed from the service: Your petitioner therefore humbly prays the honourable Congress to take this matter into consideration, and afford such relief to a number of men whose situation is peculiarly distressing, as in your wisdom and goodness you may deem meet; at the same time assuring your Honours, that it will be their grand aim to be as much distinguished by their exertions for the common cause of their Country, as they have been by their sufferings, and that, as in duty bound, shall pray, &c.

LEMUEL TRESCOTT, in behalf of a Company.
Cambridge, June 13, 1775.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

In Committee of Safety, Exeter, June 13, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: By a gentleman of undoubted veracity, (who left Boston last Friday, and who had frequent opportunity of conversing with the principal officers in General Gage's Army,) we are informed there is a great probability there when the expected re-enforcement arrives from Europe, that General Gage will secure some advantageous posts near Boston, viz: Dorchester and Charlestown. We are unacquainted with the importance of those posts, but if this hint should be in any decree useful, it will give us pleasure.

COMMITTEE OF EXETER, N. H., TO COMMITTEE OF CONWAY.

In Committee of Safety, Exeter, June 14, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: In compliance with your request, we have agreed to spare you twenty-five pounds of powder out of our small stock, which is all we can possibly spare at present. Have advised Mr. Burbank to purchase lead, as we suppose he will be able to procure that article without any difficulty. As to arms, its out of power to supply you, nor do we think they are to be had in the Province. If the Indians should have any design to trouble our frontiers, we flatter ourselves we shall have such notice of their designs, as to be able to guard ourselves against them. We have determined to employ three companies at present on the frontier for the purposes of observation, which will, we suppose, afford you both necessary information and security for the present.

You may rest assured that it was merely an oversight, unless, as we rather suppose, the letter failed, that your Town was not desired to send a Delegate to the Congress. If you think proper, we think it quite suitable that you choose some person or persons to represent you at the next meeting of the Congress, which will be the 27th of this month.

We have enclosed a copy of the letter on which the other Towns have acted.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM ONE OF THE VIRGINIA DELEGATES TO HIS FRIEND IN WILLIAMSBURGH, DATED PHILADELPHIA, JUNE 14, 1775.

Col. Washington has been pressed to take the supreme command of the American Troops encamped at Roxbury, and I believe will accept the appointment, though with much reluctance, he being deeply impressed with the importance of that honourable trust, and diffident of his own (superiour) abilities. We have determined to keep ten thousand men in Massachusetts-Bay, and five thousand in different parts of the New-York Government, at the expense of the Continent; and probably a larger sum of money will be emitted in order to carry on the war, preparations for which go on rapidly in this place.

It seems likely that some of the newly arrived Generals were intended for the Southern Colonies, but no Troops can be spared from Boston. The Provincials talk much of storming that Town, and it is expected by many.

The Congress will sit long. Adjusting the expenses of each Colony for the common cause, and settling proper funds for the Army, are subjects fruitful of debate, and of the utmost consequence.

TO THE INHABITANTS OF NEW-JERSEY.

Friends and Fellow-Subjects:

How fashionable soever might have been the doctrine of passive obedience and non-resistance in those dark times of ignorance and barbarism, when the laity had no more instruction than to repeat the Lord's prayer, nor the clergy any more reading than would save them from hanging; it is, in this lettered and enlightened age, so generally exploded, that save a few Tories, who are pensioned out of their consciences, or a few gowns and cassocks who are looking for an American mitre, no man is fond of broaching so gross an absurdity. It is certainly the voice of unbiased, uncorrupted reason, that whatever one man has a right to enjoy, no other man has a right to take from him; and that, consequently, the first has an undoubted right to repel the invasion of the latter. And what does it matter whether this invasion is made under the character of king, highwayman, or robber? since it is not from the person of the invader, but from the nature of the invasion itself, that the injury receives its complexion, and on which the right of the resistance is founded. And as this is the undoubted right of all mankind, it is, with respect to Englishmen, reduced to absolute certainty by a most memorable clause in the Great Charter, whereby four out of twenty-five Barons may show the King his miscarriage; and on his not amending it, may, with the residue of the twenty-five and commonalty, redress themselves by force. It is true the Americans have no Barons to shew the King his miscarriage; but the Barons appointed for that purpose by Magna Charta being thereto appointed as representatives of the people aggrieved, it is evident, from the nature of our local circumstances, that we must have a right to appoint, in the room of such Barons, a representation for the same purpose; and that such representatives must have the same right to lay our grievances before the throne, and the aggrieved, in default of redress by the Prince, have a right, in the same manner, to redress themselves. In the light of this representation I consider the Continental Congress, being expressly chosen to present our grievances to His Majesty, and to supplicate him to remove our complaints. To this purpose they are undoubtedly the Barons of North-America, on whom the united confederated Colonies depend for counsel and protection, agreeable to the security granted to the subjects by the 64th section of Magna Charta above referred to, and which, it being probably in few of your hands, I choose to give you at large:

The Security for the Rights, Privileges, and Immunities of Magna Charta.

Section 64. "And whereas we have granted all these things for God's sake, and for the amendment of our Government, and for the better compromising the discord arisen betwixt us and our Barons, we, willing that the same be firmly held and established forever, do make and grant our Barons the security underwritten, to wit: that the Barons shall choose five-and-twenty Barons of the Realm, whom they list, who shall, to their utmost power, keep, and hold, and cause to be kept, the peace and liberties which we have granted and confirmed by this our present Charter; insomuch that if we or our justice, or our bailiff, or any of our ministers act contrary to the same, in any thing against any person, or offend against any article of this peace and security, and such our miscarriage be shewn to four Barons of the said five-and-twenty, those four Barons shall come to us, or to our justice if we be out of the Realm, and shew us our miscarriage, and require us to amend the same without delay; and if we do not amend it, or if we be out of the Realm, our justice do not amend it within forty days after the same is shewn to us, or to our justice if we be out of the Realm, then the said four Barons shall report the same to the residue of the said five-and-twenty Barons, and then those five-and-twenty Barons, with the commonalty of England, may distress us by all the ways they can, to wit: by seizing on our castles, lands, and possessions, and by what other means they can, till it be amended, as they shall judge, saving our own person, the person of our Queen, and the persons of our children; and when it is amended, they shall be subject to us as before; and whoever of the Realm will, may swear that, for the performance of these things, he will obey the commands of the said five-and-twenty Barons, and that together with them, he will distress us to his power; and we will give publick and free leave to swear, to all that will swear, and will never hinder any one; and for all persons of the Realm, that of their own accord will swear to the said five-and-twenty Barons, to distress us, we will issue our presents, commanding them to swear as aforesaid."

This, my countrymen, is the security granted to you and me, and by this are confirmed all the rights and privileges of an English subject, and which the present Administration seem determined to destroy. It may, indeed, be said, that we do not belong to the Massachusetts-Bay, and that New-Jersey is not attacked. But can you be so supine as to suppose that you will continue to enjoy those inestimable rights of Magna Charta, when other Colonies are bereft of them; and that the Massachusetts is the only Colony to be punished? Have they not done more for the parent State than any Colony on the Continent? Did they not in the war before the last, with very little assistance, take Cape-Breton, the Dunkirk of North-America, the giving up of which procured a peace for the Mother Country? Did they not the last war send seven thousand Troops into the field, under the King's General, until the final conquest of Canada? Notwithstanding all this, you see their capital blocked up, their Charter mutilated, and an armed force ready to execute the arbitrary measures of the Minister, who covers himself under a purchased majority in Parliament. Hostilities being actually begun in the Massachusetts, you cannot expect to fare better than your sister Colony. Your trade is already restrained, and you are daily to expect open violence to enforce unconstitutional taxation. Thus we have lived to see our most sacred rights daringly invaded; but we will not live to see them destroyed. The wound by which our liberty falls ought first to reach our hearts; and the rich torrents of our blood be shed as a libation on the pile of expiring freedom.

The power of the people can never be lost or impaired, unless they are wanting to themselves. What they could once do, they can and ought to do now. Let us therefore cordially unite under the Continental Congress, and look to them as the English formerly did to their Barons, and I am confident in so good a cause we shall have the protection of Heaven; which is the sincere desire, and prayer of

June 14, 1775.

A JERSEY FARMER.

WILLIAM DUER TO THE NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York, June 14, 1775.

SIR: My conduct before the Committee of Albany, with relation to the northern frontier of this Colony, hath, as I am informed, given rise to sundry insinuations derogatory to my character as a gentleman, and as a friend to the rights and liberties of America. Conscious, Sir, that my bosom has never prompted a thought inimical to this Colony, I feel, on this occasion, the warmth of an innocent, injured man. By the report industriously circulated to my disadvantage, my person and property are deeply endangered. At the same time, the facts on which such tales are founded are of such a nature that it would be improper to explain them to the world.

I do, therefore, Sir, most humbly entreat of your honourable House, that they would be pleased to appoint some gentlemen as a Committee to examine into my conduct this afternoon; and that they will pardon any seeming impropriety in naming a time for that purpose by me, which I am confident will readily be done, when the House are informed that my presence is absolutely necessary in the County where I reside on Tuesday next, to hold a court there.

I have the honour to be, Sir, with the highest respect, your most obedient and humble servant,

WILLIAM DUER.

To Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President of the Provincial Congress, New-York.

WILLIAM GODDARD TO THE NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York, June 14, 1775.

SIR: I beg the favour of you to take an early opportunity to lay before the Provincial Congress the enclosed papers, which are explanatory of a design formed by the friends of freedom for annihilating the old Parliamentary and Ministerial Post-Office in this Country, by the institution of a new one, on a constitutional basis, or such of them as you may judge proper; a design that, for obvious reasons, hath met with the approbation and support of many respectable Colonies, Cities, and Towns, both in New-England and the Southern Governments, as far as North-Carolina; not doubting but the Representatives of the free people of this great Province, now convened in this City, will cheerfully co-operate in giving success to a measure of such capital consequence to the publick welfare, and so indispensable at this interesting crisis.

Being on my way to Philadelphia from the Eastern Colonies, where I purpose to address the honourable Continental Congress on the subject of the American Post-Office, which, I am persuaded, will, ere long, take that matter into their serious consideration, and form such a general plan as will prove extensively beneficial to all America, I should be extremely glad to obtain the resolutions of the Provincial Congress of New-York relative to the business in question, previous to my departure, and as expeditiously as possible. To prevent an imputation of vanity and ostentation, it may be necessary for me to add, that I engaged in this business with the advice and by the desire of many gentlemen of the first character on this Continent, and am happy in being made an instrument, however humble, in promoting the interest of my native Country.

I am, with great respect, Sir, your very humble and most obedient servant,

WILLIAM GODDARD.

To the Honourable Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., President of the Provincial Congress of New-York.

In Provincial Congress, Watertown, May 12, 1775.

Resolved, As the opinion of this Congress, that Post-Riders be immediately established, to go from Cambridge, and to ride the following roads, viz: To Georgetown, in the County of Lincoln; to Haverhill; to Providence; to Woodstock, by Worcester; and from Worcester to Great Barrington, by Springfield; and to Falmouth, in the County of Barnstable.

In Provincial Congress, Watertown, May 15, 1775.

Resolved, That David Cheever, Esquire, for reasons by him offered, be excused from serving in the business to which he was appointed by a resolve of this Congress, passed the 12th instant, for establishing Post-Offices and Post-Riders; and that Mr. William Greenleaf, Joseph Greenleaf, Esquire, and Mr. John Pitts, be added to the Committee then appointed.

In Provincial Congress, May 18, 1775. }

Resolved, That a Post-Office be established in Portsmouth, and that Samuel Penhallow, Esq., of said Portsmouth, be appointed Postmaster; and that the members of this Congress from Portsmouth be a Committee to agree with a Post-Rider or Riders.

MATTHEW THORNTON, President.

Providence, May 30, 1775.

The General Assembly of the Colony of Connecticut and the Provincial Congresses of Massachusetts-Bay and New-Hampshire having seconded the wishes and efforts of the friends of freedom in the Southern Colonies, for abolishing that ministerial engine, the unconstitutional Post-Office, by the establishment of Posts and Post-Offices, on constitutional principles; the Committee of this Town have judged it highly expedient and necessary, at this interesting juncture, to co-operate with their brethren in the important business in question: They have therefore appointed Mr. John Carter to act as Postmaster here, and Mr. Peter Mumford as Post-Rider, under the direction and control of said Committee, until the legislature of this Colony or the Continental Congress shall be pleased to make other regulations and appointments.

JAMES ANGELL, Clerk.

Newport, May 31, 1775.

Whereas the intercourse between the Colonies hath for some time been, and is now, interrupted by the Riders being dismissed by the Postmaster-General, and as there is no person who acts as Postmaster in this Town; therefore, Voted, That Mr. Nathaniel Otis be appointed to receive and deliver the Letters brought to, and to be sent from this Town, under the direction of this Committee, until the General Assembly of this Colony or this Committee shall order otherwise, and that he shall receive for each Letter agreeable to the schedule delivered him by this Committee, and that this Vote be published in the next Newport Mercury.

I am, Sir, your obedient humble servant,

TITUS HOSMER.

Mr. William Goddard, at Hartford; by express.

NEW-YORK CONGRESS TO THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 14, 1775.

Sir: We embrace the opportunity that now offers, to acknowledge the receipt of your letters of the 26th and 31st of May last, and of the 1st and 10th of June instant, covering several important resolves of your respectable body. We have, as far as in our power, endeavoured to comply with these requisitions. Copies of some of our proceedings have already been, and such as were not, are now transmitted to our Delegates. Upon the receipt of the resolution of the 9th of June, relative to the sending five thousand barrels of flour for the use of the Continental Army, we immediately appointed a Committee to carry it into execution, as will appear from the enclosed resolve; but it is at present uncertain whether we shall be able to comply with it, flour being an article which hath generally sold for cash, and we being unable to offer better security to the vender than the faith of our own body. However, the Congress may rest assured that our best endeavours shall not be wanted to complete the order.

We find ourselves much embarrassed on a variety of other occasions, for want of money; many articles necessary to be furnished are not to be got on credit, and you must be sensible that to embody troops for the service, it is absolutely necessary to have large sums in hand. Without money we fear the service will suffer from our inability to comply with the resolutions of the Congress. We have already contracted a load of debts, and stretched our credit to the utmost; our zeal for the publick service therefore leads us to wish a speedy advice on this important subject.

We are, Sir, most respectfully, your most obedient humble servants.

By order and in behalf of the Provincial Congress:

P. V. B. LIVINGSTON, President.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress, Philadelphia.

In Provincial Congress, New-York,
 Die Lunæ, 4to ho. P. M., June 12, 1775. }

This Congress proceeded to the consideration of ways and means to carry into execution the resolution, request, and order of the Continental Congress of the 9th instant, for supplying five thousand barrels of Flour for the use of the Continental Army, and forwarding the same towards the camp before Boston: And thereupon,

Ordered, That Messrs. Isaac Sears, Abraham Walton, and Joseph Hallett be a Committee to purchase the said quantity of Flour for the purpose aforesaid, or so much thereof as they can obtain, and to ship and forward the same, agreeable to the said resolution.

And it is now Resolved and agreed, nemine contradicente, That every member of this Congress will be responsible to Messrs. Sears, Walton, and Hallett, for their respective proportions of all moneys they may disburse, or hereafter be obliged to pay, by means of the purchase of the said Flour, or of their appointment to comply with the said resolution and request of the Continental Congress.

NEW-YORK CONGRESS TO THEIR DELEGATES IN THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 14, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Captain Thompson arrived here in a ship from Cork last evening; and as we understood he had reported that several regiments had sailed from thence for Boston, and four other regiments embarked or embarking for New-York, the Congress desired him to attend their Board this morning, to examine him upon the subject.

Upon his attendance we took notes of the substance of the intelligence he gave, and enclose a copy thereof to you, in order that it may be laid before the Continental Congress.

We also intend to forward the intelligence to the Governour of Connecticut, that he may forward the same to the camp at Cambridge.

We are, gentlemen, your very humble servants.

By order and in behalf of the Provincial Congress:

P. V. B. LIVINGSTON, President.

To the Delegates from the Colony of New-York at Continental Congress, Philadelphia.

Captain Thompson arrived at New-York, Tuesday, 13th June, 1775; left Cove, in Ireland, 6th May last, and informs that six regiments had sailed in twenty-four transports for Boston, one regiment of Horse included, which sailed the 30th April.

Three regiments were embarked, and the fourth embarking, to sail for New-York first fair wind. The regiments all full, seven hundred men each, filled by drafts from the regiments that remain, their places being filled by new recruits. The general report was, that these four regiments were coming to New-York, and that some Captains and other officers belonging to the Troops told Captain Thomp- son, in person, that they were coming to New-York. One regiment arrived at Cork (from Kilkenny) the day Capt. Thompson sailed, which was the last regiment to embark for New-York. Saw twelve large transports destined for New-York; he heard sixteen. One General Officer is to come to New-York.

The Troops coming to New-York are to support people's property, and to assist against mobs. The report in Ireland was, that those Troops had been wrote for by persons here.

The Troops in general disliked the service; some officers had sold out; no ships-of-war coming with the transports; a report in Ireland that nine new regiments were to be raised. Heard that thirty thousand Prussians were ready, at a minute's warning. That the people of Ireland in general are well affected to the Americans, and are averse to the Americans being taxed by the Parliament of Great Britain.

Captain McIlvaine, who sailed before Capt. Thompson, for Philadelphia, has the number of the regiments coming to America.

M. S. MUMFORD TO JONATHAN TRUMBULL, JR.

New London, June 14, 1775.

DEAR SIR: A master of one of my vessels (Capt. Chesler) is this instant arrived from Philadelphia. He left Friday last, and reports the arrival there of a ship from London, on board of which was Major Skene, bound for Quebeck; that on the Banks of Newfoundland they spoke a vessel, which informed them we had taken possession of Ticonderoga, which disconcerted them to that degree, that the Captain of the ship thought it unsafe to proceed to Quebeck; therefore, as the Philadelphians are Friends, they thought themselves safer there than in any of the Colonies. On their arrival there the Major was put under guard by order of the Congress. They find the ship has on board seventy chests of arms, containing three thousand five hundred, which were likewise secured, and a Committee from the Congress were examining the letters found on the Major, &c., though he had have overboard some of consequence. I think this acquisition of consequence to us. I wish we could thus secure a thousand such.

My most respectful wishes attend his Honour our Governour, to whom please to communicate this intelligence, as it may be depended on.

I am, dear Sir, your very humble servant,

M. S. MUMFORD.

Mr. Jonathan Trumbull, Jun.

DEPUTY GOVERNOUR COOKE TO CAPT. JAMES WALLACE.

East Greenwich, June 14, 1775.

SIR: Long have the good people of this Colony been oppressed by your conduct in interrupting their lawful trade, and preventing the importation of provisions necessary for their subsistence. The acts of the British Parliament, already filled with restrictions of trade, oppressive in the highest degree, seem by you to be thought too lenient. Not controlled by those you affect to call your masters, you have detained the persons and taken away the property of His Majesty's American subjects, without any warrant from the acts of trade, by which you have greatly impeded the intercourse between this and the other Colonies, as well as between the different parts of this Colony. The inhabitants expecting the interposition of the lawful authority of the Colony, have borne these outrages with a patience almost criminal. The Legislature have heard their complaints; and, in consequence of an act passed by the General Assembly this day, I demand of you the reason of your conduct towards the inhabitants of this Colony, in stopping and detaining their vessels; and I also demand of you that you immediately restore the two packets belonging to some inhabitants of the Town of Providence, and all other vessels belonging to the inhabitants of this Colony, which you have taken and unjustly detain. So long as you remain in the Colony, and demean yourself as becomes your office, you may depend upon the protection of the laws, and every assistance for promoting the publick service in my power; and you may also be assured that the whole power of this Colony will be exerted to secure the persons and properties of the inhabitants against every lawless invader. An immediate answer is requested to this letter.

I am, Sir, your most humble servant,

NICHOLAS COOKE, Deputy Governour.

To James Wallace, Esq., Commander of His Majesty's Ship Rose, at Newport.

CAPTAIN WALLACE'S ANSWER.

His Majesty's Ship Rose, Rhode-Island, June 14, 1775.

SIR: I have received your letter of the 12th instant. Although I am unacquainted with you, or what station you act in, suppose you write in behalf of some body of people; therefore, previous to my giving an answer, I must desire to know whether or not you, or the people on whose behalf you write, are not in open rebellion to your lawful sovereign, and the acts of the British legislature?

I am, Sir, your most humble servant,

JAMES WALLACE.

Nicholas Cooke, Esquire.

NEWPORT (RHODE-ISLAND) COMMITTEE TO EASTHAMPTON (NEW-YORK) COMMITTEE.

Newport, Rhode-Island, June 14, 1775.

SIRS: This day we received a letter from the Committee of Inspection at Barclay, advising us that Thomas Gilbert, Ed. Philips, and Joseph Winslow, some short time since, left that Town, in order to proceed from Newport to Long-Island, to be inoculated. Mr. Conckling, of Southampton, informs us that they have taken the small-pox at one of your hospitals. This is to request the favour of you to be very cautious that neither of those persons be suffered to depart the hospital until they are perfectly well and free from any infection, nor to suffer them to bring away any of their clothing, nor even a single hair upon their bodies, as they are all of them inveterate enemies of our Country, and it is generally thought have taken this method to spread the small-pox, upon their return, in the camp now before the Town of Boston. We rely upon your vigilance in this most important matter, and are, most respectfully, Sirs, your obedient humble servants,

JONATHAN OTIS, Chairman.

To the Committee of Correspondence at Easthampton.

P. S. It is further requested of you, that you keep said persons at your inoculation-house, till you have an opportunity to send them to New-London or Stonington, and desire the favour of the Committee of said place you may send them to, to take care that they may be cleansed again when they arrive there, and before they let them depart from thence.

FALMOUTH COMMITTEE TO COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Falmouth, June 14, 1775.

HONOURED SIR: These wait on you by Colonel Phiney, who informs us he has ordered the men lately enlisted in this County, to guard the sea-coasts and islands within said County, to secure the cattle and sheep from the ravages of cruisers from the Navy; but as no provision is made for their sustenance, it cannot be expected they can continue to do duty without. We refer you to Colonel Phiney for particulars. Four Indian chiefs arrived here this day, with Captain Lane, from the Penobscot tribe. We hope their expectations will be answered, which will lay a foundation for the securing to our interest the whole tribe. We are, honoured Sir, your most obedient humble servants,

JEDEDIAH PREBLE,
ENOCH FREEMAN.

Hon. Joseph Warren, Esq., to be communicated.

INSTRUCTIONS OF THE MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS TO THE GENTLEMEN CHOSEN TO REPAIR TO TICONDEROGA.

Watertown, June 14, 1775.

To WALTER SPOONER, JEDEDIAH FOSTER, and JAMES SULLIVAN, Esquires:

You are directed to proceed, as soon as may be, to the posts of Ticonderoga and Crown Point, by the road through the new settlements, called the New-Hampshire Grants; that you carefully observe the quality of the said road, and judge of the feasibility of transporting provisions by the said road to the waters of Lake Champlain; that you take with you copies of the commission and instructions of the Committee of Safety to Colonel Benedict Arnold, and inform yourselves, as fully as you shall be able, in what manner the said Colonel Arnold has executed his said commission and instructions.

That you make and give to the said Arnold, and any men whom he shall, by virtue of the said commission and instructions, retain in the service of this Colony, such orders as to you shall seem meet, provided always, that you do not authorize the said Arnold to engage and retain in the pay of this Colony, as soldiers, a greater number than that specified in his said commission and instructions, and provided, that the said Arnold and his men whom he has retained, are free and willing to continue at one or both of the said posts, under the command of such chief officer as is or shall be appointed by the Government of Connecticut; and in case you shall order such number of men to be continued at or near the said posts, in the pay of this Colony, as you shall judge it necessary there should be, that you appoint a Committee of one or more persons, in the pay of this Colony, to provide supplies for such men, and a Commissary to deal out such supplies to them, which Committee and Commissary you are to appoint in writing under your hands.

And you are to determine and order respecting the said Arnold's continuing in the commission and pay of this Colony, as to you shall appear most for the general service and safety, after having made yourselves fully acquainted with the spirit, capacity, and conduct of the said Arnold.

And in case you shall judge it proper to discharge the said Arnold, that you direct him to return to this Colony, and render his account of the disposition of the money, ammunition, and other things which he received at his setting out upon his expedition, and also of the charges he has incurred, and the debts which he has contracted in behalf of this Colony, by virtue of the commission and instructions aforesaid. And in case you shall find any men at the said posts, properly retained and engaged there in the service of this Colony, that you cause them and their arms to be mustered, and that to such as shall pass muster you pay out of the moneys which you shall receive from our Receiver-General for that purpose, the same advance pay as is by order of Congress paid to such men as are retained and mustered to serve within this Colony; and in case you shall not find any men at the said posts properly engaged and retained in the service of this Colony, or that the number which you shall find so retained shall be much short of the number which said Arnold was empowered to enlist, that then you, if you shall judge that the effectual security of said posts shall require it, and if you shall also find a proper person in those parts fit and suitable for the command of four hundred men, or such less number as together with such as you shall find ordered and posted by any other Colony or Colonies, and shall also find that soldiers can be raised in those parts so seasonably as that thereby the effectual maintaining of the said posts may be served or promoted, you are to appoint meet persons to be officers and commanders for such a number of men as you shall order to be enlisted, and give the necessary orders for raising, enlisting, and maintaining them for such term as you shall judge necessary for defence of said posts, and also appoint some sufficient and faithful man as Muster-master and Paymaster of such men, and leave sufficient moneys in his hands for that purpose, taking proper receipts and his security that the money so left shall be applied to that use.

And you are to take a careful survey of the ordnance and ordnance-stores at those posts, together with all other articles necessary for the maintenance thereof, and report the state thereof to this Congress.

And if you shall find it necessary to purchase powder for the men who shall be retained there on the part of this Colony, that you procure the same, and so much as you shall judge needful, in the best and most expeditious way you can, on the credit of this Colony.

And in general you are hereby fully empowered to do every thing in behalf of this Colony for the effectual securing and maintaining those posts, which you shall judge necessary, equal to the importance of the same.

You are further directed, when you shall have transacted what you are by the foregoing instructions authorized to do and transact at the posts aforesaid, by the very first opportunity to advise the general American Congress thereof, as also of your opinion of the necessity and importance of maintaining the said posts for general defence of these Colonies; and when you shall have made yourselves fully acquainted with the state and condition of the said posts, and the dispositions and establishments which you shall find are made for maintaining of them, if you shall judge that any further provisions are necessary for securing and maintaining them, you are directed fully and respectfully to signify your thoughts thereon to the General Congress.

You are also directed to advise the General Convention of the Colony of New-York, and the Governour of the Colony of Connecticut, respectively, of what you shall order and transact by virtue of the said instructions.

JOSIAH JONES AND JONATHAN HICKS TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Concord, June 14, 1775.

To the Honourable the Provincial Congress of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY at WATERTOWN:

GENTLEMEN: The sentiments of our hearts are such, that we cannot but hope an honest declaration of them will produce some alleviation of the difficulties to which we are reduced. We faithfully acknowledge that we have heretofore entertained opinions variant from those of our fellow-countrymen in general; not, however, in consenting to the equity of every ministerial requisition or parliamentary claim, but in supposing it inexpedient and unsafe for us to bear arms against the power of Great Britain. If for this we should incur the imputation of cowardice, yet by no means let us be deemed traitors and enemies to our Country. We can say before God and man, with perfect sincerity, that we do most affectionately wish prosperity to our native land, and to the inhabitants in general of these American Colonies; and that we are ready at any time and at all times, so far as our abilities extend, to do any thing within the limits of justice that appears to us to be subservient to this important end. With the strictest regard to truth we affirm, that it was merely with a view of avoiding danger, and not from any want of friendship to our Country's cause and interest, that we of late took up our residence in the Town of Boston; and we are not conscious of having offended our American brethren in any other instance of our conduct. Could we now have our liberty and be permitted to live securely in the country, we should be ready to bind ourselves under the most solemn obligations never directly or indirectly to oppose, or in any respect knowingly to disserve the cause in which the people are so seriously engaged. If we should be so unhappy as not to discern the propriety and prudence of any measures by them adopted for the security of their lives, liberties, and properties, yet we are ready to submit to the united wisdom of this whole Continent, and to acquiesce in the judgment of our superiors, so far, at least, as in no degree to counteract their resolutions.

What we earnestly request, therefore, is, that the honourable Congress would take what we thus faithfully offer, under their candid consideration, and devise means for our liberation, that we may so serve our Country at least as to support ourselves, by our own industry, without being a publick charge. If we may not be wholly released from our confinement, it would be a favour most thankfully accepted, to have the privilege of the yard, as the season is very warm. Whatever indulgences may be granted to us shall always be remembered with the warmest gratitude by, gentlemen, your very obedient humble servants,

JOSIAH JONES,
JONATHAN HICKS.

MACHIAS COMMITTEE TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Machias, June 14, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We, the faithful and distressed inhabitants of Machias, beg leave once more, in the most respectful manner, to approach your presence, and spread before you a just and full representation of our very critical situation.

On the 2d instant Captain Ichabod Jones arrived in this river with two sloops, accompanied with one of the King's tenders. On the 3d instant a paper was handed about for the people to sign, as a prerequisite to their obtaining any provisions, of which we were in great want. The contents of this paper required the signers to indulge Captain Jones in carrying lumber to Boston, and to protect him and his property at all events; but, unhappily for him, if not for us, it soon expired, after producing effects directly contrary in their nature to those intended. The next effort, in order to carry these favourite points, was to call a meeting, which was accordingly done. On the 6th the people generally assembled at the place appointed, and seemed so averse to the measures proposed, that Captain Jones privately went to the tender and caused her to move up so near the Town that her guns would reach the houses, and put springs upon her cables. The people, however, not knowing what was done, and considering themselves nearly as prisoners of war in the hands of the common enemy, (which is our only plea for suffering Captain Jones to carry any lumber to Boston since your Honours conceived it improper,) passed a vote that Captain Jones might proceed in his business as usual without molestation; that they would purchase the provision he brought into the place, and pay him according to contract. After obtaining this vote, Captain Jones immediately ordered his vessels to the wharf, and distributed his provisions among those only who voted in favour of his carrying lumber to Boston. This gave such offence to the aggrieved party, that they determined to take Captain Jones, if possible, and put a final stop to his supplying the King's Troops with any thing. Accordingly, they secretly invited the people of Mispecka and Pleasant River to join them; accordingly, a number of them came, and having joined our people in the woods, near the settlements, on the 11th, they all agreed to take Captain Jones and Stephen Jones, Esquire, in the place of worship, which they attempted, but Captain Jones made his escape into the woods, and does not yet appear; Stephen Jones, Esq., only was taken, and remains as yet under guard. The Captain and Lieutenant of the tender were also in the meeting-house, and fled to their vessel, hoisted their flag, and sent a message on shore to this effect: "That he had express orders to protect Captain Jones; that he was determined to do his duty, whilst he had life, and that if the people presumed to stop Captain Jones's vessels, he would burn the Town." Upon this, a party of our men went directly to stripping the sloop that lay at the wharf, and another party went off to take possession of the other sloop which lay below, and brought her up nigh a wharf, and anchored in the stream. The tender did not fire, but weighed her anchors as privately as possible, and in the dusk of the evening fell down, and came to within musket-shot of the sloop, which obliged our people to slip their cable, and run the sloop aground. In the mean time, a considerable number of our people went down in boats and canoes, lined the shore directly opposite to the tender, and having demanded her to surrender to America, received for answer, "Fire, and be damn'd." They immediately fired in upon her, which she returned, and a smart engagement ensued. The tender at last slipped her cable, and fell down to a small sloop, commanded by Captain Tobey, and lashed herself to her for the remainder of the night. In the morning of the 12th they took Captain Tobey out of his vessel for a pilot, and made all the sail they could to get off, as the wind and tide favoured; but having carried away her main boom, and meeting with a sloop from the Bay of Fundy, they came to, robbed the sloop of her boom and gaff, took almost all her provisions, together with Mr. Robert Avery, of Norwich, in Connecticut, and proceeded on her voyage. Our people seeing her go off in the morning, determined to follow her; about forty men, armed with guns, swords, axes, and pitchforks, went in Captain Jones's sloop, under the command of Captain Jeremiah O'Brien, and about twenty, armed in the same manner, and under the command of Captain Benjamin Foster, went in a small schooner. During the chase, our people built themselves breast-works of pine boards, and any thing they could find in the vessels that would screen them from the enemy's fire. The tender, upon the first appearance of our people, cut her boats from the stern, and made all the sail she could; but being a very dull sailer, they soon came up with her, and a most obstinate engagement ensued, both sides being determined to conquer or die. But the tender was obliged to yield; her Captain was wounded in the breast with two balls, of which wounds he died next morning. Poor Mr. Avery was killed, and one of the marines, and five wounded; only one of our men was killed, and six wounded, one of whom has since died of his wounds.

The battle was fought at the entrance of our harbour, and lasted for near the space of one hour. We have in our possession four double-fortified three-pounders, and fourteen swivels, and a number of small arms, which we took with the tender, besides a very small quantity of ammunition, &c. Thus we have given your Honours as particular an account of this affair as possible; we now apply to you for advice, and for a supply of ammunition and provisions, (the latter of which we have petitioned your Honours for already,) which, if we could be fully supplied with, we doubt not but, with the blessing of Heaven, we should be fully able to defend ourselves. We purpose to convey the prisoners to Penalborough Jail, as soon as possible, there to await your orders.

We are, with deference, your Honours' most obedient humble servants. By order of the Committee;

GEO. STILLMAN, Clerk.

To the Honourable Congress of the Massachusetts-Bay.

TO THE PUBLICK.

Cecil County, Maryland, June 15, 1775.

A regard to truth and reputation prompts me to expose the falsehood and iniquity of a publication in Goddard's Maryland Journal of the 24th of May. This account is formally ushered into the world under the supposed patronage of the respectable Committee of Cecil County, and has been copied in other papers to the northward. I declare, however, in the most solemn manner, that no such summons as is mentioned in the above publication, was ever served upon me; and I am at liberty to add, upon the authority of Messrs. John Veazey, Junior, Chairman, and John Veazey, the third, acting Clerk, that the proceedings of the Committee respecting me have not been faithfully published, and have neither their sanction nor consent. In short, the father of the child, like the framer of the Quebeck Bill, cannot be found, although he has been diligently sought for; but his friends, it is hoped, will not despair of his reformation, since he has the grace to hide his face. Indeed, he blunders exceedingly in his present attempts to rob me of my character, for he makes a James Veazey Chairman, whereas there is no such man in the County; but I forgive him, and sincerely wish him a better head as well as a better heart. It is the lot of men more worthy than me to have enemies; I have mine; and they have been industrious to make every one think as ill of me as they do themselves. For this laudable purpose they take advantage of the distraction of the times, and would fain convince the world that I am an enemy to liberty. Now, although I candidly own that my politics are not quite agreeable to theirs, yet I trust in the main I am right; I am deeply principled against the assumed powers of the British Parliament to tax these Colonies, and complain of, and have done as much to oppose their late acts, as many of those who make turbulence and clamour the test of patriotism. CHARLES GORDON.

TO THE PRINTER OF THE MARYLAND GAZETTE.

Please to inform Mr. Charles Gordon, (to save him the trouble of any farther inquiry,) that the proceedings which appeared against him in Mr. Goddard's Journal were transmitted to Baltimore Town by the Committee of Charles-town Hundred, to be printed in handbills, as the most effectual way of carrying into execution the intention of the County Committee, who directed that their resolves, respecting him, should be carefully published in every Hundred through the County. We are sorry that the printer was so inaccurate as to mistake the Chairman's christian name. We also find that the preamble to the resolve (which, by the by, is not set forth as the proceedings of the Committee,) is worded somewhat different from that which stands upon the Committee's minute-book, occasioned by our not taking a copy of the preamble or summons, at the time we copied the affidavit and resolve. However, to do Mr. Gordon all the justice he can require, we will give the publick an opportunity of judging for themselves how much he was injured by that unfaithful publication, as he calls it, and for that purpose, herewith send you an extract and verbatim copy of the proceedings from the Committee Minutes, signed with the Clerk's own hand, by which will also appear what credit is due to Mr. Gordon's assertions. Your inserting this, together with the proceedings in your next paper, will much oblige your humble servants,

PAT. HAMILTON,
NAT. RAMSEY,
JOHN HAMILTON,
THOS. HUGHES, } Committee for Charlestown Hundred.

At a meeting of the Committee for Cecil County, at Elk-Ferry, on the sixteenth day of May, 1775,

JOHN VEAZEY, JUN., Chairman:

Whereas great complaints have this day been made against Charles Gordon, Esq., Attorney-at-Law, for that he hath infamously reflected on the members of this Committee, and the Deputies of this County, who lately attended the Provincial Convention: These are therefore requiring the said Charles Gordon that he appear before this Committee at the house of Thomas Savin, at Elk-Ferry, to-morrow, at two o'clock, P. M., to answer unto said complaint; hereof fail not at your peril. Returnable to-morrow, at two o'clock, P. M.

JOHN VEAZEY, 3D,
Acting Clerk.

To Charles Gordon, Esq., Attorney-at-Law, near Warwick.

On which said Summons was thus endorsed,

CECIL COUNTY, ss.

On this seventeenth day of May, 1775, personally came William Savin before me, the subscriber, one of his Lordship's Justices of said County, and made oath on the Holy Evangelist of Almighty God, that he served Mr. Gordon with a copy of the within summons in time for him to have observed it; and that he told him (this deponent) that he would not meet, and if the Committee wanted him they must come to his plantation, but not inside his yard-gate; that he asked why they did not come or send some of their head men; that upon his (this deponent) saying that he believed if he did not comply with their request, that they would all come, he (Mr. Gordon) said he was ready to receive them; that his plantation was large enough to hold them, but they must not come inside his gate, or there would be lives lost; that Mr. Gordon told him that he had said, and does still say, that there are a parcel of damned scoundrels of the Committee, and that if they have any thing to say to him, they must come to him, for he is at all their defiance. Sworn before

Which being taken into consideration, the Committee came to the following determination:

Whereas Chas. Gordon, Attorney-at-Law, in this County, hath treated this Committee with great contempt and insolence; and whereas the general tenour of his conduct hath, for a long time past, been such as, in their opinions, declare him to be an enemy to the general cause of liberty, for which they are now contending; and he hath this day been duly summoned to appear and answer unto the above charge, to which he hath returned an impertinent and insolent answer, even menacing this Committee with destruction, if they attempted to proceed any further against him:

It is therefore Resolved, That the said Charles Gordon lie under the imputation of being an enemy to this Country, and as such, we will have no dealings or communication with him, nor permit him to transact business with us or for us, either in a publick or private capacity, which shall be commenced after the date hereof, until he appear before this Committee and fully satisfy them with respect to the above charge; and we do earnestly recommend to all the good people of this County to observe the same line of conduct.

Ordered, That this be published in each Hundred.

True copy from the Minutes:

JOHN VEAZEY, 3D, Acting Clerk.

TO LORD NORTH.

— London, June 15, 1775.

MY LORD: Whilst I feel the deepest anguish and sensibility for the loss of our hapless countrymen who lately fell in the action with the Americans, near Boston, suffer me to entreat you to stay the sword, and suspend any further operations against the Colonies, until some happy conciliating means may be devised, some fortunate expedient may be hit upon, to heal the bleeding wounds and reunite us again with that unfortunate and distracted Country. It is, my Lord, the sincere wish of every true friend of freedom, who are too sensibly afflicted, adequately to express their feelings on the above most melancholy event.

As a well-wisher to your Lordship and all mankind, I entreat you, from every motive of humanity, to listen to the dictates of sound reason and policy, and you cannot fail of being convinced of the justice and expediency of a measure so essentially requisite to stop the further effusion of the blood of our countrymen, and prevent us from being engaged in all the horrors of a civil and intestine war; the bare apprehension of which, my Lord, fills me with the most poignant anxiety, and makes me dread the impending consequences with a torture of mind utterly impossible to be described.

If, by those extraordinary exertions which have often proceeded from people contending for their liberties, or by any of those accidents which have frequently decided the fate of battles and of empires, taking the victory from the strong and the race from the swift, we should be repulsed, to what a state of humiliation should we be reduced? Such is the insuperable absurdity of the measure, that whether victors or vanquished, we are sure of being sufferers.

With ties so strong to bind us to each other, is it not strange, is it not deplorable that we should differ? Do they who talk of chastising our Colonies and reducing them to obedience, consider how much we hazard when we dissolve those ties? What, are we to substitute in their place force and fear, which Tacitus wisely tells us are insecure restraints, and always succeeded by inveterate hatred? When these consequences follow from the coercive measures we are now pursuing, will the counsellors who have impelled us to them by representations, (not, I am sure, very fair,) defend us from their fatal effects?

It is from experience only, my Lord, that men learn wisdom; but, unhappily, sometimes the injury of the experiment is irretrievable. We have too much reason, I think, to apprehend that this will be the event of our present contest with America.

I acknowledge I admire the bravery of our Troops. What men can do they will do; but in a Country furnished with fastnesses and defiles without number, intimately known to the enemy you are to combat, where discipline is unavailing or embarrassing, and valour useless, it requires more than human power to succeed to any permanent purpose. Heaven forbid that the bravery of such troops as the English should be so vainly, so fatally employed. They who remember the fatal overthrow of Braddock by a few Indians in ambush, an overthrow incurred by the very discipline in which he vainly put his trust, will be apt to doubt the facility of reducing the Colonies by military force. They who reflect that the united aid and efforts of all the Colonies were necessary to give success to our arms in the late war against the Canadians, will be still more doubtful of this expedient.

But, my Lord, so much having been already said on the subject, I will not take up more of your valuable moments, which I am persuaded must now be fully employed. Indulge me, however, once more to entreat your most serious attention to the true interest and happiness of this Country, and to the welfare of our brethren in America; so shall you be revered and esteemed by all good men, your name deservedly transferred with honour to posterity, and the tribute of gratitude, affection, and esteem, be echoed from every quarter of this great and extensive Empire.

MEMENTO.

BRITISH SETTLEMENTS ON THE MISSISSIPPI.

New-York, June 15, 1775.

We have authority to communicate to the publick, from his Excellency Montford Browne, Esq., Governour and Commander-in-Chief of His Majesty's Bahama Islands, that his Excellency being possessed of several very extensive and valuable tracts of land (as well by grants from the Crown, as by purchase) situated on the banks of the River Mississippi and Mobile, in West-Florida, to the amount of one hundred and fifty thousand acres and upwards, (exclusive of Dauphin Island, whose situation for trade is so well known,) is desirous of encouraging all substantial planters or others, who wish to become settlers in those parts. The fertility of soil, salubrity of climate, and most delightful situation of those tracts, are so well known, that they need no fuller description than that printed by his Excellency for His Majesty, who has thought fit to order the intended capital, on account of its rising consequence and most convenient situation, to be removed from Fort Bute to Browne's Clifts, nearly opposite to that most beautiful and populous Town called Point-Coupee, belonging to the Spaniards.

For further particulars his Excellency refers the publick to the printed reasons left with the printer hereof, in order that those, who are inclined to remove to that flourishing Province may be well informed, and may, by application to his Excellency, at New-Providence, be well assured of meeting with every encouragement they can wish for or desire.

Governour BROWNE's Reasons, as presented to the King, for an immediate Civil Government in the BRITISH Dominions adjoining to the River MISSISSIPPI, in NORTH-AMERICA.

Whoever is conversant with the natural history of America, must be sensible, from the concurrent testimony of writers, travellers, and engineers, that no country in the universe exceeds the neighbourhood of the Mississippi in fertility of soil, salubrity of climate, or convenience of situation. Both sides of the river, previous to the late peace, in which the eastern was ceded to Great Britain, went under the general name of Louisiana, and they have been long celebrated, no less for the prodigious diversity than the prodigious luxuriance of their productions. They frequently yield two annual crops of Indian corn, as well as rice, and, with a little cultivation, would furnish grain of every kind in the most flattering abundance. But their value is not confined to the fertility of the meadows, or the immensity of the champaign lands; their timber is as fine as any in the world, and the quantities of live-oak, ash, mulberry, walnut, palm, cypress, and cedar, are equally astonishing.* Yet what is still more astonishing, above a million of acres are sufficiently clear on the English borders to admit of instant habitation, and to answer all the purposes of a Colony long improved. The advantages which they offer are not remote, they are immediate; they do not call for the industry of years, like many of the senior Provinces in America, but, on the first appearance of the settler, present themselves to be enjoyed. The neighbourhood of the Mississippi, besides, furnishes the richest fruits in an infinite variety; particularly grapes, oranges, lemons, and olives, in the highest perfection. It abounds with silk, cotton, sassafras, saffron, and rhubarb; is particularly adapted for flax and hemp, and the goodness of tobacco even equals the Brazils; cochineal also, of the best quality, is found in plenty on its banks, and indigo is at this moment a staple commodity, which commonly yields four cuttings to the planter. In a word, whatever is rich or rare in the choicest climates of Europe, seems natural to such a degree on the Mississippi, that France, though she sent few or no emigrants into Louisiana but decayed soldiers, or the refuse of her streets, (and these very poorly supplied with the implements of husbandry,) soon began to dread a rival in her Colony, particularly in the cultivation of vines, from which she prohibited the Colonists, under a very heavy penalty. Yet soil and situation triumphed over all political restraints, and the adventurers, at the end of the late war, were little inferior to the most ancient settlements of America in all the modern refinements of luxury. From the success attending the French settlers, under every possible disadvantage, it is evident that an establishment on the Missis- siippi, favoured with the benign influence of a British Government, under which freedom and property are inviolably sacred, would be productive of the happiest consequences, especially as some arguments may be urged in support of such a measure, which, perhaps, never before existed in a case of colonization.

In the first place, contrary to the general principles of new establishments, the Mother Country is neither to be drained of a subject, nor the Government to incur the minutest expense. To maintain these assertions, it must be observed, that since the conclusion of the late war at least twenty thousand families in the old English Colonies have removed, on account of the extending population and the barrenness of the soil, to the back settlements of their respective Provinces. Their emigration has been inconceivably injurious to the places which they have deserted, and must be equally injurious to the interest of this Kingdom; for in proportion as choice or necessity has detached these people from an intercourse with the seats of trade, they have been driven into manufactures. Agriculture, undoubtedly, is the grand mine of American opulence; but men must sacrifice their wishes to their wants; and such articles as the back settler cannot purchase without much difficulty or much loss, he will naturally attempt to make for his own accommodation. His efforts at first may be awkward, yet he will improve upon practice, and succeed at last, where he only labours for convenience or utility. The consequence is obvious; consuming none of her commodities, he becomes commercially annihilated to the State; nor does the evil terminate even in such annihilation. His example incessantly encourages the emigration of others, and lays the foundation of that independency for America, which is alone to be dreaded from her maturity in manufactures, and which is big with so many dangers to the general happiness of the British Empire. Was a civil Government, therefore, formed on the Mississippi, great numbers of these emigrants would immediately proceed to a situation so peculiarly calculated to the unbounded views of commerce; where, from necessitous farmers, they would become considerable planters; where, from being worse than lost, they would speedily be recovered; and instead of hourly impairing, they would hourly add to the true prosperity of this Kingdom. Yet numerous as the back settlers of the old English Provinces are known to be, they do not constitute by any means the only foundation on which England may depend for the speedy establishment of a flourishing Colony; on the contrary, many thousand foreign settlers in Louisiana, who have formed a strong interest with the Indians, will directly place themselves under the protection of the British Government;*

* Mr. John Durade, late a settler of great eminence on the Mississippi, now residing at Pensacola, wrote, in February, 1770, to Governour Browne, in the following terms: "The cruelties committed by the Spaniards, and their tyrannical yoke, are circumstances which cannot fail of procuring to the English possessions, from their proximity, an acquisition of many industrious families, who will be able to transport their effects thither without risk, and are acquainted with the soil and other circumstances. Germans and Acadians are equally uneasy under their new masters; the latter are settled near Manchack, (a part of the British territory,) and would be the first to resort thither."

Mr. Durade, in the same letter to Governour Browne, expatiates upon the fertility of the country, the salubrity of the climate, and the certain advantages which the proposed settlement would produce to Great Britain. He declared, that a man, his wife, and five children, with two negroes, one wench, on a farm of eighteen acres, may not only subsist very well, but make an annual saving, proportioned to their industry. Hunting affords infinite assistance to the inferior inhabitants, wild cattle and deer abounding beyond belief, and the rivers teeming in equal plenty with the most excellent fish. Mr. Durade affirms, as an attested fact, that twenty negroes, such as are usually employed, will yield a yearly profit of twenty thousand French Livres, and deducting three thousand Livres for their maintenance and mortality, seventeen thousand, or seven hundred and eighty Pounds English, is the very least which the planter can reasonably expect from their labour, even if they are employed but eight months in the cultivation of Indigo. Mr. Durade adds, that many planters who began only with one negro, have now from twenty to fifty on their plantations, and requests Governour Browne, in case an English Government is erected on the Mississippi, to intercede for a grant of four thousand acres for him, together with an equal grant for a brother of his. "Expedite the patents (says he) as soon as possible, that we may immediately establish ourselves; but if the settlement is not made, we must decline the grant, as it will become useless."

Besides Mons. Durade's letter, Governour Browne received the following application from a body of the French, which quitted the western side of the Mississippi rather than be subject to Spain. They are now at Pensacola, waiting with the utmost impatience for an opportunity of putting themselves under the protection of our Government, and and, added to the certainty of this valuable increase, various very opulent members of the community at home will undertake, on their own entire risk, to collect emigrants from Germany, from Italy, and different foreign States, particularly the Greeks, and other distressed inhabitants on the Mediterranean, to cultivate the banks of the English Mississippi, where the luxuries of their respective Countries, which now take immense sums annually in specie from Great Britain, may be raised as in any part of Europe.

Perhaps it may be remarked, that our American colonization is already sufficiently extensive, and that there is no possibility of erecting new settlements without an essential injury to the old ones: it cannot on this account be too frequently enforced, that the establishment proposed by no means interferes with the interest of the other Provinces; its chief excellence consists in producing what they are not at all calculated to produce, and in furnishing those silks, fruits, wines, and different delicacies which we are now unavoidably compelled to purchase from strangers, to the incredible injury of our manufactures. For this reason, while the luxuries of life materially constitute the springs of commerce, it is doubtless good policy to procure them have already obtained lands on the British borders of the River, from a full persuasion that we cannot long continue insensible to the advantages of so valuable a territory.

To Governor BROWNE:

SIR: As you are at the eve of leaving this Province, and returning to England, we, possessors of lands on the borders of the River Mississippi, take the liberty to make you our representations, requesting, Sir, you would be pleased to submit them to the British Government, and to take any steps in this affair you shall think convenient.

The River Mississippi is now well known; the very great advantages which would result from a settlement on it are likewise so. A very extensive and beneficial fur trade would inevitably fall into our hands. This object alone deserves the highest consideration; besides which the wholesomeness of the climate, and its natural richness, makes the planters certain of reaping a very great benefit from their industry. And notwithstanding all these advantages, we dare not undertake any settlement.

The want of a civil Government, supported by the military, is the only obstacle to this settlement, which would certainly be obviated by the assistance of a Court of Justice and one Regiment; which, if once granted, from that instant our unwearied zeal in settling on the borders of the River would manifest itself. And this is certainly an epoch which numbers of good subjects wish for with impatience, in order to come over to His British Majesty's Dominions; as well those who have lands, as those who want to purchase, of whom there is a great number, would soon, by their industry and labours, render this a flourishing Province, and, in time, of great importance to England. The greatest part of the French, Acadian, and German planters are determined to free themselves from the Spanish yoke; this makes them very desirous to see our settlements on the border of the River in a condition fit for them to settle there with safety, and where they would find a place of refuge to cover them from the oppressions and evil treatment they daily experience from their new masters. Were it practicable for them to remove their effects, they would long since have fled to Mobile or Pensacola; but their flight would have been their inevitable ruin. Their taking refuge in this settlement is very different, as they can execute it without being perceived or molested by the jealousy and tyranny of the Spaniards. Certainly no like enterprise could ever meet with more favourable circumstances than these which offer; this settlement could not possibly be formed in a better time. For, besides what has passed between the French and Spaniards, which plainly proves with what reluctance the former bear the yoke of the latter, which they endeavour to shake off, it is to be considered that the Spaniards are detested by the savages, who will always continue sincere and faithful allies to the French, to whatever place they retire, which must strengthen the English alliance with the savages.

To all these considerations we shall add one, which does not seem to deserve less attention. The settlement in question once formed, we could erect warehouses, with goods of English manufactory, not only fit for the use of His British Majesty's subjects, but likewise for that of the Spaniards themselves, or such inhabitants as should remain under their subjection, (French ships are no longer admitted, they are forced to set off without unloading,) who would certainly come to be supplied therewith. No dry-goods are allowed but such as are brought from Spain; this circumstance enhances the prices about ninety per cent. We could supply them much cheaper.

Your disposition to oblige and assist all those who request it, joined to the personal interest you have in common with us in this affair, assures us, Sir, that you will do all that lies in your power to procure the success of this settlement.

We most sincerely wish you a prosperous voyage, and a happy arrival at England. And we do assure you we should be rejoiced to see you once more among us, and vested with new honours.

We have the honour to be, &c.

To MOUNTFORT BROWNE, Esq., Governor of West-Florida, &c.

To prove the certainty still further of foreign American settlers removing to the British Dominions on the Mississippi, the reader is pre-on the most profitable terms; it is doubtless good policy to convert them into the means of opulence for the colonist abroad, into the means of employment for the artisan at home. On such a principle extravagance itself is made a secondary virtue in the state; whereas, when we suffer ready money to be taken from us by foreigners, for articles which our own Dominions are able to supply, we sustain an accumulated loss—we lose not only the value of the commodity bought, but the labour of a subject who could raise it; we undermine the pillars of our national strength, and build the greatness of a rival upon the ruin of our evident prosperity.

But if the silk, the oil, the wines, and the numberless other articles of luxurious consumption, which promise such a liberal reward to the hand of industry in Louisiana, are not sufficient to exalt the country in our esteem, let us turn to the growth of hemp, an object materially necessary for the use of the British Navy, in which the chief strength of the British Empire is universally allowed to consist. Hemp is so indispensably requisite for the purposes of trade and navigation, that foreign Powers sell it to this Kingdom at their own prices, and are consequently able at any time, sent with the following extract of a Report made to the Government by Engineer Cambell, on the subject of Louisiana:

EXTRACT OF A REPORT MADE TO GOVERNMENT BY ENGINEER CAMBELL.

I was treated by the French and Indians of every denomination with hospitality and friendship. Their regret on our posts being deserted was apparent and unanimous, and declared that were they at present occupied, they would all remove to our side; even their Priests expressed a desire of becoming British subjects. One of them assured me that were our settlements re-established, and admitting them the privileges of religion, he would engage at a short notice to remove three hundred French families into the Province of West-Florida, and attach the different tribes of Indians to us in the strongest manner. I visited Humas, Jansaws, and Alabamas, among whom I distributed the few presents sent with me; they showed me every mark of friendship and distinction in their power, and solemnly promised an inviolable alliance towards us. The Indians are to the full as civilized as our peasants, are very industrious, and have been very useful to the French, under whose direction they are entirely. Most of them speak good French; and I am fully convinced that their hatred to the Spaniards is very pleasing to the French, the latter using their influence to heighten it, and at the same time to attach them to us; they tell them the French and English are one people, friends and brothers. They very much encourage and establish religion among them, and the Indians are in general very devout. On their hearing the arrival of the Spaniards, they assembled and waited on Mr. Aubrey, and in presence of General O'Reiley, demanded the reason why the French permitted the Spaniards to possess the Province of Louisiana. He answered them that as he had but few troops, the Spaniards were too powerful for him to oppose; whereupon O'Reiley showed them the Spanish Troops under arms; they replied, his troops were of no consequence, for that if the French chose to resist or expel, they would engage to supply a sufficient force for that purpose. The most reputable of the French, Dutch, and Acadian inhabitants desired to know if I could give them any assurance when our posts could be re-established. I told them they might rest assured that it would happen very soon, and referred to my instructions from Government, and the motive of my being sent up the River, as a confirmation of it. This created a general satisfaction among them.

The establishment of proper posts would undoubtedly draw away most of the inhabitants of Louisiana, many of whom are rich, experienced planters; and as to the few that would remain, we should have all their produce on the most advantageous terms, in exchange for the produce and manufactures of Britain; as Spain will never think of supplying them on any other terms than she does her other American Colonies. Thus, while we preserve our right to a free navigation, and give a necessary protection to our subjects, it is impossible to fail in carrying off not only the produce of the country, but also the money sent by Spain to defray their Government expenses, without the least violation or infringement of treaty on our side; for in this Province the Spaniards' necessities compel them to meet us more than half way, and run every risk to be supplied by us.

We have an immense tract of the most fertile land on our side of the Mississippi, the produce of which does not interfere with that of Great Britain. French wines have flourished in as great perfection there as in any part of France, on which accounts the inhabitants of Louisiana were restrained under severe penalties from cultivating vines. This shows that we might be supplied with a sufficient quantity of wine from West-Florida, the growth of that country, in exchange for our commodities. I am likewise, with certainty, assured that it is capable of producing the best silk in abundance. These are advantages well worthy that spirit of trade, from which the wealth and happiness of our State in general derive their source. To expatiate further on this matter is needless; the benefits to be derived from such an establishment are too obvious to be further enlarged upon.

But I must add, that no other country produces better or greater quantities of indigo, cotton, rice, Indian corn, tobacco, and hemp; which, together with the fur and peltry trade, which can be easily secured to ourselves by prudent management, are, in my opinion, advantages infinitely superiour to those of the Spanish mines.

Thus far Engineer Cambell.

Engineer Putnam, who lately visited Louisiana, and published an account of his expedition, coincides entirely with Mr. Cambell, and naturally enough ascribes the impatience of the French under a Spanish Government, among other causes, to the tyranny of General O'Reiley, who, without any process whatsoever, ordered six of their chief inhabitants to be executed upon his taking possession of the Country.

by an interdiction of the traffick, to prove very formidable enemies. The interdiction, indeed, is no way likely, yet is possible; and a wise Government should not depend upon strangers for any commodity of consequence, which may be raised in its own territories, and by raising which, instead of relaxing, as is the present case, it must evidently invigorate the sinews of the body commercial. On the Mississippi, therefore, where the plenty of provision enables the Colonist with his Negroes, to work as cheap as in any part of Europe, it would be highly advisable to encourage the cultivation of hemp. It cannot be a question whether a trading people should part with money or manufactures; whether they should employ the subjects of other Nations, or increase the opulence of their own; nor can it be a question which is most eligible, a losing commerce with our neighbours, or a gaining one between themselves.

As this representation is not the exaggerated picture of over-heated visionaries, who colour from report, but the faithful face of fact, drawn from an accurate knowledge of the country, enough is certainly said to prove the advantages resulting from a civil establishment on the Mississippi; yet justice to the publick makes it necessary to add some farther remarks; and first, it may possibly be observed, that the British Mississippi is already erected into British Government, and is at this moment under the jurisdiction of West-Florida: to this it is answered, that the chief benefit arising from the possession of West-Florida, is the barrier which it forms for the British Colonies against the incursions of their neighbours. As an object of commercial importance, it never has been, nor ever can be thought of, unless some plan similar to the present, is adopted; because those places within the jurisdiction of that Government, which are chiefly calculated for trade, are the very places to which it is wholly incapable of yielding protection; could it protect, the proposal of the new establishment would be impertinent. But Pensacola is at too great and disadvantageous a distance for any settler on the Mississippi to consider it as a protector; in the hour of surprise, he may as well look for assistance from the tower of London—he may be slaughtered long before the least intimation of his danger can be communicated to his defender; and of course few, very few, will attempt to improve a property so precarious, or bestow the efforts of their industry where the fruits are continually liable to be torn from their hands.

Till this Kingdom, therefore, shall think proper to afford settlers on the Mississippi a sufficient protection in a civil establishment of their own, the finest country, perhaps, in the habitable world, will remain utterly useless to its real sovereign; nay, it will be worse than negatively prejudicial, it will be positively injurious. It will furnish the object of a rival state with endless springs of wealth, and enable them to wrest an exhaustless traffick from the subjects of the lawful proprietary. Whereas, by separating the Mississippi from West-Florida to which, as an appendage, it must be of eternal inutility, and erecting it into a distinct Government, Great Britain will secure the golden harvest for herself; will establish a more effectual barrier against all possible encroachments on her Colonies; maintain the sanctity of her acknowledged dominion; and, instead of fearing inroads from her neighbours, will herself be in a situation to command the repose of America. With the settlement proposed, we shall be able, in any future difference with Spain, to make an easy descent upon the enemy's hitherto unattempted empire of Mexico. Without it, the Spaniards will be able, in the first rupture, to take the Floridas from us, which are only to be assisted through a tedious passage by Jamaica;* consequently, if the sense of our trading interest does not wake us to the propriety of the measure, we should be roused by the sense of our apparent danger. Apprehension itself should operate in the room of policy, and we should at least guard the advantages we possess, if we are even unwilling to extend the means of our prosperity.

It is universally acknowledged, that the last war chiefly resulted from the influence which the French acquired with the Indians, whom they spirited up to continual ravages of the English settlements. Whatever neighbour possesses this influence must always be in a capacity of annoying, as well as interested to annoy the British Dominions in America; and Government, conscious of the danger, incurs an expense, at this hour, much superiour to the charge of an establishment on the Mississippi, to keep the natives in good humour by little presents among their several tribes; a large present, however, from another Power will make them instantly enemies. Now the Colony proposed will effectually prevent their communication with any other Power, and of course purchase a certain state of tranquillity upon terms more moderate than we now buy a precarious one. This circumstance is in itself an object of the utmost importance to those who are acquainted with the horrors of an Indian war. And surely, if it is prudent to bribe the savages into good order, it must be a greater degree of prudence to incapacitate them from offending. If four thousand pounds a year, for argument sake, is judiciously distributed to keep them peaceable, three thousand pounds a year must be better distributed to remove the possibility of their being otherwise. Should the plan recommended be pursued, every part of British America will be surrounded by a British force; and those Indians who are alone able to be troublesome, precluded from a connection with all interested tamperers. The effect will necessarily cease where the cause is destroyed; and instead of a temporary calm, we shall not only gain an everlasting security, but the prospect of a revenue, which the people now possessing the trade already find approaching to half a million annually of our circulation. In a political light, consequently, as well as in a commercial view, the proposition must be deemed highly important, especially when it is known that three parts of the Mississippi produce is in favour of the eastern or English side, and that the French, Acadian, German, and native inhabitants can be furnished with manufactures from Great Britain above one hundred per cent. cheaper than from any market which is now accessible to their intercourse.* The benefits of such a traffick, therefore, multiply upon the imagination—for the opulence of a rival is lessened by the very means which increases our own; and the Indians, who now hang like the sword of Damocles over our heads, become obviously interested to support that Government which supplies them most advantageously with European commodities. A reduction in the price of any article necessary for their consumption, must act as a perpetual gift; must rivet them eternally to what may be properly called the giver, and, joined to the impossibility of their communicating with the subjects of other states, render the perpetration of those barbarities impossible which kindled the late flame of discord in Europe, and marked every quarter of the globe with a lamentable effusion of blood. Since our first efforts in colonization, no crisis ever offered such a certainty of not only preserving the peace of America on a permanent basis, but of permanently increasing the commerce of this Kingdom. Our genius at this moment seems peculiarly propitious. Let us then eagerly improve the season which courts us to be happy. Empires, as well as individuals, have their fortunate opportunities; and perhaps if we neglect this, now it is in our power, it may be utterly irrecoverable when we wish to call it back.

The facility of navigation on the Mississippi is sufficiently ascertained for all the purposes of commerce; and

* To elucidate this point, it is proper to observe, that the Spaniards buy all their goods necessary for the consumption of Louisiana, at present, from the French. Supposing, therefore, that articles to the amount of one hundred Pounds are bought in France; the expense to the Mississippi settler, through a Spanish channel, will be, first:

The original cost in France	£100	0	0
Charges to Spain	12	10	0
Duty on entry of French Goods in Spain	43	0	0
Charges on reshipping in register ships.....	17	10	0
Freight and other charges on landing.....	10	0	0
Cost landed.....	183	0	0
Profit constantly laid on all European Goods.....	80	0	0
	£263	0	0

Expense attending the same quantity of Goods from ENGLAND: first,

The original cost.....	£100	0	0
Freight and all charges.....	7	10	0
Profit.....	40	0	0

* Engineer and Comptroller Mill, who reported upon the British Mississippi to the Commissioners of the Customs at Boston, declares, that without the settlement proposed, the Spaniards, in the first rupture with us, must be in ample condition to deprive us of the Floridas.

the lakes on the eastern side render the navigation still easier to the subjects of this Kingdom than to those on the opposite shore.* It is unnecessary, however, to dwell upon the practicability of trading on that river, as the fortunes acquired by the French settlers prove the fact unquestionably; and if France found the commerce highly advantageous, though consisting chiefly of articles which she herself produced in great abundance, must it not be more advantageous to this Kingdom, whose produce it does not rival in the least, but to whom, in exchange for manufactures, as the reader will remember already mentioned, it presents those expensive luxuries of life which are not to be obtained in her other Colonies, and which are now purchased at an immense disbursement of absolute specie from foreigners? When Louisiana was under the government of the French, the trade of the Mississippi was esteemed, according to the most accurate accounts, as worth three hundred thousand pounds a year. Twelve ships, from a hundred and fifty to two hundred tons burden, with wares and dry-goods from Europe and St. Domingo, scarcely answered the consumption of the inhabitants; and the intelligent may easily imagine that the estimate is not over-rated, when the returns in peltry only, at the single port of New-Orleans, amounted annually to five millions of livres. As, therefore, not only from our ability to undersell every competitor, but from the peculiar happiness of situation in a junction with the lakes, this traffick must chiefly centre with the subjects of England. A very trifling duty on a few articles, together with a part of the quit-rents, will be amply sufficient to defray the charge of the new establishment. The sole question then is, will England, who has peopled so many deserts, protect a country ready peopled to her hands? She is not called upon for her citizens; she is only solicited to receive a nursery for thousands; she is not besought to do Florida an injury, but to distinguish it by an essential obligation; she is not requested to counteract the interest of her old Provinces, but to provide for their security. The Mississippi is at present virtually dismembered from its seat of Government, and is, even to speak favourably, without any manner of use. Dismembering it formally, will make it of the utmost utility, both to that Government and this Kingdom. The measure offers every certainty of a prodigious gain, without any possibility of the smallest loss; and nothing is required of the Parent State but to participate in the advantages, as an incontestable method is pointed out of defraying the whole expense.

A distinct establishment on the Mississippi in preference to any other, is recommended for two very forcible reasons: in the first place, a remoteness from the seat of the Provincial Government impedes the administration of justice; and every difficulty in executing the laws excites a spirit of disorder amongst the people. The present insurrection of the Regulators on the back settlements of North-Carolina, sufficiently support the propriety of this remark; and perhaps the restoration of order would be but little advanced, were the back settlers in that Colony indulged with a subordinate tribunal for the speedy decision of judicial complaints; because these subordinate tribunals cannot, in any civil case, determine upon property where it exceeds ten pounds; nor in any criminal case inflict a capital punishment on the blackest offender. The consequence of so limited an authority is apparent: many people will rather give up a legal right than contest it, where the expenses attending even the certain success of a suit, at the great distance of Pensacola from the Mississippi, will most commonly exceed the value of what is recovered in litigation. The evil, however, will not terminate here. Prosecutions, where life is affected, open a source of continual dispute between the dependant and the principal jurisdictions; at any rate they delay the sentence after a conviction; and if judges armed with sufficient powers are sent out from the latter, to try on such occasions, the innocent are liable to all the miseries of a long imprisonment; for, at the utmost, the courts cannot make above two circuits in the year. The second reason for a distinct Government is, the necessity of having the immediate representative of the sovereign, to encourage the aggregation of settlers, and accelerate the attachment of the Indians, who are superstitiously influenced by forms, and never conceive that a country belongs to any European prince without the positive residence of an acknowledged substitute. If any settlement thereof takes place on the British Mississippi, it should be subject to no control but that of Great Britain herself; the importance of the object deserves her own particular attention; and the more sensible she seems of this circumstance, the more strongly emigrants will be induced to realize the truth of the present representation.

JOHN HANCOCK, PRESIDENT, TO THE MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Philadelphia, June 15, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: By order of the Congress I transmit you the enclosed Resolutions, passed by the Congress this morning. The necessity of the present emergency requires a speedy compliance with the first, and I need not inform you that the nature of the service requires it to be done with as much secrecy as possible.

I am also directed by the Congress to request you will please to transmit them, as soon as may be, an estimate of the powder, arms, and ammunition in your Colony, including private as well as publick stocks. By Dr. Church, this morning, I forwarded you the resolution of Congress respecting the mode of Government. I am your most obedient servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Members of the Provincial Congress of the Massachusetts-Bay.

P. S. The enclosed letters for the Lieutenant-Governour of Rhode-Island, and the gentlemen of New-Hampshire, please immediately on receipt to send off by express. Pray don't fail.

NEW-YORK CONGRESS TO GENERAL WOOSTER.

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 15, 1775.

SIR: You will see by the enclosed order, that this Congress think it expedient to request you to march to this Colony with the troops under your command. If you are not at liberty to comply with the terms of this order until you consult the Governour and Company of Connecticut on this subject, we beg you would immediately despatch this requisition to them, and transmit to us their determination as soon as possible.

As we have at present but few tents, we beg you would order such as you have, to be sent to the place intended for their encampment, and make such other dispositions for the support of your troops as are in your power.

We are, Sir, your very humble servants.

By order and on behalf of the Provincial Congress:

P. V. B. LIVINGSTON, President.

To Major-General Wooster, at Greenwich.

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 15, 1775.

The Congress resumed the consideration of Mr. Foster's motion of yesterday; and whereupon, Ordered, That a message be immediately despatched to Major-General Wooster, now commanding a body of Troops in the southern part of Connecticut, requesting him forthwith to march the said Troops, with their tents and other necessaries, to the distance of five miles from this City, to be subject to the orders and directions of the Continental or this Congress while the said Troops shall continue in this Colony.

And Resolved, That we will assist the Commissaries of the said forces in procuring such necessaries for their accommodation as shall be to be procured within this Colony. A true copy from the Minutes:

JOHN MCKESSON, Secretary.

ADONIJAH STRONG TO THE ALBANY COMMITTEE.

Albany, June 15, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I beg leave to lay before this Board my information and request concerning the troops raised in and for the Colony of Connecticut, for the special defence of the same.

* Governour Browne declares, that in his expedition to the Mississippi, he frequently went up the River at the most disadvantageous seasons of the current, twenty-five or thirty miles a day, with eight oars only.

In the first place, it is provided by the said Colony, that each officer and soldier (among other things) shall have fresh meat two days in a week, butter, peas or beans, rice, rum when on fatigue, beer, &c., expecting said troops would be required at, or near by Boston, where it would have been easy and convenient for us to have supplied them according to said act.

In the next place, the ever to be revered patrons of America (the Continental Congress) have directed one thousand of our troops immediately to repair to Ticonderoga, there to be stationed until such time as they should be relieved by forces from this Province—just at a time after many of them were on their march according to their first destination, Greenwich, and had to countermarch through our Colony, and directly to Ticonderoga, and by means of so tedious a march have already become somewhat sickly. And as the Continental Congress have advised this Province particularly to provide for said forces at Ticonderoga during their stay, our Colony have, perhaps, been the more remiss in their provisions; and it does not appear to me that there is sauce sufficient, nor any fresh meat, butter, rum, beer, &c.; nor have I had intelligence that any is likely to be provided by this Province. Therefore, I come before this Board for advice in the premises; at the same time giving assurance that the publick faith of our Colony must not be violated, but it must be fulfilled according to the encouragement given by our Colony. Though pledged to soldiers, yet it is to those in defence of what we tenaciously hold as sacred, and to be prized above life. We therefore determine to have it fulfilled according to the Act of our Assembly—if not by this Province, by our Colony.

I am, gentlemen, with great esteem, your very humble servant,

ADONIJAH STRONG,

Dep. Commissary for said Troops.

To the Committee in and for the City and County of Albany.

Albany, June 17, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: You have enclosed, by order of the Committee, a request of Adonijah Strong, Deputy Commissary to the Committee of this City and County.

I am, gentlemen, your humble servant,

JOHN BAY, Secretary pro tem.

To the Provincial Congress, New-York.

GENERAL WOOSTER TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Camp at Greenwich, June 15, 1775.

SIR: I have just received your favour of the 14th instant, with enclosed affidavit; also Angus McDonald, who shall be kept in such a state of security as may effectually prevent any mischief that might otherwise be expected from him. Be good enough to give my compliments to the gentlemen of the Congress, and tell them that I am sorry you are obliged to send your prisoners so far; I should be much better pleased to receive them within a few miles of your City, especially as you so soon expect the arrival of the four Regiments from Ireland.

I am, Sir, with great esteem both for you and the gentlemen of the Congress, your most obedient humble servant,

DAVID WOOSTER, Major-General.

To Peter V. B. Livingston, Esquire, President of the Congress at New-York.

GENERAL WOOSTER TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Greenwich, June 15, 1775.

SIR: I take this opportunity to acquaint your Honour of the situation of the troops under my immediate command. One company of my Regiment, you are sensible, is ordered to Ticonderoga; five more are stationed betwixt New-Haven and this Town, and four are in this place. Colonel Waterbury's Regiment are all in this Town and Stamford. The safety of the Country may possibly require my marching to New-York before I can have your orders. I would, therefore, beg of your Honour to direct me to march my troops to New-York upon application made to me for that purpose by their Provincial Congress. Your Honour will perhaps think it expedient, when you read a letter which I have just received from Mr. Sears, which is as follows:

"New-York, June 14, 1775.

"DEAR SIR: The troops from Cork, destined for this City, may be hourly expected. I have the pleasure to inform you that this day in Congress it was moved that yourself and troops be requested to encamp within five miles of this City. The motion was put off until to-morrow, at the intercession of the members for three Counties, and you may be assured it will be carried by a great majority. I am, dear Sir, yours affectionately,

"ISAAC SEARS."

I have also this day received a letter from the Provincial Congress at New-York, acquainting me that they hourly expect the arrival of four Regiments from Ireland; they have also sent me a prisoner to be kept in safety, who was employed by Major Small to raise troops for the purpose of opposing the Colonies, and actually had enlisted forty-three, which was made to appear to the Provincial Congress.

I would also acquaint your Honour that all the military stores which were at Turtle Bay have fallen into our hands, consisting of too many articles to be enumerated in a letter, among which there are about five hundred good horse harnesses, a very considerable number of thirteen and ten-inch carcasses, cohorns, and stinkpots, all well charged; a very great plenty of grape-shot; cannon ball, from twenty-four-pounders down to three, &c., &c.; a part of which articles I shall keep with me, but the greater part I shall send to New-Haven.

Your Honour cannot be unacquainted that provisions, stores, &c., can be forwarded along the Sound by water with much greater despatch and vastly less cost to the Colony than by land; however, at present it is difficult, on account of the tenders and cutters which are perpetually about. We have at New-Haven a number of cannon; I have with me all other kinds of military stores, except powder, requisite for a guardacosta; Mr. Colt, of New-Haven, has a fine vessel very proper for the business. We have in the Army a very sufficient number of men well acquainted with the seas, and good resolute fellows, and it is my opinion, that the additional cost to the Colony will be nothing more than the hire of the vessel and the powder; that about a hundred of the men under my command cannot be employed in any way so much to the advantage of the Country. I am, Sir, your Honour's most obedient humble servant,

DAVID WOOSTER.

To the Honourable Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., Governour of the Colony of Connecticut.

Answer to a Speech to the CAUGHNAWAGAS, or CANADIAN Tribes of INDIANS, near MONTREAL, sent by the STOCKBRIDGE INDIANS—returned 15th JUNE, 1775.

BROTHERS: You tell me you open your eyes. I open your ears—I open your hearts; so that you might see, hear, and consider what I am going to say. Now I am going to say the same to you—I open your eyes, your ears, and make your heart strong, so that you might more fully consider things. I also add, with this I wipe the tears from your eyes that comes from the trouble that has happened to your young men.—Three strings of Wampum.

Brothers: You tell me that I must sit still, and have nothing to do with this quarrel. I am glad to hear you; I shall do as you tell me.—A Belt.

Brothers: This is our road; you tell me I clear the road, and whenever I open my door I shall see your door stand open; and when you shall go out of your door, you shall see my door stand open too. And you tell me, when you hear any bad report of me, don't you lay it up; put it aside, and follow this road, and come and tell me of it, and you will know whether it is so or not. Now, brothers, I make this road more smooth, so that no one might stumble on this way; I now open my door wider for you, and whenever you go out of your door, you shall see my door stand open wider for you. Whenever I hear any bad report of you, I shall not lay it up; but put it aside, and go and tell you of it, and see whether it is so or not.—A Belt.

Brothers, I am glad you keep in remembrance the agreement of friendship that our fathers have made. Let us hold that fast; let no one break that so as to divide us. Now I make it more strong—now we must sit down under our great tree, and smoke our pipes, and give praise to the great God. It is he that made us all; we are in another way, now, from what we used to be, since we began to worship this one God; this is like one staff that we both steady ourselves by. I shall do as you advise me to do—I shall sit still—there are seven brothers of us—(meaning seven tribes,) we are all agreed in this. Now we say to you—I would have you sit still too, and have nothing to do with this quarrel; but be strong in your hearts, and I intend to do the same.—A Belt.

GENERAL WARD TO WORCESTER (MASS.) COMMITTEE.
Cambridge, June 15, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: You are desired to see that the enclosed Order be duly executed. I am, &c.

ARTEMAS WARD.

To the Standing Committee in the County of Worcester.

(GENERAL ORDER.) Cambridge, June 15, 1775.

JOSEPH WARD, Secretary.

P. S. The above mentioned homestead Farm bounds northwardly on the County road; westwardly, on Mr. Buckminster's homestead; southwardly, on Doctor John Frink's homestead; eastwardly, partly on land of Mr. Clarke, and partly on land of Mr. Blake.

MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE CONGRESS.

In Provincial Congress, Watertown, June 15, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Considering the exposed state of the frontiers of some of the Colonies; the danger that the inhabitants of Canada may possibly have disagreeable apprehensions from the military preparations making in several of the other Colonies; and the rumours that there are some appearances of their getting themselves in readiness to act in a hostile way; this Congress have made application to the Continental Congress, desiring them to take such measures as to them shall appear proper, to quiet and conciliate the minds of the Canadians, and prevent such alarming apprehensions. We also have had the most disagreeable accounts of methods taken to fill the minds of the Indian Tribes adjacent to these Colonies with sentiments very injurious to us; particularly, we have been informed that Colonel Guy Johnson has taken great pains with the Six Nations, in order to bring them into a belief that it is designed by the Colonies to fall upon them and cut them off. We have, therefore, desired the Honourable Continental Congress that they would, with all convenient speed, use their influence in guarding against the evil intended by this malevolent misrepresentation, and we desire you to join with us in such application.

JOSEPH WARREN, President.

Honourable Provincial Congress of New-Hampshire.

WILLIAM STODDARD TO CAPTAIN JAMES LITTLEFIELD.

Boston, June 15, 1775.

SIR: Your letter and the last, dated the 13th instant, by Mr. Hopkins, I have received. I waited on the Admiral this morning, and have got you a fishing pass for your boat and three men, to come in and out of this harbour, which I now send you. You will carefully observe the pass; you must observe to go a fishing from Salem, before you come up here, and then you may come in and go out. I hope you will not meet with any obstruction at Salem; not forgetting, if in your power, to bring up veal, green peas, fresh butter, asparagus, and fresh salmon. Mr. Miles went away yesterday in the afternoon, by water, in order to come to you, and we suppose he is with you before this. I hope you have received a cloak, with a bag of brown sugar, I sent over yesterday by Mr. Hopkins's son. I have paid some of the ferrymen, and I shall pay them all for their trouble, when I have done with them. Do not pay them any thing; if you have, let me know; keep that to yourself. Captain Hurley is here with his schooner, from Penobscot, and has been here some time. I was the other day in his company, and he asked after you; he desired to be remembered to you. I wish you would send me last Monday's newspaper, and this day's paper. I shall be much obliged to you, if you can, before you go for Salem, send me some fresh butter, and half a bushel of green peas. I now send you two dollars in this letter, and an osnaburgh bag, by Mr. Hopkins's son, to put the peas in. What other charges you are at I will settle with you hereafter. I am obliged to you for the hint in coming out. I will let you know more when you come up from Salem. Let me hear from you before you go for Salem.

Give my compliments to Mr. Haynes, and all friends; all your friends desire to be remembered to you at these distressing times. Twenty-four sail of transports have arrived here this week with Light-horses and Troops from Ireland, and twenty-four more sail are coming.

Sir, your humble servant, WM. STODDARD.

To Captain James Littlefield, Watertown.

TO THE SOLDIERS AND SEAMEN SERVING IN THE BRITISH FLEET AND ARMY IN AMERICA.

Salem, June 15, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Your situation is very unhappy, being dishonoured by the most infamous service, and under the command of the most vile and miserable wretches that ever disgraced the name of Briton. General Gage, to his eternal infamy, has commenced a thief, robber, murderer, and common butcher of his fellow-men; he has violated the most solemn compacts, and become an apostate to every thing that is honourable or virtuous. You never can forget the barbarous murders which Gage has committed upon some of his own soldiers; but we come now to a character still more infamous, if possible, than the above. Admiral Graves has added to the crimes of a common pirate, that of forcing Americans, whom he hath impressed, to act against their own countrymen. Turks and Indians would scorn such rascally conduct, and surely every British soldier and seaman must detest such an odious scoundrel. Gentlemen, the Americans still entertain a respect for you, consider you as their brethren, and wish to live in harmony with you, and to make you free citizens of America. May you soon be freed from the service of tyrants, become the glorious defenders of freedom, and join with the victorious Americans.

SYDNEY.

SAMUEL LANGDON TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

A number of the members of the Corporation and Board of Overseers of Harvard College, being met together at the President's house, June 15, 1775, agreed upon the following draught, viz:

"Whereas, in the present difficult situation of publick affairs of this Colony, it is impracticable to call a meeting of the Overseers of the College strictly agreeable to the form and order appointed by the charter of said College: And whereas, nevertheless, the present circumstances of that seminary of learning require a meeting to be called speedily:

"Agreed, That application be made to the honourable Congress of this Colony, to know whether it would be any way displeasing to them that a meeting should be obtained of as many of the Overseers of Harvard College as can be called together under the present circumstances of the College and the Country, in order to join with the Corporation in conferring Academical Degrees, at the approaching season of the annual Commencement, on such candidates as may offer themselves and be judged qualified for the same, and to transact any other important matters relative to that society, and whether the honourable Congress would countenance such a procedure."

At the same time the gentlemen present beg leave to return their most grateful acknowledgments to the honourable Congress for the regard they have already shewn for the interest of the College, in directing the removal of the library and apparatus to a place of greater safety.

In the name of the gentlemen present,
SAMUEL LANGDON, President.
To the Honourable Congress of the Massachusetts-Bay.

To the Hon. JOSEPH WARREN, President of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY Congress, in WATERTOWN: (To be communicated to said Congress:)

HONOURED SIR: It appears to me and others that there are wanted in this Government some armed vessels to ward off the distressing piratical blows that, without doubt, will be struck by Admiral Samuel Graves's small men-of-war and tenders, by taking from us our inward-bound provisions, (molasses, salt, vessels, &c.,) as they have done, will almost bring on a famine in our Army and on the inhabitants; for this Government always was ill able to support itself with provisions, &c., and now has in it an army to feed, which will soon be felt and be distressing to its inhabitants, and, I fear, will bring on discontent and murmurings, which may be attended with bad consequences, to the disadvantage of our embarkment in the ever to be commended common cause. So hope that you will be enabled to guard against every evil that might otherwise befall us if we were not under the guardianship of Providence and your wise councils.

I hear that there is a ship almost or quite ready to launch at Danvers, of about three hundred tons; that it is probable she will be a good sailer, and, by strengthening her with some hanging knees, building a round-house and a top-gallant, forecastle, &c., would carry upward of thirty guns, and fight the major part of her men between decks, &c. By inquiry there may be found good sailing vessels now hauled up, that would in part answer our end for defence, and to bring provisions from the Southern Governments for our support. Some of them might be employed in bringing powder and guns from some parts of the Spanish and French Kingdoms, and might smuggle some from other Powers, and saltpetre from others, where we could not get it made into powder, and make it here, which would be to our advantage to have it manufactured.

So wishing you the smiles of Heaven in all your undertakings in the defence of our invaluable liberties, &c., &c., I remain, honoured Sir, your most humble and devoted servant,
S. L.

FALMOUTH COMMITTEE TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Falmouth, June 15, 1775.

HONOURED SIR: Mr. Lane is returned here with four of the Penobscot Tribe. We have furnished them with carriages to convey them to you, and Mr. Lane with money to pay their expenses. Orono, the chief man, seems to be sensible, and hearty in our cause; he reserves what he has chiefly to say till he comes to the Congress. We gave them assurances that they might depend upon being provided for while there, as well as on their return back again; wished them a pleasant journey, and that the event might be happy for them and us. We suppose Mr. Lane will give an account of the expense, therefore we have sent none.

Wishing success to our righteous cause, we are your Honours' most obedient humble servants,

JEDEDIAH PREBLE,
Chairman of the Committee of Correspondence.
Hon. Joseph Warren, President.

COL. READ TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Charlestown, Massachusetts, June 15, 1775.

SIRS: I beg leave to inform your body of my proceedings in the business I have the honour to be entrusted with in this difficult day. Gentlemen, on the second day of this instant, June, I received verbal orders from General Folsom, at Exeter, to repair to the westward part of the Province of New-Hampshire, and to collect a number of men I had there enlisted as volunteers for the defence of the liberties of America, and in the service of said Province and cause, all able-bodied, effective men, well equipped, to march to Cambridge, and there to put myself and men under the command of General Ward until further order. In obedience of which I immediately pursued my orders, and notified the men, and likewise I notified the Selectmen of the Town of the vote of Congress, in regard to furnishing the men with blankets. Notwithstanding what they and I could do in that affair, my officers were obliged to leave a number of enlisted men behind, as you will see by their returns herewith enclosed. On the twelfth of June, I arrived at Cambridge and waited on General Ward; he informed me that Cambridge was so thronged with soldiers, that he had given orders to Captains Spalding, Walker, and Crosby, to march to Medford. Then I repaired to Medford, and there I met with Captains Hinds, Whitcomb, Town, Hutchins, Man, Marcey, and Thomas. Whitcomb and Thomas I took out of Colonel Stokes's Regiment for the two Companies that were assigned me. Then I was informed by Colonel Stark that Medford was so full of soldiers that it was necessary for some to take other quarters; then I applied to General Ward and received orders in these words:

(GENERAL ORDERS.)

"Head-Quarters, June 12, 1775.

"That Colonel Read quarter his Regiment in the houses near Charlestown Neck, and keep all necessary guards between his barracks and the ferry, and on Bunker Hill.

"J. WARD, Secretary."

A copy per James Read.

Then, Sirs, I marched my Regiment from Medford to Charlestown Neck, and, with the assistance of Mr. Tufts, one of the Selectmen of Charlestown, I got my men into good barracks, and then raised my guard, consisting of one Captain, two subalterns, four sergeants, four corporals, and forty privates; this ended the thirteenth day of June.

I beg leave to inform you that we are in great want of an apothecary and chaplain. There is Doctor Abner Barker with us taking care of our sick, but hath no medicines only by applying to Head-Quarters; he is a man that hath been acquainted with the business of an apothecary, and he hath had the small-pox, and seems to be very kind and helpful, and is willing to tarry if desired.

JAMES READ.

To the Honourable Gentlemen of the Committee of Safety at Exeter.

COLONEL READ'S LETTER IN FAVOUR OF CAPTAIN COLBURN.

Fitzwilliam, June 8, 1775.

HONOURED SIR: I beg leave to trouble you with one word in favour of the bearer, Captain Colburn, that is to inform you that he is one of the signers of the paper of agreement to raise a Regiment under my command. And, Sir, as my Regiment is filled up without him, and as I had encouragement that any officer that had got men should be taken notice of in the next Regiment; and, Sir, as Captain Colburn hath been an old officer in the last war, which he is able to give an account for himself, I should take it as a favour if your Honours, the Committee, would favour him in the next Regiment as a Major, if agreeable to your Honours; at the same time would beg leave to subscribe myself your Honours' obliged and ever humble servant at command,

JAMES READ.

Service done by ANDREW COLBURN in the last war.

In the year 1755, I was at Oswego with General Shirly's Regiment; in the year '56, at Fort Edward; in the year '57, at Fort William Henry when taken; in the year '58, at Ticonderoga in the defeat; in the year '59, I sustained a commission in the Province service, and was at the taking of Ticonderoga and Crown Point, with Colonel Ingersoll's Regiment; in the year '60, in Colonel Ruggell's Regiment, at the taking the several forts on the lakes and Montreal. For the year '61, I commanded Captain Cowdan's Company at Crown Point, and in the year '62, at Crown Point; and in the year 1774, I received a Captain's commission in this Government, in Colonel Reuben Riders's Regiment.

Second. That officers see that their companies are equipped with ten pounds, at least, of powder and ball, and that their fire-locks are kept in good order at all times, and give their men special orders not to fire a gun on any account whatever, unless beset by the enemy.

Third. That each commander of a company embody all his company, that are off from duty, twice a day, to exercise them in the best manner for learning the art of war.

Fourth. That each officer give special orders to their soldiers that they do no damage to any of the houses where they are quartered, or to any garden or grass in any part of this town, on pain of being punished according to the offence.

Sixth. That the commanding officer of each company cause the Rules and Regulations for the Army to be read at the head of their respective companies forthwith, and it is expected that all officers and soldiers govern themselves accordingly.

Seventh. That the officers see that the men and barracks are kept clean.

Eighth. That there be a guard paraded this afternoon at six o'clock, of the same number of officers and soldiers that are now on guard, to relieve Captain Whitcomb and his party, and that the Adjutant and Orderly Sergeants keep a good roster, so that neither officer nor soldier be called upon for duty out of their proper turn.

Ninth. That there be no noise in camp after nine o'clock at night, but all repair to their lodgings or barracks.

Tenth. That Ephraim Stone is appointed Quartermaster Sergeant until further orders.

JAMES READ, Colonel.

(REGIMENTAL ORDERS.)

Charlestown, June 15, 1775.

The main guard of this day is to consist of one Captain, two subalterns, four sergeants, four corporals, and forty privates. The captain of the main guard is to keep a trusty sergeant with the sentries, in the street below the Guard-House, to examine all passengers; and let none pass without showing proper passes in the day time, and none to pass after nine o'clock at night, without giving the countersign; and no sentry is to set down on his post; and when any field officers pass them, to stand with their fire-locks rested. No soldier to swim in the water on the Sabbath day, nor any other day to stay in the water any longer than is necessary to wash themselves.

JAMES READ, Colonel.

JOSEPH HABERSHAM TO PHILOTHEOS CHIFFELLE.

Savannah, June 16, 1775.

DEAR SIR: The alarming height to which our disputes with the Mother Country has at length arisen, and the many detestable arts that are made use of by our enemies to involve us in one general scene of distress, are motives sufficient to stimulate every honest man to use his best endeavours to counteract the wicked designs of our enemies, which will be a sufficient excuse for my troubling you with this, as it conveys a piece of intelligence that I think very interesting, and should, when thought proper, be made known to the good people of your Province as well as our own.

Mr. John Stuart, who is now at Colonel Mulryne's house at Thunderbolt, desired that the Colonel would wait on some gentlemen who are in opposition to Government, as it is called here, and beg that they would be so good as to call on the Superintendent at his house yesterday, as he wanted to have an opportunity of clearing himself of some aspersions, and likewise to lay before us his letters with respect to Indian affairs. Accordingly four or five of us malcontents attended; when Mr. Stuart began with informing us that he had received letters by the last post from Charlestown which made him very uneasy, as a report had been circulated there that he had been tampering with certain Indians, at which he manifested not a little surprise. He showed us the letter he received from Charlestown, and his answer to Colonel Howarth, whom he has desired to make the contents publick, and which he means a justification of his conduct. So far every thing appeared to me plausible; but, unluckily for Mr. Stuart, he produces a number of his letters to his Deputy, Mr. Cameron, and the answers; in one of which he writes thus: "I have received information from General Gage that certain persons at the northward have been tampering with the Six Indian Nations, and endeavouring to alienate their affections from His Majesty. I mention this to caution you against any thing of the kind with you, and that you will use your influence to dispose those people to act in defence of His Majesty and Government, if found necessary." Mr. Cameron's answer was couched nearly in the following words, (I do not differ, I am positive, as to the substance, though I may in some of the words:) "That Mr. Stuart's interest with the Indians was much greater, and that he was more beloved by them than any other man; and that he (Mr. Cameron) had the vanity to think that he could head any number he thought proper whenever called upon in support of His Majesty and Government."

Now, Sir, I shall leave you to make your own comments on the above, though I will acquaint you with what I said to him on its being read: that we were at no loss to know what was meant by assisting or acting in defence of His Majesty and Government, if found necessary; for, as we were not at war with the French or Spaniards, it could not be against them that they were meant to act. Mr. Cameron further tells Mr. Stuart that the traders must by some means or other get ammunition among them, or otherwise they may become troublesome to him for the want of it. I do not well know how far I am at liberty to make this publick; but as Mr. Stuart has wrote to Mr. Howarth, in order to justify himself in the eyes of the people of Carolina, I think, as a farther justification, he should produce his letters to and from Cameron. Mr. Stuart's letter that contains the foregoing paragraph is dated about the middle of January last, and is copied from among a number of others, in a large book bound in calf.

You may give the Secret Committee intelligence of this, and if they should think it of sufficient importance to claim a demand from Mr. Stuart of these letters, and he should then hesitate, and will not grant what they request, and it should further be thought necessary, I can find four persons besides myself, to avow what I have said to be true, as any thing of this kind should come well authenticated.

We are going on here tolerably well with respect to our political proceedings, and I hope soon to convince the world that Georgia will not take advantage of her sister Colonies in the present disputes.

I am, dear Sir, your most obedient servant,

JOSEPH HABERSHAM.

Philotheos Chiffelle, Esq.

TO GENERAL BURGOTNE.

Philadelphia, June 16, 1775.

SIR: Your accession to a command upon this side the Atlantic must necessarily engage the attention of America. A gay sparkler from the parade of St. James's may attract the eye of the young and inexperienced; but when the real Soldier and the able Senator appears, these little meteors must die away, whilst a different class of men mark the latter's conduct with determined circumspection. If brave, he is humane; if worthy the seat he fills in the legislature, he will not suffer his idea of promoting his Country's welfare to be circumscribed by any partial, local boundaries. If thus brave and wise, he will love valour and freedom, and endeavour to kindle these glorious emanations of virtue in every bosom. The temple of Liberty fills all space, and the great and good of every age have been the willing votaries to sacrifice at her altar.

It appears, Sir, that you have considered the grand American question; "real and virtual representation," external and internal taxes, "revenue and regulation," are not with you novel ideas. I cannot suppose your "understanding confounded," or your "head dizzy with these distinctions;" though you seem willing to consider them as "rhetorical and sophistical," while you view "the Declaratory Act of the sixth of the present King" as the solemn line by which your judgment is to be bounded, and beyond which your researches must not presume to soar. Have the Parliament of England, Sir, never been mistaken? Are they infallible? No, Sir. We know there existed laws for the punishment of witchcraft, but true philosophy having exploded that error, the wisdom of succeeding times repealed those statutes. The halcyon days of George the Second broke that supposed subjection to the powers of darkness. Forbid it, Heaven, that a more gloomy infatuation should becloud the reign of George the Third. You view "the Government" of England as "suspended," the Parliament a phantom, the mere shadow of authority, assembled only to lament a substance lost, and to propose and subtilize questions of their own impotency. "Was this the case, I should agree" with you, that the state of Britain was wretched indeed, and that she was about "reverting to her primitive insignificance in the map of the world." But, Sir, can any Government be suspended, when every branch of authority the Constitution warrants her to exercise is acknowledged and obeyed—when she is only restrained from putting in effect what she has no right to attempt? Were the powers granted to James the Second by the Constitution resumed by that source from whence they sprung, because the virtue of our ancestors would not permit him to suspend acts of Parliament, violate Charters, and introduce Popery? Had that deluded man made the line of the Constitution the path of his obedience, he would not have had cause to lament the substance he lost, or sat torpid at St. Germaine's, subtilizing questions of his own impotency.

Wisdom and goodness flee every species of deception. Suffer not yourself to be deceived. "The Congress of Philadelphia" is not "the legislature to dispense the blessings of Empire;" it is composed of gentlemen met, by the appointment of the freemen of America, to devise the most probable schemes for cementing the Parent State and all her blooming Colonies in the firmest band of union; such an union as may make the most happy Nation of the earth, and transmit its glory and freedom to the latest time. Their intention is "to spare the blood of their fellow-subjects;" "to spare the treasures of the State;" and, in concert with Britain, to erect an Empire on the firm basis of the Constitution, that shall survive until time shall be no more.

In addressing you, I hope, Sir, nothing has or may fall from my pen to injure the sacred cause of my Country, or to disgust yourself. The language of freedom, as a mother tongue, I must adopt, whilst the walk of abuse or offensive personality shall be entirely unoccupied by

A PENNSYLVANIAN.

ACCOUNT OF PROVINCE STORES AND PROVISIONS RECEIVED, FORWARDED, ISSUED, AND WHAT REMAINED, AT ALBANY, JUNE 14, 1775.

Received at Albany, by different vessels from New-York and Kingston, 200 barrels flour, 400 barrels pork, and 20 tierces rice; bought on publick credit at Albany, 52 barrels flour, and 14 barrels peas: In all, 252 barrels flour, 400 barrels pork, 14 barrels peas, and 20 tierces rice.

Forwarded from Albany to Fort George, 88 barrels flour, 136 barrels pork, and 12 barrels peas: Leaves 164 barrels flour, 264 barrels pork, 2 barrels peas, and 20 tierces rice.

Issued or delivered out at different times, 25 barrels flour, 9 barrels pork, and 2 barrels peas: Remains at Albany, 14th June, 1775, 139 barrels flour, 255 barrels pork, and 20 tierces rice.

Stores remaining: Five hogsheads rum, one cask naval stores, one cask sails for scows, fourteen barrels pitch and tar, five casks oakum, three boxes spades and shovels, one box hoes, and four coil cordage.

N. B. About twenty wagons are constantly employed on the publick credit of the Colony between Albany and Fort George to carry stores and provisions to the latter as fast as possible, and before I left Albany I received intelligence that ten or twelve more wagons in and about the Boght were preparing to come to Town for loads. The last company of Colonel Hinman's Regiment, of Connecticut, were to leave Albany the 15th instant; the other nine (consisting of near a hundred men each, as the Colonel informed me) were mostly arrived at Fort George on the 12th instant, and some, as we heard, had already reached Ticonderoga. Those Companies did not all draw provisions at Albany, as they brought a sufficiency with them from Connecticut to last them to Fort George, especially pork, and I think two Companies did not draw any, but the others I have supplied with flour only, and about two barrels of pork.

Provisions requisite to victual fifteen hundred men for three months, viz: 675 barrels flour, average 200 pounds nett; 367 barrels pork, average 210 pounds; 7,232 pounds butter; 226 barrels peas, average 3½ bushels; 1,206 gallons rice, or eighteen tierces, average 8 bushels.

Sent off to Fort George fourteen carpenters, to build batteaus.

JOHN N. BLEECKER.
New-York, June 16, 1775.

GENERAL WOOSTER TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Greenwich, June 16, 1775.

SIR: Your Honour will receive enclosed a requisition from the Provincial Congress at New-York. Captain Sears, who arrived here last night about twelve o'clock, informs me that the people of New-York intend to quarter the Troops in the City. I should be glad to be informed how far I shall subject myself and the Troops under my command to the direction of the Continental or Provincial Congress; whether, (if I proceed to New-York,) when the Irish Troops arrive, I shall wait for directions from the Continental Congress whether to oppose them or not. It is my private opinion that they ought not to be suffered to land. I wrote you yesterday for your direction about the expediency of my marching to New-York.

I am, Sir, with due respect, your Honour's most obedient humble servant,

DAVID WOOSTER.

To the Honourable Jonathan Trumbull, Esq.

LETTER FROM AN OFFICER IN BOSTON TO HIS FRIEND IN ENGLAND, DATED JUNE 16, 1775.

DEAR SIR: As we are just now convoying with the General's despatches clear off the coast, I thought that a line or two to you by the same opportunity would not be unwelcome. Nothing of consequence has happened at Boston since the 19th of April, except a skirmish or two between the enemy and some parties of Troops who went a foraging for hay on certain islands in the harbour. The rebels still continue the blockade. Their out-sentinels the other day called to ours to send out the Light-Horse, that they might beat them as they had beaten the Grenadiers and Light-Infantry; and single men of them have been so impudent as to fire a musket at the King's ships. They burnt a house the other day belonging to a Tory within shot of the Admiral. They have taken Ticonderoga, in which place were eighty pieces of cannon and a large quantity of stores. It is reported they have got some of those guns now before Boston. Before our lines in camp and Roxbury the rebels amount to three or four thousand men. At other Towns in the neighbourhood it is said there are two-and-twenty thousand. All the Troops from Ireland are arrived in good health, and the horses in excellent condition. Only sixteen horses died in the passage, and they brought forty spare ones. Sixteen of the transports which were ordered from England to New-York, are, by the General, ordered to Boston. With this addition our army will amount to about ten thousand men, all in high spirits, and terribly exasperated against the Provincials. On the 12th instant General Gage published a Proclamation, offering a pardon, in the King's name, to all rebels who shall forthwith come in and lay down their arms, excepting only Hancock and Adams. No regard is paid to Lord North's terms of accommodation. The word with the Sons of Liberty, as the rebels style themselves, is, join or die. I expect to hear of bloody work soon, as our Troops are determined to lay all the Country waste as they go with fire and sword. The prisoners have been all exchanged. The Merlin is at Marblehead. As soon as we part from our convoy we are to proceed to New-York, and from thence to Philadelphia, to put the Restraining Act in execution. Thank God I keep health, &c.

PROCLAMATION BY THE MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

In Provincial Congress, Watertown, June 16, 1775.

Resolved, That the following Proclamation be signed by the President, printed, and published throughout this Colony:

BY THE PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

The confidence which our countrymen have reposed in us, lays us under the strongest obligation to watch and guard against all the malignant designs of their inveterate enemies.

That the British Administration have formed, and have been for several years executing a plan to enslave this and the other American Colonies, is a proposition so evident, that it would be an affront to the understanding of mankind to adduce proofs in support of it. We shall therefore only advert to those unhappy circumstances which have been the immediate causes of plunging this People into the horrors of war and desolation. When a Fleet and Army were sent forth to deprive us of every thing that man holds dear; when the Capital of this Colony became a garrison, and fortifications were erected upon the only land-entrance into the Metropolis; when the Commander of the Army so far manifested his designs against us, as to send out his Soldiers in the night to remove the publick magazines of the Colony from their safe lodgment in the country, and place them under the command of a Foreign Army; when he evidenced his enmity to the liberties of this Country, by sending a detachment from that Army against the peaceable inhabitants of one of our principal Towns, only because they were assembled quietly to concert measures to save themselves from ruin; when we were lately deprived of the benefit of a legislative body; when the whole system of distributive justice was so mutilated that there could be no reason to hope for any advantages from it; when an Act of Parliament was passed, which the General of the Army resolves to execute, by which our countrymen were given up as a prey to a lawless soldiery, who were screened from punishment here for the murders they might commit; in fine, when the Army and Navy breathed nothing but blood and slaughter, and all our accounts from England but too strongly proved the inhuman intentions of those in power: it became us as men, as freemen, and Christians, to take some steps to preserve our own lives and properties, as well as to secure the inheritance, purchased at no less a price than the blood of many thousands of our brave ancestors, entire and undiminished for succeeding generations. The Congress whom this people then chose recommended it to them to provide themselves with such articles for their defence as the law of the land required, and further recommended it to them to appropriate some part of their own property for the purchasing such stores to be laid up in publick magazines as might be useful for the general defence, in case an attack should be made upon us by the Army. The recommendation was cheerfully complied with, and stores were procured in the most peaceable and quiet manner, and deposited in magazines, where they were to have continued without the least injury or disturbance to any one, unless drawn out by necessity to save the Country from destruction. But the possibility of our making resistance to the bloody schemes of our adversaries was the source of continual terror to the traitors, whose aim was to enslave this Country; and General Gage, after many little pilferings, and several humiliating disappointments in his attempt to rob the people, at length determined to destroy the magazines at Concord; he sent the Grenadiers and companies of Light-Infantry of every regiment (about one thousand in number) secretly by night over Charles River. On their way some of the Officers captivated and otherwise infamously abused several of the inhabitants; and when the body arrived at Lexington meeting-house, which was very early in the morning of the ever memorable nineteenth of April, they in a most barbarous and infamous manner fired upon a small number of the inhabitants, and cruelly murdered eight men. The fire was returned by some of the survivors, but their number was too inconsiderable to annoy the Regular Troops, who proceeded on their errand; and upon coming up to Concord, began to destroy by fire and water the stores and magazines, until a party of them again fired upon and killed two more of the inhabitants. The native bravery of our countrymen could now no longer be restrained; a small party, consisting of about two or three hundred men, attacked them with such spirit and resolution, as compelled them soon to retreat. At Lexington they met a re-enforcement of Regular Troops, consisting of about eight hundred, with two field-pieces, commanded by Lord Percy. This, however, did not encourage them to keep their ground, but they continued their route towards Charlestown, marking their way with every species of desolation and cruelty which their haste would permit.

The burning and robbing of houses, the abuses and barbarities offered to defenceless women and children, the wanton slaughter of the aged and helpless, will be a perpetual memorial of the base spirit which actuated the perpetrators.

Upon their arrival at Charlestown our countrymen quitted the pursuit, and the next day suffered them, without annoyance, to pass the river and return to Boston.

This action of the Troops destroyed every hope of coming to any accommodation with them; we therefore were compelled to raise an Army to prevent such bloody excursions in future. An Army is therefore raised and appointed for this purpose, and we are, with the greatest reluctance, obliged to declare, that we have now nothing to depend upon under God to preserve America from slavery and destruction but our arms; to these we have been forced to make our appeal, and by these we are determined to maintain our rights. And we are obliged to declare, and do now publicly declare, all persons who shall afford any aid, assistance, or relief, or hold any manner of communication of any kind whatsoever with General Gage, Admiral Graves, or the Army or Navy, or any one of those now under their command, who are stationed in our Metropolis and the Harbour of Boston or elsewhere, or any persons who are known or shall hereafter be known to have afforded such aid, or to have had such communication with them or either of them, to be enemies and traitors to their Country, and they shall be proceeded against and treated as such, excepting only such of the unhappy inhabitants of Boston as have, by a treacherous and most infamous breach of faith in General Gage, been prevented from removing out of the Town of Boston, whose peculiar circumstances this Congress will at all times make due allowance for, so long as they shall avoid doing any thing to obstruct or counteract such steps as this Congress shall think fit to take; but the said inhabitants are strictly forbidden, whatever may be the consequence of their refusal, to be in any the least degree instrumental in assisting the enemy, or opposing the Country, as they would avoid the penalties due to the enemies thereof. From a real tenderness to our fellow-men, we most sincerely regret the unhappy situation of the Soldiers and Sailors in the Army and Navy now stationed in the Town and Harbour of Boston, and assure them, upon that faith which never has been, and we trust never will be violated, that upon their quitting the infamous service in which they are, (as we must in charity suppose,) contrary to their own inclinations and principles, engaged, we will receive them as brethren and fellow-subjects, and protect them against every attempt that may be made by our enemies to force them again into the disgraceful and inhuman service in which they now are employed.

And that our earnest desire to discover our tender regard to our few misguided fellow-countrymen, and our readiness to forgive even those who have knowingly offended, we do promise and engage a full, free pardon to all persons who have fled to the Town of Boston for refuge, and to the other publick offenders against the rights and liberties of this Country, of what kind or denomination soever, excepting only from the benefit of such pardon Thomas Gage, Samuel Graves, and those Counsellors who were appointed by mandamus, and have not signified their resignation, viz: Jonathan Sewell, Charles Paxton, Benjamin Halliwell, and all the natives of America not belonging to the Navy or Army who went out with the Troops on the 19th of April last, and were countenancing, aiding, and assisting them in the robberies and murders then committed, whose offences are of too flagitious a nature to admit of any other consideration than that of condign punishment: Provided they take the benefit hereof by making a surrender of themselves to any General Officer belonging to the Massachusetts Army, and subscribe a declaration of their readiness to comply with, support, and abide by all the resolutions and determinations which are already made by this or any former Congress, or that shall hereafter be made by this or any future Congress or House of Representatives of this Colony, within thirty days from the date hereof. And it is earnestly enjoined upon the Selectmen, Committees of Correspondence, Committees of Safety, and all other Officers of every Town in this Colony, that they use their utmost diligence to discover and make known to this Congress any person or persons who shall in any respect attempt to do any thing tending to render ineffectual their designs and doings; and we trust that the God of Armies, on whom we rely for a blessing upon our arms, which we have taken up in support of the great and fundamental principles of natural justice and the common and indefeasible rights of mankind, will guide and direct us in our designs, and at last, in infinite goodness to this his injured people, restore peace and freedom to the American world.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress now sitting at WATERTOWN:

The Petition of EBENEZER SMITH and THOMAS COOK,
Selectmen of EDGARTOWN, in behalf of said EDGAR-TOWN, humbly sheweth:

That whereas the said Town of Edgartown is very small and poor, the soil sandy, and not capable of producing the article of bread-corn for the inhabitants yearly by far; whereby many of the inhabitants are obliged to employ themselves in the whaling employ for their support, which at this time is rendered useless, by reason that the oil obtained will not produce cash; and also the staple commodity of said Edgartown, which is the article of sheep's wool, cannot be transported to the main land at this time, with any degree of safety, by reason of the armed vessels continually cruising betwixt said Edgartown and the main land; and your petitioners are well assured that there is but very little cash in said Town, and that many of the inhabitants are at this time in a considerable degree suffering for the article of bread-corn, and are by no means at this present time capable of paying their publick taxes: we therefore pray, in behalf of said Edgartown, that as your petitioners have contracted with the Committee of Supplies to supply them with a number of yarn stockings, that the same may answer in lieu of the money, as far as the amount of said stockings; as we conceive it will be of great utility to said Town, by reason that the little money there is will be stopped in said Town, and the poor kept at work in the manufacturing of the wool. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

THOMAS COOK, }
EBENEZER SMITH, } Selectmen.

Edgartown, June 16, 1775.

COLONEL ISRAEL GILMAN TO THE NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Charlestown, June 16, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I take this opportunity to inform you of the state of Colonel Read's Regiment now at Charlestown. The Regiment is full officered; the soldiery will appear by the return; there is good harmony in said Regiment. A chaplain, surgeon, and armourer very much wanting in said Regiment.

Gentlemen, I am, with respect, your most obedient, &c.,
ISRAEL GILMAN.

To the Honourable the Committee of Safety.

P. S. It is still times with the Regular Troops at present; we expect they will make a push for Bunker's Hill or Dorchester Neck very soon.

TO THE PEOPLE OF ENGLAND.

London, June 17, 1775.

Friends and Fellow-Countrymen:

Let me conjure you, by all you hold dear here and hereafter, by all the ties of nature and justice, to rouse in defence of your persecuted brethren and fellow-subjects in America, who daily fall innocent victims to lawless power. Let me entreat you to rouse in defence of your rights and liberties, those rights and liberties which Heaven gave, and for which your fathers bravely fought, and gloriously fell, to preserve themselves, and us their posterity free. Be assured if bleeding America can be reduced to slavery, all the boasted privileges of Englishmen must fall with her; let me therefore beseech you to oppose, with uplifted hands and stretched out arms, the cruel, bloody, and unnatural tyranny of George the Third, and his diabolical tory minions. Perdition, destruction, and all the miseries of a tortured death, attend the wretch who calls himself an Englishman, and yet can tamely see his brother, or fellow-subject, perish through wanton cruelty, oppression, or the sword.

No tyrant was ever more despotick and cruel than the present Sovereign, who disgraces the seat of royalty in the British Empire; no Court ever more corrupt than his; and yet, O my countrymen, to this merciless and despotick tyrant, and to his wicked and corrupt Ministry, you sacrifice your rights, and yield a peaceable submission.

Consider the gloomy, the dreadful prospect before you. The plains of America are running with the blood of her inhabitants; the essence of the English Constitution destroyed, and nothing but the form, the mere shadow of it remains; all the dear-bought liberties purchased and sealed with the blood of your forefathers, wrested from you by the polluted hands of an abandoned set of miscreants; supported and defended by a royal tyrant; and a dark cloud of slavery, like a rising tempest, overspreads the land; it approaches swiftly, and at this moment threatens our destruction: it is therefore high time you should be roused and awakened to a sense of your danger; and by an appeal to Heaven, by a glorious resistance, provide for your common safety.

This is the only way; we have no other to prevent the ruin that threatens us. If we are inattentive or inactive at this time, our chains will be fast riveted, and liberty must expire. Your petitions and remonstrances have been spurned by the King, and you have now no remedy left but that of entering into an association in defence of your common rights, and the rights of America. They have set you a noble example, an example worthy of Britons, an example which you are bound by all the principles of justice and self-preservation to follow; he must be blind that is not convinced of this, and he is an abandoned wretch, an enemy to mankind, who will not pursue the road.

Upon your virtue and resolution at this juncture, depends the salvation of England and America; it is now in your power to prevent the further progress of despotism, the butchery of your fellow-countrymen, and yourselves from slavery and ruin.

When the humble supplications of an oppressed People are treated with contempt, and a deaf ear turned to their complaints; when their rights are daily invaded, their property unlawfully wrested from them, and their blood inhumanly shed; it is incumbent on them, it is a duty they owe to God and their Country, to take the field and resist their oppressors; to show themselves brave, when bravery is required, and dare to be resolute in the hour of danger. Remember, my fellow-countrymen, our predecessors led the way; the Americans have followed their noble example, and we are bound to follow them. Where would have been liberty and property, if it had not been for the virtue, bravery, and resolution of our ancestors? They stood forth in the glorious cause, and many of them secured it to posterity by their blood. Shall we then tamely submit to have those privileges, for which they fought and fell, ravished from us by a lawless tribe of men, who call themselves Senators or Ministers, and who, taking advantage of their Prince, are laying waste their country, and spreading desolation through the land? Shall it be said in after times, that the year one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five was less glorious than that of sixteen hundred and eighty-eight; and that as the age grew more and more enlightened it became more and more pusillanimous? Forbid it Heaven!

Let me entreat you, O Englishmen, to rouse from that state of supineness in which you have so long lain; open your eyes to the danger that surrounds you, and stand forth the defenders of American virtue and publick liberty. Havoc is now the cry at St. James's, and the dogs of war are let loose to tear out the vitals of our brethren. America, through the abandoned cruelty of an accursed Administration and an unrelenting King, is become a field of blood, overspread with desolation and slaughter. It is in your power to put an end to this horrid unnatural civil war; it must owe its extinction or continuance to you. If you are virtuous, brave, and resolute, the lives, liberties, and properties of your fellow-subjects may be preserved, and your Country saved from destruction: if, on the contrary, you should be irresolute and pusillanimous at this time, (unworthy the name of Englishmen,) thousand, many thousand lives must be lost; the liberties of England will be no more; and your property taken from you at the will and pleasure of the King and his Ministers.

It can only be from the virtue and united efforts of England and America, that the Constitution of Great Britain, and all our invaluable privileges, can be preserved. Should you remain quiet spectators of the present inhuman massacres and destructive measures, you will deserve the worst of slavery, and the cruelest punishment ever inflicted on a people.

If you have any honour, if you have any virtue, or any bravery, you will now stand forth and resist the tyrants; you will demand the heads of those men who advised those sanguinary, fatal, and ruinous measures; you will declare to the world you will not consent to arbitrary invasions of your liberties; arbitrary dispensings with the laws; and arbitrary governing by an Army: that you owe no submission to a King, beyond the bounds of law; that your lives, liberties, and estates shall not be disposed of at his pleasure; that you are bound by the laws of God and man to resist a tyrant; and that you will oppose all unjust violence, and those who attempt the life of the Constitution, as the great enemies of their Country. This has been practised in all ages; and all Nations determine, that Kings who invade the lives, liberties, or properties of their subjects; that tear up the foundations of publick freedom, and the sacred Constitution of their Country; may be resisted, either by calling in and joining with foreign assistance, or by taking arms in defence of the laws and common liberty. This is what was declared at the Revolution, and this is the foundation upon which the people took arms in the time of Charles the First.

The axe is now at the root of the tree; the overthrow of the Constitution is the great design of the King and his Ministers, the open and avowed enemies to the natural rights of mankind, who have already sufficiently proved to the world that they mean the subversion of the universal right of Christians and of subjects. Let those, my countrymen, who plead for tyrants, submit to their power; but let us esteem our liberty, religion, and property, equally with our lives, every man's birthright by nature; no Government ever received a legal authority to abridge or take it away; nor has God vested any single or confederated power in any hands to destroy it; and it is in defence of those glorious privileges, these common rights, I have written this paper; and to preserve them unviolated by the polluted hands of lawless tyrants, I would lay down my life, for life is a burden in any other state than that of freedom.

It is notoriously known, notwithstanding all the Royal and Ministerial falsehoods which have been, and are daily advanced to our disgrace; it is known that we do not enjoy undiminished, one single privilege purchased by the blood of our ancestors, and confirmed to us by Magna Charta and the Bill of Rights. Every man, then, who remains passive at this time, is an enemy and traitor to his Country. I lose all kind of patience when I reflect upon the melancholy situation of England and America, and the villanous principles of those men entrusted by the Sovereign with the management of the affairs of this once great, free, and powerful Kingdom. I am fired with a just indignation against the authors of our misfortunes; and if I appear too warm, I hope it will be imputed to my zeal in the publick cause, and not to any malice or resentment against individuals, for I here declare to have none. But I most sincerely wish to stop the further effusion of human blood, and would willingly sacrifice my life, could I wrest my Country from the hands of parricides and traitors, and from that destruction which now threatens it.

In Provincial Congress, Charlestown, }
Saturday, June 17, 1775. }

Resolved, That this Congress shall expire on the sixth day of August next; that a new election be made on Monday the 7th and Tuesday the 8th days of August, except in Charlestown; and that the new members then elected do meet in General Congress at Charlestown, on the first day of December next, or sooner, if the General Committee shall think it expedient to summon them.

Resolved, That each Parish, or District, shall, at the time of choosing Deputies to attend the Provincial Congress, likewise choose a convenient number to form Committees in the said Parishes and Districts respectively, in order to enforce the different Resolves of the Continental and Provincial Congresses. By order of Congress:

PETER TIMOTHY, Secretary.

TO THE COMMITTEE OF THE CITY OF PHILADELPHIA, AND TO ALL OTHERS WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

Philadelphia, June 17, 1775.

Suppose this Major, Colonel, or whatever he may be, who is lately arrived from the Parliamentary Army at Boston, and says he sold out, should be a Spy sent from the Generals to examine into the state of our affairs; to fix on the ground which can be occupied to most advantage by an Army, Regiment, or party of Regulars; to see whether we are prepared to oppose their landing, or to prevent any ships from coming opposite the City, which by threats to fire upon it, might intimidate the inhabitants. Suppose the Generals have resolved, if the landing at New-York should prove too hazardous, on account of its vicinity to Connecticut, to send the Troops here, and that he is sent on purpose to assist and direct them in landing. Suppose all, or any of these to be the true supposition, what then? Suppose he and the paroled Major (for I hear they are much together) should, by their united counsels, fix and recommend a plan for introducing a few Regiments to Philadelphia, what then? These are reasonable suppositions. Generals who could affect nothing by force, have had recourse to stratagem, and may have again. I have but one supposition more, the rest I leave to your virtue, wisdom, and prudence: suppose the general desire of your fellow-citizens to be "dent operam curatores selecti ducesq; militares ne quid civitas detrimenti capiat"—Quid tum?

I am, &c.

JAMES DUANE TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Philadelphia, June 17, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Your favour of the . . . by express came to hand yesterday, and the papers you enclosed have been communicated to the Congress, who cannot but approve of your generous and spirited conduct.

You have by this conveyance two packets from the President of the Congress, on the subjects to which they relate. I need make no remark.

As it was found that you made no progress in raising men, the Congress have thought fit that the posts directed to be taken in our Government should immediately be occupied by the Troops of Connecticut, which are ready for service, and unemployed. We enclose you, by order of the Congress, a certified copy of their Resolution on that head.

Your great complaint of the want of money will, I hope, be soon removed. For your present satisfaction, we have obtained leave of the Congress to inform you that the General Committee of the whole body have reported a Resolution to emit, in Continental paper currency, a sum not exceeding the value of two millions of Spanish dollars, for the redemption of which all the Colonies are to be pledged. Upon revolving the effect of this Resolution, you will find to agree in the main point—the stability of the fund, with your own judicious system. We hope soon to furnish you with the particulars of this important transaction. We are likewise at liberty to acquaint you that the Congress have agreed to raise, at the Continental expense, a body of fifteen thousand men—ten thousand for the defence of the Massachusetts, and the remainder to be employed in New-York for keeping open the communication between the Northern and Southern Colonies; and that Colonel George Washington is appointed Captain-General and Commander-in-Chief of all the forces raised and to be raised in the common cause. You are under no further obligation of secrecy on that subject, than to prevent their being inserted in any newspaper, from which it is apprehended some prejudices might arise.

The letters for Governour Trumbull and General Wooster, relate to the removal of the Connecticut Troops into our Government, and are to be forwarded with your despatches on that subject; but they are only from their Delegates, and not authoritative, the Congress having referred it to you to make the application to that Government.

I have retired from the Congress at the request of my brethren to send off these despatches; for which reason I have done the honour of subscribing myself, with the greatest respect, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,
JAMES DUANE.

To the Provincial Congress at New-York.

NEW-YORK CONGRESS TO THEIR DELEGATES AT PHILADELPHIA.

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 17, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We are this day informed by Mr. Jeffrey, of the Lord Hyde packet-boat, that the Mercury ship-of-war was cruising off our coast, and is now at Sandy-Hook, to order the transports from Ireland with Troops destined to this City, to proceed immediately to Boston; and did on Tuesday last, about thirty leagues to the southeast of Sandy-Hook deliver those orders to the Old Spy, man-of-war, (now a transport with a part of the Forty-Fourth Regiment on board,) who immediately altered her course.

Captain Jeffery told us he had this information both from the officers of the troops on board of the Spy, and from some of the officers of the Mercury man-of-war.

From this information, we are induced to conclude that some capital stroke is meditated against our brethren of the Massachusetts-Bay. We therefore, gentlemen, think it our duty to despatch this information to you, that it may be known to the Continental Congress.

We are, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

P. V. B. LIVINGSTON, President.

To the New-York Delegates in Continental Congress.

P. S. We enclose you copies of the two letters we have despatched to General Wooster.

MASSACHUSETTS COMMITTEE OF SUPPLIES TO COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Chamber of Supplies, Watertown, June 17, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We have received your letter per express, and in answer inform you that we have no horses at present but what are unfit for use, or wanted for the expresses of this Committee. We are informed that Colonel Gerrish has a horse taken at Noddle's Island, and shall be glad that you will take the same, if the intelligence is true, and give us notice. We have received but ten out of twenty-eight horses ordered by Congress to be delivered us, and are informed that those left behind are some of the best; pray take them if to be found, unless detained by the Generals. We have sent to procure four, which shall be sent you as soon as possible; and are, with respect, gentlemen, your humble servant,
DAVID CHEEVER, per order.

To the Honourable the Committee of Safety.

P. S. We are sensibly concerned for the expense of powder, as a great consumption by cannon may be ruinous on our side. We think it proper to inform you that, exclusive of thirty-six half barrels powder received from the Governour and Council of Connecticut, there is only in the magazine twenty-seven half barrels, and can be no more draughted from the Towns, without exposing them more than they will consent to be.

MACHIAS COMMITTEE TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Machias, June 17, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Since the express left this, by whom we transmitted an account of the taking of the Margaretta, one of the King's tenders, we have discovered, upon examining the papers, that both of Capt. Jones's sloops, of about eighty tons each, were in the King's service; and as the people are now obliged to provide for their own safety in the best manner possible, the Committee of Safety have resolved, with the utmost expedition, to arm one of said sloops, and to act on the defensive. We are deeply sensible of our own weakness and danger, and with becoming deference we once more apply to your Honours for advice and support, if we are judged worthy of your notice. Will not a commission be necessary for those who take the lead in this affair?

We are, gentlemen, very respectfully, &c.

JAMES LYON, Chairman.

To the Honourable Congress of the Massachusetts-Bay.

Account of an Engagement at CHARLESTOWN, between about three thousand of the King's Regular Forces, and about half that number of Provincials, on SATURDAY, the 17th of JUNE, 1775.

On Friday night, June the sixteenth, fifteen hundred of the Provincials went to Bunker's Hill in order to intrench there, and continued intrenching till Saturday at ten o'clock, when two thousand Regulars marched out of Boston, landed in Charlestown, and, plundering it of all its valuable effects, set fire to it in ten different places at once; then dividing their Army, one part of it marched up in the front of the Provincials' intrenchment, and began to attack the Provincials at long shot; the other part of the Army marched round the Town of Charlestown under cover of the smoke occasioned by the Town. The Provincial sentries discovered the Regulars marching upon their left wing. Upon notice of this given by the sentry to the Connecticut forces posted on that wing, Captain Nolton, of Ashford, with four hundred of said forces, immediately repaired to and pulled up a post and rail fence, and carrying the posts and rails to another fence, put them together for a breastwork. Capt. Nolton gave orders to the men not to fire till the enemy had got within fifteen rods, and then not till the word was given. At the word being given the enemy fell surprisingly. It was thought, by spectators who stood at a distance, that our men did great execution. The action continued about two hours, when the Regulars on the right wing were put into confusion and gave way. The Connecticut Troops closely pursued them, and were on the point of pushing their bayonets, when orders were received from General Pomeroy for those who had been in action two hours to fall back, and their places to be supplied by fresh forces. These orders being mistaken for a direction to retreat, our Troops on the right wing began a general retreat, which was handed to the left, the principal place of action, where Captains Nolton, Chester, Clarke, and Putnam, had forced the enemy to give way and retire before them for some considerable distance; and being warmly pursuing the enemy, were with difficulty persuaded to retire; but the right wing, by mistaking the orders, having already retired, the left, to avoid being encircled, were obliged to retreat; and, with the main body, they retreated with precipitation across the causeway to Winter Hill, in which they were exposed to the fire of the enemy from their shipping and floating batteries.

We sustained our principal loss in passing the causeway. The enemy pursued our Troops to Winter Hill, where the Provincials, being re-enforced by General Putnam, renewed the battle with great spirit, repulsed the enemy with great slaughter, and pursued them till they got under cover of their cannon from the shipping, when the enemy retreated to Bunker's Hill, and the Provincials to Winter Hill, where, after intrenching and erecting batteries, they, on Monday, began to fire upon the Regulars on Bunker's Hill, and on the ships and the floating batteries in the harbour, when the express came away. The number of Provincials killed is between forty and seventy; one hundred and forty wounded; of the Connecticut Troops sixteen were killed; no officer among them was either killed or wounded, except Lieutenant Grosvenor, who is wounded in the hand; a Colonel or Lieutenant-Colonel of the New-Hampshire forces among the dead. It is also said that Doctor Warren is undoubtedly among the slain. The Provincials lost three iron six-pounders, some intrenching tools, and knapsacks.

The number of Regulars that first attacked the Provincials on Bunker's Hill was not less than two thousand. The number of Provincials was only fifteen hundred, who, it is supposed, would soon have gained a complete victory, had it not been for the unhappy mistake already mentioned. The Regulars were afterwards re-enforced with a thousand men. It is uncertain how great a number of the enemy were killed or wounded; but it was supposed by spectators who saw the whole action, that there could not be less than four or five hundred killed. Mr. Gardner, who got out of Boston on Sunday evening, says that there were five hundred wounded men brought into that place the morning before he came out.

This account was taken from Captain Elijah Hide, of Lebanon, who was a spectator on Winter Hill during the whole action.

GOVERNOUR WENTWORTH TO THEODORE ATKINSON.

Castle William and Mary, June 17, 1775.

DEAR SIR: Captain Barkley has this morning seized the Sloop Kingfisher, Jonathan Eaton, master, laden with thirteen hogsheads and three tierces of molasses, bound from Newbury to Piscataqua, for breach of Acts of Trade. This sloop run into Little Harbour and unloaded eight casks into a gondola, without entering or reporting at the Custom-House. Captain Barkley sends information to the Custom-House, and directions to have the vessel forthwith libelled in the Court of Vice-Admiralty. This is not, therefore, any stoppage upon his general orders relative to provision vessels, &c., but would have taken place any time heretofore. I therefore hope it will be so considered, and occasion no disturbance in Town.

We shall rejoice exceedingly to see you in this our pleasant retirement, where we enjoy a good air, and have some safety from unseasonable attacks.

J. WENTWORTH.

Honourable Theodore Atkinson, Esq., Portsmouth.

JOHN HANCOCK, PRESIDENT, TO ELBRIDGE GERRY.

Philadelphia, Sunday Morning, June 18, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I have but a moment's time left to tell you that your order for the duck, &c., cannot be complied with, there being not enough here to make it worth while to think of sending, and indeed they are in want of the same article here. I cannot inform you of the doings of Congress in general, being under an injunction; but I am thus far indulged to mention, but by no means to be put in the newspapers at present, that Colonel Washington is appointed Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Army. I shall sign his commission to-morrow, and he will depart in a few days. He is a fine man. You will judge of the propriety of the mode of his reception. Ten Companies of fine Riflemen from this Province, Maryland, and Virginia, are ordered to proceed immediately to your Army; these are clever fellows. The Committee of the whole Congress have agreed upon a report for the immediate emission of two millions of dollars upon the faith of the Continent. Remember me to Mr. Gill, Pitts, Cooper, and all friends. Adieu; I am almost worn out.

I am your real friend,
Mr. Gerry, Watertown.

JOHN HANCOCK.

JOHN ADAMS TO ELBRIDGE GERRY.

Philadelphia, June 18, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I have at last obtained liberty, by a vote of Congress, to acquaint my friends with a few of the things that have been done.

The Congress have voted, or rather a Committee of the whole House have unanimously agreed, that the sum of two million dollars be issued in bills of credit, for the redemption of which, in a certain number of years, twelve Colonies have unanimously pledged themselves.

The Congress has likewise resolved that fifteen thousand men shall be supported at the expense of the Continent, (ten thousand at Massachusetts, and five thousand at New-York;) and that ten Companies of Riflemen be sent immediately—six from Pennsylvania, two from Maryland, and two from Virginia—consisting of sixty-eight privates in each company, to join our Army at Boston. These are said to be all exquisite marksmen, and by means of the excellence of their firelocks, as well as their skill in the use of them, to send sure destruction to great distances.

Gen. Washington is chosen Commander-in-Chief; Gen. Ward the first Major-General; and General Lee the second, (the last has not yet accepted,) and Major Gates Adjutant-General. Lee and Gates are experienced officers. We have proceeded no further as yet.

I have never, in all my lifetime, suffered more anxiety than in the conduct of this business. The choice of officers, and their pay, have given me great distress. Lee and Gates are officers of such great experience and confessed abilities, that I thought their advice, in a council of officers, might be of great advantage to us; but the natural prejudices, and virtuous attachment of our countrymen to their own officers, made me apprehensive of difficulties. But, considering the earnest desire of General Washington to have the assistance of these officers, the extreme attachment of many of our best friends in the Southern Colonies to them, the reputation they would give to our arms in Europe, and especially with the Ministerial Generals and Army in Boston, as well as the real American merit of them both, I could not withhold my vote from either.

The pay which has been voted to all the officers which the Continental Congress intends to choose, is so large, that I fear our people will think it extravagant and be uneasy. Mr. Adams, Mr. Paine, and myself, used our utmost endeavours to reduce it, but in vain.

Those ideas of equality, which are so agreeable to us natives of New-England, are very disagreeable to many gentlemen in the other Colonies. They had a great opinion of the high importance of a Continental General, and were determined to place him in an elevated point of light. They think the Massachusetts establishment too high for the privates, and too low for the officers, and they would have their own way.

I hope the utmost politeness and respect will be shown to these officers on their arrival. The whole Army, I think, should be drawn up upon the occasion, and all the pride, pomp, and circumstance of glorious war displayed; no powder burned, however.

There is something charming to me in the conduct of Washington. A gentleman of one of the first fortunes upon the Continent, leaving his delicious retirement, his family and friends, sacrificing his ease, and hazarding all in the cause of his Country! His views are noble and disinterested. He declared when he accepted the mighty trust, that he would lay before us an exact account of his expenses, and not accept a shilling for pay. The express waits.

Adieu.

JOHN ADAMS.

Mr. Gerry, Watertown.

GENERAL WOOSTER TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Greenwich, June 18, 1775.

SIR: I have just received a letter from the Provincial Congress at New-York, a copy of which I enclose and send you by express, who will also proceed to the Provincial Camp with another to General Ward. Perhaps your Honour will now think best to order the troops under my command eastward instead of westward.

I am, in haste, your Honour's most obedient humble servant,

DAVID WOOSTER, Major-General.

To the Honourable Jonathan Trumbull, Esquire.

NEW-YORK CONGRESS TO GENERAL WOOSTER.

Provincial Congress, New-York, June 17, 1775.

SIR: Being well informed that four Regiments, containing near three thousand effective men, were sailed in transports for this City, we take the liberty to request the assistance of those brave sons of freedom who are under your command. We are this instant further informed, that the Mercury, ship-of-war, was cruising upon our coast, and is now at Sandy-Hook, to order those transports to Boston immediately, and did, on Tuesday last, thirty leagues to the southeast of the Hook, deliver her orders to the Old Spy, man-of-war, now a transport, with part of the Forty-Fourth Regiment on board, which immediately altered her course. From hence we conclude that a very capital stroke is meditated against our brethren of the Massachusetts-Bay. You best can determine, Sir, whether it is proper, on this occasion, for the forces under your command to march westward. But we are led to believe that it is of more important consequence to secure the several passes, with which nature hath bounteously fortified the eastern country, that if some unexpected chance of war should prove fatal to us in the first contest, the enemy may, by such means, receive a double check in his career of vengeance. We beg you to transmit this intelligence to the Provincial Camp with the utmost despatch. We are, Sir, your most humble servants,

By order of the Provincial Congress:

PETER V. B. LIVINGSTON, President.

To Major-General Wooster, Greenwich.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM AN OFFICER OF RANK TO A GENTLEMAN IN LONDON, DATED BOSTON, JUNE 18, 1775.

We left Cork early in April, and after a very tedious and disagreeable passage of seven weeks, arrived here on the sixteenth day of this month. On our landing, we found every thing in the utmost confusion; partly arising from the murmurs of the soldiery; the difference of opinion among the superiour officers; the want of fresh provisions; the general unhealthiness of the troops; and, above all, the misery of the wretched inhabitants, destitute of food, raiment, or property. Whether it was an aggregate of all these, or a weakness arising from a sea-sickness, which commenced at the cove of Cork, and only left me on my landing, I will not pretend to say, but I have been totally confined to my room since last Saturday. Yesterday morning the troops were ordered under arms at three o'clock, on a boat being sent from one of the ships-of-war to acquaint us that the Provincials were raising works in order to besiege us, and put us between cross fires. Feeble as I was, I arose and dressed myself, and went down to the Head-Quarters to offer my service. There were two reasons, however, which prevented their acceptance; one was the state of my health, the other, that the Regiment I belonged to was not ordered out. The troops destined for that service were landed on the Charles-town side, between eight and nine o'clock; but on account of the number of the Provincials, the troops did not begin the attack for a considerable time. In the prodigious confusion this place is now in, all I can tell now is, that the troops behaved with the most unexampled bravery; and after an engagement of nearly five hours, we forced the Provincials from their posts, redoubts, and intrenchments, one by one. This victory has cost us very dear, indeed, as we have lost some of the best officers in the service, and a great number of private men. Nor do I see that we enjoy one solid benefit in return, or are likely to reap from it any one advantage whatever. We have, indeed, learned one melancholy truth, which is, that the Americans, if they were equally well commanded, are full as good soldiers as ours; and as it is, are very little inferior to us, even in discipline and steadiness of countenance. This sudden, unexpected affair, has had, however, one good effect upon me, for I find myself much better.

P. S. Since I wrote the above, I fell into a conversation with a gentleman who was present in both actions, and who told me that the King's Troops must have been totally destroyed in each, had the Provincials known their own strength, particularly on the former's return from Lexington to Boston, on the 19th of April.*

GENERAL THOMAS TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Roxbury Camp, June 18, 1775.

SIR: For the well ordering and regulating a Camp, there are some officers necessary that I find no establishment for, which, I suppose, was left by the former Congress for an after consideration; two, in particular, that I find very necessary, viz: an Adjutant and Quartermaster-General, the latter of which may make a great saving to the Province, as he would have the particular charge and control of all the camp utensils, inspection of quarters, &c., &c., which he would be accountable for. It is an office of great importance in many respects. Upon this matter being recommended to the Honourable Congress, I make no doubt they will be sensible of the utility of such officers. I am, Sir, with the greatest esteem, your most obedient servant,

* LONDON, July 27, 1775.—The event of the Boston campaign may now be easily guessed. At first, it seemed to turn upon the question, whether the Colony irregulars would stand the phalanxes of Regular Troops? That has been proved too clearly to be denied. It is now a question, which side will soonest be destroyed, and whether a victory to the Regulars, in which they lost one thousand men, and killed two hundred of the Provincials, is not the species of victory which will soon have all the effects of the severest defeat?

JOHN THOMAS.

MASSACHUSETTS COMMITTEE OF SUPPLIES TO COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Supply Chamber, Watertown, June 18, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We were handed an express from you to the several Towns, wherein you desire them to raise the Militia, which was not directed to us for any assistance; but Mr. Gill desired us verbally, as by your order, to furnish horses for the purpose, and despatch orders; which was not in our power, as we have no horses for our own necessary expresses; and as we apprehend its being wholly out of our department, it would not have that influence which it might have been expected from the Committee of Safety, whose department only it will be considered, if we had any spare horses to comply with such desire. We therefore hope, gentlemen, you will not depend upon us, however disposed we may be to assist for the publick safety, as it is out of our power. Your most humble servants,

DAVID CHEEVER, per order.

To the Committee of Safety.

CIRCULAR TO THE SEVERAL TOWNS IN MASSACHUSETTS.

Chamber of Supplies, Watertown, June 18, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The welfare of our Country again induces us to urge your exertions in sending to the magazine in this place, what can be procured of the following articles, viz: salt pork, beans, peas, vinegar, and blankets; the prices whereof, as well as the carting, shall be allowed according to the custom of your place, which we desire you to certify. It is of the utmost importance that the Army should be supplied agreeably to the Resolve of the Congress, more especially with these articles; the four first of which are necessary for the subsistence as well as the health of the men, and the others for their comfort. The occasion of the deficiency in blankets is mostly owing to a number of men enlisted from Boston, and other Towns which have been vacated, and they all must be procured immediately, or our worthy countrymen will suffer.

As the country affords every thing in plenty necessary to subsist the Army, and we cannot, at present, obtain many things but by your assistance, we assure ourselves that you will act your parts as worthily as you have done, and hope that the event of all our exertions will be the salvation of our Country.

DAVID CHEEVER,

Per order of Comm. of Supplies.

To the Selectmen and Committee of Correspondence of the Town of COLONEL BARTLETT TO GENERAL FOLSOM.

Kingston, June 18, 1775.

SIR: This moment one Mr. Moreton has come express from Cambridge, and has brought a letter from the Continental to our Congress, which I shall send to the President. He came from thence last evening; has rode all night, and informs that the Regulars came out of Boston yesterday to Charlestown, and had begun an engagement; that he is well assured that Charlestown is burnt, and that our people were flocking down all last night to the Army. I shall send to the President to be at Exeter to-morrow morning. Desire that the rest of the Committee be notified. Your prudence will direct you about marching our men. In great haste I am, &c.

JOSIAH BARTLETT.

To General Folsom.

Copy sent to Doctor Thompson, Captain Whipple, Captain Moulton, Colonel McDuffee, and Committee of Safety, Newburyport.

Orders sent to Major Cilley, Captain Elkins, Captain

Rowe, Captain Clough, Captain Adams, Captain Titcomb, Captain Gilman, Captain Wentworth, Captain Tilton, and Captain Norriss, to march their men without loss of time to Cambridge, to join the Army.

PRINCE EDWARD COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee for the County of Prince Edward, at the Court-House, June 19, 1775:

Present: Colonel John Nash, Jun., Chairman for the day; John Morton, Robert Lawson, William Booker, Francis Watkins, Obadiah Woodson, Thomas Flournoy, James Allen, Senior, and Thomas Haskins, Committeemen.

The Committee, taking under their consideration his Excellency Lord Dunmore's conduct in the removal of the Powder from the publick magazine in the City of Williamsburgh, after the most mature deliberation, came to the following Resolutions:

1. That, for ourselves and our constituents, we do hereby publicly avow our unfeigned attachment and affectionate loyalty to the sacred person of our most gracious King, George the Third, and that we ardently pray for nothing more than a speedy pacification between Great Britain and her American Colonies; upon permanent, constitutional, and generous principles, as the only probable means of preserving to us our inherent, legal, and just rights and privileges—rights and privileges which His Majesty's subjects of Great Britain have ever laid claim to, and have received the ample enjoyment of; and deprived of which inestimable blessings, the Americans must, of necessity, cease to be a free, happy, and flourishing people.

2. Under these sentiments, and when exerting every human effort to effect a reconciliation between us and the Parent State, upon the grounds aforesaid, we can but lament that his Excellency Lord Dunmore, as a representative of our Sovereign here, whose duty it was to have given a fair and impartial state to the Ministry of the disposition of the people committed to his care and government, should, on the contrary, delight, by disingenuous, illiberal, and viciously subtle representations, to keep up the unhappy ferment between us and them; the truth of which charge against his Lordship appears but too clearly in his Letter to the Earl of Dartmouth, on the 24th of December last, as published in the different Gazettes on this Continent; the authority of which said Letter his Lordship (as far as we know) has never, as yet, thought proper to disavow.

3. That his Lordship's conduct in the removal of the Powder from the publick magazine in the City of Williamsburgh, under the cover of the night, in the manner it appears to have been done, at that critical juncture of affairs, was as despotick, cruel, and unwarrantable, as his verbal answer to the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common Council of Williamsburgh, was unmanly, evasive, and affrontive; and that, in conjunction with some other parts of his conduct, it was a clear declaration of his inimical and hostile designs against this Country; and thereby he has forfeited all claim to the further confidence and respect of the good people thereof.

4. We, therefore, under the above circumstances, and having before us the proceedings of Captain Patrick Henry, do approve of the same, and unanimously vote him, and the volunteers under his command, our cordial thanks, for their firm, prudent, and spirited conduct, in obtaining an equivalent for the Powder so unjustly removed out of the publick magazine.

Ordered, That the Clerk do transmit a copy hereof to Messrs. Dixon and Hunter, and entreat them to publish the same in their Gazette. BEN. LAWSON, Clerk.

FREDERICK COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

Committee Chamber, Frederick County, June 19, 1775.

The late conduct of Patrick Henry, Esq., relative to his making reprisals from the King's Receiver-General, for the Powder so clandestinely taken from the Colony Magazine, being laid before this Committee, they took the same into consideration; when it was Resolved unanimously, That an express be immediately despatched to Williamsburgh, with the following Address to the Printer:

"SIR: We should blush to be thus late in our commendations of, and thanks to Patrick Henry, Esquire, for his patriotick and spirited behaviour in making reprisals for the powder so unconstitutionally (not to use a term more harsh, which perhaps it deserves) taken from the publick magazine, could we have entertained a thought that any part of the Colony would have condemned a measure calculated for the benefit of the whole; but as we are informed this is the case, we beg leave, through the channel of your paper, to assure that gentleman, that we did from the first, and still do, most cordially approve and commend his conduct in that affair. The good people of this County will never fail to approve and support him to the utmost of their powers in every action derived from so rich a source as the love of his Country.

"We heartily thank him for stepping forth, to convince the tools of despotism that freeborn men are not to be intimidated by any form of danger, to submit to the arbitrary acts of their rulers; and hope he knows us better than to suppose any proclaimed distinctions, respecting the property of the powder, can ever make us condemn actions so worthily achieved, or forsake the achievers; and more fully to express our sentiments, we cannot but wish he had proceeded to secure what arms and ammunition might remain after the plunder of the magazine."

An Address from the Council, to the good people of this Colony, being laid before the Committee, it was, after mature deliberation,

Resolved unanimously, That the following be transmitted to the publick Printer, in answer thereto:

"The Committee considering the very extraordinary powers assumed and exercised by the Council of this Colony, are induced the more attentively to investigate their conduct on this alarming crisis, and to express their abhorrence and detestation of having the generous struggles for liberty branded with the opprobrious terms of licentious and ungovernable. The peace and good order of the community in their County (and they have been informed it is general through the Colony) they will venture to say has been preserved inviolate, and the people as governable as in times of the most profound tranquillity, unless frequent meetings to perfect themselves in military exercises, and a steady resolution to oppose to the last extremity all invaders of their just rights and liberties, be deemed a licentious and ungovernable spirit. Then, indeed, they must glory that such a spirit has gone forth; and pledge their faith to their countrymen that nothing but death shall rob them of their part of it.

"This Committee has seriously considered, according to the recommendation of the Council, the probable consequences of the conduct which hath been lately pursued; and are of opinion it is the only method to obtain a redress of their grievances. Every lenient measure, they think, has already been tried, without success, (a circumstance with which their Honours would seem to be unacquainted,) and they have nothing left but tamely to submit, or resolutely oppose; of which two they hope the latter will be the choice of every American.

"This Committee would have wished not to doubt the integrity of the Council, nor to make any odious distinction from the important place they hold in the state; but when such odious epithets as licentious and ungovernable are made use of to stigmatise men labouring in the glorious cause of liberty, they must say, in their opinion, the conduct of a man to whom they hold themselves and the whole Colony much obliged for his patriotick behaviour, they conceive it their duty to speak their minds without disguise to any man, or set of men, under Heaven."

A copy from the Minutes:

WILLIAM HETH, Clerk.

QUEEN ANNE COUNTY (MARYLAND) COMMITTEE.

Queen Anne's County, June 19, 1775.

Whereas, the business of this Committee has been, and is likely to be rendered very tedious and troublesome, by inquiries into the circumstances of goods which have been, and may be imported into this County from other Provinces and Counties, as well with respect to the time of their importation into America, as to the prime cost thereof.

Resolved, That we will not, and that no person of this County ought to deal with any merchant, or other vender of goods hereafter to be brought within this County, until the said merchant or vender shall have produced to some one or more of the Committee of this County a certificate from the Chairman of the Committee of the place from whence the said goods shall be brought, that they have been imported into America agreeable to the rules of the Continental Congress, and also an invoice of the prime cost of such goods, attested by the Chairman aforesaid, or some other disinterested member of that Committee, in order that this Committee may be enabled to procure a conformity to a resolve of the Provincial Convention respecting the advance on goods.

By order of the Committee:

EDWARD DOWNES, JUN., Clerk.

BROOK WATSON TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York, June 19, 1775.

DEAR SIR: It is my intention speedily to set forward on my journey to Quebeck by the way of Lakes George and Champlain, and to take with me Joseph Maria Tonnum-cour, and Louis Perras, two young Canadians returning to their parents, the former from England, the latter from this City, where they have some time resided for the benefit of education, also Daniel McKinsie my servant; hence I pray you to procure for me such letters as may facilitate my journey; and I take leave to assure you, upon my honour, that I will not take, or suffer those who accompany me to take, any letters but such as I know to be merely upon commercial or family subjects, and which I will most readily submit to the inspection of the Provincial Congress, if it shall be deemed necessary.

The only letters in my possession which have the appearance of containing political matters, are some addressed to Lord Pitt, and others to General Carleton's lady; the former are from Lord Chatham, and came to me accompanied by the enclosed note from his Lordship. The latter are from Lady Maria Carleton's mother and sisters on mere family concerns.

With great respect and regard, I am, Sir, your faithful humble servant,

BROOK WATSON.

To P. V. B. Livingston, Esq., President of the Provincial Congress, New-York.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Lebanon, June 19, 1775.

SIR: Your favour of the 29th May, have received, and note the contents. Am also favoured with yours of the 6th instant, enclosing the resolution of the Continental Congress of the 31st May; with the lists of articles ordered to be sent to Crown Point and Ticonderoga, and the persons employed in that service. We hope soon to hear you are well supplied with the necessary article of powder, and are able to furnish others with it. As to the supplies of our Troops, the necessary provisions must be furnished from us if not done by you. On application for fresh provisions have ordered a drove of fat cattle to move forward to furnish them with fresh beef for the present. You have enclosed an extract of our act of Assembly directing the supplies of our Troops. Am also to acknowledge your favour of the 10th instant, wherein you mention the forwarding a quantity of powder, which I am advised is arrived at Stamford. Shall, agreeable to your desire, immediately forward from hence the like quantity (six hundred and fifty-five weight) to the camp at Cambridge.

The proceedings of your Provincial Congress of the 14th instant, enclosing the intelligence given them by Captain Thompson, came safe to hand, a copy of which intelligence have forwarded to the camp at Cambridge; and in compliance with your request to Major-General Wooster, have ordered seventeen hundred men under his command to march immediately within five miles of the City of New-York, subjected to the orders of the Continental Congress and Provincial Congress in New-York.

Have appointed Captain Elisha Phelps commissary, to receive at Albany and forward the supplies of provisions for the forces on Lake Champlain, agreeable to a Resolve of the Continental Congress the first instant. This gentleman was one of the first in taking possession of those fortresses, and doubt not he will conduct with prudence and to good satisfaction; have directed him to correspond with Colonel Hinman, to employ persons already engaged, especially George Palmer, Esq., and in such manner as to give no uneasiness to our friends in Albany.

I am, with great truth and regard, Sir, your obedient and most humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

To the Honourable P. V. B. Livingston, Esq., President of the Provincial Congress at New-York.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Lebanon, June 19, 1775, 7 o'clock, A. M.

SIR: Enclosed are copies of notes taken by the Provincial Congress at New-York, of the intelligence brought by Captain Thomson of the embarkation of four Regiments from Ireland for New-York; in consequence whereof Major General Wooster is requested by that Congress to march immediately within five miles of the City; and the latter informs me that Capt. Sears informed him that the people of New-York intend to quarter our Troops in the City.

The military stores which were at Turtle-Bay have fallen into the hands of General Wooster, consisting of too many articles to be enumerated: among which is about five hundred good horse harnesses; a very considerable number of thirteen and ten inch carcasses; stinkpots, all well charged; a very great plenty of grape shot; cannon balls, from twenty-four pounders down to three, &c., &c.

The Provincial Congress of New-York forwarded for the use of your camp at Cambridge, six hundred and sixty-five pounds of powder, which came as far as Stamford. They desired the same quantity might be forwarded from our eastern magazine. The Governour with his Council here agreed on Saturday last to send from Norwich, immediately after receiving your letter of Mr. Gerry, of 17th June, seven and eight o'clock P. M. I sent to Norwich direction to forward the same night and day. The remainder of Colonel Parsons's Regiment were ordered to march forthwith to join the rest at camp, with one pound of powder, three pounds of ball, and six flints each. I have sent to hasten them.

I have this moment received advice from Col. Arnold, at Crown Point, of 13th inst., that the Indians of the Caughnawaga Tribe are determined not to assist the King's Troops, and have passed a law that the first of their tribe who takes up arms against us shall be put to death, which, he says, is confirmed by five chiefs of that tribe. These, with their families, press hard for our Army to march into Canada, as they are much disgusted with the regular troops. Three Indians sent by him to Canada, it seems, have been much abused by the regulars, and are returned, and confirm that account. It is also confirmed, he says, by a gentleman of probity at Montreal; and that numbers of the Canadians have expected our Army there, and are impatient of our delay, being determined to join us as soon as sufficient force appears to support them; that Governour Carleton by every art can raise no more than twenty Canadians of the noblesse; that he threatens to burn Montreal if the merchants will not defend the City in case of an attack; that he has only five hundred and fifty effective men, and thinks it would be very easy to possess ourselves of the whole country.

Colonel Hinman writes that he is in quiet possession of Ticonderoga, and does not find that there are any enemies about him.

I am, with great truth and regard, gentlemen, your obedient humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

To the Honourable Joseph Warren, President of the Provincial Congress, Watertown.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO COLONEL BENEDICT ARNOLD.

Lebanon, June 19, 1775.

SIR: Yours of the 13th instant came to hand this day. Am much obliged to you for the great care you have taken to find out the disposition of the Canadians and Indian Tribes relative to the present dispute between Great Bri- tain and the Colonies; and gives me great pleasure to find they appear so friendly. I trust nothing will be wanting on your part to continue the same. As to the plan proposed for marching forces into Canada, you say the same is laid before the Continental Congress, and if any thing of that plan takes place, it will be with great propriety first moved by them. At present the Army at Boston, and the prospect of one arriving at New-York, forbids us thinking of any expedition to Canada, though the great advantage you propose by such an acquisition appears very evident if it could be effected, consistent with other plans already begun. I remain yours to serve,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

Colonel Benedict Arnold, at Crown Point.

PROVIDENCE (RHODE-ISLAND) TOWN-MEETING.

At a meeting held by adjournment, in Providence, on the 19th day of June, 1775:

The Hon. NICHOLAS COOKE, Esq., Moderator.

Whereas, Mr. Paul Allen has made up the town stock of powder into Cartridges, agreeable to a vote of the Town on the 15th May last; and whereas the Captains of the several Companies have not received the said Cartridges, in order to deliver the same to the inhabitants: It is now therefore Voted, That Mr. Paul Allen be desired to deliver out said Cartridges to such of the inhabitants as he may think will make a proper use of them; and that he take a receipt from every person for so many of said Cartridges as he shall receive, promising to return the same on demand, (if not used in the Colony's service,) at any time when the Town may order a review; or in case any of said Cartridges shall be missing when called for, to pay to the Committee who may be appointed to make said review, nine pence, lawful money, for every Cartridge which shall be so missing, unless they have been used in the publick defence; the said forfeiture of nine pence for every Cartridge missing, if any, to be appropriated to purchase Ammunition for the Town; and that no one person receive more than seventeen Cartridges to every fire-arm he may have fit for use.

Newport, Rhode-Island, June 19, 1775.

Last Thursday the 15th instant, one of the Providence packets, which had been arbitrarily seized by, and detained as a tender to the men-of-war in this harbour, was sent up the Bay, it is supposed to take a vessel which it was reported had gone up the back side of Conanicut; but unluckily she met with two armed vessels which fired upon her so warmly that she was obliged to turn tail; but not being able to get off, the people stuck her ashore on the north end of Conanicut, and left her; she was immediately got off, and carried away, most probably to be delivered to her proper owner. This happened just before sunset.

PROCLAMATION BY GOVERNOUR GAGE.

By the Governour—A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas, notwithstanding the repeated assurance of the Selectmen and others, that all the inhabitants of the Town of Boston had, bona fide, delivered their Fire-Arms unto the persons appointed to receive them, though I had advices at the same time of the contrary; and whereas I have had since full proof that many have been perfidious in this respect, and have secreted great numbers:

I have thought fit to issue this Proclamation, to require of those who have yet Fire-Arms in their possession immediately to surrender them at the Court-House to such persons as shall be authorized to receive them; and hereby to declare that all persons in whose possession any Fire-Arms may hereafter be found, will be deemed enemies to His Majesty's Government.

Given at Boston, the nineteenth day of June, 1775, in the fifteenth year of the reign of our Sovereign Lord, George the Third, by the grace of God, of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c.

THOMAS GAGE,

By his Excellency's command:

THOMAS FLUCKER, Secretary.

GENERAL WARD TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Head-Quarters, June 19, 1775.

SIR: I must earnestly entreat the Congress to furnish the train of artillery with a Company of Artificers immediately, as the Army suffers greatly for want of them. This ought to have been one of the first establishments, and I hope the Congress will not delay the matter a day longer.

I am, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD.

To the Honourable the President of the Provincial Congress, at Watertown.

JOSEPH WARD TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Cambridge, June 19, 1775.

SIR: The honourable Congress are hereby informed, that in the late action many of the soldiers lost their blankets and clothes; they are now in a very suffering condition on that account, and must, in order to fit them for duty, be immediately supplied, especially with blankets; and many that were not in the action are destitute of blankets. It is requested that the Troops may be supplied also with a large number of spears or lances for defending the breastworks. In the late action spears might have saved the intrenchment. By order of the General:

JOSEPH WARD, Secretary.

To the Hon. President of the Congress, at Watertown.

COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

In Committee of Safety, Cambridge, June 19, 1775.

It being very desirous to obtain the most certain accounts of the names and places of abode of the persons who have been killed or wounded in the battle of Lexington, so called, on the nineteenth of April past, and at any time since; and also of all such as may be killed or wounded at any future time during the present unnatural contest between Great Britain and the American Colonies, in order to transmit to future generations the names of such who have gloriously suffered in the cause of liberty and their Country; to effect which,

Resolved, That it be recommended to the honourable Congress to order that the Selectmen of the several Towns and Districts in this Colony transmit, from time to time, to this or some future Congress or House of Representatives, the names and additions of all such persons who have been, or may be killed or wounded as above, within their respective Towns and Districts, and that they severally cause the same to be fairly entered upon their Town and District books.

BENJAMIN WHITE, Chairman.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress, Watertown.

In Provincial Congress, June 21, 1775.

Whereas the British Troops, under the command of General Gage, did, on the night preceding the nineteenth of April, 1775, make a sudden excursion from the Town of Boston into the country, with a design to plunder and destroy the property of the inhabitants of this Colony, and deprive them of the means of defence; and did, very early in the morning of said day, first fire upon, kill, and wound several persons, who came suddenly together in the Town of Lexington, being alarmed with the news of the approach of said Troops; in consequence of which, a bloody engagement ensued between the Militia of several adjacent Towns and said Troops, wherein several brave men fell, dying gloriously in the cause of liberty and our Country, and others were wounded:

In order that early and very authentick intelligence may be obtained and transmitted to posterity of the names and places of abode of all such persons as did then, have since, or hereafter shall die, or receive wounds in their Country's cause:

Resolved, That the Selectmen of each Town and District of this Colony be ordered to transmit, from time to time, to this or some future Congress or House of Representatives, the names and titles, or addition, of all such persons who have been or may be killed or wounded, as above, belonging to their respective Towns and Districts; and that they severally cause the same to be fairly entered upon their Town and District books, having previously caused this Resolve to be recorded.

COLONEL JOHN STARK TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE CONGRESS.

Medford, June 19, 1775.

SIR: I embrace this opportunity, by Colonel Holland, to give you some particular information of an engagement or battle, which happened on the seventeenth instant, between the British Troops and the Americans. On the sixteenth instant, at evening, a detachment of about twenty-five hundred men of the Massachusetts forces marched, by the General's order, to make an intrenchment on a hill in Charlestown, called Charlestown Hill, near Boston, where they intrenched that night without interruption, but were attacked on the seventeenth, in the morning, by the shipping in Charlestown River and batteries in Boston, very warmly. Upon which I was required by the General to send a party, consisting of two hundred men, with officers, to their assistance; which order I readily obeyed, and appointed and sent Colonel Wyman commander of the same; and about two o'clock in the afternoon express orders came for the whole of my Regiment to proceed to Charlestown, to oppose the enemy, who were landing on Charlestown Point. Accordingly we proceeded, and the battle soon came on, in which a number of officers belonging to my Regiment were killed, and many privates killed and wounded.

The officers who suffered were, Major McClary, by a cannon-ball; Captain Baldwin and Lieut. Scott, by small-arms. The whole number, including officers, who were killed and missing, fifteen; those who were wounded, forty-five; killed, wounded, and missing, sixty.

By Colonel Read's desire, I transmit the account of the sufferers in his Regiment who were in battle. Killed, three; wounded, twenty-nine; missing, one; killed, wounded, and missing, thirty-three.

But we remain in good spirits as yet, being well satisfied that where we have lost one, they have lost three. I would take it as a favour if the Committee of Safety would immediately recommend to the several Towns and Parishes in the Province of New-Hampshire, the necessity of stopping and sending back all the soldiers belonging to the New-Hampshire forces (stationed at Medford) they may find there from the Army, not having a furlough from the commanding officer.

I am, Sir, with great respect, yours and the Country's, to serve in the common cause, JOHN STARK.

JAMES MCGREGORE TO COMMITTEE OF SAFETY OF NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

Medford, June 19, 1775.

SIR: I arrived here this morning at six o'clock, and the commanding officers of our New-Hampshire Regiments complained that they had a great number of wounded and sick men, and no medicine to do them any service. I immediately went to the Committee of Supplies at Watertown, and informed them of our distressed situation; they informed me that they had no medicines to spare; but upon such a representation as I had made to them being sent, the Government of New-Hampshire gave one of their own chests of medicine, and expect they will replace them as soon as possible. And if there is any more medicines to spare in our Colony than will be judged sufficient for our own use, they would beg you would let them have it, as they expect it will be scarce.

As to finding provision for our men, I spoke with the Committee of Supplies, and they told me that they would not, for the present, let our people suffer for want of provision, but would be glad if we would look out for ourselves as soon as possible. I have not as yet spoken to Mr. Trumbull, and I believe it is hardly worth while, relative to provision, as I think his terms are too high. I shall tarry here while I can hear from you, and hope you will send some one of the Committee of Supplies with cash as soon as it possibly can be ready, as I am sensible it will be saving to any person that goes to Connecticut to have cash with them. I shall do every thing in my power for the comfortable support of our men until I hear from you, which I pray may be as soon as possible.

I am, Sir, with proper regard to the Committee of Safety, your and their humble servant,
JAMES MCGREGORE.

To Colonel Thornton; to be communicated.

Charlestown, South-Carolina, June 20, 1775.

On Saturday evening last, June 17, his Excellency the Right Honourable Lord William Campbell, Governour-in-Chief, &c., of this Province, with his lady and family, arrived here in the Scorpion, man-of-war, from England. His Lordship was saluted on his arrival by the Tamar, man-of-war, by Fort Johnson, and the several Forts in the Town, and about one o'clock the next day his Lordship landed at Champney's wharf, where he was received by several gentlemen, as also by the Grenadier Company under arms; the Regiment of Militia were likewise under arms. From the wharf his Lordship walked in procession, preceded by the Grenadier Company, to the State-House, where his commission was read and published in the Council-Chamber in presence of some of the members of His Majesty's Council, &c.; from whence he returned in the same order to the Exchange, where it was again read; after which his Lordship and the whole company repaired to the State-House, where a genteel entertainment was provided on the occasion.

The General Assembly of this Province, which was to meet here yesterday agreeable to the last adjournment, is prorogued by his Excellency the Governour to Monday the tenth of July next, as per Proclamation.

COMMITTEES OF WILMINGTON DISTRICT, NORTH-CAROLINA.

At a general meeting of the several Committees of the District of Wilmington, held at the Court-House in Wilmington, Tuesday, the 20th June, 1775:

Resolved, That the following Association stand as the Association of this Committee, and that it be recommended to the inhabitants of this District to sign the same as speedily as possible.

THE ASSOCIATION.

The actual commencement of hostilities against the Continent by the British Troops, in the bloody scene on the nineteenth of April last, near Boston; the increase of arbitrary impositions, from a wicked and despotick Ministry; and the dread of instigated insurrections in the Colonies, are causes sufficient to drive an oppressed People to the use of arms: We, therefore, the subscribers of Cumberland County, holding ourselves bound by that most sacred of all obligations, the duty of good citizens towards an injured Country, and thoroughly convinced that under our distressed circumstances we shall be justified before you in resisting force by force; do unite ourselves under every tie of religion and honour, and associate as a band in her defence against every foe; hereby solemnly engaging, that whenever our Continental or Provincial Councils shall decree it necessary, we will go forth and be ready to sacrifice our lives and fortunes to secure her freedom and safety. This obligation to continue in full force until a reconciliation shall take place between Great Britain and America, upon constitutional principles, an event we most ardently desire. And we will hold all those persons inimical to the liberty of the Colonies who shall refuse to subscribe to this Association; and we will in all things follow the advice of our General Committee, respecting the purposes aforesaid, the preservation of peace and good order, and the safety of individual and private property.

ACCOMACK COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee held in Accomack County, on Tuesday, the 20th of June, 1775:

JAMES HENRY, Esq., Chairman.

Whereas the trade carried on in small vessels in any of the rivers or creeks in this County, or goods imported by any of the merchants or traders here from any port or place in America, may be productive of very evil consequences, if not under proper regulations: For remedy whereof,

Resolved unanimously, That every master or owner of a vessel having any goods on board for sale, or any merchant or trader residing here having imported any goods, wares, or merchandise, from any part of America, shall not sell any goods or merchandise, or part with the same in exchange for any commodity whatever, unless they produce a certificate from the Committee of the County from whence they were brought to this Committee, that the same were imported into America agreeable to the terms of the Association of the General Congress.

Ordered, That this Resolution be published in the Virginia Gazette.

JOHN POWELL, Clerk.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE OFFICERS OF THE INDEPENDENT COMPANIES OF FAIRFAX, ETC.

Philadelphia, June 20, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I am now about to bid adieu to the companies under your respective commands, at least for a while. I have launched into a wide and extensive field, too boundless for my abilities, and far, very far, beyond my experience. I am called by the unanimous voice of the Colonies to the command of the Continental Army—an honour I did not aspire to; an honour I was solicitous to avoid, upon a full conviction of my inadequacy to the importance of the service. The partiality of the Congress, however, assisted by a political motive, rendered my reasons unavailing, and I shall to-morrow set out for the camp near Boston.

I have only to beg of you, therefore, before I go, (especially as you did me the honour to put your company under my direction, and know not how soon you may be called upon in Virginia for an exertion of your military skill,) by no means to relax in the discipline of your respective companies. I have the honour to be, &c.

GO. WASHINGTON.

To the Officers of the Independent Companies of Fairfax, Prince William, Fauquier, and Spottsylvania, Va.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO JOHN AUGUSTINE WASHINGTON,

Philadelphia, June 20, 1775.

DEAR BROTHER: I am now to bid adieu to you, and to every kind of domestick ease for a while. I am embarked on a wide ocean, boundless in its prospect, and in which perhaps no safe harbour is to be found. I have been called upon by the unanimous voice of the Colonies to take the command of the Continental Army; an honour I neither sought after nor desired, as I am thoroughly convinced that it requires greater abilities and much more experience than I am master of, to conduct a business so extensive in its nature, and arduous in the execution. But the partiality of the Congress, joined to a political motive, really left me without a choice; and I am now commissioned a General and Commander-in-Chief of all the forces now raised, or to be raised, for the defence of the United Colonies. That I may discharge the trust to the satisfaction of my employers, is my first wish; that I shall aim to do it, there remains little doubt; how far I may succeed is another point: but this I am sure of, that in the worst event I shall have the consolation of knowing, if I act to the best of my judgment, that the blame ought to lodge upon the appointers, not the appointed, as it was by no means a thing of my own seeking, or proceeding from any hint of my friends,

I am at liberty to inform you that the Congress, in Committee, have consented to a Continental currency, and have ordered two millions of dollars to be struck for payment of the Troops and other purposes, and have voted fifteen thousand men as a Continental Army; which number will be augmented, as the strength of the British Troops will be greater than was expected at the time of passing that vote. General Ward, General Lee, General Schuyler, and General Putnam are appointed Major Generals under me. The Brigadier Generals are not yet appointed. Major Gates is made Adjutant-General. I expect to set out to-morrow for Boston, and hope to be joined there in a little time by ten companies of Riflemen from this Province, Maryland and Virginia. For other articles of intelligence I shall refer you to the papers, as the printers are diligent in collecting every thing that is stirring.

I shall hope that my friends will visit and endeavour to keep up the spirits of my wife as much as they can, as my departure will, I know, be a cutting stroke upon her; and on this account alone I have many disagreeable sensations. I hope that you and my sister, although the distance is great, will find so much time this summer as to spend a little of it at Mount Vernon.

MEETING OF COMMITTEE AT BROAD CREEK, DELAWARE.

The new County proposed in the Delaware Government not having yet obtained Representatives in Assembly, have elected a very large Committee of respectable persons to transact all their affairs, to preserve the peace and a constitutional regard to the Sovereign, and to defend and secure the natural, civil, chartered, and sacred rights of the people. This Committee, at a meeting at Broad Creek, June 20, 1775, fifty members being present, came to the following determinations, among many others:

Colonel JOHN DAGWORTHY, Chairman.

That this Assembly, taking into serious consideration the present distressed situation and unparalleled hardships that our brethren at Boston are now suffering in consequence of their determined resolution to support the great cause of liberty, conceive ourselves, and all American free-men, to be bound by all the principles of humanity and justice to prevent them, if possible, from sinking under the hand of ministerial oppression.

That though we had not a legal representation in the Assembly of the three lower Counties on Delaware when they were elected to represent us, yet confiding in the known wisdom, prudence, and abilities of Cesar Rodney, Thomas McKean, and George Read, Esquires, whom our brethren of Newcastle, Kent, and Sussex, have appointed to represent them in the honourable Continental Congress, now sitting at Philadelphia, we hereby do bind ourselves and our constituents, by every thing that is sacred, collectively and separately, to preserve and strictly enforce and carry into execution whatever measures have or may be recommended by them for the relief of our said brethren, and for the preservation of the liberties of America, with as much cheerfulness and zeal as though they had been appointed by us.

And we resolve that any artful or designing person or persons whatsoever, that shall attempt to defeat the purpose of this Association, shall be faithfully painted in their proper colours, and be hung up in the publick prints, or be otherwise stigmatized, and bear that load of odium that such miscreants justly merit.

And further to support the union of the Colonies, on which, under God, our safety depends, we unanimously Resolve, That John Dagworthy, John Jones, John Tennant, John Collins, Simon Kollock, William Holland, Samuel Slosse, Joshua Polk, Clement Bayley, William Polk, John Mitchell, Peter Hubbard, and Elijah Cannon be, and they are hereby appointed a Committee, to meet and correspond with the other Committees of this and the other Governments, and that any seven of them may act.

And whereas disadvantageous conclusions may probably be drawn from the conduct of the people here, with respect to their entering into this Association at this late period, this Committee does with pleasure embrace this opportunity to satisfy our fellow-subjects in general, that our backwardness in this affair has been totally and wholly owing to the fluctuating or unsettled state of the lines or boundaries between the two Governments of Pennsylvania and Maryland, and not from the influence of any Tories among us, or any disregard to the common cause. But as these lines are now happily established, we hope to evince to the world that we have as proper a sense, and as becoming a zeal for the liberties of America, as our fellow-subjects in the other parts of this Government.

A true extract from the Minutes:

SIMON KOLLOCK, Clerk.

Head of Indian River, June 23, 1775.

N. B. In this new County military preparations for self-defence against the bloody attacks of the insatuated British Ministry are carried on with great spirit. It is expected we shall soon have fifteen hundred or more of a well trained militia; and the Committee are endeavouring to obtain the necessary supplies of warlike stores.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER RECEIVED IN LONDON FROM PHILADELPHIA, DATED JUNE 20, 1775.

We hear that the Congress intend to make two proposals, to the following effect:

First. That they will submit to an absolute restriction of their trade for the benefit of Great Britain, upon condition that nothing further shall be required of them, it being in their opinion a more advantageous offer than any other they can make to the Mother Country; or,

Second. That it shall be agreed between Great Britain and the Colonies, that the latter shall raise her full, equal, and just proportion of revenue for the support of the whole Empire, in a similar manner as the assessment is upon Scotland. That if England raises twenty thousand Pounds for every forty thousand Pounds levied on Scotland, so America will bear her share. On this system the Colonies cannot be taxed one farthing, without Great Britain paying also a like proportion. In consideration of this, all restraints on the American trade to be taken off.

One of these proposals must be accepted, or arms will be the alternative. Colonel Washington, on his appointment to be Commander-in-Chief, refused any stipulated salary, saying, he would not receive one farthing more than his expenses. One thousand Riflemen are raised by order of the Congress; Pennsylvania sends four hundred, Maryland two hundred, and Virginia four hundred. Colonel Ward, of New-England, is second in command, and Gates (formerly a Major in His Majesty's service) is Adjutant-General.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO A GENTLEMAN IN LONDON, DATED PHILADELPHIA, JUNE 20, 1775.

However anxious the Americans are to preserve their allegiance sacred and inviolate, they are also as solicitous and determined to submit to no infringement on their constitutional rights; and for this reason solely, they have taken arms to oppose the despotick system of an infamous Administration, and the Grand Congress in this City are accordingly making every necessary preparation to act with vigour. As the scene of action is at present far removed from hence, it is thought they will shortly adjourn to, or depute a Council to sit at Hartford, in Connecticut.

They have passed a vote to strike off two millions of dollars, (seven shillings and six pence, our currency,) to answer present exigencies. Colonel George Washington, a Delegate from Virginia, is, at the particular request of the people in New-England, and with the unanimous consent of the Congress, appointed Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Forces, with a handsome salary per annum. The commission he received with pleasure, but positively refused any pay, requiring only a reimbursement of his actual expenses. Colonel Ward (who, I find, is universally esteemed, and well known to be a good officer) is second in command, and Mr. Gates (formerly a Major in the King's service) is Adjutant-General. Colonel Lee would not have refused a command, but the Congress did not choose to trust him, on account of his professing a personal dislike to the King; but I think it is probable, if there should be no hopes of accommodation, that his military knowledge will induce them to give him a commission.

The Captains are allowed twenty dollars per month; Lieutenants and Ensigns, thirteen; Non-Commissioned Officers, eight; Privates, six.

Although the petition presented to His Majesty last fall was treated with contempt, nevertheless the Congress have determined to try one more, which they are now preparing, and I suppose will be forwarded as soon as its importance will permit. It is confessedly said, and I have reason to think the report is well founded, that they intend to make two proposals to the following effect:

First. They will submit to a parliamentary restriction of their trade, but to no commercial duties, for the purpose of raising a revenue. In consideration of which, to be totally exempt from all taxation by the British Legislature.

It is thought by them that the absolute control of their trade would prove more beneficial to Britain than any other mode of contribution; but if nothing else than a revenue will please, they will,

Secondly, Consent and agree, that whenever a grant is made by the people in England and Scotland, they will also give a full, equal, and just proportion towards the support of the whole Empire, upon condition of a free and uninterrupted trade, as enjoyed by the subjects in Britain.

One of these proposals must be considered of as a groundwork for an accommodation, or arms will be the alternative. It is generally thought that the Congress will concur with the act of Parliament, and stop all exports from and after the 20th of July. I am much easier than when I last wrote to you about the article of ammunition, being now satisfied by the plan adopted that we shall have full sufficient to act offensively.

The Congress have ordered one thousand more marksmen, or, as we call them, Riflemen, to be raised, viz: four hundred in Pennsylvania, four hundred in Virginia, and two hundred in Maryland. These men are to be divided in small parties, and scattered through the Army, for the purpose of removing the officers, the good consequences of which are too obvious to need pointing out. A party of these men, at a late review, on a quick advance, placed their balls in poles of seven inches diameter, fixed up for the purpose, at the distance of two hundred and fifty yards.

It is amazing to see the spirit of the Germans among us. Thousands of them have served as soldiers in their own Country. They speak with infinite pleasure of sacrificing their lives and property for the preservation of liberty, which they know full well how to value, from its deprivation by despotick Princes.

The Quakers, naturally fond of their interest, could not bear the thought of having their property taken from them without their consent, and have therefore taken arms, notwithstanding the Publick Testimony, which was really the work of about thirty of their elders. There are whole companies of that Society daily under arms; in particular the Light-Infantry Company of the first Battalion in this City is composed of them, in an uniform of light blue and buff.

JOHN HANCOCK, PRESIDENT, TO THE NEW-HAMPSHIRE CONGRESS.

Philadelphia, June 20, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I am directed by the Congress to forward you the enclosed Resolve, which passed yesterday, and to request an immediate compliance therewith, so far as it relates to the Troops in your Colony.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

JOHN HANCOCK.

To the Provincial Congress or Committee of New-Hampshire.

In Congress, June 19, 1775.

Resolved, That the Governour of Connecticut be requested to direct all the Forces raised in that Colony, not employed at Ticonderoga and Crown Point, or recommended by this Congress to be marched into the Province of New-York, to be immediately sent to join the combined Army before Boston; and it is earnestly recommended to the Colony of Rhode-Island, and the Provincial Convention of New-Hampshire, to send immediately to the Army before Boston, such of the Forces as are already embodied, towards the quotas of the Troops agreed to be raised by the New-England Colonies.

A true copy from the Minutes:

CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE DELEGATES TO PROVINCIAL CONGRESS AT EXETER.

Philadelphia, June 20, 1775.

Your favour of the 24th of May is now before us; in answer to which can only say, we easily conceive the "painful sensation" that every honest man must feel when he sees the unnatural conflict between Great Britain and these Colonies rising to such a height. But when we consider it not of our own seeking, but drove by the sons of tyranny and oppression to the sad alternative of being made slaves or appealing to the sword in defence of our just liberties, cannot but think we shall stand justified before God and man, in vigorously seizing the latter.

We are much pleased with the proceedings of New-Hampshire, shewing their attachment to the common cause, by raising so large a number of men for the defence of America. We are very sensible of the inability of our Province to support them, and the necessity of a paper currency.

We are at liberty to inform you that the Committee of the whole Congress have agreed to report a Continental currency, which, no doubt, will be emitted immediately, and forwarded for the payment of the Troops.

The Congress have appointed General Washington to the command of the American Forces, who will set out for the camp to-morrow or next day; have also agreed upon a Continental Army. The other proceedings of Congress are not yet to be made publick, unless what appears in the prints.

It is impossible to conceive of a greater unanimity in the Colonies than that which at present subsists, one and all being determined to defend our rights to the last. May the great Author of all things bless and assist us, is the most ardent prayer of, your most obedient humble servants,

JOHN SULLIVAN,
JOHN LANGDON.

Matthew Thornton, Esq.

P. S. Enclosed is an order for a general fast.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

Lebanon June 20, 1775.

SIR: This acknowledges the receipt of your letter of the 10th instant, and enclosed resolves. Am happy in being able to inform you, that by advice of my Council, appointed to act in the recess of the Assembly, convened on the 7th instant, I had ordered fifty barrels of powder from this Colony, containing one hundred and ten pounds each, to be sent with all despatch and secrecy to the American Army before Boston, which reached them about Friday last; and since the receipt of yours have ordered ten barrels more, of the same quantity each, which moved the 19th, and to proceed night and day; and wish it was in our power to supply much more for the necessity of the Army, and in compliance with the request of your wise, firm and patriotick assembly, on whom, under God, the salvation of America greatly depends. It is an unhappy truth, that no supplies of that article are to be obtained in this Colony. We have taken all care in our power to procure much larger quantities than we have yet received, but daily hope to expect the arrival of some, yet fear it may be intercepted by the vigilant malice of our enemies.

The New-York Congress informs us they have sent six hundred and fifty-five pounds for the same purpose, which I find has been detained at Stamford, for General Wooster's Regiment, but the same quantity is to be immediately furnished from the eastern part of the Colony, in addition to what is already sent. Only eight hundred and forty pounds have been imported into this Colony since our Delegates left it.

I am not at present able to procure any accurate estimate of powder, arms and ammunition. By the standing law, every Town ought to have fifty pounds to every sixty militia men, four pounds of bullets, and twelve flints; and by an act of last October, a double quantity of powder is ordered; but, I suppose, take one with another, we are more than half deficient of a single supply. If they were full, it would be about forty-four thousand seven hundred pound. As to lead and flints, perhaps we have a tolerable supply.

Have not yet been able to carry into execution your resolve of collecting saltpetre and brimstone, and forwarding to the Provincial Congress of New-York, but shall pay the greatest attention to it as fast as possible, but expect no great quantity can be obtained.

The General Assembly of this Colony, at their last session, offered very large premiums on saltpetre manufactured in and of materials found within the same, for one year; and on sulphur manufactured in this Colony from materials found in any of them, viz: twenty pounds per hundred weight of the first, and five for the second. Proposals have been made to me by Mr. De Witt of Norwich, with two of his friends near New-York, for speedily making very large quantities of the saltpetre, if they could be assisted with the loan of a sum sufficient to erect necessary buildings, &c., for which they will give ample security. This Colony having given such bounty, and the Assembly not sitting, nothing can be done here in that way. Your wisdom will direct what might be proper for you to do, if application should be made; and your patriotism will certainly incline you to every thing your wisdom shall dictate for the common good. If it is possible for Philadelphia or any Southern Colony to spare any manufactured, or other powder, to the Cambridge Army, it is and would be a most necessary and acceptable thing. I fear for their supply, where there is most important occasion.

You are doubtless possessed of every intelligence that is attainable, and can better judge whether, notwithstanding every shew and appearance to the contrary, the whole force of the enemy will not be collected, and their utmost exertions made to cut off the head of the snake; if so, although our men are ever so resolute or numerous, they can do nothing without powder; and there must be a vast consumption of it. A very great proportion must have been expended in the several engagements which have already happened, and we have just received the important (but very imperfect) news of a vigorous attack on our Army, on Friday night or Saturday morning last, in consequence of their attempting to take possession of the important posts at Bunker's Hill in Charlestown. Our forces have been obliged to retreat, but on the whole suppose they have suffered far less than their enemies.

I am, with great truth and regard, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

Honourable President of the Continental Congress.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN IN PROVIDENCE, RHODE-ISLAND, TO HIS FRIEND IN NEW-YORK, DATED JUNE 20, 1775.

You doubtless have been alarmed with divers accounts of the contest which happened on the 17th instant, between the King's Troops and our Army; shall give you a narrative in a few words, as the post now waits.

On the evening of the 16th, Colonel Putnam took possession of Bunker's Hill, with about two thousand men, and began an intrenchment, which they had made some progress in. At eight in the morning a party of Regulars landed at Charlestown, and fired the Town in divers places. Under cover of the smoke, a body of about five thousand men marched up to our intrenchments, and made a furious and sudden attack. They were driven back three times; and when they were making the third attack, one of our people imprudently spoke aloud that their powder was all gone; which being heard by some of the regular officers, they encouraged their men to march up to the trenches with fixed bayonets, and entered them; on which our people were ordered to retreat, which they did with all speed, till they got out of musket shot; they then formed, but were not pursued; in the mean time six men-of-war and four floating batteries were brought up, and kept up a continual fire on the causeway that leads on to Charlestown; our people retreated through the fire, but not without the loss of many of the men.

Our loss is sixty men killed and missing, and about one hundred and forty wounded. The brave Doctor Warren is among the former, and Colonel Gardner among the latter. We left six field-pieces on the hill; our people are now intrenched on Pleasant Hill, within cannon shot of Bunker's Hill. The loss of the King's Troops must be very considerable; the exact number we cannot tell. If our people had been supplied with ammunition they would have held possession most certainly. They have began firing on Roxbury with carcasses, to set it on fire, but have not yet succeeded. Our people are in high spirits, and are very earnest to put this matter on another trial.

COMMITTEE OF WAR FOR CONNECTICUT.

At a meeting of the Governour and Council, or Committee of War, called by his Honour, and held at Lebanon, Wednesday, 7th June, 1775:

Present, his Honour the Governour; the Honourable Deputy Governour Griswold; Honourable Jabez Huntington, William Williams, Nathaniel Wales, Jedediah Elderkin, Joshua West, Benjamin Huntington, Esquires.

William Williams was desired and appointed Clerk of this Council.

His Honour laid before this Committee sundry Letters newly received from the Honourable Committee of War, the Committee of Safety, the Committee of Supplies for the Colony of Massachusetts-Bay, from Brigadier Generals Spencer and Putnam of the Connecticut Troops, at the camp near Boston; all earnestly requesting a quantity of Powder to be sent forthwith to supply their present necessity, and engaging to pay for or refund it, &c., &c.

This Committee taking the said requests into consideration, and the circumstances of the case being considered, do agree, direct, and order, that fifty whole barrels, containing about one hundred weight each of Gunpowder, belonging to this Colony, be forthwith sent and forwarded to the said camp, to the care and conduct of said Brigadier Generals Spencer and Putnam, viz: twenty barrels of that under the care of Colonel Jabez Huntington at Norwich; twenty barrels of that under the care of Captain Jabez Huntington of Windham; and ten barrels of that under the care of Colonel William Williams of Lebanon; to be sent ten barrels in a load, packed into common barrels, and the vacant room to be filled with rye or other grain, and gave orders to said gentlemen accordingly to forward the same, signed by the Governour.

It was then moved by his Honour the Governour, that Colonel Parsons's Regiment, part of the troops lately raised for defence, &c., now stationed at New-London, or part of them, should be sent and ordered to proceed to the camp near Boston, &c.

The motion was considered and largely discussed, and it was, on the question,

Voted and Ordered, That said Colonel Parsons, with the Company under his immediate command, and the Company under the command of Captain Chapman, in said Regiment, be ordered to proceed to the camp aforesaid, and join the Troops heretofore sent and stationed there by the honourable Assembly.

Then, on motion of his Honour, Voted and Ordered, That the General Officers of this Colony Troops order such quantity of Fish and Hogs-lard, for the use of said Troops at said camp, as they shall judge reasonable and necessary.

And then the meeting was dismissed, near sun-setting.

WILLIAM WILLIAMS, Clerk.

N. B. Captain Richard Dishon, of New-London, one of the Committee appointed by the Assembly to provide carriages for and mount the Cannon at New-London, &c., being in Town, came, and moved for the opinion and advice of this Committee, whether he should procure iron carriage-wheels for said Cannon? And also, whether he should mount and fix two small pieces, in the form necessary and proper to be used as field-pieces, &c.? And on consideration, it was signified to him, as the opinion of said Committee on both said motions, that he should do so.

Saturday, June 17, 1775.

At a meeting of the Committee at Lebanon, called by his Honour the Governour:

Present, his Honour the Governour; the Honourable Deputy Governour Griswold; Jabez Huntington, Samuel Huntington, William Williams, Nathaniel Wales, Jedediah Elderkin, Joshua West, Benjamin Huntington, Esquires.

The Governour laid before this Committee sundry Letters received since the last meeting, from the President of the Continental Congress; from our Delegates at said Congress; from Generals Spencer, Putnam, &c., &c.; requesting a further supply of Powder at the camp near Boston, that Colonel Parsons's Regiment be sent there, &c.

On motion by me for advice about the price of Gun-Locks proposed to be made by Uri Hanks, of Mansfield, and shewing one of them, &c., for which he demands twelve shillings each, &c. And advised and Voted, That if they cannot be had for less, that I engage them at that price, i. e. fifty proposed to be made by the time, &c.

On motion, Voted and Ordered, The remaining six companies of Colonel Parsons's Regiment, now at New-London, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Tyler, march forthwith and join the camp near Boston, supplied with ammunition, &c., as others have been, and directed Mr. Shaw (who was present) to supply them accordingly out of the Colony Stores in his hands.

On motion, Voted and desired, Mr. Shaw (present) to use his best endeavours to procure the quantity of Powder heretofore ordered, and where it may be had, at the risk of the Colony, and to lay in his account.

A motion for sending more Powder to the Army near Boston, had been made and was negatived; was resumed, and, on reconsideration, Voted and Ordered, That ten whole barrels more be sent to the care of Generals Spencer and Putnam; and Col. Jabez Huntington directed to send it from Norwich.

Many things discussed, &c., and it being near night, adjourned to Monday next, nine o'clock, A. M.

MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

In Provincial Congress, Watertown, June 20, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR: Having been favoured with your Resolve respecting the assumption of Government in this Colony, we seize the earliest opportunity to express our grateful sentiments for that compassion, seasonable exertion, and abundant wisdom, evidenced in your recommendation to this people on that head; and for the generous provision you have made for our support in our efforts in defence of the common liberty and essential rights of the whole Continent. As we are plunged into the accumulated distresses of a domestick war, our constant attention to the calls of our brethren in the field will leave us but little time to contemplate the acts of ordinary legislation: but as we are impressed with the indispensable necessity of rescuing this people from the danger they are in of falling into a state of anarchy, and that our publick resolutions may be taken and executed with the greater despatch, we shall apply ourselves with all diligence to fulfil your benevolent intentions, and establish the form of Government recommended by your Honours, that so order and Government may be restored to this disturbed community.

We think it our indispensable duty to inform you, that re-enforcements from Ireland, both of Horse and Foot, being arrived, (the numbers unknown,) and having good intelligence that General Gage was about to take possession of the advantageous posts in Charlestown and on Dorchester Point, the Committee of Safety advised that our Troops should prepossess them if possible.

Accordingly, on Friday evening the 16th instant, this was effected by about twelve hundred men. About daylight on Saturday morning, their line of circumvallation, on a small hill, south of Bunker's Hill, in Charlestown, was closed; at this time the Lively, man-of-war, began to fire upon them. A number of our enemy's ships, tenders, cutters, scows or floating batteries, soon came up, from all which the fire was general by twelve o'clock. About two the enemy began to land at a point which leads out from Noddle's Island, and immediately marched up to our intrenchments, from which they were twice repulsed; but in the third attack forced them. Our forces which were in the lines, as well as those sent for their support, were greatly annoyed on every side, by balls and bombs, from Copp's Hill, the ships, scows, &c. At this time the buildings in Charlestown appeared in flames in almost every quarter, kindled by hot balls, and is since laid in ashes. Though this scene was almost horrible, and altogether new to most of our men, yet many stood, and received wounds by swords and bayonets before they quitted their lines. At five o'clock the enemy were in full possession of all the posts within the isthmus.

In the evening and night following, General Ward extended his intrenchments, before made at the stone-house, over Winter Hill. About six o'clock, P. M., of the same day, the enemy began to cannonade Roxbury from Boston Neck and elsewhere, which they continued twenty-four hours, with little spirit and less effect.

The number of killed and missing on our side is not known, but supposed by some to be about sixty or seventy, and by some considerably above that number. Our most worthy friend and President, Doctor Warren, lately elected a Major-General, is among them. This loss we feel most sensibly. Lieutenant-Colonel Parker and Major Moore of this Colony, and Major McClary from New-Hampshire, are also dead. Three Colonels, and perhaps one hundred men, are wounded. The loss of the enemy is doubtless great. By an anonymous letter from Boston, we are told that they exult much in having gained the ground, though their killed and wounded are owned about one thousand; but this account exceeds every other estimation. The number they had engaged is supposed to be between three and four thousand. If any error was committed on our side, it was in taking a post so much exposed.

As soon as an estimate can be made of publick and private stocks of gunpowder in this Colony, it shall be transmitted without delay, which we are well assured will be small, and by no means adequate to the exigence of our case. We apprehend that the scantiness of our stock of that article, cannot fail to induce your Honours still to give your utmost attention to ways and means of procuring a full supply of it. We feel ourselves infinitely obliged to you for your past care in this respect.

We beg leave humbly to suggest, that if a Commander-in-Chief of the Army of the United Colonies should be appointed, it must be plain to your Honours, that no part of this Continent can so much require his immediate presence and exertions as this Colony.

We are, with great respect, your Honours' most obedient and very humble servants,

By order of Congress:

JAMES WARREN, President.
SAM'L FREEMAN, Secretary.

Attest:

To the Honourable Continental Congress now sitting at Philadelphia.

MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS TO GENERAL WARD.

Watertown, June 20, 1775, nine o'clock.

SIR: This Congress, considering the present situation of the enemy, and that of the division of our Army at Cambridge, think proper to suggest to your serious consideration whether it is not proper and expedient that there should be an immediate draft of a Regiment or more from the Roxbury Camp to that at Cambridge. Your good sense will undoubtedly incline you to consult General Thomas before you determine absolutely on this measure; but we conceive the consideration of this matter ought not to be delayed a moment. We are, &c.

To the Honourable General Ward.

To the Honourable the Congress for the Colony of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of the Selectmen of the Town of TOWNSHEND, humbly sheweth:

That when the order of Congress came to us for part of our town stock of powder, but two of our Selectmen being present they inadvertently sent the whole; by which means we are almost destitute of powder, and being called upon to keep in our horses, and to be in readiness for an engagement, we know not what to do. But being informed that there are two half barrels of powder at the Town of Ashby, if we could obtain an order of Congress for Ashby to deliver a part of that to us, we might be in a better situation; but if we could be helped any way we should think ourselves much obliged by your Honours, to which we look upon ourselves in duty bound to obey.

By order of the Selectmen:

JAMES HOSLEY, Town Clerk.

Townshend, June 20, 1775.

RICHARD DERBY, JUN., TO CAPTAIN JAMES KIRKWOOD.

Salem, June 20, 1775.

CAPTAIN JAMES KIRKWOOD: I received your letter this moment, informing me that you were in want of a certificate from me that you had kept the Light-house, &c., which I now enclose you. Yours, &c.,

RICHARD DERBY, JUN.

"This may certify, that Captain James Kirkwood has had the sole care of keeping the Light-house on Thatcher's Island ever since it has been erected; that he applied to the General Court, when sitting here, June, 1774, for his annual grant, and the House then voted him sixty Pounds for the year then or about that time ending; which grant came up to the Board, but the sudden dissolution put an end to the matter. And I further certify, that he has attended his duty (as far as I know) to general acceptance, ever since the care of the lights were by the Province committed to the care of Captain Ewing, Mr. Allen, and myself. Mr. Ewing is shut up in Boston, and Mr. Allen has been out of the Province near a year, so that the burden is totally on me. I have the last week sent down a quantity of oil, which has been in my care for some months past, so that the lights are well supplied for some time to come. If the lights are continued, wood must be provided soon, as it can only be carried there in the course of the summer. Whatever directions the Congress may see fit to give in this matter, shall further govern the conduct of their humble servant,

"RICHARD DERBY, JUN."

EDWARD BUCKNAM AND SETH WALES TO COLONELS BAILEY AND HURD.

Lancaster, June 20, 1775.

SIRS: We sent out a scout of two men to Lake Memphremagog, in order to find two men that Mr. Benjamin Sawyer said he had left at that lake, but found them not, and they have returned back again. They saw at Lake Memphremagog several Indians hunting, one of whom was Black Lewee, by name, who is very well known among our people, in general, to be the most trusty and faithful to his word of any Indian that ever came among us. He tells our scout that he set out to pilot two regular officers into Lower Coos last winter, and two other Indians with them—but he was their chief pilot—in order to find out a good road from Canada to Coos, as these men told him their desire was to look out a road to Coos; but after they had set out on their journey, the regular officers told the Indians they intended to come through that way with an Army to take and destroy the people in those Towns on this river; and when Lewee found out their desire, he went back and left them. They made him promise and swear he would not come in to us, and make known their desire. He says there are near two thousand Regulars now in Canada, and they are making all preparations they possibly can for war, determined to come against us late this fall, and bring snow-shoes with them, and are now employing the Indians to make them. Lewee says they are continually inviting the Indians to join with them and fight against us, and they will put them in officers, and offer them money to take up arms, but they utterly refuse it. The Regulars threaten to kill them, to scare them to take up arms against us. Lewee says, the Indians and French wait for nothing but an invitation from us to join with us, which they would do immediately, and want us to send an Army to take Quebec, and let them know when our Army will meet them at Quebec, to take it. He says, all Canada will rise to help take it. They determine not to take their old laws again. If we will but join with them, they will join with us. This Lewee says their head man at Caughnawaga is an Englishman, very much for New-England—his name is John Stacy; he wishes us to send them word if we want them to assist us or not. Lewee says he can raise five hundred Indians to assist us any time. This John Stacy is their head man, and this Lewee is next to him. Lewee says, he will do all he can to help us; he will stay at this lake twenty days from the time our scout left them, and this is the fourth day since, and then he and the other Indians are going to Caughnawaga, and if we desire it, he will carry a letter to their head man, who can read English. And now we send a man directly down to Coos, to let you know of these affairs; and as the Indians always spoke in your favour, it would have more effect upon them were you to write to them what our desire is, and whether you will have them join us or not; for they live in fear of being destroyed by the Regulars, as there is but a handful of them. This Lewee says he will go to Canada for us, stay all summer if we desire it, and let us know all the designs of the French and Canadians, and Regulars, &c. He proposes the manner he will go in, that they might not mistrust him to be a friend to us; says he will take part of his hunt that he hath got at a time, and go into Canada and sell that, as usual, and tell them that he hath got some more moose skins in the woods, and must go and fetch them, and so in like manner, as long as we should like to have him go. We have got two men ready to go out to Lewee immediately, if you think it best to send. This scout went and came back again in five days, with a canoe. If Colonel Bailey should have a mind to go out himself and see those Indians, our men can carry you in a canoe, and bring you back again. Your seeing them yourself will be more satisfaction to yourself and to other people in general, than sending by others. This Indian was afraid to let the other Indians know what he told our men, lest they should betray him in Canada. He says, now is the time to take Quebec. The Regulars are buying up and storing all the provisions they can in Canada.

In the mean time, we remain your most humble servants,

EDWARD BUCKNAM,

SETH WALES.

To Colonel Bailey and Colonel Hurd.

SOUTH-CAROLINA SECRET COMMITTEE TO COL. MOULTRIE.

Charlestown, June 21, 1775.

SIR: By direction of the Committee, I enclose you two orders, by which you will be supplied with a quantity of ammunition, for the use of the two Regiments of Infantry in the service of the Colony; not doubting of your prudence, they, however, think it their duty to recommend that the greatest care be taken of it; and as, in a great degree, the new levies are strangers, and their principle not certainly known, they cannot but intimate, that they think it advisable, that no soldier should be placed sentry over, or have any thing to do relative to the ammunition, but such as are known friends to the liberties of America.

I am, &c.

WM. H. DRAYTON,

Chairman of the Secret Committee.

To Colonel Moultrie.

In Provincial Congress, Charlestown, S. C., June 21, 1775.

Ordered, That the Honourable William Henry Drayton, the Honourable Captain Barnard Elliott, Colonel Charles Pinckney, Colonel James Parsons, Colonel Isaac Motte, Colonel Stephen Bull, Colonel William Moultrie, Major Owen Roberts, Captain Thomas Savage, Captain John Huger, Miles Brewton, Thomas Ferguson, and Gabriel Capres, Esquires, be a Deputation to present to his Excellency the Address of this Congress.

SOUTH-CAROLINA:

To His Excellency the Right Honourable Lord WILLIAM CAMPBELL, Governour and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Province aforesaid:

The humble Address and Declaration of the Provincial Congress:

We, His Majesty's loyal subjects, the Representatives of the people of this Colony in Congress assembled, beg leave to disclose to your Excellency the true causes of our proceedings; not only that, upon your arrival among us, you may receive no unfavourable impression of our conduct, but that we may stand justified to the world.

When the ordinary modes of application for redress of grievances, and the usual means of defence against arbitrary impositions have failed, mankind generally have had recourse to those that are extraordinary. Hence the origin of the Continental Congress, and hence the present representation of the people in this Colony.

It is unnecessary to enumerate the grievances of America; they have been so often represented, that your Excellency cannot be a stranger to them. Let it therefore suffice to say, that the hands of His Majesty's Ministers, which have long lain heavy, now press us with intolerable weight. We declare, that no love of innovation, no desire of altering the Constitution of Government, no lust of independence, has had the least influence upon our councils. But, alarmed and roused by a long succession of arbitrary proceedings by wicked Administrations; impressed with the greatest apprehensions of instigated insurrections, and deeply affected by the commencement of hostilities by the British Troops against this Continent, solely for the preservation and defence of our lives, liberties, and properties, we have been impelled to associate and take up arms.

We sincerely deplore those slanderous informations and wicked counsels by which His Majesty has been led into measures which, if persisted in, must inevitably involve America in all the calamities of civil war, and rend the British Empire. We only desire the secure enjoyment of our invaluable rights, and we wish for nothing more ardently than a speedy reconciliation with our Mother Country, upon constitutional principles.

Conscious of the justice of our cause, and the integrity of our views, we readily profess our loyal attachment to our Sovereign, his Crown and dignity; and trusting the event to Providence, we prefer death to slavery.

These things we have thought it our duty to declare, that your Excellency, and through you, our august Sovereign, our fellow-subjects, and the whole world, may clearly understand, that our taking up arms is the result of dire necessity, and in compliance with the first law of nature.

We entreat and trust, that your Excellency will make such a representation of the state of this Colony, and of our true motives, as to assure His Majesty that, in the midst of all our complicated distresses, he has no subjects in his wide dominions who more sincerely desire to testify their loyalty and affection, or who would be more willing to devote their lives and fortunes in his real service.

By order of the Provincial Congress at Charlestown:

HENRY LAURENS, President.

June 20, 1775.

The Deputation being returned, the Honourable Mr. Drayton reported, that they having delivered the Address to the Governour, his Excellency was pleased to make the following Answer:

GENTLEMEN: I know of no Representatives of the people of this Province, except those constitutionally convened in General Assembly, and am incompetent to judge of the disputes which at present unhappily subsist between Great Britain and the American Colonies.

It is impossible, during the short interval since my arrival, that I should have acquired such a knowledge of the state of the Province as to be at present able to make any representation thereupon to His Majesty; but you may be assured, that no representations shall ever be made by me but what shall be consistent with truth, and with an earnest endeavour to promote the real happiness and prosperity of the Province.

WILLIAM CAMPBELL.

In Provincial Congress, Charlestown, S. C., }
Wednesday, June 21, 1775. }

Whereas, the inhabitants of Poole, a seaport in the English Channel, lost to all sense of honour, humanity, and gratitude, have, by their late Petition to Parliament, manifested themselves not only inimical to America, but desirous to add to the heavy oppressions under which the unfortunate and virtuous inhabitants of the four New-England Governments labour, in consequence of their laudable conduct in defence of the liberties of America, and of mankind: to testify our just resentment of so base and cruel a conduct in the inhabitants of Poole, it is hereby

Resolved, That this Colony will not use or employ any shipping belonging to that Port, or owned by any inhabitant there, or carry on any transactions, or hold any communication with that people.

PETER TIMOTHY, Secretary.

In consequence of an order of the Committee, issued on the 11th of last May, the Reverend Mr. Bennet Allen produced the Sermon that he preached on that day.

On motion, the Sermon was read, and the question put, Whether the said Sermon be exceptionable?

Resolved in the negative.

Whereas, a Paper Mill is about being erected near Fredrick Town, and it being incumbent on us, at this time, to give especial encouragement to country manufactories, it is recommended to the people of this County that they save all their Linen and Woollen Rags, and prefer the Paper made here to any foreign manufacture whatsoever.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that no Insurance be made on the Cash shipped off by the Sub-Committee appointed to appropriate the moneys raised by subscription in this City, on account of the Colony.

A Letter, dated Philadelphia, 17th June, 1775, from Joseph Reade, received and read.

A Letter, dated St. John's, Newfoundland, 30th May, 1775, from Jonathan Parsons, Jun., giving an account of the arrival of the Ship Sally, Captain Taverner, from this Port, at Trinity, in Newfoundland, which said Captain Taverner, before his sailing, made oath that he would proceed immediately to Falmouth, or some other port in England, and that he would by no means stop at Newfoundland, nor at any of the Fishing Islands on the coast of America.

In pursuance of a recommendation of the Provincial Congress to this Committee to purchase all the Saltpetre in this City and County, and also to procure an account of all the Brimstone and Sulphur therein, and to make a report of the same to the said Congress, Ordered, That Gerardus Duyckinck, Jacob Van Voorhies, and Eleazer Miller, be a Sub-Committee for the above purpose.

New-York, June 21, 1775.

The General Committee for the City and County of New-York having received intelligence that Andrew Taverner, master of the Ship Sally, arrived in said vessel at Trinity, in the Island of Newfoundland, the twenty-fourth ultimo, they accordingly appointed William Walton, Esq., Colonel Fleming, John Lamb, and John Broome, a Committee to wait on Theophilact Bache, to whom the said ship was addressed, to inquire of him the reasons (if any he knew) why the said Andrew Taverner did not proceed directly to Falmouth, or some other port in Great Britain, as he had engaged under oath to use his utmost endeavours to do: We, the said Committee, report, that pursuant to our appointment we waited upon Mr. Bache, who produced sundry vouchers, from which, together with his deposition hereunto annexed, we fully believe the said Theophilact Bache to be altogether innocent of having had any agency, directly or indirectly, in causing the aforesaid vessel to proceed to Newfoundland, as above-mentioned.

WM. WALTON, EDWARD FLEMING,
JOHN BROOME, JOHN LAMB.

CITY OF NEW-YORK, ss.:

Theophilact Bache, of the aforesaid City, merchant, of lawful age, being duly sworn, deposeth and saith, that he had no agency, either directly or indirectly, in causing the Ship Sally (whereof Andrew Taverner was master at the time of her departure from this port) to proceed to Newfoundland, or any other place than Falmouth, or some other port in Great Britain, but verily believed the said Taverner intended to proceed directly to Falmouth, or some other port in Great Britain as aforesaid. And further this deponent saith, in order to impress upon the said Andrew Taverner's mind the necessity of going straightway to Falmouth, or some other port in Great Britain, he (this deponent) reminded him of the solemnity of the oath he, the said Taverner, had taken, and also furnished him with a copy of the same, and was greatly surprised upon hearing the General Committee for this City and County had received intelligence that the said Taverner was arrived at the land. And further saith not.

THEOPHILACT BACHE.

JOSEPH JOHNSON (A MOHEGAN INDIAN) TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York, June 21, 1775.

To the Honourable the Provincial Congress of the Colony of New-York, the humble Petition of JOSEPH JOHNSON, a licensed Preacher of the Gospel amongst seven different Tribes of New-England Indians and the ONEIDAS, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner hath for several years been engaged amongst the Indians—for some years as a schoolmaster amongst the Oneidas, and since that time in preaching the Gospel to several different Nations of New-England Indians, and to the Oneidas, and in endeavouring to persuade the Indians to a civilized life, and to embrace the Christian religion. Also your petitioner humbly sheweth, that a number of New-England Indians, of seven different tribes, having become poor and few in number, were adopted by the Oneida Nation, who gave them a tract of land to settle on. That your petitioner, with a number of the said New-England Indians, removed to the Oneida country to settle on the lands given to them, and were very kindly received, and had got corn-fields planted and gardens made: That false reports were lately spread to the westward that your petitioner, and the New-England Indians who were with him, had removed to the westward, in pursuance of a design formed by the people of New-England to settle in that western country, and that they might thereby have an opportunity of gaining the favour of the Upper Nations, and bring them to their way of thinking: That the New-England Indians were afraid that ill disposed persons, whose hearts might be full of jealousy and prejudice, might induce some of the distant Indian Nations to credit such false reports, and set them at variance with, and cause them to fall on and take up the hatchet against the new settled Indians: That therefore the New-England Indians, with the consent and advice of the Oneidas, thought best for their safety, and the peace of the country, to return for the present from whence they came, until the present troubles shall be ended: That most part of the said New-England Indians are returned, and that your petitioner, with three others of the said Indians, are now on their way to the eastward, intending to proceed by the way of New-London, which is near their former place of abode: That your petitioner and his three companions, sensible of the present troubles and difficulties in every part of the country, are fearful of travelling without a passport or a letter of safe conduct, which may afford them peace and protection in their journey, and are also so poor and destitute that they are utterly unable to pursue their journey without the charitable aid and relief of the benevolent and the humane. Your petitioner therefore humbly prays that a passport, or a letter of safe conduct and protection, may be graciously given to him for James Shattock, John Shesneck, Samuel Tallman, and himself, to pass to New-London, in Connecticut, and also for such small sum to aid them in their journey to New-London aforesaid, as to this honourable Congress in their wisdom shall seem meet. And your petitioner, on behalf of himself and his above named companions, as in duty bound shall ever pray, &c.

JOSEPH JOHNSON.

To the Honourable the Provincial Congress of New-York.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN AT NEW-YORK TO HIS FRIEND IN EDINBURGH, SCOTLAND, DATED JUNE 21, 1775.

A worthy young man, an Indian Preacher, with three of his tribe, just arrived from the Six Nations, were with me this morning. They are come to wait upon our Provincial Congress, now sitting in this City, with the news that the Indian Nations are determined not to act against the Colonies. They also inform me that even the Canadian Indians are our friends. The Continental Congress have recommended it in the warmest manner to all the Colonies, to observe the twentieth of next month as a Continental fast. A regular Army of seventy thousand men is to be immediately raised. All ranks of people are in arms. Seventeen regular companies are already formed in this City, who have no pay, and provide themselves with uniforms, arms, and ammunition. Should the unhappy contest continue six months longer, it is very probable that we will have near two hundred thousand bold, resolute men, disciplined to as great perfection as any of His Majesty's Troops. The Provincial Army, at present at Boston, consists of twenty thousand men, and increases daily. Gen. Wooster, the chief commander of the Connecticut Troops, is soon to encamp near the City with two thousand men. It is a gross calumny to say that we are aiming at independency, for our political principles are the same that raised the house of Hanover to the throne; and were your Ministers to adopt these principles, we would immediately lay down our arms.

ALBANY (NEW-YORK) COMMITTEE TO THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read before Congress, June 26, 1775.]

Albany Committee Chamber, June 21, 1775.

To the Members of the Continental Congress:

GENTLEMEN: Mr. Birck Swart, a member of this Board, who is just returned from Crown Point, brings the following intelligence: that one Mr. Hay, who lives about ten miles up Lake Champlain, came down to Crown Point, who told Colonel Arnold and others that he had been to Montreal for some flour; that Governour Carleton had him seized and confined for several days; that by the interposition of the English merchants of that place, he received liberty to return home; and that the merchants who procured him the pass from the Lieutenant-Governour, desired him to go down to Crown Point and Ticonderoga with all speed, and communicate to the commander of those fortresses that the French Caughnawaga Indians had taken up the hatchet, but that they refused to go out upon any scouts until nine of their men, who were then out, returned; and that Governour Carleton was giving them presents daily.

We are very sorry to inform you that, from a number of corroborating circumstances, we have but too much reason to believe the above information to be true, and more especially as the Troops, which amount to about six hundred men, suffer no persons coming up the lake to pass St. John's if they can avoid it, where they are building floating batteries and boats. Mr. Swart also acquaints us that Mr. Hay said that Governour Carleton had asked the English merchants to take up arms against the Yankees, to make use of his own phraseology; that the merchants refused; upon which he told them that he would set the Town on fire; when the merchants said he was welcome to do so, and added, they would carry as much fire as himself. Mr. Hay also desired Mr. Swart, if he should happen to meet Mr. Pierce, he should request him not to proceed, as the English merchants in Canada conceived it unsafe for him.

The forces above named are in no proper state of defence, principally owing to the scarcity of powder; of which article we have not yet been able to send up more, with the supply we have received from New-York, than three hundred and fifty pounds; which quantity is altogether insufficient to answer the purposes intended, and of little service in case of an attack. We can farther inform you this City is not half supplied (nor frontier inhabitants) with either powder or arms, for which applications have been, and daily are making to us; and as we have no prospect of any farther supply from New-York, we beg to be assisted, if possible, from the lower Governments, with all the despatch possible.

We should also desire that the command at the forts might be settled. Colonel Hinman, we understood, would have taken the command; but by his appointment from Governour Trumbull, his orders are only to re-enforce the garrisons and command his regiment; upon which Colonel Arnold refused to resign. We therefore conceive it highly necessary that a matter of such importance should be settled with all speed. The above we are also informed by Mr. Swart, who was present and heard each read the other's instructions.

We thought it our indispensable duty to acquaint you of these matters, and therefore send them to you per express.

We are, gentlemen, your very humble servants. By order of the Committee: SAMUEL STRINGER, Chairman pro tempore.

CAPT. BENJAMIN CHAPMAN, OF THE ROYAL IRISH OR 18TH REGIMENT OF FOOT, TO A FRIEND IN IRELAND.

Boston, June 21, 1775.

I have further to inform you (though I know you to be an advocate for the Americans) that their Grand Continental Congress have resolved, in order to force Great Britain to confirm the wild claims they have set up, that they will do their utmost to ruin the commerce of Ireland, and starve their fellow-subjects in the West-Indies, who never injured them. And in their address to the people of Canada, after inviting them to join in their illegal opposition, they flatter them with the enjoyment and prosperity of a religion which, in their address to the people of Great Britain, they themselves say is fraught with the most impious and sanguinary tenets. Many of their Provincial Conventions have resolved not to pay their debts to the British merchants, nor will they suffer any legal process to be resorted to upon that account; thus trampling on every principle of humanity, candour, and common honesty. When the unprejudiced eye of posterity shall cast a retrospect view on those dark transactions, how will they be amazed that a party could be found so shameless as to defend them in Parliament. Matters about Boston wear a truly warlike aspect. The Army of the rebels consists of at least fifteen thousand men, and are daily increasing. They are, besides, possessed of a considerable number of artillery: and when we consider the enthusiastick disposition of those infatuated people; that the pulpits and publick meetings breathe nothing but sedition; that the people are in the most slavish subjection to the priests and demagogues; it can no longer remain a matter of surprise if (to use their own phrase) they resist even unto death. The Continental Congress has been sitting since the tenth of May: their deliberations are wonderfully secret; the few Resolves that have transpired are mostly inflammatory; their High Mightinesses now appear in various capacities; they have erected themselves into a court of Star-Chamber, and have already tried and passed sentence on several delinquents who have dared to contravene their inquisitorial decrees; in short, they are as omnipotent in this quarter of the globe as any earthly power can be. I will not hazard a conjecture on the steps that may be pursued by Parliament on this important, this unparalleled crisis. America seems determined not to recede; should, therefore, Great Britain relax, I fear her laurels will wither on her brows, and that her sun of glory will soon set to rise no more. My knowledge of the Americans is founded on long experience, from their own writings, and from my intimacy with many of the first characters amongst them; rely upon it, their aim is independency. My Lords, the planters in the South, have long plumed themselves on the prospect of an approaching aristocracy; whilst the levelers in the North already enjoy, by anticipation, their adored republick. The honour and dignity of Great Britain, as well as the securing the rights of Parliament, call for an exertion of military power. I cannot fight in a more just, a more noble cause; every other consideration must give way to this; nor do I wish to quit America until her dependance on the Parent State is effectually secured, and my much injured Country's rights fixed on the most solid basis.

STOCKBRIDGE INDIANS TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Stockbridge, June 21, 1775.

We, whose names are hereunto subscribed, being soldiers enlisted to serve in the Provincial Army during summer, beg leave to lay this our request before you. We, in our more serious hours, reflect with shame upon our aptness to drink spirituous liquors to excess when we are under temptation; by which foolish conduct, when we are guilty of it, we render ourselves unfit for usefulness and service to our fellow-men, and also disagreeable to those that have any thing to do with us. We are sensible that we injure ourselves more than any one else. When we get a taste, we must some of us with shame say, that sometimes no interest of our own will prevent us from procuring more, till we get too much. We therefore desire you would, in your wisdom, do something, during our residence there, that we may get so much as will be good for us, and no more. We further desire you to order the Paymaster-General to pay all our wages, that is now or may be due to us when we are dismissed, to Timothy Edwards or Jahiel Woodbridge, Esquires,

Delegates from the Town of Stockbridge, and to them only or their order, that they may be enabled to provide for us while we are here what we may necessarily want, and bring all the rest home, that it may be altogether, and divide it among us as we like.

THOMAS TWINING TO THE MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: Deeply impressed with a sense of the weighty task you have to perform, in the management of our publick affairs at this difficult and alarming crisis, and how necessary it is that many of your deliberations and resolves should be kept a profound secret from the enemies of our common liberties, whether foreign invaders or our own domestick traitors; and humbly apprehending that one Mr. Amos Knowles, Jun., from the Town of Eastham, hath behaved in such a manner as to give just ground to suspect his fidelity to his Country, and even to suppose him inimical thereto, your petitioner, in behalf of himself and of the Association in Eastham, thinking it a duty incumbent on him so to do, as a member of society, begs leave to represent to your Honours, that the said Knowles, who now hath a seat in said Congress, hath been an opposer of the common cause of this Country, and hath frequently exclaimed against Congresses and the present mode of opposition, as may appear by the papers herewith presented. And your petitioner, apprehending a known enemy to our Country ought not to be allowed a seat in said Congress, lest he might thereby betray its secret plans to our common enemy, humbly prays your Honours to take the matter into consideration, and expel him from said Congress, or otherwise deal with him as you in your wisdom shall judge proper. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

Your petitioner begs leave further to represent, that the said Knowles was one whom the Committee of Correspondence of the Town of Eastham, thought it their duty to discriminate and disarm, in consequence of recommendations from the late Congress, but did not think it prudent to attempt it, knowing said Knowles had a considerable party of similar principles and conduct, who had before armed themselves to oppose some publick measures.

THOMAS TWINING.

To the Friends of Liberty, to whom the bearer hereof shall apply himself:

This may certify, that we, the subscribers, do hereby ask your advice and assistance on the important matters that shall be laid before you by our worthy friend, Mr. Thomas Twining, relating to the great and intolerable difficulties between the Whigs and Tories in this Town. Although we are a minority, our number of zealous friends will, we hope, be thought sufficient to gain some notice. Mr. Twining is one whose veracity may be relied on; and if by this messenger we gain no relief, we see nothing but we must submit to the mercy of the Tories in this place.

Eastham, June 12, 1775.

Whereas it hath happened that many transactions in this Town, relating to our publick grievances hath been carried on much to the contrary of the minds of many of the inhabitants of this Town, by which it hath made many parties and a great division in this Town, and we do look upon it as a great judgment from Heaven upon us for our sins; wherefore it hath been moved by some, that each party would meet and assemble together, to see if we could not unite, both in love and unity, among ourselves with our free countrymen, in standing with them for our rights, liberty, and privileges. And accordingly the two parties did agree, met, and assembled themselves together at the South Meeting-House in Eastham, on the first day of December, in the year one thousand seven hundred and seventy-four, and then both parties mutually agreed to choose a Committee out of each party, and accordingly proceeded and chose two Committees, one out of each party—seven out of one, and five out of the other—in order to consult and draw up such resolves as they thought most proper and best for peace and unity among ourselves and free countrymen. Accordingly we, the subscribers, being two Committees, did meet at the dwelling house of Mr. Thomas Twining, in Eastham, on Tuesday, the sixth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-four, at nine o'clock in the morning, and then did resolve, in the first place, to pass by and overlook all past conduct among ourselves and towards our free countrymen, and for all past injuries to be buried in oblivion towards all those that will join in the following Resolves:

In the first place, we, the subscribers, do mutually agree and resolve, that we will freely and willingly unite and join with our free countrymen in defence of our sacred rights, privileges, and liberties.

Secondly. We will unite and join our Continental, Provincial, and County Congresses, and with all others of our Congresses, so far as shall be agreeable to the Continental Congress. That we will do our utmost to uphold and defend our liberties and rights.

Thirdly and lastly. We do and shall look upon all those that will not stand for their rights, liberty, property, and religion, as enemies to their Country, and shall ever deem them so till there be a reformation found in them.

Fourthly. We desire that these our Resolves may be, as soon as possible, published throughout the whole Continent.

At a meeting of the freeholders and other inhabitants of the Town of Eastham, legally warned and assembled, at the North Meeting-House, the 20th of February, A. D. 1775: Deacon Edward Knowles, Moderator.

The Assembly voted to dismiss the Committee of Correspondence chosen at a meeting held at the South Meeting-House, 22d February, 1774, for this Town, and also voted to choose another, viz: Mr. Theophilus Hopkins, Capt. Edward Knowles, Capt. Amos Knowles, Jun., Major Solomon Pepper, and Mr. John Yates.

Voted, also, the Town's disapprobation and dismissal of Messrs. Thomas Paine, Job Crocker, and Isaiah Higgins, from any business as a Committee of Inspection; (who were chosen by the County Congress at their last meeting at Barnstable, for a Committee of Inspection for this Town, to see that the Resolves of the Congresses and Association are observed and put in execution.)

Also, voted to choose a Committee of three men, viz: Messrs. Amos Knowles, Junior, Benjamin Higgins, and John Doane, as a Committee of Inspection, (to join with a former Committee chosen at a meeting held at the South Meeting-House, 3d of January, 1775,) to see that the Resolves of the Congresses and Association are observed and put in execution.

The Town also voted their charge to the abovesaid Committee, that they strictly adhere to their office, and see that all the Resolves of the Congresses are observed and put in execution in this Town which are agreeable to the Continental Congress.

And, also, voted to make null and void the vote which passed in this Town, at a meeting held at the South Meeting-House, 3d of January, 1775, for the Constables, viz:

Messrs. Job Crocker and Willard Knowles, Junior, to pay the Province Tax assessed in their bills to Henry Gardner, Esquire, of Stow, taking his receipt.

Attest: GIDEON BATY, Town Clerk.

The within has been compared by the Committee of Correspondence, and found to be a true copy of an attested copy of said meeting.

Eastham, February 24, 1775.

Whereas it appears to us that a number of men in this Town have been, and still are using their influence and power in opposition to the measures adopted by the Americans to recover, preserve, and maintain those rights and privileges which our illustrious ancestors so nobly contended for, and have handed down to us as a fair inheritance: Now, in order to free ourselves as much as possible from the embarrassments of those men, and to convince the world that we are determined to persevere in joining our American brethren in their noble efforts to throw off the yoke of tyranny, we think it highly expedient to form ourselves into an Association. Therefore we, the subscribers, mutually agree and associate ourselves under the name and title of Freeholders and Freemen of the Association of the Town of Eastham; and do hereby pledge our faith to each other that we will abide by the Association resolves, and recommendations of the Continental, our Provincial, and this County Congresses, (so far as they are made publick,) to the utmost of our power; and also, that we will abide by the regulations and regular votes, resolves, and agreements that shall be hereafter made by this Association for the purposes before mentioned, of recovering, securing, and maintaining our just rights and privileges.

Eastham, May 26, 1775.

We, the Committee of Correspondence for the Town and Association of Eastham, in compliance with a Resolve of the Provincial Congress of the 12th of April, 1775, render to the Committee of Correspondence for the County of Barnstable the following, which is a true state of the conduct of the Town of Eastham, with respect to their having executed each plan recommended by the Continental and Provincial Congresses:

The Town of Eastham, at a legal meeting, voted that the Constables for the year 1775 might pay the Province money in their hands to Henry Gardner, Esquire, taking his receipt; but soon after, at a meeting at the North Meeting-House, called by the Selectmen by the request of Amos Knowles, Junior, Gideon Baty, Theophilus Hop- kins, Thomas Harding, David Young, Jonathan Doane, Esquire, Amos Knowles, John Taylor, John Doane, Jun., Benjamin Doane, and Samuel Doane, did reconsider the said vote, and made it null and void; but have since, in consequence of a Resolve of the Congress, passed the 31st of March, 1775, recommending to the several Towns and Districts that they oblige their several Constables and Collectors to pay the balances due from them to the Province, &c., did vote that Mr. Job Crocker and Mr. Willard Knowles, Junior, late Constables, pay the Province money in their hands to Henry Gardner, Esquire, taking his receipt, and that Mr. Jonathan Linnel, 3d, and Mr. Jesse Cole, Constables for the year 1774, should pay the Province money assessed in their bills to Henry Gardner, Esq., taking his receipt when it was collected.

ISAAC SPARROW,
JOSEPH COLE,
THOMAS PAINE,

Committee of Correspondence for the Town of Eastham.

N. B. The Resolve for the above fell into the hands of the Town Clerk, and never hath been communicated to the publick, and we were not able to obtain it until this day we were favoured with one from Colonel Nathaniel Freeman, of Sandwich.

Eastham, May 26, 1775.

The following is a true state of the transactions of the Town of Eastham, since February 22, 1774:

The Committee of Correspondence of the Town of Eastham were first chosen by the freeholders and other inhabitants of the Town, from twenty-one years old and upwards, and have acted ever since in that capacity, without molestation, with this exception: At a meeting of the inhabitants of the Town of Eastham, qualified by law to vote in town meetings, called by the Selectmen, at the request of Amos Knowles, Junior, and others, for the purposes of regulating a vote of this Town, passed at a legal town meeting, directing the Collectors for the year 1774, to pay the Provincial money assessed in their bills to Henry Gardner, Esquire, of Stow, taking his receipt; also, to dismiss the Committee of Inspection, viz: Messrs. Thomas Paine, Job Crocker, and Isaiah Higgins, appointed by the County Congress to see that the resolves and recommendations of the several Congresses are put in execution in this Town, and to choose others in their room; and also to dissolve the above Committee of Correspondence, and to choose another in their room, did then and there presume to dissolve said Committee, and chose Messrs. Theophilus Hopkins, Edward Knowles, Amos Knowles, Junior, Solomon Pepper, and John Yates, a Committee of Correspondence, who have never appeared to act in that capacity.

The recommendations of the Provincial Congress for choosing a Delegate came to hand on the evening of Friday, the 19th instant; and from the former conduct of our Selectmen, the Committee of Correspondence thought it best for them to call a meeting for the purpose of choosing said member or members as above; proceeded to notify said meeting, by posting up in the usual places for notifications in this Town an exact copy of the recommendation and resolve of said Congress, desiring the freeholders and other inhabitants of the Town of Eastham, qualified to vote for Representatives, to assemble at the South Meeting-House in said Town, on Wednesday, the 24th of this instant, May, at two o'clock, P. M., then and there to act as they shall think proper. In compliance with the said recommendation, the people met at the time and place, and chose Captain Isaac Sparrow Moderator. The Town Clerk was desired to take his place, and record the proceedings of said meeting, which he refused. The Town then chose Mr. Thomas Paine to record the proceedings of said meeting. The question being put, whether they would choose a member to represent them in said Congress, it passed in the affirmative; when Mr. Amos Knowles, Junior, was chosen by a majority of two votes, including the votes of twelve persons whom the Committee of Correspondence had agreed to discriminate from those who were friendly to their Country, which thing was attempted, but could not be done by reason of there being so great a number of opposers. And whereas the said Amos Knowles, Junior, is chosen as above, who, for ought we know, may obtain a seat in Congress, we find ourselves constrained to mention that three of us have heard him accuse the Provincial Congress of acting in said capacity from selfish views. Some other things of the like nature we might mention, but for brevity's sake omit them.

Eastham, June 16, 1775.

I, Jonathan Linnel, of Eastham, of lawful age, testify that, on the eleventh of April last, at the house of Mr. Josiah Myrick, I heard Amos Knowles, Junior, declare that what the Continental Congress had done was worse than nothing. Further saith not.

Then Jonathan Linnel, after being carefully examined and cautioned to tell the whole truth, made solemn oath to the within deposition, by him subscribed to, taken at the desire of several inhabitants of the Town of Eastham, to be used in their behalf at the Provincial Congress now sitting at Watertown; the adverse party, Mr. Amos Knowles, Junior, being at Watertown aforesaid, not notified nor present at the taking of this deposition.

Samuel Paine, of lawful age, testifieth and saith, on the twenty-fourth day of May last, as he was walking with Amos Knowles, Junior, that said Knowles said to me, that some measures the Congress had taken were as much tyranny as those at home.

SAMUEL PAINE.

BARNSTABLE, ss., June 16, A. D. 1775:

Then Samuel Paine, after being carefully examined and cautioned to tell the whole truth, made solemn oath to the truth of the above deposition, by him subscribed to, taken at the desire of several of the inhabitants of the Town of Eastham, to be used in their behalf at the Provincial Congress now sitting at Watertown; the adverse party, Mr. Amos Knowles, Junior, being at Watertown aforesaid, not notified nor present at the taking this deposition.

Eastham, June 15, 1775.

We, Joseph Cole and Isaac Sparrow, both of Eastham, of lawful age, testify, that in January last, we heard Amos Knowles, Junior, exclaim against the Resolves of the Provincial Congress, because they allowed the Towns to send as many members to Congress as they thought proper, because those Towns near the Congress could keep more members at the Congress than those Towns that were remote, and by that means they could carry points in the Congress as they pleased, to serve their own sinister ends; and further saith not.

ISAAC SPARROW.

BARNSTABLE, ss., June 16, A. D. 1775:

Then Joseph Cole and Isaac Sparrow, after being carefully examined and cautioned to tell the whole truth, made solemn oath to the truth of the within deposition, by them subscribed to, taken at the desire of several inhabitants of the Town of Eastham, to be used in their behalf at the Provincial Congress now sitting at Watertown; the adverse party, Mr. Amos Knowles, Junior, being at Watertown aforesaid, not notified nor present at the taking this deposition. Eastham, June 15, 1775.

I, Jonathan Linnel, the 3d, of Eastham, of lawful age, testify, that I have, at divers times, heard Amos Knowles, Junior, of Eastham, exclaim against Congresses, and in particular, some time in April last, did hear him say, if this Province had chosen so many of the worst men in said Province, and they had studied to do mischief, they could not have done more mischief than the Continental Congress had done, and that the Continental Congress assumed more prerogative power than the British Parliament had done. Further saith not.

BARNSTABLE, ss., June 16, 1775:

Then Jonathan Linnel, the 3d, after being carefully examined and cautioned to tell the whole truth, made solemn oath to the truth of the above deposition, by him subscribed to, taken at the desire of several inhabitants of the Town of Eastham, to be used in their behalf at the Provincial Congress now sitting at Watertown; the adverse party, Mr. Amos Knowles, Junior, being at Watertown aforesaid, not notified nor present at the taking this deposition.

Report of a Committee of the Provincial Congress on the Complaint against AMOS KNOWLES.

The Committee appointed to consider the petition of Thomas Twining, in behalf of himself and the Association of Eastham, praying that Mr. Amos Knowles, Junior, a member of this Congress, may be expelled his seat, after due notice given, have heard the parties and the allegations.

It appears to this Committee, by depositions, and by the evidence of persons present, that Mr. Knowles has, at sundry times and at divers places, expressed himself against the Continental and Provincial Congresses, and has been one of the heads of a large party in said Eastham, which party have been esteemed by the other part of the people in that Town, and by people in other Towns in that County, unfriendly to the publick measures taken by the people of this Congress for the defence of their just rights and liberties.

Mr. Knowles, in his defence, says, he has always been friendly to his Country, but has differed in sentiments from the people in his Town of the other party, who call themselves Whigs, as to the mode of redress. That there has been an unhappy party spirit prevailing there for some time, appears.

And Mr. Knowles says, there is prejudice in the minds of his opposers arising from thence, and desires he may have opportunity of clearing his character nearer home, where, he says, he can produce a plenty of evidence in his favour.

This Committee are therefore of the opinion, that Mr. Knowles leave his seat in this House, and have opportunity to procure the evidence he desires in his favour.

And as it appears the Town of Eastham are nearly divided into parties, which may tend to the utter subversion of peace and good order there, unless means may be found for a happy settlement among them, this Committee therefore are further of the opinion, that the most likely method for accomplishing that desired effect is, that all the good people of Eastham, by their agents, chosen by themselves for each party respectively, attend the next meeting of the Committees of Correspondence for the County of Barnstable, with such evidence as they shall think proper, and endeavour a friendly settlement; and that it be recommended to the said Committee of Correspondence, that they use their best endeavours for the same; and that the present dispute respecting Mr. Knowles's right to a seat, in the mean while subside.

REV. SAMUEL WEBSTER TO THE NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Temple, June 21, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I mentioned to you Mr. Isaac Howe, of New-Ipswich, as a person I imagined suitable to be appointed Quartermaster of Colonel Read's Regiment. I have since seen Mr. Howe, and find he is willing to take the place, which I was doubtful of when I found that the wages was only three pounds per month. If you have not appointed one before this reaches you, I hope you will bear him in mind; he is, I think, a person of very good capacity and property, has been in the Army, and has, as he tells me, the approbation of Colonel Read. He is of fair character, and much used to publick business. I have said enough for me, and I trust you will do right. Pray, gentlemen, don't forget or neglect to give directions to the Committee of Supplies to get ready, as soon as possible, five hundred or one thousand bayonets. It is barbarous to let men be obliged to oppose bayonets with only gun-barrels, and perhaps no ammunition. If many are provided, they will suit somewhere; an armourer will soon fix the sight. Enough may be found to make them, if they are set to work. A man that was in the engagement on Saturday, tells me they suffered egregiously for the want of bayonets, as well as powder and ball. It was a pretty feint in the Regulars to tell of attacking Dorchester, designing another course. I find stories are spread that reflect on the vigilance and even fidelity of those that led; I hope they were not disputing about rank. However this were, we learn that some brave officers and men, as well as some few cowards, have found their rank by death, a universal leveller. I can scarce forbear being very serious and very long; but as you are, or ought to be, I am sensible, very busy, I have done, with only wishing that you may do always right, and that God will reward you, and pity and save our distressed Country. With respect,

SAMUEL WEBSTER.

To the Committee of Safety.

P. S. The drought is hardly so severe here as at Exeter, but it is not thought there will be half a crop of hay.

In Provincial Congress, Charlestown, S. C., }
Thursday, June 22, 1775. }

Resolved, That all Absentees holding estates in this Colony, except the sick, those above sixty, and those under twenty-one years of age, ought forthwith to return to this Colony.

Resolved, That no persons holding estates in this Colony ought to withdraw from its service, without giving good and sufficient reasons for so doing to this Congress, or, during its recess, to the General Committee.

Ordered, That the two foregoing Resolutions be printed and made publick.

PETER TIMOTHY, Secretary.

TO THE PEOPLE OF HENRICO COUNTY, VIRGINIA.

Friends and Fellow-Sufferers:

The threatened force of ministerial vengeance having been at length exerted, the bloody standard erected, and the sword reeking hot with the blood of your brethren in the Massachusetts, threatening you with the same fate, unless you prepare to repel its efforts; there cannot want any inducement for your making the most vigorous exertions for that purpose. And I am sure there needs no argument to picture to you the horrors in which you may be involved, if, by a fatal indifference, you should neglect to provide against the machinations of your enemies, whether external or internal. The justice of the great and common cause of America has been so fully and ably stated, so universally allowed, and so feebly denied, that I cannot suppose any of you ignorant thereof; and in that belief shall not now take up any time in observing upon that head any other than the natural rights of all mankind; in the free enjoyment of personal security, personal liberty, and private property, together with the free disposal of the last mentioned right, which are totally subverted by the assuming power of the British Parliament, are motives sufficient to justify opposition. I have for some time past observed the conduct of a few among you; and though their conduct has not yet had the evil tendency of influencing that of others, yet as the notoriety thereof may probably have a bad effect unless guarded against in time, this has been one inducement for my addressing you upon that head, strengthened by considering the bad policy of reposing publick confidence in such men. And it is to your indifference upon that head that I would guard you against, being sensible you have hitherto left nothing undone whereby to preserve in common your rights and liberties; and it is to such men, and such only, whose consciences accuse them of not having taken an active part in endeavouring to preserve and defend the liberties of their Country, that I would retort the whole force of my former arguments, happy that they would work the desired effect. The good people of Virginia have ever been zealously attached to the present royal family; and you, gentlemen, have always borne an active part, in conjunction with the rest of the Counties in this Colony, in avowing and expressing your attachment and allegiance upon every occasion. And notwithstanding the artful suggestions of all internal enemies, sensible I am that the good people of this Colony wish not any diminution of the constitutional authority of the Crown, or to break off that connexion with the Mother Country so essential to the interests of both. Why, then, will persons pretending the most zealous attachment and firmest adherence to the just cause of America, and putting on professions foreign from their hearts, stand forth and endeavour to gain the confidence of a too much deluded people? To what purpose, other than that of exerting their weak efforts to destroy that unanimity at present so conspicuous throughout this Colony and America, can such persons put on such appearances? Ask such persons to enter themselves as volunteers in the great cause of American freedom, and they will tell you they have taken the oath of allegiance, and cannot; or rather, I suppose, have taken an implicit oath of passive obedience, and will not. Now let such persons bear in mind the doctrine avowed by that very authority which is now endeavouring to enslave us—I mean the Parliament of Great Britain: “That an endeavour to subvert the Constitution of the Kingdom, by breaking the original contract between King and People, and violating the fundamental laws, was sufficient for the People to preserve them in despite of any authority whatever.” Still more apparent, from a supposition that the Constitution is founded upon liberty, and if they do not depart from their former principles, we may yet have the satisfaction of distinguishing between our friends and enemies.

Thus, my countrymen, have I, by a sketch of the political sentiments of this few, endeavoured to set them before you in the clearest point of view; and I could heartily wish that some able pen had taken up the subject before me, for which I have waited with great expectation for some time past. But as it is of great concern that such persons should receive every mark of discountenance and disesteem, they will, I hope, be carefully observed in future, and not be suffered to enlarge upon that confidence already entrusted in them, or to deviate from your own avowed principles, laid down for them to act by—I mean your professed determination of living and dying freemen.

Being influenced to this address by nothing but an ardent zeal for the prosperity of the common cause, grammatical errors will be unnoticed by you, and nothing regarded but the intention of him who wishes at all times to prove himself

A FRIEND TO LIBERTY.

Williamsburgh, Virginia, June 22, 1775.

Friends and Countrymen:

The British Ministry, with unrelenting rigour, continue to persecute the brave Americans. Every device that malevolence could suggest, they adopt to divide the Colonies, who now groan under the rod of tyranny. You are not strangers to the bill which has lately obtained the Royal assent, for restraining the New-England Fishery, whose chief support depends on that beneficial trade; nor the exemption of the Island of Nantucket, which lies about thirty miles from the Massachusetts; an island extremely well calculated to refresh the British fishing vessels, and thereby enable them to rob us of all the advantage arising from that useful commerce. That island has never acceded to the grand American Association, so highly necessary at this important hour for baffling the insidious projects of Bute, North, and Mansfield, with their disgraceful advocates, who are traitors to the British Constitution, and inimical to the rights of mankind.

The noble champions of freedom, the General Congress, recommend to all the friends of America to exert the greatest vigilance to prevent the people of Nantucket from purchasing provisions or necessities of any kind, except from their neighbours, the people of the Massachusetts, and not more of them than are really sufficient for the inhabitants of the island. Notwithstanding, my countrymen, the General Congress, in September last, resolved we should not have any commercial intercourse with any American who would not approve of that General Association, two vessels from the Island of Nantucket have lately entered within our capes to carry provisions and coal to those foes to American liberty. With propriety, I conceive they merit that appellation, as they never acceded to the resolves of the Congress. One is a large schooner called the Diana, of one hundred tons, commanded by Captain Forgers, which is gone up the Bay of Chesapeake to load with Indian corn. The other is in James River, and I think a schooner of fifty tons, named the Little John, Joshua Bunker, master; the captain of which applied to one of our Representatives for a load of coal, who absolutely refused to sell him one bushel, nobly resolving to sacrifice his private interest whenever it clashes with the liberties of America. Such is the unanimity in this Colony, that I think my countrymen will convince the Island of Nantucket, and the venal wretches of Ministry, that neither money nor menaces, with every invention their tortured imagination may pursue, shall ever induce us to infringe the resolves of that august assembly, or deviate from the cause of America.

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. II.

I am, with great sincerity, your friend and well-wisher,
A VIRGINIAN.

SAMUEL ADAMS TO ELBRIDGE GERRY.

Philadelphia, June 22, 1775.

MY DEAR SIR: Our patriotick General Washington will deliver this letter to you. The Massachusetts Delegates have jointly given to him a list of the names of certain gentlemen in whom he may place the greatest confidence. Among these you are one. Major General Lee and Major Mifflin accompany the General. They are a triumvirate which will please the circle of our friends. Mifflin is Aide-Camp to the General. I regret his leaving this City; but have the satisfaction of believing that he will add great spirit to our Army. Time will not admit of my adding at present more than that I am, your affectionate friend,

SAMUEL ADAMS.

Elbridge Gerry, Esq., Watertown.

GENERAL CHARLES LEE TO LORD BARRINGTON.

Philadelphia, June 22, 1775.

To the Right Honourable Lord Viscount BARRINGTON,
His Majesty's Secretary at War:

MY LORD: Although I can by no means subscribe to the opinion of divers people in the world, that an officer on half pay is to be considered in the service, yet I think it a point of delicacy to pay a deference to this opinion, erroneous and absurd as it is. I therefore apprise your Lordship in the most publick and solemn manner, that I do renounce my half pay from the date hereof. At the same time, I beg leave to assure your Lordship, that whenever it shall please His Majesty to call me forth to any honourable service against the natural hereditary enemies of our Country, or in defence of his just rights and dignity, no man will obey the righteous summons with more zeal and alacrity than myself; but the present measures seem to me so absolutely subversive of the rights and liberties of every individual subject, so destructive to the whole Empire at large, and ultimately so ruinous to His Majesty's own person, dignity, and family, that I think myself obliged, in conscience, as a citizen, Englishman, and soldier of a free State, to exert my utmost to defeat them. I most devoutly pray to Almighty God to direct His Majesty into measures more consonant to his interest and honour, and more conducive to the happiness and glory of his People.

I am, my Lord, your most obedient humble servant,
CHARLES LEE.

HORATIO GATES TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Traveller's Rest, June 20, 1775.

DEAR GENERAL: Last night I was honoured by the receipt of your obliging letter of 17th instant. I shall obey your commands with all possible expedition, and hope to be in Philadelphia Thursday next, and wish earnestly to find you there. I must take the liberty to entreat it of you, not to leave the Congress until you are provided, not only with all the powers, but all the means their power can bestow. If it is indispensably necessary you should leave Philadelphia before I get there, I hope to find with Colonel Harrison your positive and particular commands, in regard to any business you may leave unsettled behind you. The request for the riflemen was well received in this Province, and in Maryland. Major Stevenson commands one of the companies from hence, and I believe Captain Morgan the other, both excellent for the service. Colonel Cresap told me on Monday morning that his son had eighty riflemen ready to march; those go for one of the companies from Maryland. Immediately upon the arrival of your express, I despatched your packets to your brother and Colonel Stephen. If their answers don't come in half an hour, I will bring them with me.

My grateful thanks are most respectfully due to the Congress, for the very handsome manner in which they conferred their commission.

I will not intrude more upon that time which is now so precious to you, only to assure you I will not lose a moment in paying you my personal attendance.

With the greatest respect for your character, and the sincerest attachment to your person, I am, dear General, your most faithful and obedient humble servant,

HORATIO GATES.

To the President and Members of the Provincial Congress of the Province of NEW-YORK:
The Memorial of WILLIAM ELPHINSTON, Conductor of Ordnance Stores, humbly sheweth:

That your memorialist was taken prisoner at Crown Point, on the 11th of May last, by a detachment of the Provincial Army. After which event, finding that those persons who formerly were very desirous of purchasing his bills, refused to purchase any more, he obtained a pass for coming to New-York. Since his arrival here, he finds that the Continental Congress have published a resolve forbidding any one to negotiate bills for the pay of any officer in the Army or Navy. By this means your memorialist is reduced to the want of every thing. The nett amount of your memorialist's pay is one guinea per week. Therefore your memorialist earnestly entreats you will be so good as to take his case into consideration, and to allow him so much subsistence as to your wisdom and goodness shall appear reasonable, until such time as permission is granted for negotiating bills in the usual way. And your memorialist, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

WILLIAM ELPHINSTON,
Conductor of Ordnance Stores.

New-York, June 22, 1775.

ELISHA PHELPS TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Albany, June 22, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: According to a resolve of the Honourable Continental Congress, concerning the appointment of Commissaries, &c., his Honour, Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., Governour and Commander-in-Chief in and over His Majesty's English Colony of Connecticut, has appointed me to be Commissary for the Northern Army, and commissioned me accordingly, to receive at Albany, and forward the supplies of provisions for the forces at Lake Champlain, from the Provincial Congress of New-York.

Having arrived at Albany for that purpose, find Mr. Bleecker, commissary of the stores, (by yourselves already provided,) absent; and no supplies for said Troops (as I can understand) are in this place, but in Mr. Bleecker's custody; and his deputy refuses to resign said stores to me, as he has no direction for the same. Therefore, it is not in my power to forward supplies, &c., according to my commission, and the resolve of the Continental Congress. Beg leave to apply to you for advice in the premises, and as the necessity of the case seems to require it, hope for a speedy answer. Mr. Strong, acting commissary heretofore, has purchased about thirty head of fat cattle for the use of said Troops, and now draws on me for pay. I have applied to the Committee in this place, but find no provision made for that purpose. Pray your Honours to send money for the same, or to direct, as you in your wisdom shall think proper.

Interim am your Honours' humble servant,

ELISHA PHELPS.

To the Honourable Provincial Convention for the Province of New-York.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM WETHERSFIELD, CONNECTICUT, TO A GENTLEMAN IN PHILADELPHIA, DATED JUNE 22, 1775.

Before this you must know, I conclude, that there has been a battle, in which fell the honourable, the noble Doctor Warren. For fear you may not have the particulars, I will endeavour in part to relate to you how the affair was, according to the best accounts I can gather by letters from the camp. Last Friday afternoon orders were issued for about eighteen hundred of the Provincial Troops, and two hundred of the Connecticut, to parade themselves at six o'clock, with one day's provision, equipped with packs, blankets, &c. Their orders were given at nine o'clock, and they marched with their teams, trenching tools, &c., on Bunker's Hill, to heave up an intrenchment, which you are sensible is near the water, ships, &c. They worked most surprisingly that night, and were discovered at sunrise by a sailor from the mast-head. The British Army commenced a heavy fire from Copp's Hill, near Cutler's Church, in Boston, and from all the ships which could be brought to play, which continued till near night.

About one o'clock, A. M., the Americans at Cambridge heard that the Regulars were landing from their floating batteries. The alarm was sounded, and they were ordered down to the breastwork at Charlestown; and Captain Chester writes me, that before it was possible for him to get there, the battle had begun in earnest, and cannon and musket balls were plenty about their ears. Chester and my brother were both in the engagement. They re-enforced our men that had left the breastwork in fine order, though they passed through the cannonading of the ships, bombs, chain-shot, ring-shot, &c.; but then their superior number of artillery and men, (for they were three to two,) forced our men to retreat, after a warm engagement of an hour and a half. Thank Heaven, but few of our men fell, considering the advantages they had over us, our men being much fatigued with working at the intrenchments, and I believe not in the best preparation to meet an enemy. The British Troops, to their eternal disgrace, shame, and barbarity, set Charlestown on fire with torches.

My brother says we were obliged to retreat to Prospect Hill, (alias Winter Hill), where we made a stand, and declared we would all die before we would retreat any farther; but the British Troops did not think fit to come out from under the protection of their shipping. The loss of Americans is supposed to be, of wounded, missing, and slain, about one hundred and twenty. A large, genteel, well-dressed gentleman, who first mounted our breastwork, was overset by one of our impudent Americans, who took so good aim as to prevent his ever mounting another, as he tumbled him into the intrenchment just as he cried, "the day is our own."

We greatly rejoice to hear of the coming of the good, the brave, and great General Washington, and shall receive him with open arms.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN AT STOCKBRIDGE TO A GENTLEMAN OF THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS, DATED JUNE 22, 1775.

A firm foundation now turns up to view for the influence of the Stockbridge Indians amongst the Six Nations; and matters stand well with the Canadian Indians. If I had time I would relate to you every particular of what befel the messengers of our Indians to the Six Nations and the Canadian Indians. To be short, they were taken and bound by the Regulars, and carried into Montreal, where, by a Court-Martial, they were condemned to be hanged for a slight suspicion that they were sent to engage the Indians to fall upon the Regulars. This event turned much to our advantage, and has fully fixed the minds of the Indians there against the Regulars. High threatening words passed between the General and the Indian Sachems, who were raised far and near on the occasion, and a wonderful spirit of benevolence appeared towards the young men that were taken by the Indians there. They told them in the strongest terms, that they would take their place, and would die for them. The whole story is very affecting. The Indian Sachems told the General: You have offered us money to fight for you, but we would not take it, as we would have nothing to do with your quarrel; but now we shall know who are our enemies. If you think it best for you to hang these our brothers, that came a great way to see us, do it; but remember, we shall not forget it. Upon these threatenings they thought it best to let the prisoners go, who got away with some difficulty. The Canadian Indians farther told our Indians, that if they did fight at all, they would fight against the Regulars, for they did not like them.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM THE COMMITTEE OF CORRESPONDENCE AT PLYMOUTH, TO THE COMMITTEE OF PROVIDENCE, RHODE-ISLAND, DATED JUNE 22, 1775.

We have a letter come to Town from Saco, giving an account of two vessels with provisions from Gage, under the protection of a tender, having arrived at that place in order to exchange said provision for lumber. The Committee of that Town considered of the propriety of suffering them to trade, and from necessity were obliged to admit them; after this they discovered great partiality in regard to the persons with whom they contracted, which at once created such uneasiness as to determining the people to seize the two vessels, and fire the cutter, which, however, they failed in. She hove up her anchors, proceeded down the river some distance from the Town, where she again anchored; but was soon so warmly attacked from the shore as to be obliged to slip her cables and push down; in her way she boarded a small coasting sloop, Captain Tobey, from Sandwich; and obliged him to undertake the pilotage of the vessel out of the river; but before getting out they boarded a schooner, Captain Avery, from Norwich, and took him also on board. In the mean time the people of Saco fitted out two armed vessels, which pursued the enemy, and soon after getting clear of the land they discovered and made for each other. The tender did not suppose them to be armed till they approached each other, when the master threatened to discharge a brace of balls through Captain Tobey unless he would swear to take up his gun in defence of the vessel; who replied, that as he engaged only as a pilot, he should refuse. The master then excused him, and threatened Avery in like manner, and he was obliged to comply. The first volley from our armed vessel killed poor Avery and the infernal Captain, which put the people into such consternation that they descended into the hold, cabin, &c., and were boarded and carried into Saco. The number of men taken on board the tender is not mentioned; she had four three pounders, twelve swivels, forty or fifty muskets, as many cutlasses, and a number of pistols.

GENERAL WARD TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Head-Quarters, June 22, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I received your favour of the twentieth instant, suggesting to my serious consideration whether it is not proper and expedient to order a regiment or more from the camp at Roxbury. I have this day, in company with General Putnam, been over to Roxbury, and consulted with Generals Thomas, Spencer, and Heath, who are fully in opinion that they have no forces to spare, notwithstanding we are re-enforced to-day by the arrival of Colonel Glover's Regiment from Marblehead. But if the honourable Congress still judge that it is best one regiment or more should be ordered to this camp, it will be cheerfully complied with. It is thought best, if any regiment be removed, it should be Colonel Parsons's, of the Connecticut forces.

I am, gentlemen, with respect, your most humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD.

To the Honourable James Warren, President of the Provincial Congress, sitting at Watertown.

B. GREENLEAF TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Newburyport, June 22, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We understand that you have desired our Selectmen to send the Town stock of powder to Cambridge, saving only one pound for each man. You, perhaps, are not aware that we have lately delivered four half barrels to the order of Congress, and six more to that of the Committee of Supplies, part of which we were encouraged to hope should soon have been replaced. We have likewise furnished our men, who have joined the Army and three large parties who were volunteers on the several alarms that have been made, with cartridges sufficient for their purpose, a considerable part whereof were never returned. By these means our stock is so much reduced as to occasion us great uneasiness, inasmuch as it must prevent our executing some plans we had meditated for the publick good; besides, many of our inhabitants are apprehensive of danger from cutters and other armed vessels, the Admiral having, as it is said, given out some threats. We have been at considerable expense in preparing some light cannon for action, and we are now about erecting a small battery or breastwork, with three or four heavier cannon, which can be procured, to defend ourselves against any attacks by water. But all that we have yet done, and are about to do, will be to no purpose, unless we can have a few barrels of powder ready at hand. We are therefore very loath to part with the little we have, unless the publick cause renders it absolutely necessary, in which case we shall readily give up the last ounce, the destruction of this Town being a trivial matter in our estimation, compared with a final defeat of the Army. However, as it can at any time be conveyed to Cambridge in eight or nine hours from the time of our having notice, we hope it may be agreeable to let it remain here for the present, that so we may have the privilege of using it in our own defence if there should be occasion before it is wanted in the Army. I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant.

By order of the Committee of this Town:

B. GREENLEAF.

STEPHEN HOOPER TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Newburyport, June 22, 1775.

SIR: In a letter I received yesterday from a Committee in the Town of Portsmouth, in New-Hampshire, I am acquainted with their having received fifty barrels of flour from Baltimore for the use of your suffering brethren in Boston, with directions to deliver the same to my order, and that the flour now waits my pleasure. They also acquaint me of their inclination to purchase it for the use of their own Troops. I should therefore be glad to receive the opinion of the Congress, relative to its disposal, as soon as may be, as the aforementioned Committee wait my answer. I am, &c.

STEPHEN HOOPER.

To the President of the Congress.

Cambridge, June 22, 1775.

Last Friday night a detachment from our Army began an intrenchment on an eminence below Bunker Hill, about a mile to the northward of the centre of the Town of Charlestown. The enemy appeared to be much alarmed on Saturday morning, when they discovered our operations, and immediately began a heavy cannonading from a battery on Copp's Hill, Boston, and from the ships in the harbour. Our people, with little loss, continued to carry on the works till one o'clock, P. M., on Saturday, when they discovered a large body of the enemy crossing Charles River from Boston. They landed on a point of land about a mile eastward of our intrenchment, and immediately disposed their Army for an attack; previous to which they set fire to the Town of Charlestown. It is supposed the enemy intended to attack us under cover of the smoke from the burning houses, the wind favouring them in such a design; while, on the other side, their Army was extended northward towards Mistick River, with an apparent design of surrounding our men within the works, and of cutting off any assistance intended for their relief. They were, however, in some measure, counteracted in this design, and drew their Army into close order. As the enemy approached, our men were not only exposed to the attack of a very numerous musketry, but to the heavy fire of the battery on Copp's Hill, four or five men-of-war, several armed boats or floating batteries in Mistick River, and a number of field-pieces; notwithstanding which, our Troops within the intrenchment, and at a breastwork without, sustained the enemy's attacks with real bravery and resolution, killed and wounded great numbers, and repulsed them several times; and after bearing for about two hours as severe and heavy a fire as perhaps ever was known, and many having fired away all their ammunition, they were overpowered by numbers and obliged to leave the intrenchment, retreating about sunset to a small distance over Charlestown Neck. Our loss, from the best information we can obtain, does not exceed fifty killed, and about twenty or thirty taken prisoners.

The Town of Charlestown, supposed to contain about three hundred dwelling-houses, a great number of which were large and elegant, besides one hundred and fifty or two hundred other buildings, are almost all laid in ashes.

The enemy yet remain in possession of Charlestown, and have erected works for their defence on Bunker Hill. It is said they have brought over some of their Light-horse from Boston.

Our Troops continue in high spirits. They are fortifying a very high hill about a mile and a half from this Town, and within cannon-shot of the enemy on Bunker Hill.

GEN. FOLSOM TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Medford, June 22, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I arrived here Tuesday morning, and immediately waited on the Captain-General, who chose to fix the New-Hampshire Troops in this quarter and Winter Hill; yesterday was taken up in providing barracks for the companies just come in.

I am informed our Troops behaved gallantly in the late engagement. The Continent has sustained a heavy loss in Doctor Joseph Warren, who is missing, and it is said was killed in the trench beyond Bunker Hill. Major McClary was killed by an accidental shot from one of the ships some time after our people had made their retreat. The whole loss sustained by the Provincials is about seventy-five killed and taken, and about one hundred and twenty-five wounded—about twenty-five of them mortally.

I enclose you an account of the loss sustained by Colonel Read's Regiment, and request that the sufferers may be immediately supplied with their necessary clothing, &c. Colonel Stark was requested to make a like return of his Regiment, but he has not yet done it; he tells me he had fifteen men killed, and forty-five wounded. I shall send as many of Colonel Poor's Regiment on duty to Winter Hill this morning, as intrenching tools can be found for; there is a great scarcity of those things here. It is highly necessary our Troops should have their tents as soon as possible; they have no shelter from the rain on Winter Hill. What tents are finished, if but few, should be sent forward as soon as possible, with as many spades, shovels, and pick-axes, as can be got in readiness, and some bullets and flints. I can get no regular account of the loss the King's Troops sustained. One Mr. Bradford writes to Colonel Lincoln from Hingham, the nineteenth instant; he says: "Yesterday I came out of Boston at two o'clock, A. M. I heard the officers and soldiers say that they were sure they had a thousand or more killed and wounded; that they were carrying the wounded men from four o'clock, Saturday, till I came away. General Howe commanded the Troops. They buried their dead at Charlestown. Among their dead was Major Pitcairn; a great many other officers are dead. There were five thousand soldiers went from Boston; the soldiers and officers exult very much upon taking our lines.

A messenger I sent to Head-Quarters for intrenching tools is just returned, and informs me he cannot get one; therefore must further urge the necessity of forwarding them immediately.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

NATHANIEL FOLSOM.

To the Committee of Safety at Exeter.

P. S. According to your directions I inquired at Head-Quarters the rank of the General Officers, and inform you that Mr. Ward is Captain-General, Mr. Thomas Lieut. General, and the other Generals are Major-Generals.

CHARLES CITY COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

June 23, 1775.

To the Gentlemen of the Committee and Freeholders of BUCKINGHAM County, VIRGINIA:

GENTLEMEN: Being fully sensible of the obligation we are under to you, by your generosity and humanity in offering us an asylum in the bosom of your friendship, at a time when all the evils of a civil war are precipitately approaching; and knowing we must be involved by our situation in much greater difficulties than you; how can we longer restrain the spring of gratitude within the compass of our own breasts?

We observe, gentlemen, in our papers, an address from you to the people in the lower part of the Country, inviting them to make use of your plantations for the safety and refuge of their wives and little ones, with all things they think fit to carry with them for their support. Such an instance of tender and brotherly feeling must convey an idea of the noblest disposition and unequalled affection in you; and such an example who would not, in every situation of life, anxiously endeavour to follow.

Permit us, then, gentlemen, in the fulness of our gratitude, to inform you how much we are obliged to you; and that if the unhappy differences between us and our Parent State should so increase as to compel us to the necessity of accepting your offer, we shall, with the risk of our lives, endeavour to secure your region from the tyranny now threatened. So shall yours and ours enjoy the same blessing—one safety—till our gracious Sovereign is again pleased to communicate to all his people the generous language of unity and peace.

That you may long enjoy every blessing this little life can give, and that the impending dangers Almighty God may yet vouchsafe to avert, is the ardent and daily prayer of, gentlemen, your much obliged and most affectionate countrymen.

By order of the Committee of Charles City County.

WM. G. MUNFORD,
SAMUEL HARWOOD,
JOHN TYLER.

ALBANY COMMITTEE TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Albany Committee Chamber, June 23, 1775.

BRETHREN: We have received a vague and uncertain account from your Colony, of an engagement which your Troops have had with the enemies of our Country at or near Charlestown. As we feel ourselves deeply interested in every event affecting the general weal of America, it gives us great pleasure that (though with the loss of many brave men) you have been able, if our information be true, to drive, with considerable loss, the tools of tyranny and oppression back to their asylum. Strongly impressed with the warmest disposition to cultivate harmony with you, and, if necessary, to afford you all the assistance in our power, we have therefore sent you this by Mr. Price, in order to receive from you a circumstantial detail of the late engagement and its consequences.

May that God who has so often signally espoused our cause in the arduous struggle for liberty and humanity, still continue to you his gracious guidance and protection.

We expect daily an attack upon Ticonderoga from Canada.

We are at a loss to know what must be done with the donations collected in this City for the poor of Boston; and beg to be informed by you, as the chief of the contributions are in grain, whether we shall dispose of it here, and convert it into cash, or otherwise wait your directions.

We are, brethren, your very humble servants.

By order of the Committee: SAMUEL STRINGER,
Chairman pro tempore.

To the Provincial Congress of the Colony of Massachusetts-Bay if sitting, or otherwise to the Committee of War at Cambridge or elsewhere.

New-York, June 23, 1775.

MR. HOLT: The County of Cumberland, in this Province, having been represented as inimical to the proceedings of the late Continental Congress at Philadelphia, and to the several Provincial Congresses since held in the respective British Colonies in America, in defence of their just rights and freedom; you are desired to publish in the New-York Journal the following Proceedings and Resolutions of a General Committee, consisting of the Committees of a number of Towns, by which the whole County was well represented at a meeting in October last. The long delay of the publication was occasioned by some unfair practices of a small but mischievous party, together with the remote situation of the County from the City of New-York.

At a meeting of the Committees from a number of Townships in the County of Cumberland, and Province of New-York, held at the County-Hall, at Westminster, on the 19th and 20th of October, 1774, to consider a Letter very lately received from Mr. Isaac Low, Chairman of the Committee of Correspondence of New-York, dated May 21st, 1774, to consult on measures proper to be taken at this important day: present, eighteen Delegates from twelve Towns.

Colonel JOHN HAZELINE chosen Chairman.

After having read Mr. Chairman Low's Letter, and the Act of the British Parliament in laying a duty or tax on Tea, for the purpose of raising a revenue in America, the Boston Port Bill, so called, and divers other late Acts of the British Parliament; sundry debates being had thereon, Voted, That John Grout, Esquire, Mr. Joshua Webb, Doctor Paul Spooner, Mr. Edward Harris, and Major William Williams, be a Committee to take into consideration the aforesaid Letter, and divers aforesaid Acts, and report to this meeting. Who reported as follows:

This County being in its infant state, contending with the hardships of subduing the wilderness, and converting it into fruitful fields, being situated here in a corner, at a considerable remove from the populous, civilized parts of the Country, conceive they, by their own experience, in a small degree feel the sufferings of their ancestors.

The first planters in America endured hunger, cold, and other distresses, until they, by their arduous industry, found suitable relief from their bountiful fields and their own expenses; and as the people of this County were chiefly born in some one or other of the New-England Provinces, and conceive them to be at least as loyal to the King as any subjects he can boast of, are surprised to find, by the late Acts of Parliament, that all Americans are deprived of that great right of calling that their own, which they by their industry have honestly acquired; are surprised to find a power arise in Britain, which, with impunity say, they have a right to bind the Colonies in all cases whatsoever, and attempt to exercise that authority, by taking, at their pleasure, the properties of the King's American subjects without their consent; especially since some of the former Kings of Great Britain by charter granted to their subjects in New-England, their heirs, and assigns, and all others who should settle within certain boundaries, divided into Colonies, all the liberties and privileges of natural free-born subjects of England; yet, notwithstanding this, that such a power should arise under the mere inspection of the King, unrebuked, to claim all American property, and actually to take as much as they please, in direct breach of the solemn compact between a former King, on his part, and his successors, made with the first planters of these Colonies, and others that after should be born among them, or join them, or be born on the seas when going thither; and we do not conceive those whose rights are as aforesaid solemnly declared, are more sacred in respect of the security of their property, than the right of this and other Colonies whose rights are only natural as British subjects; for he who has nothing but what another has power at pleasure lawfully to take away from him, has nothing that he can call his own, and is, in the fullest sense of the word, a slave—a slave to him who has such power; and as no part of British America stipulated to settle as slaves, the privileges of British subjects are their privileges, and whoever endeavours to deprive them of their privileges is guilty of treason against the Americans, as well as the British Constitution. Therefore Resolved, i. That as true and loyal subjects of our gracious Sovereign, King George the Third of Great Britain, &c., we will spend our lives and fortunes in his service.

ii. That as we will defend our King while he reigns over us, his subjects, and wish his reign may be long and glorious, so we will defend our just rights, as British subjects, against every power that shall attempt to deprive us of them, while breath is in our nostrils, and blood in our veins.

iii. That considering the late Acts of the British Parliament for blocking up the Port of Boston, &c., which we view as arbitrary and unjust, inasmuch as the Parliament have sentenced them unheard, and dispensed with all the modes of law and justice which we think necessary to distinguish between lawfully obtaining right for property injured, and arbitrarily enforcing to comply with their will, (be it right or wrong,) we resolve to assist the people of Boston in defence of their liberties to the utmost of our abilities.

iv. Sensible that the strength of our opposition to the late Acts consists in a uniform, manly, steady, and determined mode of procedure, we will bear testimony against and discourage all riotous, tumultuous, and unnecessary mobs which tend to injure the persons or properties of harmless individuals; but endeavour to treat those persons whose abominable principles and actions show them to be enemies to American liberty, as loathsome animals not fit to be touched or to have any society or connection with.

v. Resolved, That we choose a Committee to correspond with the other Committees of Correspondence of this Province and elsewhere, and that Mr. Joshua Webb, John Grout, Esquire, Deacon John Sessions, Major William Williams, and Captain Jacob Hoisington, be a Committee as aforesaid.

vi. Resolved, That the thanks of this Committee be given to the Committee of Correspondence in the capital of this Province, for the notice they have taken of this infant County.

vii. Resolved, That Mr. Chairman forward these Resolves to Mr. Low, Chairman of the Committee of Correspondence at New-York, and communicate to him by Letter the reasons why his Letter to the Supervisors of this County was answered no sooner.

viii. Resolved, That Colonel Hazeltine, the Chairman, have the thanks of this Committee for his good services as Chairman.

The above Report being divers times read, paragraph by paragraph,

Voted, nemine contradicente, That the same be accepted as the sense of this meeting, and as their Resolves.

By order of the Convention:

JOHN HAZELTINE, Chairman.

COLONEL ARNOLD TO THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

Ticonderoga, June 23, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: The Congress of the Colony of the Massachusetts-Bay, on the fourteenth day of June last, appointed Walter Spooner, Frederick Foster, and James Sullivan, a Committee to repair to the fortresses of Ticonderoga and Crown Point, on the Lake Champlain, to inquire into the importance of holding those posts, and also the method by which they may be maintained; to establish there in the pay of said Colony, so many men to defend the same posts as they should judge necessary, not exceeding four hundred: And the said Committee were also by said Congress directed, when they should have made themselves fully acquainted with the situation and importance of said posts, respectfully to signify their thoughts thereon to your Honours.

Wherefore, by order of said Committee, I take leave to inform you, that it is the opinion of said Committee, such is the importance of these fortresses, that should they once be in the hands of the enemies to America, the Colony of New-York, together with the New-England Colonies, would be in continual danger of having depredations committed on them by the regular forces who would be possessed of those garrisons; and should the Canadians and savages, who, we hope, are not yet at enmity with us, be inclined to take part with the Ministerial Army, the distress of the Colonies before mentioned must be extremely great. A garrison at the south end of Lake George, however tenable, could be of but little service to the New-England Colonies, because the most easy route for an army from Quebeck into New-England would be through Lake Champlain to South-Bay, from whence they might travel by land through the new settlements of New-York into the New-England Governments, and destroy the frontier towns on their march, drive the farmers from their fields, prevent the large supplies of wheat and other necessaries which may soon be expected from these new settlements, send distress and famine into the bowels of the country, and this all without being on a right line within many miles of the south end of Lake George.

I am also ordered by said Committee to signify to your Honours, that it is the opinion of said Committee that the defence of these fortresses must be supported by holding the command of Lake Champlain, which they conceive may be more easily done by having vessels of various constructions, well manned and armed, floating there; for which purpose the Committee have stationed four hundred men there, which are all that the embarrassed circumstances of our Colony can at present admit of, to co-operate with near a thousand under the command of Colonel Hinman, who is sent to those posts by the Government of Connecticut; but whether the forces now on the lake are sufficient for the purposes aforementioned, your Honours' will judge.

B. ARNOLD.

To the Honourable the President and the Members of the American Congress now sitting at Philadelphia.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Lebanon, June 23, 1775.

SIR: I am to acknowledge the receipt of yours of the seventeenth June, enclosing the Resolve in Congress of the sixteenth; the recommendation of a fast; and Col. Dyer's letter of the sixteenth. This express passing in haste can only inform thereof, and mention that my letter of the twentieth, which hope you will receive before this, will inform of what is already done. Have enclosed the address of the people of Great Britain to the inhabitants of America, not knowing whether you have received it from any other way. This express brings you intelligence from camp near Boston. I sincerely condole the loss of the worthy Doctor Warren, the unhappy burning of Charlestown, &c. God grant wisdom, unanimity, and success, to our American Councils and cause. Without time to enlarge or to write to our Delegates, to whom pray my compliments, I am, with great truth and regard, Sir, your most obedient and most humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM AN OFFICER ON BOARD ONE OF THE KING'S SHIPS AT BOSTON, TO HIS FRIEND IN LONDON, DATED JUNE 23, 1775.

On the evening of the sixteenth we were informed that the Provincials were erecting a battery on the heights near Charlestown, and that they intended from thence to bombard the Town of Boston. Early on the seventeenth, we were alarmed with an account that they had been at work upon it all night, and had nearly completed it. We were immediately ordered to land some battalions, and in the mean time our great guns were fired against those who appeared to be busily employed at the battery. Whether our shot did not reach far enough to create any confusion among them, or it was owing to their resolution, I cannot say; but certain it is, that the moment they discovered the landing of our Troops, they formed in order of battle, and so far from retreating, as we expected, they marched towards us with the utmost coolness and regularity. Nothing can exceed the panick and apparent dislike of most of the King's Troops to enter into this engagement; even at the landing, several attempted to run away, and five actually took to their heels in order to join the Americans, but were presently brought back, and two of them were immediately hung up in terrorem to the rest. They, for the most part, openly express a dislike to the service in which they are engaged, and nothing but the fear of military punishment prevents their daily deserting. The Generals, perceiving the strength and order of the Provincials, ordered a reinforcement to join the Troops already landed, but before they came up, the cannonading on both sides began. The Provincials poured down like a torrent, and fought like men who had no care for their persons; they disputed every inch of ground, and their numbers were far superiour to ours. The King's Troops gave way several times, and it required the utmost efforts of the Generals to rally them. At the beginning of the engagement many of them absolutely turned their backs, not expecting so hot a fire from the Americans; the latter feigned a retreat, in order, as we suppose, to draw our Troops after them, and by that means to cut them in pieces; and we are informed that General Ward had a reserve of four thousand men for that purpose. The King's Troops, concluding that the Americans quitted the field through fear, pursued them under that apprehension, but did not proceed far enough to be convinced, by that fatal experience which was, as we hear, designed for them, of their mistake. The engagement lasted upwards of four hours, and ended infinitely to our disadvantage. The flower of our Army are killed or wounded. During the engagement Charlestown was set on fire by the King's Troops, in order to stop the progress of the Provincials, who, after their sham retreat, returned to attack them; but I think it was a wanton act of the King's Troops, who certainly, after they had joined the main body of our Army, had no occasion to take that method of retarding the return of the Americans, who, upon perceiving that General Ward stood still with his reserve, laid aside their intentions.

Our Troops are sickly, and a great number are afflicted with the scurvy, occasioned by the want of fresh provisions. I heartily wish myself with you and the rest of my friends; and the first opportunity that offers I will sell out and return, for at the best only disgrace can arise in the service of such a cause as that in which we are engaged. The Americans are not those poltrons I myself was once taught to believe them to be; they are men of liberal and noble sentiments; their very characteristick is the love of liberty; and though I am an officer under the King of Great Britain, I tacitly admire their resolution and perseverance, against the present oppressive measures of the British Government.

To the Honourable President and Members of the Provincial Congress, now sitting at WATERTOWN:

The Petition of the Selectmen, Officers of the Militia, and Committee of Correspondence of MANCHESTER, humbly sheweth:

That whereas, this Town labours under peculiar difficulty, by reason of its being so situated as greatly exposes us to the inroads of our merciless enemies, and we are thereby reduced to the disagreeable necessity of keeping a constant guard in several parts of the Town, for the defence of life and property; and having received information from Headquarters in Cambridge, in which the necessity of keeping a very strict guard is urged, in consequence whereof our guards are doubled, that the malevolent intentions of those who are indefatigable in their endeavours to distress us may, if possible, be defeated, together with our numbers being considerably lessened, as there is nigh one full company gone from hence into the service of our Country, has increased our duty and made it more fatiguing; which, of necessity, calls off men of every description, among others farmers, whereby our agriculture is greatly impeded, and which is now our principal dependance, as many of the inhabitants are seamen, and the business on which they entirely depend for the support of themselves and families, being cut off; and the failure of the fishery, the chief branch of business on which this Town depended, has deprived us of the usual income by which we have been in part enabled to pay our proportion of publick charges, which are daily increasing, as also the charges of the Town, that so affects us as to reduce us to great straits and difficulties; and for this Town, under its present circumstances, to put into pay a sufficient number of men to guard and defend it against the invasions of our enemies, would be a burden greater than we are able to bear:

We, your petitioners, therefore pray, that you would take into your serious consideration the difficulties under which we now labour, and grant us the privilege of raising a company of men, or part of one, and the liberty of choosing officers therefor, and quartered in the Town, for its defence and security; which company to be on the Provincial Establishment, and to appertain to that Regiment which may be posted nearest to us.

And thus having represented our case to this honourable Congress, we have a prevailing confidence that our request will meet with a favourable reception, and we receive the end of our petition. The grant of which, your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS TO GENERAL WARD.

In Congress, Watertown, June 23, 1775.

SIR: As it appears to this Congress highly probable that the Army of our enemies will speedily make the utmost efforts to force our lines and penetrate into the country, they have judged it absolutely necessary for the strengthening of the Army before Boston, that the eight Companies now posted in the County of Plymouth, belonging partly to General Thomas's Regiment, and partly to Colonel Cotton's Regiment, should immediately join the said Army. You are therefore directed, without delay, to give the orders necessary for the marching the said eight Companies to the said Army, as soon as may be.

To General Ward.

GENERAL FOLSOM TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Medford, June 23, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: In my letter to you yesterday I acquainted you that on my arrival here, I immediately waited on the Captain-General. He then ordered me to make return to him of the two Regiments, viz: Colonel Stark's and Colonel Read's, of their situation and circumstances. On my return here, I sent orders to the two Colonels to make return of their respective Regiments to me; Colonel Read immediately obeyed the order, but Colonel Stark repeatedly, and at last absolutely refused to comply. I am well informed by Mr. Stark's best friends, that he does not intend to be under any subordination to any person appointed by the Congress of New-Hampshire to the general command of the New-Hampshire Troops. I have tried all conciliatory methods, both by personal conversation and the mediation of friends, but without effect; in consequence whereof, I this afternoon again waited on the Captain-General at Head-Quarters, to take his orders on the matter. He requested me to advise with the Committee of Safety of New-Hampshire on the business. As Colonel Stark has received no commission as yet from you, he thinks he does not properly come under his cognizance.

Gentlemen, it is, I trust, unnecessary to hint to you, that, without a proper subordination, it will be absolutely impossible for me to execute the trust you have reposed in me. In my last conversation with Stark, he told me he could take his pack and return home, (and meant, I suppose, to lead his men with him.) I represented to him the dishonourable part he would thereby act towards both Colonies. I have since made inquiry, and find he would not be able to lead off many more than the supernumeraries of his Regiment, it still consisting of thirteen Companies. I think a Regiment might be formed of the men who have been under his command, without his being appointed to the command of them.

I must do the justice to Lieutenant-Colonel Wyman to say, he has behaved prudently, courageously, and very much like a gentleman, and I think I could recommend him for the command as soon as any person I know.

I think I shall never be able to do any thing with the Regiment, unless you make new regulations in the field officers, whom I would recommend should be taken out of the Captains of that Regiment, which I apprehend would facilitate the union of our troops.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

NATHANIEL FOLSOM.

ADDRESS OF COL. BAILEY TO THE NORTHERN INDIANS.

Newbury, June 23, 1775.

The present war is only between the King and a part of the Lords and America. The Lords say, all America shall become slaves or servants to them; shall plough no more than they say; eat nor drink, nor wear, nor hunt, only by their leave; shall not kill deer, moose, beaver, or any other thing, but by their consent. America say they will; and that the King, by the Lords' advice, has sent red coats to kill us, if we will not be subject to what they say. And we have thirty thousand men, with guns, great and small, to fight in our defence; we only want to live as we have heretofore; we do not want to fight, if they would let us alone. You are as much threatened as we; they want you to kill us, and then they will kill you, if you will not serve them. Dreadful wicked men they be; they do not think there is any God that will punish them by and by. If you have a mind to join us, I will go with any number you shall bring to our Army, and you shall each have a good coat and blanket, &c., and forty shillings per month, let the time be longer or shorter. If you will go to Canada and get what intelligence you can, and bring it to me, at any place you shall set, I will meet you myself, and pay you well; further, if you are any way afraid of the Regulars, you and all those tribes shall have protection here, or we will fight for you in your own country, if wanted; but if you or the French, or any other Indians, fight against us, we know your country, and shall be troublesome to you; you know how we could fight last war. But I know you will be friendly, and you may depend upon us; we will pawn all we have for the most strict observance of any agreement made with you. We are now all brothers, and we will be so with you; for one God made us all, and all must meet before God in a little while.

MEETING OF THE LIVERY OF LONDON IN COMMON-HALL.

London, Saturday, June 24, 1775.

This day came on, at Guildhall, the election of Sheriffs for the City of London and County of Middlesex, and other officers, for the year ensuing. At a quarter past one o'clock, the Lord Mayor, attended by the two Sheriffs, Recorder, and the Aldermen Bull, Lewes, Thomas, Newnham, Hayley, Esdaile, Rawlinson, &c., ascended the Hustings, when the Common Crier opened the Court, and the Aldermen below the Chair, who had not served the office of Sheriff, were first put in nomination. The principal show of hands appearing in favour of Aldermen Hayley and Newnham, the Sheriffs declared the election to have fallen on them.

The names of Hayley and Newnham were received with the greatest applause, which was testified by almost every one in the Hall holding up their hands. About twelve people held up their hands for Alderman Rawlinson, and about seven for Alderman Thomas.

The Lord Mayor then came to the front of the Hustings, and acquainted the Livery, that in consequence of their Resolutions last Common-Hall, he waited on His Majesty, in his corporate capacity, with their Address, &c. He then read the King's Answer, together with a Letter he received a few days after from the Lord Chamberlain, with his (the Lord Mayor's) Answer.

Mr. Saxby, the Chairman from the Livery at the Half-Moon Tavern, then came forward, and made the following motions:

1. That the Town Clerk do enter in the Records of this City, the Letter from the Lord Chamberlain to the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, with his Lordship's Answer.

2. That the thanks of this Common-Hall be given to the Right Honourable John Wilkes, Lord Mayor, for his very able, judicious, and spirited defence of the rights and privileges of the Livery in Common-Hall assembled.

3. That a copy of the said Resolution be fairly transcribed and signed by the Town Clerk, and by him delivered to his Lordship.

4. That whoever advised His Majesty to declare he would not in future receive on the Throne any Address, Remonstrance, and Petition, from the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Livery of London, are enemies to the right of the subject to petition the Throne, because such advice is calculated to intercept the complaints of the People to their Sovereign, to prevent a redress of grievances, and alienate the minds of Englishmen from the Hanoverian succession.

5. That it is the opinion of this Common-Hall, that unless His Majesty hears the petitions of his subjects, the right of petitioning is nugatory.

6. That the thanks of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Livery, in Common-Hall assembled, be given to the Right Honourable the Earl of Effingham, for having, consistent with the principles of a true Englishman, refused to draw that sword which has been employed to the honour of his Country, against the lives and liberties of his fellow-subjects in America.

7. That the said Resolution be fairly transcribed and signed by the Town Clerk, and by him delivered to the Right Honourable the Earl of Effingham.

8. That an humble Address, Remonstrance, and Petition be presented to His Majesty, from the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Livery of the City of London, in Common-Hall assembled, on this important crisis of American affairs.

9. To agree to the Address, Remonstrance, and Petition now read.

10. That the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, our Representatives in Parliament, the Court of Aldermen, the Sheriffs and Livery, in their Gowns, attended by the Recorder and other City officers, be desired to present the said Address, Remonstrance, and Petition, to His Majesty sitting on his Throne.

11. That the Sheriffs, attended by the Remembrancer, do wait on His Majesty on Monday next, to know his Royal will and pleasure when he will receive on the Throne the humble Address, Remonstrance, and Petition of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Livery, in Common-Hall assembled.

12. That the said Address, Remonstrance, and Petition, be not presented to His Majesty but sitting on the Throne.

The above motions being unanimously approved of, the Hall was adjourned.

London, June 27, 1775.

Yesterday the Sheriffs went up to St. James's to know His Majesty's pleasure when he would be pleased to permit the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, Common Council, and Livery, to wait on him with their Petition, and Remonstrance. His Majesty being at Kew, they went thither, where they waited about three-quarters of an hour, when His Majesty signified to them, by a Lord in waiting, that they should go up to St. James's to-morrow for an answer. They returned to the Mansion-House at nine o'clock.

London, July 4, 1775.

At a meeting of the Livery of London, in Common-Hall assembled:

The Lord Mayor acquainted the Livery that the Sheriffs waited on His Majesty at St. James's on Wednesday last, and that Mr. Sheriff Plomer addressed His Majesty as follows:

"May it please your Majesty:

"We are ordered by the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Livery of the City of London, in Common-Hall assembled, to wait upon your Majesty, humbly to know your Majesty's Royal will and pleasure when your Majesty will be pleased to receive upon the Throne their humble Address, Remonstrance, and Petition."

To which His Majesty answered:

"You will please to take notice, that I will receive their Address, Remonstrance, and Petition, on Friday next, at the levee."

Mr. Sheriff Plomer replied:

"Your Majesty will permit us to inform you, that the Livery, in Common-Hall assembled, have resolved not to present their Address, Remonstrance, and Petition, unless your Majesty shall be pleased to receive it sitting on the Throne."

To which His Majesty answered:

"I am ever ready to receive addresses and petitions; but I am the judge where."

The Lord Mayor then declared, that in consequence of the order of the Livery that the Address, Remonstrance, and Petition should not be presented to the King but sitting on his Throne, the Sheriffs' Report to him, and Lord Hertford's Letter, his Lordship had not attended His Majesty with the said Address.

Ordered, That His Majesty's Answer, now reported, be entered in the books of the Livery of this City.

Resolved, That the King is bound to hear the Petitions of his People, it being the undoubted right of the subject to be heard, and not a matter of grace and favour.

Resolved, That His Majesty's Answer is a direct denial of the right of this Court to have their Petitions heard.

Resolved, That such denial renders the right of petitioning the Throne, recognized and established by the Revolution, of no effect.

Resolved, That whoever advises His Majesty, directly or indirectly, to refuse hearing the humble Address, Remonstrance, and Petition of this Court, on the Throne, is equally an enemy to the happiness and security of the King, and the peace and liberties of the People.

Ordered, That the Address, Remonstrance, and Petition which His Majesty refused to hear on the Throne, be printed in the publick papers, and signed by the Town Clerk.

Resolved, That the following Instruction be given to our Representatives in Parliament:

"GENTLEMEN: You are instructed by the Livery in Common-Hall assembled, to move immediately on the next meeting of Parliament, for an humble Address from the House of Commons to His Majesty, requesting to know who were the advisers of those fatal measures which have planted Popery and arbitrary power in America, and have plunged us into a most unnatural civil war, to the subversion of the fundamental principles of English liberty, the ruin of our most valuable Commerce, and the destruction of His Majesty's subjects; to know who were the advisers of a measure so dangerous to His Majesty's happiness; and the rights of his people, as refusing to hear the petitions and complaints of his subjects. You are further instructed, gentlemen, to move for an impeachment of the authors and advisers of those measures; that, by bringing them to publick justice, evil counsellors may be removed from before the King, his Throne may be established, the rights of the people be vindicated, and the whole Empire restored to the enjoyment of peace, liberty, and safety."

Ordered, That the said Resolution be fairly transcribed, and signed by the Town Clerk, and by him delivered to our Representatives in Parliament.

Ordered, That the Sheriffs do wait upon His Majesty, and deliver into His Majesty's hand, in the name of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Livery in Common-Hall assembled, a fair copy of the Resolutions agreed to on Midsummer-day and this day, signed by the Town Clerk.

July 5, 1775.

The Sheriffs waited on His Majesty at St. James's, when Mr. Sheriff Plomer addressed the King in the following words:

"May it please your Majesty:

"We are ordered by the Mayor, Aldermen, and Livery of the City of London, in Common-Hall assembled, to wait upon your Majesty, humbly to deliver into your Majesty's hands, in their name, their Resolutions agreed to in Common-Hall, on the 24th day of June last, and of the 4th instant."

Mr. Sheriff Plomer then delivered a copy of the Resolutions only, but not the Address, Petition, and Remonstrance, into the King's hand, which he received without saying a word. The Address, Petition, and Remonstrance was ordered by the Common-Hall to be given to the publick in print.

At a meeting of the Livery of London, in Common-Hall assembled, on Saturday, the 24th of June, 1775:

A motion being made and question put, that an humble Address, Remonstrance, and Petition be presented to His Majesty, from the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Livery of the City of London, in Common-Hall assembled, on this important crisis of American affairs; the same was resolved in the affirmative.

And an Address, Remonstrance, and Petition to the King being produced, a motion was made that the same be read; and the question being put by Mr. Recorder, it was resolved in the affirmative; whereupon, the same was read, as follows:

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty:

The humble Address, Remonstrance, and Petition of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Livery of LONDON:

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most faithful subjects, the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, Livery, &c., of London, in Common-Hall assembled, are compelled again to disturb your Majesty's repose with our complaints.

We have already expressed to your Majesty our abhorrence of the tyrannical measures pursued against our fellow-subjects in America, as well as of the men who secretly advise, and of the Ministers who execute these measures.

We desire to repeat again, that the power contended for over the Colonies, under the specious name of dignity, is, to all intents and purposes, despotism; and that the exercise of despotick power in any part of the Empire, is inconsistent with the character and safety of this Country.

As we would not suffer any man or body of men to establish arbitrary power over us, we cannot acquiesce in any attempt to force it upon any part of our fellow-subjects. We are persuaded, that by the sacred unalterable rights of human nature, as well as by every principle of the Constitution, the Americans ought to enjoy peace, liberty, and safety; that whatever power invades these rights ought to be resisted. We hold such resistance in vindication of their constitutional rights, to be their indispensable duty to God, from whom those rights are derived to themselves, who cannot be safe and happy without them; to their posterity, who have a right to claim this inheritance at their hands, unviolated and unimpaired.

We have already remonstrated to your Majesty, that these measures were big with all the consequences which could alarm a free and commercial people; a deep, and perhaps fatal, wound to commerce; the ruin of manufactures; the diminution of the revenue, and consequent increase of taxes; the alienation of the Colonies, and the blood of your Majesty's subjects.

Unhappily, Sire, the worst of these apprehensions is now realized in all its horror. We have seen, with equal dread and concern, a civil war commenced in America by your Majesty's Commander-in-Chief. Will your Majesty be pleased to consider what must be the situation of your people here, who have nothing now to expect from America but Gazettes of blood, and mutual lists of their slaughtered fellow-subjects.

Every moment's prosecution of this fatal war may loosen irreparably the bonds of that connection on which the glory and safety of the British Empire depend.

If any thing could add to the alarm of these events, it is your Majesty's having declared your confidence in the wisdom of men, a majority of whom are notoriously bribed to betray their constituents and their Country. It is the misfortune of your Majesty, it is the misfortune and grief of your People, to have a Grand Council and a Representative under an undue and dangerous influence—an influence which, though procured by your Ministers, is dangerous to your Majesty, by deceiving you; and to your People, by betraying them.

In such a situation your petitioners are bound to declare to your Majesty, that they cannot and will not sit unconcerned; that they will exert themselves, at every hazard, to bring those who have advised these ruinous measures, to the justice of this Country, and of the much injured Colonies.

We have already signified our persuasion, that these evils originate in the secret advice of those who are equally enemies to your Majesty's title, and to the rights of your People. Your petitioners are now compelled to say, that your Throne is surrounded by men avowedly inimical to those principles on which your Majesty possesses the Crown, and this people their liberties. At a time of such difficulty and danger, publick confidence is essential to your Majesty's repose, and to the preservation of your People. Such confidence cannot be obtained by Ministers and advisers who want wisdom, and hold principles incompatible with freedom; nor can any hope of relief be expected from a Parliament chosen under a national delusion insidiously raised, by misrepresentations touching the true state of America, and artfully embraced by a precipitate dissolution.

Your petitioners, therefore, again pray and beseech your Majesty to dismiss your present Ministers and advisers from your person and councils forever; to dissolve a Parliament who, by various acts of cruelty and injustice, have manifested a spirit of persecution against our brethren in America, and given their sanction to Popery and arbitrary power; to put your future confidence in Ministers whose known and unshaken attachment to the Constitution, joined to your wisdom and integrity, may enable your Majesty to settle this alarming dispute upon the sure, honourable, and lasting foundations of general liberty.

And a motion being made, and question put, to agree to the said Address, Remonstrance, and Petition, the same was resolved in the affirmative.

Signed by order:

TO GENERAL GAGE.

Philadelphia, June 24, 1775.

I believe you were not by nature void of humanity or justice. I have even the charity to think, from what I have learned of your character, there was a portion of these cardinal qualities mixed up with your clay. But I know enough of the human heart to be thoroughly convinced that it is possible for a good man to be corrupted, and to become hardened against every honest, virtuous impulse.

Interest, that demon which is perpetually tempting the weakness of man, has prevailed over those conscientious feelings, and betrayed you into irreparable guilt.

Perhaps you may have had the consolatory view, when you accepted your present high command, of speedily, and without bloodshed, conciliating this Country to the desired state of vassalage, and by this means of quickly reaping the rich reward of your glorious villany. If this was your aim, how poignant must be the disappointment you have met with, and how merited the punishment in supposing yourself master of contingencies and director of events, which is the character of divinity itself: but if it be with you as I have represented, you are an instance of great cruelty and depravity of heart, for your intention was evidently to deprive three millions of people of their liberties, and to annihilate all right in property.

Whatever may have been your sentiments in the beginning, you have lately taken so destructive a part as to put both your friends and enemies out of all doubt in respect to your character. How happened it, that in the course of your letter-writing to Ministry, you never hazarded an important conjecture which was confirmed by any subsequent event? That of one week was regularly refuted by the experience of the next? Was it the weakness of your judgment that led you astray, or the desire of flattering the views of an abandoned Administration? If it was the first, you ought never to venture another, but confine yourself to past events and the facts of the day; if the latter, you must now be convinced, by what has already happened, of the dreadful consequences which may flow from so vile a prostitution of your integrity.

I shall now take leave to recapitulate some parts of your conduct, in order that it may be placed in a true point of light with the ignorant and uninformed.

On the nineteenth day of April you sent a considerable part of your Army from Boston to destroy a supposed magazine at Concord. They landed early in the morning, and marched into the Country with all that overweening boastful presumption peculiar to young troops, ignorant of real service. Adding insult to misfortune, they paraded on their way to the sound of musick. Full of the idea of the fame and honour to be acquired in that memorable expedition, they treated their supposed weak and defenceless enemy with scorn and derision.

But what happened! According to your own relation of that woful and eventful day, this holiday humour did not last long. The same sun saw their offence and punishment. Terror and dismay, inspired by a few opponents, seized upon the invincible host; they fled with a lucky and almost miraculous precipitancy back again to Boston.

But in the tale you tell of this unfortunate maiden enterprise, you are accused of want of candour, indeed of misrepresentation of facts. You say, in your circular letters to the several Governours to whom you have written, that the people fired first: if they did, it reflects the highest honour on their courage. They were but a handful to encounter so great a number. But although I have the highest opinion of their spirit and resolution, it requires no uncommon share of faith to credit this assertion; it is against probability, it is in the face of the most specifick and direct testimony of a great variety of persons.

If the information I have received is well founded, your orders were at that time the same as when you left Britain—not to strike the first blow. If this is the case, the cause of this contrariety in the evidence of the Country and the Army is sufficiently obvious; for it is as essential, perhaps, for the officer who commanded the Troops that fired first on the people to justify himself to you, as it is for you to vindicate your conduct to your superiours. Here is a combination of personal and particular interests to support the fact alleged in your behalf, independent of general reasons. Upon a fair and impartial state of the account, then, I cannot perceive that this motive for misrepresentation has one answerable to it on the part of the Country. If Lord Mansfield himself was to give his opinion on the reason of the case, I think I could predict it would be unfavourable to you.

But the intentional inaccuracy of that part of your letters which gives an account of the loss your Troops sustained in the action, is truly matter worthy of observation.

Your letter, calculated, as one would suppose, for the information of the Representatives of the Crown, says, that more than fifty were killed in the action; how many more, may it please your Excellency? Fifty more, sixty, or seventy? Why did you thus leave them to the uncertainty of guess and conjecture, when, from the returns of your officers, the loss must appear with the greatest exactness?

But, Sir, you are not only charged with the meanness of artifice, but an open violation of your word. The times are now so critically important as to require all the boldness and plainness of truth; in doing you all the justice you merit, I am under the necessity of touching the honour of your character.

When the miserable inhabitants of that Town which had been so long, and is to this day suffering under the weight of ministerial vengeance, applied to you for permission to leave it with their goods or effects, you gave your assent in the presence and hearing of many of your officers and several private gentlemen, and formally pledged your word, too, for the faithful performance: and what was the result of this business? You not only shamefully qualified the Province, by obliging the poorest fellow that went out to pay his eleemosynary dollar to your Secretary for a permit, but you did more: repenting of that part of your solemn engagement which related to the transporting of the goods or effects of the inhabitants, you submitted your Honour on that head to a prostitute lawyer, who, very consistently, gave it as his opinion, that effects meant nothing more than wearing apparel and household furniture; that it did not include moveables in general. It was upon this wretched quibble you refused to let the inhabitants carry away all their effects with them.

I have always been taught to believe the Army is the school of honour. In this school you were educated and nurtured: but I suspect you were an untoward boy, and that the principles inculcated upon you made little or no impression; otherwise you never would, as a gentleman, have consented to submit the plain obvious meaning of your words to the interpretation of a contemptible, paltry retailer of quirks and quibbles. You spoke in that business as a gentleman; and if you had need to explain yourself in respect to a word of doubtful import, you should have consulted Johnson's Dictionary. This would have been a gentleman-like authority.

It requires a considerable degree of acuteness and sagacity in him who is about to do an unwarrantable or an unjust act, to estimate the quantum of moral turpitude and guilt contained in it. For it is not only the portion of it involved in the first view of the crime such an one has to consider, but the consequences which will flow from the act. You prohibited the inhabitants of Boston from carrying out their effects, in the manner I have mentioned; in consequence of which several families have been ruined by the late fire. It is true, you could not foresee the accident; but, nevertheless, the loss sustained by the owners of the goods has happened in consequence of the violation of your word: for if you had adhered to it, the owners of the merchandise would have removed it, and thereby have prevented the calamity which has befallen them.

I have but a word or two more for you, by way of advice. If you are still determined to act in the Swiss character you have assumed, at least let your conduct savour of that sort of honour which even a Swiss holds high.

VERUS.

JOHN HANCOCK, PRESIDENT, TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.
Philadelphia, June 24, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: By order of the Congress I enclose you certain Resolves, passed yesterday, respecting those who were concerned in taking and garrisoning Crown Point and Ticonderoga. As the Congress are of opinion that the employing the Green Mountain Boys in the American Army would be advantageous to the common cause, as well on account of their situation as of their disposition and alertness, they are desirous you should embody them among the Troops you shall raise. As it is represented to the Congress that they will not serve under any officers but such as they themselves choose, you are desired to consult with General Schuyler, in whom the Congress are informed those people place a great confidence, about the field officers to be set over them.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,
JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Members of the Provincial Congress, New-York.

PHILADELPHIA COMMITTEE.

Committee Chamber, June 24, 1775.

Upon motion, Resolved, That if any Pilot, Shallopman, or others, shall be found assisting in the conveyance or introduction of Goods or Merchandise, contrary to the Association of the late Congress, or in receiving on shore or unloading from any vessel any goods which may have been ordered out of the Port, such persons shall be deemed enemies to the liberties of America, and will be held forth to the resentment of the publick. And if any person, privy to such measures, will disclose them, they shall receive the thanks of the Committee as real friends to their Country. Extract from the Minutes:

J. B. SMITH, Secretary.

BURLINGTON COUNTY (NEW-JERSEY) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the General Committee of Observation for the County of Burlington, in the Province of New-Jersey, at the house of John Imlay, in the Township of Mansfield, June 24, 1775:

The Deputies appointed for the County of Burlington to attend a Provincial Congress at Trenton, in May last, laid before the Committee an Association, recommended by that body to the good people of this Province; as also certain Rules for regulating the new-raised Militia, and a recommendation to raise the sum of Ten Thousand Pounds for the use of the Province at this very critical situation of publick affairs.

The Committee taking the said Papers into consideration, after some time spent thereon, it was, on motion, Resolved, 1st. That this Committee do heartily approve of said Association, conceiving it to be of the utmost importance towards the future well-being of this County, that the Magistrates, and other civil officers of Government, should be supported in the due execution of their respective offices, agreeable to the laws of this Colony; and that the good people of this County do make use of every means in their power to guard against those disorders and confusions, to which the peculiar circumstances of the times may expose us.

Resolved, 2d. That as unanimity amongst all ranks of people, in a virtuous opposition to the oppressive measures of the British Ministry and Parliament, is the alone foundation whereon we can hope, under Providence, for a deliverance from our present grievances, it is most earnestly recommended and enjoined by this Committee to the good people of the County of Burlington, that no person or persons, on any pretence whatsoever, do attempt in the least degree to injure or molest his or their neighbour, for any supposed imposition or misconduct that they may have been guilty of on account of the present calamitous times, that is not cognizable by the laws of the Province; but that he or they do exhibit their complaint against such person or persons before some member of this Committee, who is hereby required to lay the same before the Chairman, and desire a general meeting of the Committee, in order that each party may have a fair hearing.

Resolved, 3d. That any person or persons in this County, who shall act contrary to the above mode of proceeding, ought to be deemed a violator of the eleventh article of the Continental Association, inimical to the British Constitution, and unfriendly to the liberties of America.

Resolved, 4th. That this Committee do approve of the Rules recommended by the Provincial Congress, for the good Government of the new-raised Militia, and desire that the respective military officers in this County will conduct themselves consistent therewith.

Resolved, 5th. That this Committee do approve of the recommendation of the Provincial Congress to raise the sum of Ten Thousand Pounds for the use of the Province at this most critical and important moment, recommending it to the good people of this County cheerfully to contribute their apportionment of the same; and as the Provincial Congress have ordered the said money to be disposed of by the respective County Committee, in such manner as they in their discretion shall think most proper, this Committee doth, in consequence thereof, most solemnly assure their constituents that whatever money may be lodged in their hands, or in the hands of the collector, shall be faithfully disposed of according as they may think most beneficial for the service of the County, and purposes intended by the Provincial Congress; and that, whenever the publick shall desire it, they will cheerfully render a true and proper account of their proceedings and disbursements, that every member of the community may know that his contribution has not been embezzled or wasted.

Signed by order of the Committee:

PETER TALLMAN, Chairman.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-Brunswick, June 24, 1775.

SIR: General Washington, with his retinue, is now here, and proposes to be at Newark by nine to-morrow morning. The situation of the men-of-war at New-York (we are informed) is such as may make it necessary that some precaution should be taken in crossing Hudson's River, and he would take it as a favour if some gentlemen of your body would meet him to-morrow at Newark, as the advice you may there give him will determine whether he will continue his proposed route or not.

I am, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., President of the New-York Congress.

JOHN HART, JUNIOR, TO DR. CARRINGTON.

Stamford, June 25, 1775.

SIR: I had the good fortune this morning of intercepting the following letter, which a regard to my Country induced me to transcribe for your Honour's perusal; and I am, Sir, yours,

JOHN HART, JUN.

To Doctor Carrington.

P. S. Doctor Whiting will discover how this letter was intercepted.

New-York, June 19, 1775.

SIR: The Republicans, by their Oliverian, Jesuitical, and wicked practices and plots, have at length brought this Country nigh to ruin; and his most gracious Majesty's true friends are plunged into a situation I do not very well like. I tremble for the consequences; it is what I never expected. But, Sir, if I may use a vulgar expression, we had as good be hanged for an old sheep as a lamb. Many of the friends to Government have been rewarded with pensions and places, and doubt not but that you will make one of that number if you persevere and continue to be as faithful as you have been. The insults of the vulgar I know you despise.

Self-preservation has dictated to us a piece of policy which it may be well for you to practise. We at present are all Whigs, and by our nominal profession, mean to conceal our real principles and intentions, and abate the fiery zeal of the pretended patriots and lovers of their Country (as they falsely style themselves) until the arrival of the King's Troops, which we hourly expect, and have been promised by our friends at home, which will give us an opportunity boldly to throw off the mask, and to act vigorously in support of the rightful authority of His Majesty and the Parliament of Great Britain over as wicked and vile a brood of rebels as ever disgraced any country under Heaven; then shall we enjoy our day of triumph and exultation over the vermin that have insulted, persecuted, and derided us. Here will be a place of safety, an asylum for you to fly to, and find safety in case the storm should increase around and threaten you with destruction. Here would I invite you with all your good friends; for I make no doubt but the King's Troops will repel your cowardly base Connecticut poltrons, the rebel Army, and slaughter them by hundreds if ever they should be so imprudent as to risk a battle with disciplined, experienced, and regular troops.

McDonald being seized and sent to your army of saints, at Greenwich, gives me not a little anxiety. I hear he has made some discovery, and I fear he will be compelled to make more by the rebels, unless we rescue him seasonably, which we have in view. The first of July, at midnight, is the time appointed for his deliverance. If you can procure ten or twelve of the lower sort of those you know to be well affected to Government, in such manner as to keep yourself under cover, we will send about as many more to meet them, at the jail in Fairfield, where I understand he is.

A word to the wise is sufficient. My hand writing you know; I shall not therefore affix my name. I have taken such a method to convey this that I think there is no danger of its being intercepted.

I am, Sir, your humble servant,

INCOG.

P. S. If you send negroes, they will do, as they are well affected to our cause.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A MERCHANT IN BOSTON TO HIS BROTHER IN SCOTLAND, DATED JUNE 24, 1775.

From the 19th of April to the 17th of June, nothing very material has happened. On the 12th of June the General issued a Proclamation, offering His Majesty's most gracious pardon to all who would lay down arms and return to their duty, except two of the ringleaders; and likewise establishing martial law in this Province while this unnatural rebellion exists; but no regard was paid to this.

On the 17th instant, at daylight, it was observed by some of the ships-of-war that the rebels had thrown up an intrenchment on a hill on the other side of the river, about one mile from this Town. The alarm about this new movement of theirs was general; for from this, if they were suffered to go on, they could beat down or burn the Town. At nine o'clock, a battery on an eminence in this Town, directly opposite to their works, began to play upon them, but found they could not dislodge them.

The rebels fired a few shot into this Town, and then desisted, for their shot did no execution. Eighteen hundred of the best of the Troops were immediately ordered to embark on board of boats, and go and engage them, under the command of General Howe. About three o'clock they landed on the other side about half a mile from the rebels, under the cover of five or six ships-of-war, who kept a continual fire on the ground betwixt the place of landing and the enemy, who chose to lie close in their breastworks all this time. As soon as the Troops had got themselves in order they began to advance, cannonading all the way till they came within gun-shot. Charlestown, on the foot of the hill, consisting of about two hundred houses, was set on fire by the fort on this side at the instant the engagement began, whose flames raged in the most rapid manner, being chiefly of wood. Sure I am nothing ever has or can be more dreadfully terrible than what was to be seen and heard at this time! The most incessant discharge of guns that ever was heard with mortal ears, continued for three quarters of an hour, and then the Troops forced their trenches, and the rebels fled.

The place where the battle was fought is a peninsula of a mile long, and a half broad, and the Troops drove them over the neck and kept the island. All this was seen from this Town.

A very small part of the enemy's intrenchments was seen on this side, it being only thought to be the work of a night; but their chief breastworks were on the other side of the hill; it was found to be the strongest post that was ever occupied by any set of men, and the prisoners that were taken, say they were nine thousand strong, and had a good artillery. Five cannons were taken. The spirit and bravery that the British Troops exhibited on this occasion, I suppose is not to be surpassed in any history! But oh! the melancholy sight of killed and wounded that was seen on that day! In four hours after their landing, not less than five hundred wounded were relanded here, and one hundred and forty were left dead on the field, amongst whom was a large proportion of brave officers, viz: thirty-six killed and forty-four wounded; three hundred of the rebels were killed, and thirty-six wounded left on the field, but they carried off great numbers of their wounded in their retreat. To the great satisfaction of all good men, Doctor Warren was slain, who was one of their first and greatest leaders.

Early next morning I went over and saw the field of battle, before any of the dead were buried, which was the first thing of the sort that I ever saw, and I pray God I may never have the opportunity of seeing the like again. The rebels are employed since that day fortifying all the hills and passes within four miles, to prevent the Troops from advancing into the country. We hourly expect the Troops to make a movement against them, but they are too few in number, not less than twenty thousand being equal to the task. I cannot help mentioning one thing, which serves to show the hellish disposition of the accursed rebels: by parcels of ammunition that were left on the field, their balls were all found to be poisoned.

Thus, brother, I have endeavoured to give you a short account of the desperate state of matters here since my last, and shall sum up the whole with one single observation, viz: the delusion that reigns here is as universal and as deeply rooted as can be found in the annals of mankind; and of all other rebellions that ever existed in the world, it is the most unprovoked. I am, &c.

ORDER FOR A PUBLICK FAST BY THE MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

In Provincial Congress, Watertown, June 24, 1775.

Whereas Almighty God, the just, good, and all-wise Governour of the Universe, hath permitted Great Britain to make an unnatural, cruel, and violent attack upon these American Colonies, and, unprovoked, to murder, on the ever-memorable 19th of April last, many of the innocent, brave, and inoffensive inhabitants of this Colony, burning houses, destroying the private property, and carrying ruin and devastation through the country where they passed, until they were obliged to take shelter in the Town of Boston; since which the Troops under General Gage have not only shed the blood of many of our countrymen, who fell bravely fighting on the 17th instant, but have acted the part of savage incendiaries, by laying in ashes the Town of Charlestown in this Colony: And whereas some late oppressive Acts of the British Parliament, and designed by them soon to be enforced upon the Americans; and as large re-enforcements of Troops are arrived and arriving to join our enemies in Boston, which will probably induce them to make another trial of military prowess to penetrate into the country; and we being deeply impressed with a sense of our absolute dependance upon the Lord of Hosts and God of Armies for success in this important war, into which we are driven by our enemies, renounce all confidence in our own strength, well knowing that the battle is not to the strong; relying upon the justice of our cause, and the Divine protection and assistance therein:

Do Resolve, That Thursday, the 13th day of July next, be observed throughout this Colony as a day of publick Fasting and Prayer, not only to humble ourselves before God, on account of our many sins; to implore his forgiveness; to beg his blessing upon the labours of the field, that he would be pleased to water the dry and thirsty earth with plenteous showers of rain, that the poor may be satisfied with bread, and that this year be crowned with goodness; to ask his blessing upon the various means used for the recovery and preservation of our rights; humbly to request that our Congress, those of the other Colonies, and especially the American Congress, be inspired with all that wisdom that is necessary to direct them in this day of difficulty and distress; to petition the assistance of his Spirit, to make us to bear and suffer whatever his holy and righteous Providence may see fit to lay upon us; but earnestly to beseech the Divine direction and assistance in our military operations, and that God would be pleased soon, very soon, to bring our enemies to reasonable terms of accommodation, that not only a stop may be put to the wanton effusion of human blood, but that Great Britain and these Colonies may speedily again rejoice in the inestimable blessings of peace, and the free and undisturbed exercise of all those rights, liberties, and privileges, civil and religious, for the enjoyment of which our pious and venerable ancestors braved every danger, (by which they have rendered their memory dear to us, their posterity,) and set an example worthy the imitation of all succeeding generations. And all religious societies of every denomination are hereby desired to observe and keep said day in that solemn and religious manner that becomes a people whose all is at stake; who, while they are, with unremitting vigilance, using those means for the salvation of their Country which human wisdom point out, yet feel their absolute dependance upon Him who superintends all the affairs of men, and will make the cause of the righteous to prevail.

GENERAL WARD TO THE MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Cambridge, June 24, 1775.

SIR: I am informed that Lieutenant Francis Cox, of Captain Richardson's Company, in Colonel Mansfield's Regiment, has deserted and left the service, and has carried away a number of enlistments, and told the same men they might go home, that no one had a right to stop them, although they were mustered, sworn, and paid. Many of the men are gone, and it is probable others will go.

Considering the present state of the Army, I would humbly suggest whether it would not be advisable for the honourable Congress to take some order respecting Lieutenant Cox and the said men, and make a publick example of him, if not of them. I am your humble servant, in great haste,

ARTEMAS WARD.

To Hon. James Warren, Esq.

P. S. Lieutenant Cox lives in Salem.

GEN. FOLSOM TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.
Camp on Winter Hill, June 24, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The New-Hampshire Troops being stationed at a very important post on the outlines, and exposed to the enemy's batteries, I yesterday applied to his Excellency General Ward for heavy artillery, but he could not supply me with any. I have this moment received a line from him, wherein he requests me to apply to the Colony of New-Hampshire for two twenty-four and two nine-pounders, to be forwarded with all possible despatch.

I therefore, under the greatest anxiety for the safety of our Troops, earnestly entreat you to send the above mentioned cannon as soon as possible, fitted with carriages, as we hourly expect the enemy will attempt to force our lines before we have fully completed the intrenchments, which are in considerable forwardness, and some of the embrasures completed, but have no cannon to mount in them. No other cannon are suitable for the purpose.

By complying with the above request, you will, in all probability, save the lives of many of your brave soldiers, who have gallantly ventured their lives in the glorious common cause, suffered the greatest fatigues and hardships, and are now exposed where it is expected by the Engineers that the enemy will endeavour to force our lines.

And also oblige your humble servant,

NATHANIEL FOLSOM.

To the Honourable Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-Hampshire.

N. B. If nine-pounders can't be procured, I should be glad to be supplied with two double fortified six-pounders.

JAMES MCGREGORE TO THE NEW-HAMPSHIRE CONGRESS.
Medford, June 24, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Enclosed I send you a memorandum of sundry articles that the General thinks is very much wanted here for the use of the New-Hampshire forces; and should be glad, if you think best, that the horses may be forwarded here as soon as may be, as there is scarcely any such thing as getting teams here, and likewise carriages with them. Salt provision is very scarce here, but we have been well supplied hitherto.

Colonel Hale has gone to Connecticut to forward provision; Mr. Molton is to follow him with cash. The men are very uneasy for want of a month's pay that was proposed to be given them. I hope you will forward it as soon as possible, and likewise some cash to me, as I am left here, and many people calling on me, which is sufficient to put a man of my patience almost distracted. I always shall obey your directions with pleasure.

I am, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

JAMES MCGREGORE.

PROPOSED VINDICATION AND OFFER TO PARLIAMENT, DRAWN UP IN A COMMITTEE OF CONGRESS; JUNE 25, 1775.

Forasmuch as the enemies of America in the Parliament of Great Britain, to render us odious to the Nation, and give an ill impression of us in the minds of other European Powers, have represented us as unjust and ungrateful in the highest degree; asserting on every occasion that the Colonies were settled at the expense of Britain; that they were, at the expense of the same, protected in their infancy; that they now ungratefully and unjustly refuse to contribute to their own protection, and the common defence of the Nation; that they aim at independence; that they intend an abolition of the Navigation Acts; and that they are fraudulent in their commercial dealings, and propose to cheat their creditors in Britain by avoiding the payment of their just debts:

And as by frequent repetition these groundless assertions and malicious calumnies may, if not contradicted and refuted, obtain farther credit, and be injurious throughout Europe to the reputation and interest of the Confederate Colonies, it seems proper and necessary to examine them in our own just vindication.

With regard to the first, that the Colonies were settled at the expense of Britain, it is a known fact that none of the twelve United Colonies were settled, or even discovered, at the expense of England. Henry the Seventh indeed granted a commission to Sebastian Cabot, a Venetian, and his sons, to sail into the Western Seas for the discovery of new countries; but it was to be "suis eorum propriis sumptibus et expensis," at their own costs and charges. They discovered, but soon slighted and neglected, these Northern Territories, which were, after more than a hundred years dereliction, purchased of the natives, and settled at the charge and by the labour of private men and bodies of men, our ancestors, who came over hither for that purpose. But our adversaries have never been able to produce any record, that ever the Parliament or Government of England was at the smallest expense on these accounts; on the contrary, there exists on the Journals of Parliament a solemn declaration in 1642, (only twenty-two years after the first settlement of the Massachusetts, when, if such expense had ever been incurred, some of the members must have known and remembered it,) "that these Colonies had been planted and established without any expense to the State."* New-York is the only Colony, in the founding of which England can pretend to have been at any expense, and that was only the charge of a small armament to take it from the Dutch, who planted it. But to retain this Colony at the peace, another at that time full as valuable, planted by private countrymen of ours, was given up by the Crown to the Dutch, in exchange, viz: Surinam, now a wealthy sugar Colony in Guiana, and which, but for that cession, might still have remained in our possession. Of late, indeed, Britain has been at some expense in planting two Colonies—Georgia and Nova-Scotia; but those are not in our confederacy, and the expense she has been at in their name has chiefly been in grants of sums unnecessarily large, by way of salaries to officers sent from England, and in jobs to friends, whereby dependants might be provided for, those excessive grants not being requisite to the welfare and good government of the Colonies; which good government (as experience in many instances of other Colonies has taught us) may be much more frugally, and full as effectually, provided for and supported.

With regard to the second assertion, that these Colonies were protected in their infant state by England, it is a notorious fact, that in none of the many wars with the Indian natives, sustained by our infant settlements for a century after our first arrival, were ever any troops or forces of any kind sent from England to assist us; nor were any forts built at her expense to secure our seaports from foreign invaders; nor any ships-of-war sent to protect our trade, till many years after our first settlement, when our commerce became an object of revenue, or of advantage to British merchants; and then it was thought necessary to have a frigate in some of our ports, during peace, to give weight to the authority of Custom-House Officers, who were to restrain that commerce for the benefit of England. Our own arms, with our poverty, and the care of a kind Providence, were all this time our only protection; while we were neglected by the English Government, which either thought us not worth its care, or, having no good will to some of us, on account of our different sentiments in religion and politicks, were indifferent what became of us. On the other hand, the Colonies have not been wanting to do what they could in every war for annoying the enemies of Britain. They formerly assisted her in the conquest of Nova-Scotia. In the war before last, they took Louisbourg, and put it into her hands. She made her peace with that strong fortress, by restoring it to France, greatly to their detriment. In the last war, it is true, Britain sent a fleet and army, who acted with an equal army of ours, in the reduction of Canada; and, perhaps, thereby did more for us, than we, in the preceding wars, had done for her. Let it be remembered, however, that she rejected the plan we formed in the Congress at Albany, in 1754, for our own defence, by an union of the Colonies—an union she was jealous of, and therefore chose to send her own forces; otherwise, her aid, to protect us, was not wanted. And from our first settlement to that time, her military operations in our favour were small, compared with the advantages she drew from her exclusive commerce with us. We are, however, willing to give full weight to this obligation; and as we are daily growing stronger, and our assistance to her becomes of more importance, we would, with pleasure, embrace the first opportunity of showing our gratitude, by returning the favour in kind. But when Britain values herself as affording us protection, we desire it may be considered that we have followed her in all her wars, and joined with her, at our own expense, against all she thought fit to quarrel with. This she has required of us, and would never permit us to keep peace with any Power she declared her enemy; though, by separate treaties, we might well have done it. Under such circumstances, when at her instance we made nations our enemies whom we might otherwise have retained our friends, we submit it to the common sense of mankind, whether her protection of us in these wars was not our just due, and to be claimed of right, instead of being received as a favour? And whether, when all the parts of an Empire exert themselves to the utmost in their common defence, and in annoying the common enemy, it is not as well the parts that protect the whole, as the whole that protects the parts? The protection, then, has been proportionably mutual. And whenever the time shall come that our abilities may as far exceed hers as hers have exceeded ours, we hope we shall be reasonable enough to rest satisfied with her proportionable exertions, and not think we do too much for a part of the Empire, when that part does as much as it can for the whole.

*VENERIS, March 10, 1642.—Whereas the Plantations in New-England have, by the blessing of the Almighty, had good and prosperous success, without any publick charge to this State, and are now likely to prove very happy for the propagation of the gospel in those parts, and very beneficial and commodious to this Kingdom and Nation; the Commons now assembled in Parliament, &c., &c., &c.

The charge against us, that we refuse to contribute to our own protection, appears from the above to be groundless. But we further declare it to be absolutely false; for it is well known, that we ever held it our duty to grant aids to the Crown, upon requisition, towards carrying on its wars; which duty we have cheerfully complied with, to the utmost of our abilities; insomuch that frequent and grateful acknowledgments thereof by King and Parliament appear on their records.* But as Britain has enjoyed a most gainful monopoly of our commerce, the same, with our maintaining the dignity of the King's representative in each Colony, and all our own separate establishments of Government, civil and military, has ever hitherto been deemed an equivalent for such aids as might otherwise be expected from us in time of peace. And we hereby declare, that on a reconciliation with Britain, we shall not only continue to grant aids in time of war, as aforesaid, but whenever she shall think fit to abolish her monopoly, and give us the same privileges of trade as Scotland received at the union, and allow us a free commerce with all the rest of the world, we shall willingly agree (and we doubt not it will be ratified by our constituents) to give and pay into the Sinking Fund £100,000 sterling per annum, for the term of one hundred years; which duly, faithfully and inviolably applied to that purpose, is demonstrably more than sufficient to extinguish all her present national debt, since it will in that time amount, at legal British interest, to more than £230,000,000.

But if Britain does not think fit to accept this proposition, we, in order to remove her groundless jealousies that we aim at independence, and an abolition of the Navigation Act, (which hath in truth never been our intention,) and to avoid all future disputes about the right of making that and other acts for regulating our Commerce, do hereby declare ourselves ready and willing to enter into a covenant with Britain, that she shall fully possess, enjoy, and exercise that right for a hundred years to come; the same being bona fide used for the common benefit. And in case of such agreement, that every Assembly be advised by us to confirm it solemnly by laws of their own, which once made cannot be repealed without the assent of the Crown.

* Journals of the House of Commons, on the 4th of April, 1748; 28th January, 1756; 3d February, 1756; 16th and 19th of May, 1757; 1st of June, 1758; 26th and 30th of April, 1759; 26th and 31st of March, and 28th of April, 1760; 9th and 20th of January, 1761; 22d and 26th of January, 1762; and 14th and 17th of March, 1763.

The last charge, that we are dishonest traders, and aim at defrauding our creditors in Britain, is sufficiently and authentically refuted by the solemn declarations of the British merchants to Parliament, (both at the time of the Stamp Act, and in the last session,) who bore ample testimony to the general good faith and fair dealing of the Americans, and declared their confidence in our integrity; for which we refer to their petitions on the Journals of the House of Commons. And we presume we may safely call on the body of the British tradesmen, who have had experience of both, to say, whether they have not received much more punctual payment from us than they generally have from the members of their own two Houses of Parliament.

On the whole of the above, it appears that the charge of ingratitude towards the Mother Country, brought with so much confidence against the Colonies, is totally without foundation; and that there is much more reason for retorting that charge on Britain, who not only never contributes any aid, nor affords, by an exclusive commerce, any advantages to Saxony, her mother country; but no longer since than in the last war, without the least provocation, subsidized the King of Prussia while he ravaged that mother country, and carried fire and sword into its capital, the fine City of Dresden—an example we hope no provocation will induce us to imitate.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO CONGRESS.

New-York, Sunday, June 25, 1775, }
Five o'clock, P. M. }

SIR: Upon my arrival here this afternoon, I was informed that an express was in Town from the Provincial camp in Massachusetts-Bay; and having seen, among other papers in his possession, a letter directed to you as President of the Congress, I have taken the liberty to open it. I was induced to take that liberty by several gentlemen of New-York, who were anxious to know the particulars of the affair of the 17th instant, and agreeable to the orders of many members of the Congress, who judged it necessary that I should avail myself of the best information in the course of my journey.

You will find, Sir, by that letter, a great want of powder in the Provincial Army, which I sincerely hope the Congress will supply as speedily and as effectually as in their power. One thousand pounds in weight were sent to the camp at Cambridge, three days ago, from this City, which has left this place almost destitute of that necessary article, there being at this time, from the best information, not more than four barrels of powder in the City of New-York.

I purpose to set off for the Provincial camp to-morrow, and will use all possible despatch to join the forces there.

Please to make my compliments to the gentlemen of the Congress, and believe me to be, Sir, your obliged friend and obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

The Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of the American Congress.

New-York, June 25, 1775.

GEORGE WASHINGTON, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief of the Army of the United AMERICAN Colonies;

To PHILIP SCHUYLER, Esquire, Major-General in the said Army:

SIR: You are to take upon you the command of all the Troops destined for the New-York Department, and see that the orders of the Continental Congress are carried into execution with as much precision and exactness as possible. For your better government therein, you are herewith furnished with a copy of the instructions given to me by that honourable body. Such parts thereof as are within the line of your duty, you will please to pay particular attention to. Delay no time in occupying the several posts recommended by the Provincial Congress of this Colony, and putting them in a fit posture to answer the end designed. Neither delay any time in securing the stores which are or ought to have been removed from this City by order of the Continental Congress. Keep a watchful eye upon Governor Tryon; and if you find him attempting, directly or indirectly, any measures inimical to the common cause, use every means in your power to frustrate his designs. It is not in my power at this time to point out the mode by which this end is to be accomplished; but if forcible measures are judged necessary, (respecting the person of the Governour,) I should have no difficulty in ordering them if the Continental Congress were not sitting; but as this is the case, and the seizing of a Governour quite a new thing, and of exceeding great importance, I must refer you to that body for direction, in case the Governour should make any move towards increasing the strength of the Tory party, or in arming them against the cause we are embarked in. In like manner watch the movements of the Indian Agent, (Colonel Guy Johnson,) and prevent, as far as you can, the effect of his influence to our prejudice with the Indians. Obtain the best information you can of the temper and disposition of those people, and also of the Canadians, that a proper line may be marked out to conciliate their good opinion, or facilitate any future operation.

The posts on Lake Champlain, &c., you will please to have properly supplied with provisions and ammunition; and this, I am persuaded, you will aim at doing on the best terms, to prevent our good cause from sinking under a heavy load of expense.

You will be pleased, also, to make regular returns to me once a month, and to the Continental Congress, and often, as occurrences may require, of the forces under your command, of your provisions, stores, &c., and give me the earliest advices of every piece of intelligence which you shall judge of importance to be speedily known. Your own good sense must govern in all matters not pointed out, as I do not wish to circumscribe you within narrow limits.

I remain, with great regard, Sir, your most obedient servant,
Go. WASHINGTON.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO CONGRESS.

New-York, June 25, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The rain on Friday afternoon and Saturday, the advice of several gentlemen of the Jerseys and this City, by no means to cross Hudson's River at the lower ferry, and some other circumstances too trivial to mention, which happened on the road, prevented my arrival at this place until the afternoon of this day.

In the morning, after giving General Schuyler such orders as, from the result of my inquiry into matters here, appear necessary, I shall set out on my journey to the camp at Boston, and shall proceed with all the despatch in my power.

Powder is so essential an article, that I cannot help again repeating the necessity of a supply. The camp at Boston, from the best account I can get from thence, is but very poorly supplied. At this place they have scarce any. How they are provided in General Wooster's camp, I have not been able yet to learn.

Governour Tryon is arrived, and General Schuyler directed to advise you of the line of conduct he moves in. I fear it will not be very favourable to the American cause.

I have only to add, that I am, with great respect and regard, gentlemen, your most obedient and obliged humble servant,
Go. WASHINGTON.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., and the Hon. Members of the Continental Congress.

Ticonderoga, June 25, 1775.

MR. HOLT: The following erroneous account of the reduction of Ticonderoga, was published in Mr. Thomas's Oracle of Liberty, the 24th of May last; and as the writer of the account which follows it had no opportunity of seeing it till very lately, he being up at the forts ever since they were taken, he could not contradict it sooner. I beg, therefore, you will republish it in your next journal, together with the account that follows it, which may be depended on. I am, yours, &c.

"Cambridge, May 18, 1775.

"Yesterday Colonel Easton arrived at the Provincial Congress in Watertown, from Ticonderoga, and brings the glorious news of the taking that place by the American forces, without the loss of a man, of which interesting event we have collected the following particulars, viz:

"Last Tuesday se'nnight, about two hundred and forty men, from Connecticut and this Province, under Colonel Allen and Colonel Easton, arrived at the lake near Ticonderoga; eighty of them crossed it, and came to the fort about the dawn of day. The sentry was much surprised at seeing such a body of men, and snapped his piece at them; our men, however, rushed forward, seized and confined the sentry, pushed through the covered way, and all got safe upon the parade, while the garrison were sleeping in their beds. They immediately formed a hollow square, and gave three huzzas, which brought out the garrison, and an inconsiderable skirmish with cutlasses or bayonets ensued, in which a small number of the enemy received some wounds. The commanding officer soon came forth; Colonel Easton clapped him upon the shoulder, told him he was his prisoner, and demanded, in the name of America, an instant surrender of the fort, with all its contents, to the American forces. The officer was in great confusion, and expressed himself to this effect: Damn you, what—what does all this mean? Colonel Easton again told him that he and his garrison were prisoners. The officer said, that he hoped he should be treated with honour. Colonel Easton replied he should be treated with much more honour than our people had met with from the British Troops. The officer then said, he was all submission, and immediately ordered his soldiers to deliver up all the arms, in number about one hundred stands. As they gave up their arms, the prisoners were secured in the hollow square.

"The American forces having thus providentially got possession of this important fortress, found in it upwards of one hundred pieces of cannon, several mortars, and a considerable quantity of shot, stores, and some powder.

"After this acquisition, a detachment of our Troops was despatched to take possession of Crown Point, where there is a considerable number of cannon. Another detachment was sent to Skenesborough, where they took Major Skene and his family, with a number of soldiers, and several small pieces of cannon."

As the above account of the reduction of Ticonderoga, which, from its complexion, I suppose originated with that very modest gentleman (Colonel Easton) himself, is so replete with falsehood, and is so great an imposition on the publick, that I think it my duty, in order to undeceive the publick, and to do justice to modest merit, to give you a candid detail of the whole matter, for the truth of which I appeal to every officer and private who were present, which is as follows:

Some gentlemen arrived in the New-Hampshire Grants from Connecticut, with a design of seizing on the fortress of Ticonderoga; were there joined by a number of men, among whom were Colonels Allen and Easton; the former, with the assistance of Captain Warner, collected about one hundred and fifty men, with whom they marched to Castletown, twenty miles from Ticonderoga, where they left Colonel Easton, and proceeded ten miles towards Shoreham. The next day Colonel Arnold arrived at Castletown from Cambridge. Having concerted in a similar plan, and being commissioned by the Massachusetts Congress to raise a regiment, he proceeded on to the party under the command of Colonel Allen. When Colonel Arnold made known his commission, &c., it was voted by the officers present that he should take a joint command with Colonel Allen, (Colonel Easton not presuming to take any command.) When the party had marched to Shorcham, two miles on the lake below Ticonderoga, where they waited for batteaus to cross the lake, until midnight, and none arriving, Colonel Arnold, with much difficulty, persuaded about forty men to embark with him in a batteau accidentally taken there, and landed half a mile from the fort, and immediately sent back the batteau, which, by reason of a violent storm of wind and rain, did not return until break of day, with a small boat, and near fifty men in both. It was then proposed by some gentlemen to wait open day and the arrival of the remainder of the men, which amounted at that time to near one hundred. This Colonel Arnold strenuously opposed, and urged to storm the fort immediately, declaring he would enter it alone, if no man had courage enough to follow him. This had the desired effect; he, with Colonel Allen, headed the party, and proceeded directly to the fort. When they came within about ten yards of the gate, the sentry discovered them, and made a precipitate retreat. He was pursued closely by Colonel Arnold, who was the first person that entered the fort, and Colonel Allen about five yards behind him. This I was an eye-witness of, being only a few yards distant. Colonel Arnold immediately ordered the men to secure the doors of the barracks, and went himself, with Colonel Allen, to the commanding officer, Captain Delaplace, and desired him to deliver up his arms, and he might expect to be treated like a gentleman; which he immediately complied with, as did the whole garrison.

I do not recollect seeing Colonel Easton until nine o'clock, and was told he was the last man that entered the fort, and that not till the soldiers and their arms were secured, he having concealed himself in an old barrack near the redoubt, under the pretence of wiping and drying his gun, which he said had got wet in crossing the lake; since which I have often heard Colonel Easton, in a base and cowardly manner, abuse Colonel Arnold behind his back, though always very complaisant before his face. Colonel Arnold was soon made acquainted with the liberty he had taken with his character; and upon his refusing to give proper satisfaction, I had the pleasure of seeing him heartily kicked by Colonel Arnold, to the great satisfaction of a number of gentlemen present, although he (Easton) was armed with a cutlass, and a pair of loaded pistols in his pocket. I am your humble servant, VERITAS.

Hartford, July 28, 1775.

Having by accident seen in a paper styled the American Oracle, of May 24, the paragraph relative to the taking Ticonderoga by one Colonel Easton; and being the commanding officer at that time, think I cannot, in justice to myself, do less than contradict the many particulars therein contained, knowing them to be totally void of truth. Indeed, I am quite at a loss to conjecture what could incline this same Colonel Easton to publish a conversation said to be had with me, except he, knowing that I was a prisoner, and restricted from giving any account at all of this affair, took the advantage of my situation, in order to answer his own purposes, at the total expense of his veracity; for I solemnly declare I never saw Colonel Easton at the time the fort was surprised, nor had he and I any conversation whatever relative thereto, then, or at any other time since.

WILLIAM DELAPLACE.

TO THE PRINTER.

The following is an address from the inhabitants upon Lake Champlain, to the worthy Colonel Arnold, of New-Haven, who, in April last, on the first alarm of the ravage and bloodshed committed by the Ministerial Troops at Lexington, &c., marched, with his company of Cadets, from New-Haven to the assistance of his bleeding countrymen.

On his march he concerted a plan for the reduction of the very important fortresses Ticonderoga and Crown Point, which he first communicated to a member of the Committee of Correspondence for Connecticut, afterwards by letter to the Governor of Connecticut, and immediately after his arrival at Cambridge to the Provincial Congress and Committee of Safety. They approving his plan, and confiding in his judgment and fidelity, commissioned him to reduce the same, which, by his vigilance and prudence, he soon effected: and having also taken possession of the King's sloop and batteaus, which were at St. John's, secured the protection of all our frontiers in that quarter, and obtained the command, without the loss of one man, of an extent of country one hundred and sixty miles in length, which, in the last war, cost the British Nation two millions of money and two campaigns, under the command of some of the best English Generals, in which many thousand brave heroes fell. While we regret, and sensibly feel the loss of a Warren, and many other worthy men, in the present conflict, we have reason to rejoice that so many others, and among them an Arnold, are preserved to us, who are equally ready to risk their lives in defence of the rights and liberties of their country.

It appears that envy or self-interested views has created Colonel Arnold some enemies, who have, in his absence, artfully endeavoured to misrepresent his conduct, and give a blamable aspect to actions which, when fairly examined, will be found to merit the highest approbation of his constituents and the publick, whose judgment, with respect to the reports to his prejudice, it is hoped will be suspended, till he can have an opportunity to vindicate his character.

A. B.

To BENEDICT ARNOLD, Esquire, Colonel of a MASSACHUSETTS Regiment, and Commander-in-Chief of an Expedition to Lake CHAMPLAIN, for taking the Fortresses on said Lake, and the armed vessel thereon, into the possession and protection of the AMERICAN Army.

We, the subscribers, the principal inhabitants on the said lake, in behalf of ourselves, and on behalf of all the inhabitants contiguous thereto, amounting in number to about six hundred families, deeply impressed with a sense of your merit, and the weighty obligations which we lie under to you in your military capacity, think it our duty to address you in this publick manner, to testify our gratitude and thankfulness for the uncommon vigilance, vigour, and spirit, with which you have achieved those important conquests, so essentially necessary for our preservation and safety from the threatened and much dreaded incursions of an inveterate enemy.

The humanity and benevolence which you have exercised towards the inhabitants of those parts most immediately affected by the present convulsions, by supplying them with provisions in their distress, render you no less worthy our admiration, than your tenderness and polite treatment of such prisoners as have fallen into your hands entitle you to the most favourable opinion of some of the regular officers, whose grateful sentiments thereon you have already received. So you are likewise, in a peculiar manner, entitled to our warmest thanks, since you have thereby, and by the proofs they have had of your prudence and valour, been the means of keeping our enemy and their scouting parties at a distance from us, to which your vigilance, in constantly employing such a number of boats on the north part of this lake, hath not a little contributed.

The humane and polite manner with which you treated your prisoners, insures to you the applause of all: you have thereby shown your adversaries a bright example of that elevation and generosity of soul, which nothing less than real magnanimity and innate virtue could inspire.

By your vigilance and good conduct, we have been, under Providence, preserved from the incursions and ravages of an enraged enemy, to whose declared vengeance we lay entirely exposed; and therefore we cannot help expressing our sorrow at the approaching period of your removal from us.

Convinced of your competency to the undertaking of protecting us, we cannot help lamenting our situation on the thoughts of losing you, being ignorant of the experience or abilities of the gentleman appointed to succeed you. We sincerely wish you rewards adequate to your merit, and are, with the utmost gratitude, regard, and esteem, Sir, your most obliged and most obedient servants.

[Signed by a number of the principal Inhabitants, on behalf of themselves and the rest.]

Lake Champlain, July 3, 1775.

To the very respectable Inhabitants on LAKE CHAMPLAIN:

GENTLEMEN: Permit me to return you my most hearty thanks for the polite and obliging address you have been pleased to present me this day, which, as it convinces me of your esteem and approbation of my conduct in a military capacity, is more than an adequate recompense for the poor services and protection I have been happy enough to render you, which both duty and humanity required of me. I am much pleased to have it in my power, in this publick manner, to return you my sincere thanks for your support, vigilance, and spirited conduct in the publick cause, and cannot help regretting the necessity I am under of leaving you so soon. I heartily wish you the protection of that kind Providence which has so remarkably interposed in your favour heretofore, and beg leave to assure you I shall, at all times, be happy in hearing of the welfare of all the inhabitants on Lake Champlain, but of my friends in particular; and am, with the greatest respect and esteem, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

BENEDICT ARNOLD.

Crown Point, July 4, 1775.

THADDEUS BURR TO GENERAL WOOSTER.

Fairfield, June 25, 1775; 12 o'clock.

SIR: Captain Jonathan Maltbie, who went express from here last Sabbath, has this day returned from Watertown, which place he left last Thursday, at four o'clock, afternoon, and the intelligence brought by him being so direct, I thought it my duty to forward it to you, which is as follows, viz:

Copy of a letter from Mr. Isaac Lothrop, one of the Provincial Congress at Watertown.

"Watertown, June 22, 1775.

"Before this reaches you, you will doubtless hear of the engagement of last Saturday, between our Troops and those of the Army at Boston; but lest you should not be well informed, I will now undertake to give you as regular an account as can at present be obtained. Last Friday evening a detachment from the camp at Cambridge marched to Charlestown, and there took possession of Breed's Hill, about half a mile from the ferry; their intrenching tools not coming up in season, it was twelve o'clock before they began their works. As soon as daylight appeared they were discovered from Boston, when the men-of-war in the ferry, the battery from Copp's Hill, and the floating batteries, kept up a continual cannonading and bombarding, which fortunately did but little execution, although our intrenchments were very far from being completed. This continued till about two o'clock, when a large Army of between four and five thousand men, (as we since hear from Boston,) under the command of General Howe, landed on the back of the hill, and marched up with great seeming resolution towards our lines. Our men reserved their fire till the enemy had advanced very near, when a general engagement ensued. The fire from our lines was so excessively heavy, and made such a terrible slaughter, as obliged the enemy twice to give way, although many of their officers stood in the rear with their swords pointed at their backs, ready to run them through. Our men kept up a continual blaze upon them for about an hour, with such execution as is scarce credible. The enemy then came on the flanks, marched up, and forced their way over the ramparts with fixed bayonets, cutlasses, and hand-grenades; which obliged our little brave Army, consisting only of about five hundred men at most, to retreat.

"The Town of Charlestown was fired in various parts during the action, and is now consumed to a wretched heap of rubbish. I kept my ground at Watertown; but what with the thundering of cannon and small arms, the conflagration of Charlestown, the wagons and horse-litters, with the wounded men coming to the hospital in this Town, and the streaming of expresses to and fro, exhibited such an awful scene as I pray God Almighty I may never again behold. The brave and worthy Doctor Warren was killed, stripped, and buried within the intrenchment.

"Our numbers killed are not yet known; but by the best account I can obtain it will not much exceed fifty, and the wounded short of a hundred. Several credible persons have since made their escape by water from Boston, some of whom I well know. The latest out says, that upwards of fourteen hundred of the enemy were killed and wounded, with eighty-four officers; and that twenty-eight of our men were made prisoners, and the enemy had buried forty-one of our dead. All agree that the loss of the enemy in killed and wounded is more than one thousand. General Howe says, you may talk of your Mindens and Fontenoy's, &c., but he never saw nor heard of such carnage in so short a time. All the surgeons in the Army, with what they could get in Boston, were not sufficient to dress the wounded. Although they were twenty-four hours, night and day, in removing them from Charlestown, with the assistance of many of the inhabitants of Boston, whom they pressed into the service, many died in the streets on their way to the hospitals.

"N. B. Doctor Mather had his whole furniture, with his library, plate, &c., consumed in the fire at Charlestown."

I have employed Mr. Samuel Penfield to go with this; if you think it proper to forward this account to New-York, he will be ready to serve you.

You will excuse my sending it open, as I think it best for every one to know with what bravery our men have acted, and how God in his providence seems to appear for us.

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. II.

Mr. Penfield will also hand you a paper from Cambridge, which contains some particulars.

I am, in the utmost haste, Sir, your friend and humble servant,

THADDEUS BURR.

To General Wooster, at Greenwich.

The Congress of the Colony of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY,
To ANDREW GILMAN, Gentleman:

We, entertaining a good opinion of your prudence, courage, and good conduct, do appoint, and you, the said Andrew Gilman, are hereby appointed to the honorary title of Lieutenant; and you are to be considered of that rank not only among the good people of this Province, but also among all our friends and brethren through the Continent; and we confide in your readiness to promote the common cause of America among our good brothers the Indians of the several tribes which you may have opportunity to be acquainted with, as well as with the inhabitants of the Province of Quebeck. By order of the Congress.

Watertown, June 25, 1775.

In Provincial Congress, Watertown, June 25, 1775.

Resolved, That Lieutenant Andrew Gilman be and hereby is ordered and instructed to use his utmost influence to cultivate a friendly and peaceable disposition in the Indians at St. Francois, and all other parts adjoining, and to give intelligence of their temper and disposition from time to time, as he shall have opportunity, and as the importance of affairs may require; and also of the Canadians at Quebeck, and other adjacent parts of Canada, so often as it may be in his power: for which service he shall receive a proper reward. By order of Congress.

JAMES WARREN, President.

JOHN LANE TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Watertown, June 25, 1775.

John Lane having been employed by the honourable Congress to go to Penobscot to treat with the Indians there, and the said Congress, in consequence of his services, having resolved that he shall have a Captain's commission, provided he enlist a company of fifty-six effective men to join the Army at Cambridge; and he being now going to proceed on that business, humbly prays that your Honours would direct the Receiver-General to pay him or his order two months pay, as a Captain in the Colony service.

JOHN LANE.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress.

MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

In Provincial Congress, Watertown, June 25, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR: From advices received divers ways, we have the greatest reason to determine that all the British Troops already destined, or that may yet be ordered to America this season, will come to Boston, it being evidently their design, if possible, to rout our Army before that place, destroy all our magazines, and thereby to strike terror and faintness into the hearts of all the friends to right and liberty throughout the Continent, to revive and animate their scattered friends, and break the union of the Colonies, and in that way insure final success to their tyranny. This being undoubtedly the plan of our enemies, it is of inexpressible consequence that the ground which we have taken should, at all events, be maintained. Your Honour is no doubt fully sensible that our Army, for the present, is unavoidably checked with regard to offensive operations, for a reason of which you are not unapprized, but, however, we have the means of acting on the defensive.

As Boston is impregnable against every thing but great artillery, very few Troops are sufficient to keep it; and as there are two passes at least, very distant from each other, by which the enemy will probably attempt to advance into the country, it is thereby necessary that we should throw our Army into at least two grand divisions, each of which ought to be able to withstand almost the whole strength of the enemy. Your Honour is acquainted that it was first supposed to be necessary that thirty thousand men should be raised and stationed to act, for this season, in the environs of Boston. Thirteen thousand six hundred was the number supposed by our Congress to be this Colony's proportion of such an Army, and that number we have, to our utmost, been endeavouring fully to complete; but because there are deficiencies in our Regiments, as your Honour well knows there always will be in such cases, in order to make that quota good we have been obliged to increase the number of the Regiments; but still there is a deficiency. And because of the inexpressible importance of having our Army effectually strong, we are, with unremitted efforts, and by every device, at vast expense, labouring to make that number fully complete, or rather to exceed it.

May it please your Honour: Because we are so vastly apprehensive of the fatal consequences of a general defeat of this Army to the whole American cause, and are so unutterably solicitous to have it effectually strengthened, we have called in every individual of our levies, from all our out-posts, to join the Army, although by that measure we expose all our Towns on the sea-coast to the rage and depredations of the enemy, and run the dreadful risk of the best of our Towns being reduced to ashes, and taking the miserable fate of Charlestown.

We beg leave to acquaint your Honour that it is most clearly our opinion, and that we have the best grounds to suppose, that as soon as the enemy have recovered a little breath from their amazing fatigues of the seventeenth of June, and the surprising losses which they then undoubtedly sustained shall be made up by arrivals of new troops, which is almost daily taking place, they will direct all their force to some one point, and make the utmost efforts to force our lines, destroy our magazines, and thereby strike general terror and amazement into the hearts of the inhabitants of the whole Continent.

From this view of the case we cannot a moment longer forbear addressing your Honour, and most earnestly suggesting to the immediate consideration of your General Assembly, not only the expediency, but indispensable necessity of an immediate augmentation of the Troops from your Colony, for the more effectual strengthening of the Army. What the number of the augmentation ought to be, we most cheerfully submit to the good judgment of your Assembly, not in the least doubting but their wisdom and justice will direct and dispose them to do all that is proper in so important a crisis as we really consider the present.

We need not express to your Honour the indispensable necessity of despatch in making re-enforcements, nor the propriety and advantage of marching any new levies, which your Assembly may order with all possible speed, without the first raised Companies waiting for the completion of others; inasmuch as your Colony has here on the spot all the proper officers to make the necessary disposition for their reception, and as the season of their being of any advantage for the support of our Army may be irrevocably lapsed before their arrival, if the least unnecessary delay should be indulged.

We have made a representation to the Lieutenant-Governour of Rhode-Island, similar to the foregoing, and are about to make a like representation to the Congress of New-Hampshire, and to send the same by special express.

We suppose the whole number of our enemy's land forces, when joined with the four Regiments which were ordered to New-York, will amount to upwards of ten thousand, exclusive of negroes and tories, who are every way provided and furnished in the best manner for action.

We have the fullest confidence that your Honour's zeal and ardour for the salvation of our Country, and the preservation of our inestimable rights, will render any importunity unnecessary to induce you to take all the requisite steps to effect the proposed augmentation for which we are most solicitous.

To Governour Trumbull.

MASSACHUSETTS COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO THE SELECT-MEN OF BRADFORD.

Cambridge, June 25, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: It gives us great concern that we are obliged to address you on a subject which we are convinced must be disagreeable; but the department we are placed in, and the safety of this Colony, demand our exertions, which, with yours, will, we hope, put an end to all such disorders as have taken place in the instance to which we would now proceed. We are informed by Captain Gage that a company of fifty men were enlisted under his command as Minute-men, in the Town of Bradford, agreeable to a recommendation of the Provincial Congress; and we find, by said enlistment, they engaged to serve for the term of one year from February, 1775. We are also informed that said men refused enlisting anew, agreeable to the late order of Congress for establishing an army, but have, notwithstanding, been doing duty in the camp, and it was expected by their officers and this Committee, that they would continue in the service agreeable to their engagement; but to our surprise we are informed that the whole of said Company, save two men, have scandalously deserted the cause of their Country, and stained their own honour by leaving the camp and returning home; by which conduct they have forfeited all their pay, and set an example which, if followed, must injure the important cause we are engaged in. We therefore must, in the strongest terms, urge that you use your influence in this matter in such way as shall tend to bring those persons to such a sense of their bad conduct as may cause them to return to their duty; for should such base conduct not be put a stop to, how would our character in this Colony appear to our brethren in the sister Colonies? We apprehend we need not say any thing further to urge you to exert yourselves in this affair, but that the importance of putting a stop to such proceedings will be of sufficient weight with you to act such a part as will do you honour and your country service.

We are, &c.

N. B. Should they return and continue in their duty, they will no doubt be entitled to and receive pay for their whole services.

GEN. FOLSOM TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

June 25, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: In my letter of the twenty-third instant, I informed you that Colonel Stark refused subordination to my orders; but yesterday he made such submission as induces me to desire you to pass over said letter, so far as it relates to him, unnoticed. He has three supernumerary Companies, one of which very lately joined his Regiment: pray your orders with respect to them. In my letter of the fourth instant I omitted mentioning that the Captain-General could as poorly supply me matrosses as artillery. 'Tis needless to mention that a camp is insecure without artillerymen in proportion to the battalion. The New-Hampshire forces, in their present station, are in a great measure independent of the other forces, and, if occasion requires, the few matrosses in our camp (scarcely sufficient to manage a few small field-pieces) may be detached from us, and the camp left entirely destitute. I therefore pray your judgment whether it is not more eligible to draft out one half the Artillery Company designed to be raised in Portsmouth, to join your forces here, with a good Engineer, as soon as may be.

If you cannot procure any expert gunner in New-Hampshire; several persons have been recommended to me by members of the Massachusetts Congress, who I believe may be procured by proper encouragement.

I am your most obedient humble servant,

NATHANIEL FOLSOM.

To the Honourable Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-Hampshire.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM AN OFFICER OF THE ARMY IN BOSTON TO HIS FRIEND IN ENGLAND, DATED JUNE 25, 1775.

When I left England, the service on which I am now come was even at that time irksome and disagreeable, but now it is doubly so. The cause in which we are concerned is entirely obliterated; our disputes, as from man to man, are of a private nature. The people of the country have, by various methods, exasperated and enraged us; and to free ourselves from a situation so disagreeable and confined, there is not any thing we would not attempt. I confess, upon the grand basis of this business we all unanimously acquit the Colonists, and every hour of the day pray Lord North to head us. After the skirmish of the seventeenth, we even commended the Troops of Putnam, who fought so gallantly, pro aris et focis. When we marched to the attack of their redoubt, they called out "Colonel Abercrombie, are the Yankces cowards?" nor did they discharge a gun until we were within fifteen yards. The fire on our left wing was so hot that our Troops broke; but the Grenadiers, with uncommon fury, attacked the trenches, and forced them, when our soldiers rallied again. We kept possession of the intrenchments till next morning, when we marched into Boston; a sad remains of those glorious fellows who were led into the field. Gen. Howe was three times in the field left by himself, so numerous were the killed and wounded about him; and alas! I grieve to tell you, that I fear nine out of ten of these gallant fellows will die of their wounds. The loss of the Provincial Troops is trifling in comparison to ours; and indeed another such onset will be our ruin. A universal murmur now runs through the Army, which ever most disagreeably invades the General's ears. An Irish officer humorously said on the occasion, that indeed we had gained but a loss. In short, all you have yet sent by way of Troops to this Continent are but a mouthful. If you send more to add to us, we may make them a dinner; and you may continue to supply them with a supper, and then it will be a good night. Indeed, we may say with Falstaff, with great propriety, that "they make us here but food for gunpowder." I wish all these domestick animosities were settled, and also our private ones; but even in our promotions, glaring and unjust partialities prevail. So very secret was the late action conducted, that Generals Clinton and Burgoyne knew not of it till the morning, though the Town did in general, and Putnam in particular. This man served under Prussia, and does honour to his master; he is sixty-three, and brave to the back bone. I hope better times, but these are really sad ones. Adieu.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM BOSTON TO A GENTLEMAN IN SCOTLAND, DATED JUNE 25, 1775.

About a week ago the remainder of the fleet from Ireland arrived here with the Thirty-Fifth, Forty-Ninth, and Sixty-Third Regiments of Foot, and Seventeenth of Light Dragoons, all of whom, except part of the Forty-Ninth, were landed.

At daylight on Saturday morning, the seventeenth instant, I was awakened by some cannon fired from the Lively, man-of-war, stationed at Charlestown Ferry. This firing was occasioned by their seeing a great number of the rebels at work, raising a redoubt on that height, at the back of Charlestown, nearest to Boston, known by the name of Bunker's Hill, which they had begun the night before, and, by the help of facines, gabions, and other such materials, and by a great number of hands, they had got almost completed. This firing from the Lively was almost immediately put a stop to by the Admiral. In the mean time the General ordered three pieces of brass cannon, (twenty-four pounders,) to be mounted on a battery that had been raised on Copp's Hill, at the north end, where he also sent some howitzers, and a large quantity of ammunition of all kinds.

At nine in the morning this battery opened, and continued to annoy the rebels all the forenoon, as did also the Glasgow, man-of-war, who lay off the point at New-Boston. At twelve o'clock the Light Infantry and Grenadiers, with the Fifth, Thirty-Eighth, Forty-Third, and Fifty-Second Regiments, embarked on board the transport boats at the Long Wharf and at the north battery, and about half past one landed on Charlestown Point, at the entrance of Mistick River, covered by a heavy fire from the Lively, and another man-of-war stationed off the north battery; a large sloop and two floating batteries at Charlestown Ferry; the battery from Copp's Hill; a transport mounting twenty guns, lying a little higher up, and the Glasgow, man-of-war. They effected their landing without any loss, and, after resting the men a few minutes, marched on to dislodge the rebels from some posts they had taken on the back of the hill.

In half an hour after, the Forty-Seventh Regiment, part of the Thirty-Fifth, and a battalion of Marines, followed, and landed at the place where there formerly was a battery in Charlestown.

At their landing, the Town of Charlestown was set on fire by carcasses thrown from Copp's Hill battery, and the Troops marched on, commanded by Generals Howe and Clinton.

About three quarters past three, an excessively hot fire commenced on the back of the hill, to dislodge a large body of the rebels that had posted themselves behind some fences, which they had made ball-proof by bushes, hay, earth, &c. This fire lasted about fifty minutes. As soon as they had dislodged this body, one party of our men came up on one side, and another on the other side of the redoubt, and stormed and carried it in a few minutes. From this they pursued the rebels to the hill beyond, and having drove them from that, forced them over Charlestown Neck. All this they accomplished in about four hours, having entire possession of the Neck by six o'clock. The whole body of Troops engaged was about fourteen hundred.

In the redoubt the rebels had sixteen hundred men; and behind it and the fences, which they had fortified from that to the water, about five thousand; besides some thousands more stationed on the hill behind, all of whom the Troops forced to fly over the Neck.

The loss on both sides is supposed to be nearly equal; nor can we wonder it should be so, when we consider that this handful of fourteen hundred men forced a redoubt defended by sixteen hundred, who, had they behaved with any tolerable degree of courage, and had but a small portion of military skill, they might have defended against three times their number. Our officers have suffered much, no less than eighty-six being killed and wounded. Among the killed of the rebels is Doctor Warren, who commanded at the redoubt. The Troops are now busy in fortifying the hill that commands Charlestown Neck; and the rebels are fortifying a hill about half way between that and Cambridge, from which I expect to find them dislodged in a few days.

We hear nothing from the country, as this has put an entire stop to the little communication we had before.

Had this post not been taken, it was the intention of the rebels to have set fire to Boston that night; instead of which the whole Town of Charlestown is in ruins; their leader and orator (Doctor Warren) is slain; and they must now be convinced that British Troops are capable of driving them from their strongest holds, though opposed by vast superiority of numbers.

GENERAL BURGoyNE TO LORD STANLEY.

Boston, June 25, 1775.

Boston is a peninsula, joined to the main land only by a narrow neck, which, on the first troubles, General Gage fortified; arms of the sea and the harbour surround the rest on the other side. On one of these arms, to the north, is Charlestown, or rather was, for it is now rubbish, and over it is a large hill, which is also (like Boston) a peninsula. To the south of the Town is a still larger scope of ground, containing three hills, joining also to the main by a tongue of land, and called Dorchester Neck. The heights, as above described, both north and south, (in the soldier's phrase,) command the Town; that is, give an opportunity of erecting batteries above any that you can make against them, and consequently are much more advantageous. It was absolutely necessary we should make ourselves masters of these heights, and we proposed to begin with Dorchester; because, from the particular situation of batteries and shipping, (too long to describe, and unintelligible to you if I did,) it would evidently be effected without any considerable loss. Every thing was accordingly disposed; my two colleagues and myself, (who, by the by, have never differed in one jot of military sentiment,) had, in concert with General Gage, formed the plan. Howe was to land the transports on the point; Clinton in the centre; and I was to cannonade from the Causeway or the Neck; each to take advantage of circumstances. The operations must have been very easy; this was to have been executed on the 18th. On the 17th, at dawn of day, we found the enemy had pushed intrenchments with great diligence during the night, on the heights of Charlestown, and we evidently saw that every hour gave them fresh strength; it therefore became necessary to alter our plan, and attack on that side. Howe, as second in command, was detached with about two thousand men, and landed on the outward side of the peninsula, covered with shipping, without opposition; he was to advance from thence up the hill which was over Charlestown, where the strength of the enemy lay; he had under him Brigadier-General Pigot. Clinton and myself took our stand (for we had not any fixed post) in a large battery directly opposite to Charlestown, and commanded it, and also reaching the heights above it, and thereby facilitating Howe's attack. Howe's disposition was exceeding soldierlike; in my opinion it was perfect. As his first arm advanced up the hill they met with a thousand impediments from strong fences, and were much exposed. They were also exceedingly hurt by musketry from Charlestown, though Clinton and I did not perceive it until Howe sent us word by a boat, and desired us to set fire to the Town, which was immediately done; we threw a parcel of shells, and the whole was instantly in flames; our battery afterwards kept an incessant fire on the heights; it was seconded by a number of frigates, floating batteries, and one ship-of-the-line. And now ensued one of the greatest scenes of war that can be conceived: if we look to the height, Howe's corps ascending the hill in the face of intrenchments, and in a very disadvantageous ground, was much engaged; to the left the enemy pouring in fresh troops by thousands, over the land; and in the arm of the sea our ships and floating batteries cannonading them; straight before us a large and noble Town in one great blaze—the church-steeple being timber, were great pyramids of fire above the rest; behind us, the church-steeple and heights of our own camp covered with spectators of the rest of our Army which was engaged; the hills round the country covered with spectators; the enemy all in anxious suspense; the roar of cannon, mortars, and musketry; the crash of churches, ships upon the stocks, and whole streets falling together, to fill the ear; the storm of the redoubts, with the objects above described, to fill the eye; and the reflection that, perhaps, a defeat was a final loss to the British Empire in America, to fill the mind; made the whole a picture, and a complication of horror and importance beyond any thing that ever came to my lot to be witness to. I much lament *Tom's absence; it was a sight for a young soldier that the longest service may not furnish again; and had he been with me he would likewise have been out of danger; for, except two cannon balls that went a hundred yards over our heads, we were not in any part of the direction of the enemy's shot. A moment of the day was critical: Howe's left were staggered; two battalions had been sent to re-enforce them, but we perceived them on the beach seeming in embarrassment what way to march. Clinton then, next for business, took the part without waiting for orders, to throw himself into a boat to head them; he arrived in time to be of service; the day ended with glory, and the success was most important, considering the ascendancy it gave the Regular Troops; but the loss was uncommon in officers for the numbers engaged. Howe was untouched, but his Aid-de-Camp, Sherwin, was killed; Jordan, a friend of Howe's, who came engage le de cœur, to see the campaign, (a shipmate of ours on board the Cerberus, and who acted as aid-de-camp,) is badly wounded. Pigot was unhurt, but he behaved like a hero. You will see the list of the loss. Poor Colonel Abercrombie, who commanded the Grenadiers, died yesterday of his wounds. Captain Addison, our poor old friend, who arrived but the day before, and was to have dined with me on the day of the action, was also killed; his son was upon the field at the same time. Major Mitchell is but very slightly hurt; he is out already. Young Chetwynd's wound is also slight. Lord Percy's Regiment has suffered the most, and behaved the best; his Lordship himself was not in the action. Lord Rowden behaved to a charm; his name is established for life.

TO GENERAL BURGOTNE.

SIR: In reading the newspapers I find an extract of a letter which it is said you wrote a few days after the battle of Charlestown, to a noble Lord in England; and I take notice you close your narration of that important day's work, by saying, "The day ended with glory."

* His nephew, the Honourable Thomas Stanley, Esquire, (and brother to Lord Stanley,) who is gone a volunteer to Boston in His Majesty's service.

As I am totally at a loss to know what part of the day's conduct was crowned with so much "glory" on your part, permit me, Sir, to inquire, whether it was such a "glorious" achievement for upwards of two thousand regular disciplined troops, being the flower of the British Army, headed by the most approved and experienced Generals, with part of the train of artillery, supported and covered with one ship-of-the-line, a number of frigates and floating batteries, and a large battery on Copp's Hill, in which General Clinton and you took your stand, and which commanded the Town, to dislodge a much inferior number of American Militia from a slender defence, which they had but four hours to prepare, for it was twelve o'clock before either spade or pickaxe entered the ground, and the Lively, ship-of-war, fired upon them at four next morning, and soon after the battery above mentioned began to play.

Was it, indeed, such a "glorious" action, with all this tremendous apparatus of war, and under all these advantageous circumstances, in the space of twelve hours to kill seventy-seven, and wound two hundred and seventy-eight Americans, (twenty-eight of whom were captivated,) and take five small pieces of cannon, which they had not time to place? Nor was all this effected till they had sustained your fire from four o'clock in the morning till four o'clock in the afternoon; being then quite worn down with fatigue, and their ammunition wholly expended, were obliged to retreat.

Your representation of the transactions of that day does the Americans an honour you never intended. All Europe will revere the fortitude, and stand surprised at the firmness and valour of this handful of brave, though undisciplined men.

Or was it, indeed, such a "glorious" sight to view the field strewed with the mangled corpses of a few brave and virtuous Americans? Or to see the agonies and hear the piercing shrieks and dying groans of Abercrombie, Pitcairn, and above a thousand others of those who were brought hither to crush the rising liberty of America, but who now lay weltering in their gore? Or to behold the inexpressible anguish of the widows and orphans made by that day's wicked attempt to enslave America?

If such a scene as this is "glorious" in your eyes, Americans are of opposite sentiments; they lament the loss of those brave Britons, whose life and blood should have been reserved for a cause of justice against the natural enemies of Englishmen. Americans mourn over the wounds you compel them to give, and heartily sympathize with those widows and orphans you forced them to make.

But perhaps it was your laying Charlestown in ashes that has elated your mind, and led you to conclude that "the day ended with glory."

Remember, Sir, any parricide, any assassin, the greatest of villains, with proper materials, can set wooden buildings on fire, especially when they themselves are as far out of danger as you were at that time.

Was it indeed "glorious" to see whole streets falling together in flaming ruins, owned by subjects second to none for their loyalty to the Monarch of Britain, who, by the way, have now sprung to their arms, determined to check the bloody career of ministerial vengeance, or perish in the attempt?

Was there any necessity, from the exigency of the day, for this wanton waste of English property, to the amount of one hundred thousand Pounds sterling? You yourself acknowledge that neither Clinton nor you perceived any firing from the Town of Charlestown on the troops under Lord Howe, nor did any body else see any; for I now appeal to his Lordship's candour, whether it was possible that his troops could have been annoyed by the Americans from any of the houses in Charlestown provided those houses had been full of them? The Town of Charlestown was always in your power, and you might have set it on fire at any hour when you pleased.

Would it not have been less inglorious to have reserved it for the use of your own troops, who have since loaded you with many a curse, while suffering in cold and rain for want of being covered in those very buildings you destroyed?

If this is your idea of "glory," I shall think that this, and the martial soul you discover in lamenting the absence of your nephew, Thomas Stanley, Esquire, because you were out of the direction of the American shot, pretty near of a piece.

Liberty, peace, and glory to both Countries; is the voice of America.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM GENERAL GAGE TO LORD DARTMOUTH.

Boston, June 25, 1775.

The success, of which I send your Lordship an account by the present opportunity, was very necessary in our present situation, and I wish most sincerely that it had not cost us so dear. The number of killed and wounded is greater than our forces can afford to lose. The officers, who were obliged to exert themselves, have suffered very much, and we have lost some extremely good officers. The trials we have had show the rebels are not the despicable rabble too many have supposed them to be, and I find it owing to a military spirit, encouraged among them for a few years past, joined with an uncommon degree of zeal and enthusiasm, that they are otherwise. When they find cover, they make a good stand, and the country naturally strong, affords it to them, and they are taught to assist its natural strength by art, for they intrench and raise batteries. They have fortified all the heights and passes around this Town, from Dorchester to Medford or Mistick, and it is not impossible for them to annoy the Town.

Your Lordship will perceive that the conquest of this Country is not easy, and can be effected only by time and perseverance, and strong armies attacking it in various quarters and dividing their forces. Confining your operations on this side only is attacking in the strongest part, and you have to cope with vast numbers. It might naturally be supposed, that troops of the nature of the rebel Army would return home after such a check as they had got, and I hear many wanted to go off, but care has been taken to prevent it; for any man that returns home without a pass, is immediately seized and sent back to his Regiment. In all their wars against the French they never showed so much conduct, attention, and perseverance as they do now. I think it my duty to let your Lordship know the true situation of affairs, that Administration may take measures accordingly.

The people's minds are kept so much heated and inflamed, that they are always ripe for every thing that is extravagant. Truth is kept from them, and they are too full of prejudices to believe it, if laid before them; and so blind and bigoted, that they cannot see they have exchanged liberty for tyranny. No people were ever governed more absolutely than those of the American Provinces now are, and no reason can be given for their submission, but that it is a tyranny they have erected themselves, as they believe, to avoid greater evils.

GENERAL GAGE TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

Whitehall, July 25, 1775.

This morning arrived Captain Chadds, of His Majesty's ship Cerberus, with the following letter from the Honourable Lieutenant-General Gage to the Earl of Dartmouth, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State:

Copy of a Letter from the Honourable Lieutenant-General Gage to the Earl of DARTMOUTH, dated BOSTON, JUNE 25, 1775.

MY LORD: I am to acquaint your Lordship of an action that happened on the 17th instant, between His Majesty's Troops and a body of the rebel forces.

An alarm was given at break of day on the 17th instant, by a firing from the Lively, ship of war; and advice was soon afterwards received, that the rebels had broke ground, and were raising a battery on the heights of the peninsula of Charlestown, against the Town of Boston. They were plainly seen at work, and in a few hours a battery of six guns played upon their works. Preparations were instantly made for landing a body of men to drive them off, and ten companies of Grenadiers, ten of Light-Infantry, with the Fifth, Thirty-Eighth, Forty-Third, and Fifty-Second battalions made a third line. The rebels upon the heights were perceived to be in great force, and strongly posted—a redoubt thrown up on the 16th at night, with other works, full of men, defended with cannon, and a large body posted in the houses in Charlestown, covered their right flank, and their centre and left were covered by a breastwork, part of it cannon proof, which reached from the left of the redoubt to the Mistick or Medford river.

This appearance of the rebels' strength, and the large columns seen pouring in to their assistance, occasioned an application for the Troops to be re-enforced with some companies of Light-Infantry and Grenadiers, the Forty-Seventh Battalion, and the First battalion of Marines, the whole, when in conjunction, making a body of something above two thousand men. These Troops advanced, formed in two lines, and the attack began by a sharp cannonade from our field-pieces and howitzers; the lines advancing slowly, and frequently halting to give time for the artillery to fire. The Light-Infantry was directed to force the left point of the breastwork, to take the rebel line in flank, and the Grenadiers to attack in front, supported by the Fifth and Fifty-Second Battalions. These orders were executed with perseverance, under a heavy fire from the vast numbers of the rebels; and notwithstanding various impediments before the Troops could reach the works, (and though the left, under Brigadier-General Pigot, who engaged also with the rebels at Charlestown, which, at a critical moment was set on fire,) the Brigadier pursued his point, and carried the redoubt. The rebels were then forced from other strong holds, and pursued till they were drove clear off the peninsula, leaving five pieces of cannon behind them.

The loss the rebels sustained must have been considerable, from the great numbers they carried off during the time of action, and buried in holes, since discovered, exclusive of what they suffered by the shipping and boats. Near one hundred were buried the next day after, and thirty found wounded in the field, three of whom are since dead.

I enclose your Lordship a return of the killed and wounded of His Majesty's Troops.

This action has shown the superiority of the King's Troops, who, under every disadvantage, attacked and defeated above three times their number, strongly posted and covered by breastworks.

The conduct of Major-General Howe was conspicuous on this occasion, and his example spirited the Troops, in which Major-General Clinton assisted, who followed the re-enforcement. And in justice to Brigadier-General Pigot, I am to add, that the success of the day must, in a great measure, be attributed to his firmness and gallantry.

Lieutenant-Colonels Nesbit, Abercrombie, Clarke; Majors Butler, Williams, Bruce, Spendlove, Smelt, Mitchell, Pitcairn, and Short, exerted themselves remarkably; and the valour of the British officers and soldiers in general was at no time more conspicuous than in this action.

I have the honour to be, &c., THOMAS GAGE.

OBSERVATIONS ON THE GOVERNMENT ACCOUNT OF THE LATE ACTION NEAR CHARLESTOWN.

London, August 1, 1775.

There are two sorts of persons who always persevere uniformly, and without shame, in one unvaried line of conduct, regardless of the contempt and detestation of mankind. The sorts I mean are the thorough virtuous and the thorough scoundrel.

To one of these classes most evidently belong the Ministers who settled the account which they have given us in last Tuesday's Gazette.

The action near Boston happened on the "17th of June;" yet General Gage's letter is dated eight days after, on the "25th of June."

By this letter it appears that it has cost one thousand and sixty-four of the Troops, killed and wounded, to destroy a redoubt thrown up only the overnight, i. e., on the 16th of June.

The loss of the Provincials, the letter says, "must have been considerable;" yet, eight days after the action, the General, though completely victorious, can tell us only of "one hundred" buried, and "thirty" wounded.

But "they had carried off great numbers during the time of action." Did they so? That is no great sign of flight, confusion, and defeat.

But "they buried them in holes." Really! Why, are our soldiers buried in the air.

But "the King's Troops were under every disadvantage." So truly it seems; for, in the same letter we are told "that they had a proportion of field artillery, and landed on the peninsula without opposition, and formed as soon as landed, under the protection of some ships-of-war, armed vessels, and boats, by whose fire the rebels were kept within their works."

But "this action has shewn the superiority of the King's Troops." Has it, indeed! How? Why they (with a proportion of field artillery, and with the assistance of ships, armed vessels, and boats, and with the encouragement of certain and speedy re-enforcements, if necessary) attacked and defeated "above three times their own numbers." What, three times their own numbers? Of whom, pray? Of French or Spanish Regulars? No, of the Americans. Of the Americans! What, of those dastardly, hypocritical cowards, who (Lord Sandwich knows) do not feel bold enough to dare to look a soldier in the face! Of those undisciplined and spiritless Yankees, who were to be driven from one end of the Continent to the other, with a single Regiment! What, of those skulking assassins, who can only fire at a distance, from behind stone-walls and hedges! Good God! Was it necessary, to defeat these fellows, that the Troops should be "spirited" by the example of General Howe, assisted by General Clinton? And can it be, that Lieutenant-Colonels Nesbit, Abercrombie, and Clarke; Majors Butler, Williams, Bruce, Spendlove, Smelt, Mitchell, Pitcairn, and Short, should be forced to exert themselves remarkably against such poltrons! Is it possible that this could be an affair in which "the valour of the British officers and soldiers in general was as conspicuous as at any time whatever;" and notwithstanding all this, that the success, in a great measure, should be attributed to the firmness and gallantry of General Pigot?

Good God! is it come to this at last? Can the Regulars, with all these exertions, only defeat three times their own number of undisciplined cowards? and that, too, at the expense of one thousand and sixty-four (that is, more than one-half) killed and wounded, out of something above two thousand.

Is every redoubt which the Americans can throw up in a short summer night, to be demolished at this expense? How many such victories can we bear?

Alas! when I read in the General's letter the regular and formidable preparations for attack: "Ten companies of Grenadiers, ten of Light-Infantry, with the Fifth, Thirty-Eighth, Forty-Third, and Fifty-Second Battalions, with a proportion of field artillery, under the command of Major-General Howe and Brigadier-General Pigot," and these "landed on the peninsula under the protection of ships-of-war, armed vessels, and boats," and their dreadful fire: when I had read this, I concluded that the next lines would inform me of the immediate and precipitate flight of the Yankees. Judge, then, of my surprise; when I read that (instead of being at all dismayed or struck with the Sandwich panic) "large columns" of these cowards "were seen pouring in to their assistance."

Well, but then comes "an application for the Troops to be re-enforced with some companies of Light-Infantry and Grenadiers, the Forty-Seventh Battalion, and the First Battalion of Marines." They will certainly, thought I, scamper away now. Alas! No. They stay and fight. And to complete my astonishment, I cannot find in General Gage's letter where our Troops were when he wrote, nor what became of them after the action; whether they are returned to Boston, or have ventured to encamp without the Town; what prisoners they have taken; what advantages (besides five pieces of cannon) result from this bloody action; whether the war is now at an end, or what the Troops propose to do next.

To be serious, I am, for my own part, convinced that the event of this execrable dragooning is decided; and that before winter there will not be a single soldier of Lord Bute's and Lord Mansfield's mercenary troops left upon the Continent of America.

With what consolation those noble Lords will wipe away the tears of the widow and orphans, (as well English as American;) which these bloody Stuart measures have occasioned, I cannot tell; but I know that my eyes will gush out with joy when they see the authors of our domestick miseries receive (what I believe they will soon receive) their just reward.

FURTHER OBSERVATIONS.

I have the highest idea of General Howe's military character, yet cannot help wondering how he came to suffer the Provincials to escape, and even carry off their dead, when drove from their strong lines; for I conceive it very easy to have destroyed the whole body, after dislodging them so suddenly from their intrenchments, if Mr. Gage is suffered to tell the story right: I can't help observing also, that I never before heard of so many men, in proportion to the number, being killed and wounded from redoubts made in four hours, and from six pieces of cannon only in those redoubts, to oppose above one hundred pieces. I therefore suspect that the disagreeable scene is not unfolded.

One or both of the following conclusions must be drawn from this narration: The Americans are either the cleverest fellows in the world at making strong lines in three or four hours, or the most desperate enemy in defending them; for, by Mr. Gage's account, they killed and wounded near half his army in marching up about three hundred yards under a complete train of artillery, and all the fire of the Navy to cover them; which, by this account, is a new instance of successful defence from one night's labour. Hah, Gad! by this rule the Americans will put our whole Army into the grave or hospitals in three or four nights' work, and an hour's fire in each morning. I do not remember precisely, but am apt to believe, that there were not so many officers killed and wounded at the battle of Minden, though the English Regiments sustained the force of the whole French Army for a considerable time. A six-gun battery, the production of a night's digging, had there been ten thousand men to protect it, could never have made such havock against a vast train of artillery, and the irresistible fire of our ships, which would sweep all before them, from every acre of that peninsula. But the true story is not told: A Methodist Secretary, and a Scotch Printer, can do more than our people; they pay off the sins of omission and commission of the day by a long prayer at night, and thus settle accounts between God and the People in an hour's devotion.

London, August 8, 1775.

The account of the late action between the Americans and the Troops of General Gage, is one of the most evasive and unsatisfactory that ever yet obtruded on the publick, even through the channel of a Ministerial paper; and yet it is every way worthy of the victory which it affects to describe. The General sent out "something above two thousand men," of whom something above half (i. e. 1053) are either killed or wounded. The General, however, takes care not to mention how many hours were employed in the prosecution of this hopeful business, but, nevertheless, pretends to tell us that great numbers of the enemy were destroyed; and seems to have employed his soldiers in digging up such as were buried in holes, that he might have power to ascertain the value of his conquest.

With all the vanity of a military man he praises the conduct of the officers under his command; but prudently omits to say whether any such advantage has been gained as may make up for the loss of one Lieutenant-Colonel, two Majors, seven Captains, nine Lieutenants, fifteen Sergeants, one Drummer, one hundred and ninety-one rank and file, killed; and three Majors, twenty-seven Captains, thirty-two Lieutenants, eight Ensigns, forty Sergeants, twelve Drummers, and seven hundred and six rank and file wounded, and unfit for service. In short, if every time the General sends out his brace of thousands, the one half of them should either drop, or be rendered useless, we shall soon see an end to the war in America, but it cannot be expected to terminate in our own favour.

The Ministry received this account several days before it was announced, but were either unwilling or unable to cook it up for the publick till after their despatches had been sent away. The printer may rely on this assurance from one whose private letters will always reach him unexamined and uncastrated by the spies of Government. General Gage is but too well convinced that such another victory would oblige him to re-embark his Troops and sail immediately for England, without attempting any farther reduction of the Americans.

The Captain who brought these despatches from Boston, was commanded to declare he had great news of the defeat of the Americans, though he had assured many people in the Towns through which he passed on his way to London, that he was afraid the accounts he brought would throw the whole Nation into disorder, and direct its vengeance on the advisers of hostile measures in America.

Grenada, June 28, 1775.

On Monday, the 26th instant, his Honour the Commander-in-Chief, sent the following Message to the Honourable House of Assembly:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Assembly:

I think it my duty to require, that the Address and Minutes of your House, in favour of the rebellious subjects in America, be rescinded. This I hope will be done before any other business is entered upon by your House.

I have the honour to be, &c.

WILLIAM YOUNG.

St. George's, June 26, 1775.

Whereupon it was Resolved by the House, That a Message be sent to his Honour, the Commander-in-Chief, acknowledging, that an Address to His Majesty had passed this House, in consequence of an unanimous Resolution for that purpose; that such Address was ordered to be engrossed and delivered to the late Speaker for the purpose of presenting the same to the Throne, and is no longer considered to be in the power of this House; that such Address contained a renewal of the sentiments of this House, of their attachment to His Majesty's Royal person, family, and Government, and of their confidence under such auspices, in the conduct of the Mother Country, towards this Colony; that the Address also deplored the mischiefs already consequent on the unhappy contest subsisting between Great Britain and its Provinces on the Continent of America, and pointed out some of the many evils of which the continuance of such disputes were likely to be productive of to these islands; and imploring His Majesty, the father of all his People, to exert that influence which he possessed from the attachment of his servants, and the affection of his subjects, towards healing differences between their countrymen and friends; but contained no principles or expressions tending to encourage or approve rebellion, or a rebellious disposition, in any part of His Majesty's extensive dominions; and therefore hoping that his Honour will not consider such an Address as any deviation from that loyalty which they feel, are ready to manifest on all occasions to His Majesty; and that his Honour will please to allow the continuance of the publick business of this Colony, which requires the immediate attention of the Legislature.

After which a Message was accordingly sent to his Honour.

The following Resolutions were proposed, and passed the House unanimously:

That this House are no less astonished than alarmed, to find that the exercise of one of the most acknowledged and indisputable rights of the subject, that of petitioning the Sovereign for the redress of evils, which they either feel or may foresee to be unavoidable, should have drawn upon them the displeasure of the Commander-in-Chief.

That they are at a loss to comprehend upon what principles an Address to the King, couched (as they conceive) in the most respectful terms, and breathing but those real sentiments of loyalty with which this House is impressed, should be construed as encouraging a spirit of disaffection, or rebellion, in any part of His Majesty's dominions.

That the peremptory requisition to rescind the Minutes, and a very loyal and dutiful Address to their Sovereign, before the House proceeded on any other business, is a very extraordinary and unheard-of exertion of power, destructive of the right of making the most decent representations of the state of the Colony to the Sovereign, and of every idea of freedom of conduct and debate, which are not only the incontrovertible right of the House of Representatives, but essential to the welfare and good Government of the Colony.

That this House cannot but in a particular manner lament that there should be any interruption to their proceedings, at a time when, with the greatest appearance of harmony among themselves, and a hearty concurrence on the part of the other branches of the Legislature, they were actually preparing so many useful laws and regulations, which were become materially requisite for the re-establishment of public credit, and for the preservation of the Colony from the numerous calamities with which it has been long afflicted, and which, without an immediate remedy, must speedily tend to its total ruin; but this House can never resolve to attain even these desirable ends (were the means of doing so still in their power) by the sacrifice of so essential and inherent a right as that of petitioning their Sovereign for the redress of grievances, or prevention of evils, either felt or foreseen.

The same day his Honour dissolved the Assembly.

PROCLAMATION.

GEORGE the Third, by the grace of God of GREAT BRITAIN, FRANCE, and IRELAND, King, Defender of the Faith:

Whereas, it is expedient and necessary that the present House of Assembly, called for our said Island of Grenada and the Grenadines, should be dissolved: We do therefore think fit to issue this our Royal Proclamation, to publish and declare to our loving subjects, that the said Assembly is dissolved, and be it, and it is hereby dissolved accordingly.

Witness our trusty and well beloved William Young, Esq., our Commander-in-Chief in and over our Islands of Grenada, the Grenadines, St. Vincent and Tobago, Chancellor, Ordinary, and Vice-Admiral of the same, at Grenada, this 26th day of June, in the year of our Lord, 1775, and the fifteenth of our reign.

MEETING OF THE INHABITANTS OF SAVANNAH, GEORGIA.

At a meeting of sundry gentlemen at Savannah, on Monday, June 26, 1775, it was unanimously

Resolved, That the present Acts of Parliament tending to raise a revenue in America, are grievances:

Resolved, therefore, That we will do all that we legally may to obtain redress of those grievances.

Resolved, That Friday, the 30th instant, June, at nine o'clock, A. M., at the house of Mrs. Cuyler, be a day appointed for a meeting, in order to consult the most expedient method to obtain redress.

TALBOT COUNTY (MARYLAND) COMMITTEE.

June 26, 1775.

The Committee of Observation for Talbot County desire you to publish the following piece of intelligence:

On Monday, the 26th of June, the Ship Johnston, Captain Jones, from and belonging to Mr. James Gildart of Liverpool, was spoke within the Chesapeake Bay by Captain Harding, of the Schooner Endeavour; when Captain Jones informed Captain Harding that he was from Liverpool, and had on board a quantity of Salt. Captain Jones being asked whether he had any thing more than Salt on board, answered, yes, he had a few Dry-Goods. On being asked further, how Mr. Gildart (who was well apprized of the Association) would venture to send such articles to America, Captain Jones replied, that three Generals and twenty thousand soldiers had been ordered to America some time before the above goods were shipped, and that it was not doubted but all would be quiet by the time he should arrive.

Captain Jones inquired of Captain Harding whether he could land his Goods and Salt in Georgia; but the next day came with his Ship into the Eastern Bay, landed some Servants he had on board, and soon after started down the Bay.

The publick are cautioned to be under the watch, and look out for the Ship Johnston; as there is reason to suspect she is still hovering in some part of the bay, and will attempt to land her Goods if she can find a convenient opportunity, notwithstanding the Captain's inquiring whether it were practicable to land them in Georgia.

At a meeting of the Committee of Observation for Talbot County, on Friday, the 7th of July, 1775:

JAMES LLOYD CHAMBERLAINE, in the Chair.

Messrs. Thomas Harrison, William Hamilton, Richard Skinner, and Hugh Rice, four of the gentlemen deputed to go on board the Ship Johnston, and examine her papers and log-book, appear and report: That on notice from Mr. James Braddock, agent and factor for Messrs. James Gildart and John Gawith and Co., of Liverpool, merchants, in the night of the 27th of June last, they did, in the morning of the 28th, get on board the said Ship Johnston, then lying in the Western Bay, waiting the return of her boat sent for the said deputation, and did examine her manifest, cocket and log-book, by which they found that she had on board Salt, fourteen Convicts, two indented Servants, and Dry-Goods, as in the annexed schedule;* said by Mr. Braddock to be shipped by Mr. James Gildart, on account of the above-mentioned Gildart and Gawith, and did give orders for her immediate return, permitting her, however, to lay at Hampton Roads, in Virginia, to take in a recruit of bread and water.

They further report, that Mr. Braddock applied to them for leave to land the convicts and servants; to which they replied, that they could see nothing in the proceedings of the Congress relative to convicts or servants, and therefore could give no directions with regard to their being landed; but told him, if he chose to do it, it must be at his own risk; on which Mr. Braddock did land the said convicts and servants, when they (the deputation) came on shore, alleging in his justification, that servants had been a few days before landed at Annapolis and Baltimore Town, and were then advertised for sale.

They further say, that they charged Captain Jones of the said Ship Johnston, to return immediately to the Port of Liverpool, without breaking bulk, which he, the said

JOHN BRACCO, Clerk pro tem.

Captain, assured them he would do; and when they left him, he stood down the bay. The deputation also say, that Mr. Braddock, in their hearing, told the said Captain he must proceed immediately on his return as aforesaid. One of the deputation further saith he overheard the Captain, in private conversation with Mr. Braddock, remonstrate that he could not land the Salt at Liverpool; to which Mr. Braddock replied, they might do as they would with it, but that he (the Captain) must immediately carry it back to the place from whence it came.

It is the unanimous opinion of this Committee, that the said Messrs. James Gildart and John Gawith, by sending the said Goods to be landed in America, have been guilty of a breach of the first Resolve of the American Association, viz: "That if any Merchant, residing in Great Britain or Ireland, shall, directly or indirectly, ship any Goods, Wares, or Merchandise, for America, in order to break the Non-Importation Agreement, or in any manner contravene the same, on such unworthy conduct being well attested, it ought to be made publick; and on the same being so done, we will not thenceforth have any commercial connexion with such Merchants."

Resolved, therefore, for ourselves and our constituents, That we will from henceforth break off all commercial connection with the said Messrs. James Gildart and John Gawith, and each of them, their and each of their agents, factors and store-keepers.

Resolved, also, That agreeable to a determination of the Provincial Convention, in December last, no Gentleman of the Law ought henceforward to bring or prosecute any suit whatever for the said Messrs. James Gildart and John Gawith, or for either of them, their or either of their agents, factors, managers, or store-keepers, as such.

The proceedings of the several Provincial Conventions were read, and unanimously approved of.

Ordered, That the proceedings of this meeting be immediately made publick, and printed in the Maryland Gazette.

Signed per order: JOHN BRACCO, Clerk pro tem.

PHILADELPHIA COMMITTEE.

The Committee for the City and Liberties of Philadelphia will meet this afternoon, at six o'clock, at the Philosophical Society's Hall.

In Committee, June 26, 1775.

A quantity of Salt, and a box of Wine-Glasses, having been imported in the Ship Albion, Thomas Crippen, master, from Liverpool, it was Resolved, That the said Ship and Cargo ought to be returned forthwith; and that the Captain have notice thereof immediately.

Ordered, That the District Committee see the above Resolution complied with.

On motion, Resolved, That Mr. Joseph Whittall, one of the owners of the Ship Albion, does not appear to have had any knowledge of, or concern in shipping the Salt, &c., in said vessel.

Resolved, That Mr. Henry Cour, merchant, of Liverpool, in Great Britain, half owner of the Ship Albion, has knowingly violated the Association of the American Congress, by shipping the said Salt to America; and that it is the duty of this Committee to advertise him accordingly.

Resolved, That Nicholas Ashton, Esq., of, or near Liverpool, in the County of Lancaster, in Great Britain, owner of the above-mentioned Salt, has wilfully violated the Association of the American Congress, by shipping the said Salt to America; and that it is the duty of this Committee to advertise his conduct herein.

Resolved unanimously, That agreeable to the Resolutions of the Grand American Congress, it is the duty of us, and of all our constituents, the inhabitants of the City and Liberties of Philadelphia, from henceforth not to have any commercial intercourse whatever with the said Henry Cour and Nicholas Ashton; and it is recommended that an inviolable regard be paid to this Resolution.

Extract from the Minutes of the Committee of the City and Liberties of Philadelphia.

JONATHAN B. SMITH, Secretary.

J. LAMB AND G. ROORBACK TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York, June 26, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Pursuant to your order we immediately waited on Mr. Evert Bancker, the Barrack-master, to request his delivering us the keys of the Barracks, when he informed us that he had, in compliance with your order of Thursday last, employed a proper person to get the Barracks cleansed with the utmost expedition. But upon inspecting into the matter this morning, we find there are only four persons employed for that purpose; and as there are sixty rooms, all of which are extremely dirty, we are of opinion that it will take them ten or twelve days at least to get them effectually and properly cleansed. Besides, there is a good deal of mason's and carpenter's work necessary to be done, as they are much out of repair.

We are, with the greatest respect, gentlemen, your most humble servants,

JOHN LAMB,

GARRET ROORBACK.

To the Provincial Congress for the Colony of New-York.

JOSEPH FRENCH TO ROBERT BENSON.

Jamaica, Queen's County, June 26, 1775.

SIR: Yours of the twenty-second instant came safe to hand; in answer to which, I must acquaint you that I have made it a rule in life, never to accept any office or place of trust, unless I could acquit myself with honour.

Some time ago we had an election at Jamaica to send members to Congress, and it was carried in the negative. These same men have acquainted me if I attend in Congress, I don't represent them, but the minority. As for my part I have signed the Association in New-York, and expect to abide by the consequence.

I am, Sir, with great esteem, your very humble servant,

JOSEPH FRENCH.

To Robert Benson, Secretary to the Provincial Congress, New-York.

ROBERT R. LIVINGSTON TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Claremont, June 26, 1775.

SIR: I beg leave, by your means, to inform the gentlemen of the Provincial Congress, that yesterday I received their favour of the twenty-second instant, and that my powder-maker, who has brought with him from Philadelphia one hundred and eighty pounds of saltpetre, will begin to work it up on Thursday. The mill consists of four mortars and twelve pounders, and is well supplied with water.

I shall punctually comply with the Resolutions of the Continental Congress transmitted to me, and will communicate them to my powder-maker, who has half the profits of this business.

I remain, with the greatest respect to the gentlemen of the Provincial Congress, their most humble servant,

ROBERT R. LIVINGSTON.

To Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President of the Provincial Congress.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO JOHN HANCOCK.

[Read before Congress, July 5, 1775.]

Lebanon, June 26, 1775.

SIR: I received your letter of the twentieth instant, enclosing the resolve of Congress of the nineteenth; the Governour, and Committee to assist him in the absence of the Assembly, came into a similar resolution the same day; orders were given, and your request answered. The remainder of Colonel Parsons's Regiment are arrived in the camp near Boston, and apprehend Major-General Wooster, with seventeen hundred men, are at the place of their destination, near New-York. The harmony of our councils affords matter of rejoicing. May the Supreme Director of all events give wisdom, stability and union in our counsels, and success, and convince them who seek to deprive us of our happy privileges and just rights, that all their attempts are injurious and vain.

I am, with great truth and sincerity, Sir, your and the Honourable Congress's most obedient and most humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

The Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

GENERAL GAGE TO THE EARL OF DUNMORE.

Boston, June 26, 1775.

This Town was alarmed on the seventeenth instant, at break of day, by a firing from the Lively, ship-of-war, and a report immediately spread that the rebels had broke ground, and were raising a battery on the heights of the peninsula of Charlestown, against the Town of Boston.

They were plainly seen, and in a few hours a battery of six guns played upon their works. Preparations were instantly made for landing a body of men, and some companies of Grenadiers and Light-Infantry, with some battalions and field artillery, amounting in the whole to two thousand men, under the command of Major-General Howe and Brigadier-General Pigot, were embarked with great expedition, and landed on the peninsula without opposition, under cover of some ships-of-war and armed vessels.

The Troops formed as soon as landed. The rebels upon the heights were perceived to be in great force, and strongly posted. A redoubt, thrown up on the sixteenth, at night, with other works, full of men, defended with cannon, and a large body posted in the houses of Charlestown, covered their right, and their left was covered by a breastwork, part of it cannon-proof, which reached from the left of the redoubt to the Mistick River.

Besides the appearance of the rebels' strength, large columns were seen pouring in to their assistance; but the King's Troops advanced. The attack began by a cannonade, and notwithstanding various impediments of fences, walls, &c., and the heavy fire they were exposed to from the vast numbers of rebels, and their left galled from the houses of Charlestown, the Troops made their way to the redoubt, mounted the works, and carried it.

The rebels were then forced from other strong holds, and pursued until they were entirely driven off the peninsula, leaving five pieces of cannon behind them. Charlestown was set on fire during the engagement, and most part of it consumed. The loss they sustained must have been considerable, from the vast numbers they were seen to carry off during the action, exclusive of what they suffered from the shipping. About one hundred were buried the day after, and thirty found on the field, some of whom are since dead. About one hundred and ninety of the King's Troops were killed, and a great many wounded.

This action has shown the bravery of the King's Troops, who, under every disadvantage, gained a complete victory over three times their number, strongly posted and covered by breastworks. But they fought for their King, their laws, and constitution.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A BRITISH OFFICER IN BOSTON, DATED JUNE 26, 1775.

Four days ago I received an order to command three armed vessels, and to put myself under the command of General Gage; as soon as I did I was ordered to be ready at six o'clock next morning, to cover a part of some Troops which were to make an attack on a height on the left side of Boston, and to flank a breastwork and a wood, which was supposed had a number of men in it; but about seven o'clock General Clinton sent to me not to proceed till farther orders from him. Some little time after I was ordered up to General Howe's camp to lie with the vessels on his right, where I last night left them, having been relieved, as I had not been in bed for four nights. I find, since I came down, the reason of the attack not going on was, that the rebels knew of our coming, and had seven or eight thousand men ready to receive us. I own I could have wished it had went on, as I had placed the vessels in such a situation as must have mowed them down, and done great execution.

I am, &c.

GENERAL WARD TO THE MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, June 26, 1775.

SIR: I have this day received by express a letter from the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress, from which I have made the following extract, viz:

Philadelphia, June 20, 1775.

SIR: The enclosed Resolve, which passed yesterday, I have, by order of Congress, forwarded to New-Hampshire,

Rhode-Island, and Connecticut, and now send to you for your government.

I am directed by the Congress to inform you of their desire that none of the Troops now before Boston, however large their number, be disbanded, but retained by you in the service until the further order of this Congress, or orders from General Washington.

Resolved, That the Governour of Connecticut be requested to direct all the forces raised in that Colony, not employed at Ticonderoga and Crown Point, or recommended by this Congress to be marched into the Province of New-York, to be immediately sent to join the combined Army before Boston; and it is earnestly recommended to the Colony of Rhode-Island, and Provincial Convention of New-Hampshire, to send immediately to the Army before Boston such of the forces as are already embodied, towards their quotas of the Troops agreed to be raised by the New-England Colonies.

A true copy from the minutes:

CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary.

As there are many that are, and others that ought to be engaged in the service, absent from the camp, I should be very glad if Congress would take such steps as they in their wisdom may judge best, to influence or oblige the Towns to send back to camp such as have left it without leave, that have received the Colony's money, and such as have not engaged, but ought to be. Nearly a whole company from Bradford, not being mustered and sworn, have left us without leave. I am, Sir, your most humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD.

To the Honourable James Warren, Esquire, President of the Provincial Congress sitting at Watertown.

COMMITTEE OF NORTHFIELD TO MASSACHUSETTS COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Northfield, June 26, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We think proper to acquaint you that there are two small cannon belonging to the Massachusetts-Bay left at Fort Dummer when that garrison was dismantled, and one at Fort Hinsdale, above Northfield, each four pounders. If it should be judged that there might be no occasion for them on the Western frontiers, they might soon be conveyed to our Army if they should be wanted there. If it should be proper to remove them from the places where they now lie, we shall be ready at the first notice to assist in conveying them to such place as shall be appointed and directed to.

By order of the Committee of Correspondence at Northfield:
SAMUEL SMITH, Chairman.

To the Committee of Safety in Cambridge.

P. S. There is one double fortified cannon, a four-pounder, at Fort Dummer, belonging to New-Hampshire.

PLYMOUTH COMMITTEE TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress now sitting at WATERTOWN, the Petition of the Committee of Correspondence for the Town of PLYMOUTH humbly sheweth:

That your petitioners have this day received intelligence that a vote passed your House the — instant, determining to remove to Head-Quarters that part of Colonel Cotton's Regiment which has been, by order of your most respectable body, stationed in this place, for the security and protection of the lives and property of this greatly exposed and much threatened Town. We, your petitioners, have lately received undoubted intelligence by one of our townsmen, who has been taken by a tender and carried into Boston, that Admiral Graves made particular inquiry into the circumstances of this Town, and said that we were a rebellious people, and that in consequence of our building a fort in opposition to the King's Troops, it should not be long before he would blow the Town about our ears. Your petitioners are very sensible that should the Troops be called away from this station, the Town of Plymouth, as well as the adjacent villages, will lie open to the ravages of our enemies, and that it will be no difficult matter for them to plunder and destroy us. The poor of this Town are already much distressed by reason of the stop put to the fishery, and can scarcely subsist upon what they get out of the clam banks and by fishing in boats; and should they be driven from their huts into the barren country that surrounds us, they must (for aught we see) perish with hunger and for want of habitations, there not being houses within twenty miles sufficient to receive them. These poor people consist principally of women and children, their husbands and parents having enlisted themselves into the service of the Colony. Your petitioners are very far from desiring to create any unnecessary expense to the Colony, but, at the same time, think it necessary that said Troops remain with us; and are of opinion that, should they be withdrawn, the Town will be immediately evacuated; and, for the above reasons, your petitioners, as in duty bound, &c.

For and by order of the Committee of Correspondence for the Town of Plymouth:

ANDREW CROSWELL, Clerk.
GAMALIEL BRADFORD, JR.
JOHN GRAY.

P. S. The Committee of Correspondence for the Town of Duxbury and Kingston, which lie on Plymouth Bay, join in the general prayer of the above petition.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO GEN. FOLSOM.

Exeter, June 26, 1775, Eleven o'clock, P. M.

The Committee of Safety of the Colony of NEW-HAMPSHIRE, to General FOLSOM, greeting:

SIR: Previous to the receipt of yours of the twenty-second instant, we sent you flints, bullets, &c., per Mr. Gordon, which the Company has received. We now send what intrenching tools we have prepared, also a quantity of blanketing. As to what you write in yours of the twenty-eighth instant, concerning Colonel Stark, the Congress will meet to-morrow and shall lay it before them; shall immediately provide and send a Surgeon for Read's Regiment; are preparing carriages for the cannon you request in yours of the twenty-fourth instant, and, as soon as completed, shall forward them without delay. The Muster-master will shortly be at Medford to pay off the forces; by him will send your commission; have sent ninety-two tents, and shall, within a week, forward sixty more.

We earnestly wish you the favour and protection of Heaven, and are yours, &c.

By order of the Committee:

M. THORNTON, Chairman.

COMMITTEE OF MASON TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE CONGRESS.

To the Honourable Gentlemen of the Provincial Congress of NEW-HAMPSHIRE:

That whereas, Jason Russell and John Tarbell, both of Mason, in said Province, did, in a felonious manner, on or about the 20th of May last, retire to a pasture in said Town belonging to Samuel Dana, of Groton, and took from thence a three year heifer, and killed and converted it to their own use; whereupon, early notice being given to the Committee for said Town, they met, and required of the offenders full satisfaction therefor, but each of them peremptorily refusing to comply therewith: The advice of Committees from the neighbouring Towns being called in, viz: New-Ipswich and Temple, and the criminals being cited to appear before said Committees, not only neglected to make their appearance before us, but, as we learn, have fled to the Army; and finding ourselves unable to settle the unhappy difficulty by reason of their escape, came into the following Resolution, viz:

Resolved, To refer the matter to your judicious consideration, begging that you will, in your wisdom, take cognizance of the offence, and deal with them in this and in such like case for the future.

EPHRAIM ADAMS, Chairman.
DAVID BLODGETT, Scribe.

Mason, June 26, 1775.

SIR JAMES WRIGHT TO GOVERNOUR GAGE.

Savannah, in Georgia, June 27, 1775.

SIR: I had the honour to write to your Excellency, of the 7th instant, enclosed to Lieutenant-Governour Colden, which I hope you have received; and last night I received a letter from Lord William Campbell, acquainting me that he is going to send the Scorpion with letters to your Excellency, and which opportunity I now embrace; and hope some method may be fallen upon, that we may receive frequent information of the state of things your way, as it has the greatest effect and influence on the conduct of the people in these Provinces, and may contribute much to his Majesty's service.

The unhappy affair of the 19th of April, and some late occurrences in the neighbouring Province, have at length drawn and forced the people of this Province into the same predicament with others; and I now expect that, as far as they possibly can, they will follow the example of them; and I see no probability of any tolerable quietude, unless the prudence and moderation of the Continental Congress should lay a foundation for it.

Your Excellency's order to Major Furlong, I have not yet forwarded; indeed, I have neither vessels nor money to pay the expense of sending for them; and as things are circumstanced at present, it is the opinion of the gentlemen of the Council, that such a number might only inflame the whole Province, and be liable to insults, if not worse; for we have no fort of defence for them to be in, or retire to; and they could neither awe or prevent any attempts against them. This number, a year ago, might have been of great use; or, if things take a favourable turn, may, but not just now; and it is our opinion, that not less than five times that number could answer any effectual purpose; and therefore, I do not mean to forward it yet. But if your Excellency could, for this length, and authorize me to draw for the expense of putting up a temporary fort, I think matters would soon wear a different aspect here; but without, neither law or government can be supported. And I have neither men or money. And the Governours had much better be in England than remain in America, and have the mortification to see their powers executed by Committees and mobs. And I am really amazed that these Southern Provinces should be left in the situation they are, and the Governours and King's Officers, and friends to Government, naked and exposed to the resentment of an enraged people.

Stuart has been obliged to take sanctuary in St. Augustine.

I shall hope for a full and clear answer from your Excellency, that I may know better how to conduct myself; and have the honour to be, with respect and esteem, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

JAMES WRIGHT.*

To his Excellency General Gage.

* The above letter was withdrawn from the envelope, and the following was substituted in its place, and forwarded by the Secret Committee at Charlestown, South-Carolina:

SAVANNAH, IN GEORGIA, June 27, 1775.—SIR: The unhappy affair of the 19th of April, and some late occurrences in Carolina, have occasioned this Province to put on an appearance, which I have the pleasure to assure your Excellency is by no means real; and I am happy that I can, with equal confidence, assure you that there is nothing really formidable in the proceedings or designs of our neighbours of South-Carolina, notwithstanding the late address of their Congress to Lord William Campbell, who being but just arrived, and, as your Excellency knows, but inexperienced in affairs of Government, may think them very serious, and express his apprehensions to you on the subject. However unwilling I write this, yet the good of His Majesty's service compels me to make this intimation to your Excellency, lest you should otherwise be disposed to believe that affairs are in extremity in these Colonies, and act accordingly.

My private intercourse is so extensive in these Colonies, and I am so well informed of the private sentiments of their leading men, that I assure you no danger is to be apprehended from their designs; and their measures, I am convinced, will quickly change, provided they are left to do it in their own way. And upon the best information, joined to certain knowledge of men and matters in Carolina and Georgia, I am fully assured, that if any ships or troops were to be sent into these parts, they would not only totally destroy the present favourable appearances, but in all probability would prove destructive to the good of the service. Upon these ideas I have regulated my conduct; and I have not, as yet, even dreamed of applying to Major Furlong; and I firmly believe that I shall have no occasion to do it.

I sincerely wish your Excellency success in your undertakings; and I have the honour to be, with perfect esteem, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

JAMES WRIGHT.

To his Excellency General Gage.

A fac-simile signature of James Wright was affixed to this letter by the Secret Committee; and an impression of his seal having been taken in clay, the new envelope carried the resemblance of Sir James Wright's seal.—Drayton.

SIR JAMES WRIGHT TO ADMIRAL GRAVES.

Savannah, in Georgia, June 27, 1775.

SIR: Some time ago I had the honour to receive a letter from the Earl of Dartmouth, dated the 1st of February last, wherein he wrote me that an order was gone from the Admiralty to you, Sir, to send me one of your cruisers, but none is yet arrived, nor have I heard any thing of it since. And I am now to acquaint you, that four or five boats, from the South-Carolina side of our inlet, have been here for ten or twelve days past, full of armed men—it is said near one hundred. We expect a vessel from London every day, with a considerable quantity of gunpowder on board; and report says that these people mean to take it out and carry it away; and it is not in my power to prevent it. And thus you see, Sir, that our port may, and in short is, blocked up by our neighbours, and that they have it in their power to plunder any thing that arrives here, and do just what they please. I hope, therefore, that you will be kind enough to give such immediate assistance as may be in your power, to prevent such insults and attempts as I have mentioned.

Pardon me, Sir, for saying that an armed schooner will be of little use; or any thing less than a sloop-of-war of some force, and which, from Lord Dartmouth's letter, I have been long expecting, and impatiently looking out for.

I doubt not but the situation we are in will strike you in such a light, that you will see the propriety of immediate assistance.

Another matter seems to be also necessary for His Majesty's service, viz: frequent accounts from yourself and General Gage, with respect to the state of affairs your way, as I find it has the greatest influence on the conduct and proceedings of the people here; and I have no way by which this can be done, unless you are pleased to send it by some of his Majesty's vessels under your command.

I have the honour to be, with perfect esteem, Sir, your most obedient and most humble servant,

JAMES WRIGHT.*

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM CHARLESTOWN, SOUTH-CAROLINA, DATED JUNE 27, 1775.

We enclose you extracts of letters from Georgia and Augusta, by which you may judge of our present state relative to Indian affairs. It seems that General Gage has corresponded with the Superintendent here on that subject, and he with his Deputy in the Cherokee Nation. Mr. Stuart, finding the matter suspected, left Charlestown, and went to Georgia about the time of the sitting of the Congress. Matters taking a turn in Georgia, he found himself obliged to produce his letters, since which he has escaped to Florida, and thereby confirmed the suspicion of an in-

* The above letter was withdrawn from the envelope, and the following was substituted in its place by the Secret Committee in Charlestown, and forwarded:

SAVANNAH, IN GEORGIA, June 27, 1775.—SIR: Some time ago I had the honour to receive a letter from the Earl of Dartmouth, dated the 1st February last, wherein he wrote to me that an order was gone from the Admiralty to you, Sir, to send me one of your cruisers. It gives me the highest pleasure to acquaint you that I now have not any occasion for any vessel of war; and I am clearly of opinion that His Majesty's service will be better promoted by the absence than the presence of vessels of war in this port. On this subject of military forces being at present sent to this part of the Continent, I have written fully to the General, and I beg leave to refer you, Sir, to that letter, which is of equal date with this.

As I am persuaded it will be for the benefit of the service, that the Southern Governours should have early information of important transactions in your part of the Continent, I doubt not but that if you, Sir, shall be of the same opinion, you will send such by some advice boat. And if such vessel proceeds to Charlestown, my packet may there be sent on shore, and it will reach me by a secure land conveyance by express from the Post-Office.

Perhaps Captain Tollemache may give you, Sir, some little alarm about two or three canoes from South-Carolina, in this river, waiting, as report says, to take some gunpowder from on board a vessel daily expected to arrive here. But I acquaint you, Sir, that they are sent upon a smuggling party of goods into their own Colony, by private directions of their Committee. They mean to procure some gunpowder, and I shall not be displeased if, under the appearance of some violence, they purchase such an article, as it is intended to make good the contract made by Mr. Stuart and myself with the Indians, both Creeks and Cherokees, the latter of whom will be more convenient for the Carolians than the people of Georgia to supply. I have the honour to be, with perfect esteem, Sir, your most humble and most obedient servant, tended Indian war. The other extract shows you the present state of the Indian Nation.

Admiral Graves.

Extract of a Letter from John Wilson, of Augusta, to Messrs. Campbell and Son, dated June 15, 1775.

All the Cherokee traders have come down but two, and have the pleasure to inform you that they have overpaid their full cargoes. There is at present but very indifferent talk in that Nation. They have lately killed two Virginians that had gone up there express, which I am afraid will be the cause of war. Should that be the case, I shall be badly off, having little powder in the fort. I am informed that one of our traders was stopped by the Indians, in order to bring a talk down.

Extract of a Letter from John Stuart to Mr. Cameron.

I have received information from General Gage, that certain persons at the Northward have been tampering with the Six Nations, and endeavouring to alienate their affections from His Majesty. I mention this to caution you against any thing of the kind with you, and that you will use your influence to dispose those people to act in defence of His Majesty and Government, if found necessary.

Mr. Cameron's Answer.

That Mr. Stuart's interest with the Indians was much greater, and that he was more beloved by them than any other man; and that he (Cameron) had the vanity to think that he could head any number he thought proper, whenever called upon in support of His Majesty and Government.

Cameron is Stuart's principal Deputy.

ACCOMACK COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee of Accomack County, at the Court-House, the 27th of June, 1775:

SOUTHEY SIMPSON, Esquire, in the Chair.

A complaint having been made, that James Arbuckle, a member of this Committee, had drawn a Map of the Eastern Shore, and that the sea-coast was delineated therein, so as to furnish information to vessels to explore our harbours; and that the same had been delivered to his Excellency the Governour for that purpose:

The said Arbuckle appeared voluntarily before the Committee, and acknowledged that he had drawn a draught or Map of the internal part of the Eastern Shore, but denied that he had illustrated any of the harbours, or marked any of the soundings or shoals; which he had delivered to Mr. Andrew Sprowle, of Gosport.

Sundry witnesses were then called in, and duly sworn, and by their testimony it appeared that the said Arbuckle had shewn the said Map publickly to many of the inhabitants of this County, before he parted with it; that he had drawn the same at the request of the Custom-House Officers, and, so far as relates to this County, from an old draught which he had made some years ago; and that the use the said officers told him they designed to make of it, was to excuse themselves to his Excellency the Governour from a suspicion of neglect in office. And it also appeared that there were none of the harbours laid down with such exactness as to give any new insight to any persons to come into them; and it appeared that the Governour is in possession of the said Map. And it appearing farther, that the said James Arbuckle has, as well heretofore as before this Committee, expressed great uneasiness that he should have been so imprudent as to have done any thing to alarm his Country at this time:

Resolved unanimously, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the said James Arbuckle is not intentionally guilty of any offence against American liberty.

A complaint having also been made against John Sherlock, of this County, that he has expressed himself in such manner as to prove him an enemy to the liberties of this Country; and he being called upon to attend the Committee this day, refused, but wrote them an abusive and insulting letter.

Several witnesses were then called upon and sworn, and by their evidence, it appeared that he had, at sundry different conversations, declared, in substance, "that such people as oppose the Ministerial measures with America, are rebels; that he shall be employed hereafter in hanging them; and that if no hemp can be got, he has plenty of flax growing."

It is therefore unanimously Resolved, That we hold the said John Sherlock to be an enemy to American liberty; and that we are determined, immediately, to break off all dealings and intercourse with him, and with every person who shall have any connexion with him, until he shall make such proper acknowledgments, and show such genuine marks of repentance and reformation, as shall be satisfactory to a majority of this Committee.

Resolved, That these proceedings be immediately printed in the Virginia Gazette. JOHN POWELL, Clerk.

MR. PINKNEY: At a meeting of the Committee of Acomack County, held at the Court-House, on Tuesday last, it was found necessary to hold up to publick contempt a certain John Sherlock, of the said County, for having expressed himself, at sundry times, in the most daring and insulting manner against the good people who have proved themselves, by their behaviour, friends to American liberty.

Mr. Sherlock, instead of appearing before the Committee, agreeable to summons, wrote them an abusive, insulting letter; whereupon the day next after the Committee had proceeded against him agreeable to the rules of the Association, part of the Independent Company of this County went to his house, took, and carried him to the Court-House, and, after a solemn trial, received from him, under the Liberty Pole, his recantation; a copy whereof you have enclosed. Mr. Sherlock, at the Company's approach, took shelter in an upper room of his house, with two loaded guns, but was prudent enough to decline making use of them.

JOHN SHERLOCK'S RECANTATION.

Whereas, I, the subscriber, have thoughtlessly and imprudently at sundry times expressed myself to the following purpose: that such people as oppose the present ministerial measures respecting America are rebels, and that I expect to be employed at a future day in hanging them; and if no hemp could be had I had flax enough; and that I wanted no greater bondage, under the name of liberty, than to be bound by the Association; and I have also expressed myself very imprudently in calling the Independent Company of this County an unlawful mob, and many other idle and foolish words: I do hereby, in the most solemn and serious manner, declare that at those times, when I have held such language, I did not mean as much as I said; and I do hereby declare my most unfeigned sorrow for what I have done or said, and in the most humble manner ask the pardon of the said Independent Company, [which was accordingly done by application being made to each member of the said company respectively:] and I declare I look upon the said company as a very respectable body of men, and, upon the most calm reflection, I declare my opinion to be altered. I most heartily wish success to this my native Country in her present honest struggle for liberty with the Mother Country, and do here promise to do all in my power to retrieve my character with my countrymen. This acknowledgment and confession I make freely and voluntarily, and desire the same may be published in the publick papers. JOHN SHERLOCK.

BEDFORD COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee for the County of Bedford, the 27th day of June, 1775: The Committee being apprehensive that the inhabitants of the lower parts of this Colony may possibly (in the course of the present unhappy dispute between Great Britain and her American Colonies) be compelled to quit their habitations, wish it to be known to them, that the inhabitants of this County will cheerfully give them, and whatever they may think proper to remove among us, the most cordial reception, afford them every possible assistance, and that they shall freely participate of any thing we possess.

Ordered, That the Clerk of this Committee do transmit a copy of this Resolution to the printer, to be inserted in the Virginia Gazette.

ROBERT ALEXANDER, Clerk.

NEW-YORK CONGRESS TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

New-York, June 27, 1775, Three o'clock, P. M.

SIR: Last evening Captain Hoops, of Trenton, in New-Jersey, informed me, that he had escorted to Elizabethtown four wagons with ninety-eight quarter casks of a necessary article, packed in eight hogsheads, to be forwarded to Cambridge, which were then on their way for Hudson's River. This morning I had advice by express that the wagons were within four miles of Bull's Ferry, which is nearly opposite to the north end of New-York Island. In consequence of which I despatched a boat with one of the New-York Committee, and twelve armed men, to Bull's Ferry, to transport the baggage across the North-River to King's Bridge. Two gentlemen of our Committee are gone by land to King's Bridge, to whose prudence they are committed for conveyance into your Colony.

I thought it necessary to give you this information, and submit it to you whether it may not be proper for you to give the like orders as you did on a similar occasion, provided your circumstances will permit, and forward this intelligence to Cambridge.

I have the Honour to be, Sir, your most obedient servant,

P. V. B. LIVINGSTON.

To the Honourable Jonathan Trumbull, Esq.

THOMAS HICKS TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York, June 27, 1775.

SIR: Last Saturday I received a copy of a resolve of the Provincial Congress of the 22d instant, wherein I was requested to take my seat in Congress on this day, or assign my reasons for neglecting to attend. The latter, Sir, I shall endeavour to do, by acquainting the Congress with some of the circumstances of the election of Deputies of Queen's County, and some subsequent transactions.

On the day of the election three gentlemen appeared who declared they were charged with a message to the freeholders assembled for the purpose of choosing Deputies, from a very large number of freeholders of the Township of Hempstead, who had assembled a few days before at Hempstead; they had it in charge they said, to declare there at that day, that the said freeholders were determined to have nothing to do with the election of Deputies, but that they were resolved to wait till they knew the effect of the Petitions of the General Assembly of this Colony, or words to that effect, as near as I can recollect. Upon which, as there were not so many freeholders convened as I expected, I proposed that the separate Towns should elect Deputies, but being overruled, I proposed that none should be elected for Hempstead, to avoid the appearance of obtruding Deputies on them; this I thought was agreed to by the gentlemen present. But after a little time a gentleman (who I believe was not in the room at the time the last proposal was made) objected that in the latter case the County would be partially represented, and urged the appointment of Deputies for Hempstead; this, after a little while, was agreed to by a majority, and Captain Thorne and myself were named to represent Hempstead, and our names were inserted in the list accordingly.

I saw myself placed in a very disagreeable situation, and expressed my idea of it to the gentlemen present; they did not seem to see the embarrassment which I sensibly felt, and therefore were not disposed to dispense with my service. The bad state of my health, which obliges me to avoid New-York as much as possible in the summer, from long experience of the bad effect of the city air in that season, also made me wish to be excused from a service which I was convinced would very much impair it.

In this situation, I determined, however, to offer myself to the Congress as a Deputy, if the people of Hempstead were silent about it; but I was soon informed that some of the leading people had declared they did not believe I would presume to represent them in Congress. Upon receiving this intelligence, I immediately went to Hempstead, applied to a gentleman whom I took to be a leading man, and desired him to consult the principal people of the Town, and let me know as soon as might be whether I should represent them or not. A very few days after I received from him a letter, dated the 30th May last, wherein he informed me that he had consulted as many persons in the Township of Hempstead as the shortness of the time would admit, who, he said, seem fixed upon their former resolutions not to appoint any Deputies to represent the Town of Hempstead in Provincial Congress; that the people seemed to be much inclined to remain peaceable and quiet; that he had consulted the gentlemen I had desired him to speak to in particular, who had desired him to give me this information. Upon the receipt of this letter I resolved to decline taking a seat at the Congress, from a persuasion of the impropriety, and even injustice of transacting business of so much consequence for people who disavowed my authority.

This is a true state of facts as near as my memory will serve me, and I flatter myself, Sir, it will sufficiently apologize to the Congress for my conduct.

I am, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

THOMAS HICKS.

HERMAN ZEDTWITZ TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

To the Honourable Members of the Provincial Congress, at this time convened in the City of NEW-YORK:

The Petition and humble Remonstrance of HERMAN ZEDTWITZ of the same City, Gentleman, most humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner is a German by birth, and hath heretofore served as an officer in the King of Prussia's Army, upwards of fourteen years. That through the course of your petitioner's experience in the art of war, he hath found that a body of Riflemen, properly equipped, to precede the Grand Army, have been of great use to annoy and confuse the enemy. That your petitioner being well versed in the exercise of such men, would, with the appointment and sanction of this honourable board, undertake to raise a Regiment, to contain six hundred able bodied men, from Paxton and other parts of the Province of Pennsylvania, many of them already provided with their rifles, and the whole number in a very short time might be complete and ready to go on such service as should be found necessary. That your petitioner hath known such a Regiment in the time of action to be of more service than any three common Regiments, and is willing and desirous personally to explain to this honourable Board, at such time as shall be appointed, the particular services of such a body of men. That your petitioner hath very lately been in that part of Pennsylvania before mentioned, and is well satisfied that if this honourable Board shall see fit to appoint, or cause him to be appointed to the command of such a Regiment, he could in a very short time complete the same, and would use his most indefatigable endeavours at all times to approve himself worthy of the honour conferred upon him. And your petitioner most humbly requests that this honourable Board will take the premises into consideration, and appoint such time for hearing him further therein as shall be found convenient, when he will most punctually attend; and in the mean time remains this honourable Board's most dutiful and very devoted humble servant,

HERMAN ZEDTWITZ.

City of New-York, June 27, 1775.

ELISHA PHELPS TO THE MASSACHUSETTS COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Ticonderoga, June 27, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: After my kind respects to you all, when I left Cambridge, I went to his Honour the Governour of the Colony of Connecticut; and he informed me he had appointed me a Commissary for the Northern Army, which I cheerfully accepted, and thanked his Honour for the notice he took of me. I then informed him of the orders Colonel Arnold gave me, concerning the teams. He told me I need not trouble myself, as York was to provide teams, &c., and I could charge teams in common stock; and the pork you would pay for when I produced an order from Colonel Arnold. As for news, I have nothing remarkable. We have had some mutiny in this company, but I hope now settled. The gentlemen Committee you sent, were not treated with that esteem by some as I wish they had been. I long to hear the particulars of the fight at Boston. If you would furnish it I should take it as a great favour.

Gentlemen, I am with great esteem your very humble servant, at command,

ELISHA PHELPS.

To the respectable Gentlemen of the Committee of Safety at Cambridge, for the Province of Massachusetts-Bay.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Lebanon, June 27, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: This morning received your pressing instance for an immediate augmentation of Troops from our Colony. In consequence expresses are gone forth to call our Assembly, to meet at Hartford on Saturday next. Generals Washington and Lee are expected this day at Hartford, on their way to the Army. The warriors from Virginia and Pennsylvania are coming forward. Have received this day a speech and belt from the Oneida Indians, and have enclosed their speech.

Colonel Hinman at Ticonderoga, writes the 19th instant: "The enemy are fortifying at St. John's, and last night was informed that the Caughnawaga Indians have had a war-dance, being brought to it by General Carleton."

Eight or nine hundred barrels of flour from the General Congress for the Army are arrived safe at Norwich, and more expected. Hope a report with us this morning is true, that a large quantity of powder is arrived at New-York, and a quantity for this Colony at New-London. Every effort in our power for defence of the rights of the Colonies will be used with diligence and without delay.

May the Supreme Director of all events give wisdom, stability and union in all our counsels; inspire our soldiery with courage and fortitude; cover their heads in the day of battle and danger; convince our enemies of their mistaken measures, and that all attempts to deprive us of our rights are injurious and vain.

I am, with great esteem and sincerity, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

Honourable James Warren, Esq.

A Speech of the Chiefs and Warriors of the ONEIDA Tribe of INDIANS, to the four NEW-ENGLAND Provinces, directed to Governour TRUMBULL; and by him to be communicated:

As our younger brothers of the New-England Indians, (who have settled in our vicinity) are now going down to visit their friends, and to move up parts of their families that were left behind, with this belt by them, we open the road wide, clearing it of all obstacles, that they may visit their friends and return to their settlements here in peace. We Oneidas are induced to this measure on account of the disagreeable situation of affairs that way; and we hope, by the help of God, that they may go and return in peace. We earnestly recommend them to your charity through their long journey.

Now we more immediately address you, our brother, the Governour and the Chiefs of New-England.

Brothers! We have heard of the unhappy differences and great contention betwixt you and old England. We wonder greatly, and are troubled in our minds.

Brothers! Possess your minds in peace respecting us Indians. We cannot intermeddle in this dispute between two brothers. The quarrel seems to be unnatural; you are two brothers of one blood. We are unwilling to join on either side in such a contest, for we bear an equal affection to both of you, Old and New-England. Should the great King of England apply to us for our aid, we shall deny him. If the Colonies apply, we will refuse. The present situation of you two brothers is new and strange to us. We Indians cannot find nor recollect in the traditions of our ancestors the like case or a similar instance.

Brothers! For these reasons possess your minds in peace, and take no umbrage that we Indians refuse joining in the contest; we are for peace.

Brothers! Was it an alien, a foreign Nation, which struck you, we should look into the matter. We hope, through the wise government and good pleasure of God, your distresses may soon be removed, and the dark cloud be dispersed.

Brothers! As we have declared for peace, we desire you will not apply to our Indian brethren in New-England for their assistance. Let us Indians be all of one mind, and live in peace with one another, and you white people settle your own disputes betwixt yourselves.

Brothers! We have now declared our minds; please write to us that we may know yours.

We, the sachems, warriors, and female governesses of Oneida, send our love to you, brother Governour, and all the other chiefs in New-England.

TIVERTON AND LITTLE COMPTON (R. I.) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committees of Inspection for the Towns of Tiverton and Little-Compton, held at the dwelling-house of Gideon Wilcox, Esquire, on Saturday, June 27th, 1775:

NATHANIEL SEARLE, Jun., Esq., in the Chair.

Information being given to these Committees, that Abiel Cook, of Little-Compton, had violated the seventh article of the Continental Congress Association, and was thereby endeavouring to feed and support the enemies of American liberty, by selling some of his Sheep to go on board the Swan, man-of-war, at Newport; the Sheep being stopped at Forkland-Ferry, and said Cook ordered to attend the Committees, he attended accordingly this day, and had the effrontery to insult the Committees and his Country, by declaring, that he had sold the Sheep to go on board the man-of-war, and would do it again when any opportunity should offer.

Voted, That the above Sheep be sent as a present to the American Army near Boston.

Ordered, That the above be printed in the Newport Mercury, that all friends to American liberty may break off all dealings with said Cook, and treat him as an enemy to his Country and the liberties of America.

A true copy.

By order of the Committee:

WM. LADD, Clerk for the day.

GOVERNOUR COOKE TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Providence, Rhode-Island, June 27, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I gave you a hint in my letter of yesterday of our fitting out two armed vessels for the protection of our trade. It looks very probable to me that if there were a few vessels properly armed and manned along the coast, in different parts, it would be a great means of protecting our own trade, and also of picking up many of the provision vessels that they (the men-of-war) take this way, and send round to Boston. Many of those vessels are sent round with but five or six hands in each, and with nothing more than a small-arm a piece, to defend them; and further, as the enemy think we have no force that dare put out of our harbours, some of their store-ships come without convoy, and there is a possibility that we might pick up one of them if we had a vessel or two to cruise in their way. These things are dropped, gentlemen, for your consideration, from your most humble servant,

NICHOLAS COOKE.

To the Hon. James Warren, President of the Provincial Congress of the Massachusetts Bay, Watertown.

EXTRACTS OF LETTERS RECEIVED IN PHILADELPHIA FROM GENTLEMEN IN THE ARMY, DATED CAMP AT CAMBRIDGE, JUNE 27, 1775.

You will have heard of the battle on Bunker's Hill before you receive this, but the accounts will be various. Our people went on to take the ground, expecting every day the enemy would take it, if we did not. They were not well prepared; however, they went on; and at day-break, before they had time to finish their work, they were attacked, but General Howe gives them the praise of defending their works as well as any men on earth could do; and had our troops who were to march up to their support, behaved as well in coming to their posts as the others did in defending theirs, they never would have lost their ground, but the enemy must have been cut off. But the low ground over which they were to pass was so continually raked by a constant fire from the ships and floating batteries, with every kind of shot, that it rendered it impossible to bring a proper number of men over at that time to their support; and after a most vigorous defence for some hours, our men being employed the whole night before without sleep or rest, and many having expended the ammunition they had with them, they retreated, and left the ground and unfinished lines to the enemy, where they are now encamped and fortifying. Our people are encamped on Prospect Hill, at about a mile distance, and have strong lines thrown up from Cambridge River to Mistick River, and are watching each other. We lost in the engagement one hundred and seventy-nine men, killed and wounded: fifty killed, thirty wounded and prisoners in Boston, and the remainder of the one hundred and seventy-nine wounded with us; the enemy lost one thousand on the spot and dead of their wounds before last Wednesday, and seven hundred then in the hospitals wounded. Many such conquests would totally ruin the King's Troops.

Last Saturday the enemy cannonaded Roxbury, and endeavoured to burn the Town, but failed. Sunday General Clinton sent a flag from his camp to ours with letters from our prisoners; they say they are kindly treated, and have their choice of Army or Town Surgeons, or both; and most of them are like to do well. Mr. P—cy is this day arrived here from London; he came with Captain Jenkins to Nantucket; an officer of the King's Army was passenger with them, and is secured. Mr. P—cy says it was expected by Administration that the Yankees would not fight; that the Army would get up the hill and down again, and that would settle the whole controversy; they will be much chagrined when the account from here arrives. They are like to have enough to do to keep France and Spain quiet during the summer. Russia and the Porte are preparing for war again; and Prussia, always ready, is looking on, and laughing in his sleeve, and the States of Holland are quarrelling with England, and have ordered all the English ships out of the Texas.

We have lost but few men compared with the loss the enemy sustained; ours will fall short of sixty killed; thirty are prisoners, and about one hundred wounded. We have the greatest reason to believe, from their own account, as well as from many other concurring circumstances, that their loss is not short of fifteen hundred killed and wounded; among the former are two Colonels, Majors Pitcairn and Sheriff. The Royal Welsh Fusileers have but seventy privates and one Captain left alive. The Regulars say that the battle of Minden, or that on the Plains of Abraham, did not exhibit equal scenes of blood in so short a time from so few men engaged.

They give out that we must have lost three thousand men, as they conclude our loss must greatly exceed theirs.

GENERAL WARD TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, June 27, 1775.

SIR: I was lately applied to by the honourable Congress to propose or recommend some person that would be suitable for an Adjutant-General; in consequence of which, I wrote to Colonel William Henshaw, who is now in camp, and will accept, if the post is properly dignified. I flatter myself he will do us eminent service, if appointed. He will probably be at the Congress this day.

I am, Sir, your most humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD.

To the Honourable James Warren, Esquire, President of the Provincial Congress at Watertown.

GENERAL THOMAS TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Roxbury Camp, June 27, 1775.

SIR: I have herewith enclosed a request from a number of prisoners now in Boston, which I received yesterday, P. M., by one of the Selectmen of Weymouth, to whom it was sent from Mr. Scholar, of Boston. It was carried to the Committee of Safety, and from them to General Ward, who sent it to me, but think it not proper to determine this matter without advice from the Congress, whose directions I shall comply with.

I am, Sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN THOMAS.

To the Honourable James Warren, at Watertown.

Boston, June 23, 1775.

It is the desire of twenty-five persons from the country, that were taken prisoners at Charlestown last Saturday, and many of them dangerously wounded, that as they are in great want of fresh provisions for their comfort, they would have you go to Weymouth, or any other Town in your neighbourhood, and recommend to the good people there to send them some mutton and other provisions as may be suitable for them.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, June 26, 1775.

General Ward refers the above to the determination of General Thomas, to conduct the affair as he may think proper.

J. WARD, Secretary.

COLONEL DAVID BREWER TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Camp at Roxbury, June 27, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I have been informed that there is a number of books printed, containing the law martial for regulating the Massachusetts Army, designed for the use of said Army. If so, you will please send by the bearer, Sergeant Bull, as many of said books as is designed, or shall be thought necessary for my Regiment, as it is absolutely necessary the soldiers should know the law in order to keep the same.

I am, gentlemen, your obliged friend and humble servant,

DAVID BREWER.

TO THE HONOURABLE PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

The Petition of Officers belonging to Colonels Prescott, Frye, and Bridges's Regiments, humbly sheweth:

That whereas in the late battle at Charlestown, on the seventeenth of this instant, June, a number of things belonging to us fell into the enemy's hands, whereby we are deprived of some necessary clothing, arms, &c.: As the loss is considerable, we beg that (if it may be consistent with the honour and dignity of the Congress, and the good of the Country) they have an allowance for the same as your Honours shall see fit; and your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

The Committee appointed to consider the within Petition, beg leave to report that the petitioners have leave to withdraw their petition.

MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

In Provincial Congress, June 27, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: Were you now in the Continental Army which invests Boston, it would beget unutterable vexation and torment in your hearts, to behold so large a body of so active brave men as that army consists of, insulted by the fire and blaze of the enemy's cannon and mortars from their lines, ships, and floating batteries; and the same brave men, although possessed of divers good pieces of great ordnance, and willing, at any hazard, to improve them, yet wholly restrained from returning any fire of the kind, lest, by so doing, their little stock of gunpowder should soon be exhausted, and they reduced to the fatal necessity of laying down their arms or flying into the woods, leaving their houses to be burnt, their fields wasted; in short to give up and abandon the just claims of all America, and in effect to resign themselves and the lives of all the children of liberty in this whole Continent, to the arbitrary pleasure of a haughty Administration, instigated and influenced by enraged Tories of our own breeding.

Your minds will be still more agitated and alarmed, if you knew our supplies of that article was so scanty as really to beget doubts in your minds whether the Army would be able to sustain so many attacks as we have reason soon to expect, without leaving them generally destitute of that necessary part of ammunition, even if no other expense of powder should be made in the defence than by the use of small arms. We cannot, therefore, delay one moment longer acquainting your Honours with the state of this Army in that respect, and in the most importunate manner begging your immediate attention to this matter, and that the utmost exertions be instantly made, at any hazard and expense, to procure and send to this Army all the gunpowder which can be obtained, either by manufacture, importation, seizures of the enemy's ships, or in any other way, without stripping individuals of their private stocks for their own personal use; and that every quantity which can in any way be obtained, even if it shall not amount to more than one load for one horse carriage, be sent by land with all possible speed and safety to this Army.

We beg your Honours to realize that the force of all the British Troops in America, or destined to America, is levelled against this Army, and how shocking and terrible the effects of a defeat and dispersion of this Army would be, not only to this Colony, but to all the Continent. We feel the warmest sentiments of gratitude to your Honours for your great attention and care for the Army, expressed in your appointment of able and experienced Generals to command the same; but we beg your Honours to contemplate of what significance either officers or soldiers can be for the intent of annoying the enemy or defending the Country, without the necessary means. Besides, we ask your Honours' pardon when we pray you to consider how inexpressibly afflictive it must be to those honourable and worthy gentlemen, appointed by your Honours, to arrive at our Army, (which would be an honour to any General in Europe, if they were well supplied,) to find that they had not the necessary means of acting offensively, and the supplies for defence so very slender, as to fill them with perpetual solicitude and even anguish of spirit, lest by defending, even with small arms, against frequent attacks, their ammunition should be wholly spent, and they constrained to turn their backs on their enemy; when, if the Army was well found with ammunition, they would be able, not merely to defend themselves and their Country, but to bear down and triumph over the enemy.

Your Honours, therefore, will be most certainly convinced that nothing can so much merit your immediate and earnest attention, as the ways and means of supplying this Army, in the speediest manner, with the article of gunpowder. We cannot find words to express the importance of this proposal with sufficient emphasis. Our all very much depends upon success in this particular, and we cannot forbear repeating our request, that whatever quantity your Honours may find it in your power in any way to avail yourselves of, whether greater or less, may be sent forward with the utmost expedition.

We humbly conceive that it cannot be by any means prudent to venture an article of this importance any part of the way by water, nor by land, without a sufficient guard, as the same is in a manner as precious as our very blood.

This Colony is making the utmost efforts, running every risk, and trying every experiment, and hesitating at no expense, to procure good supplies of the above-said most important article for this Army. Nothing can be more remote from the temper of this Colony than to solicit the exertions of the other parts of the Continent, with a view, in any degree, to relax or render unnecessary our own utmost assiduity and endeavour; but our foregoing importunate applications proceed only from the fullest conviction that the largest contributions which the whole Continent is capable of, and the most immediate, vigorous, and unremitted efforts of every part of our Country, will be little enough, not to say inadequate, to effect such a supply of that commodity as the exigencies of the present crisis require.

The foregoing representation has been, by order of Congress, considered by our Committee of Supplies, who fully agree that nothing therein is expressed in too strong terms, or deserves the epithet of high colouring.

We are, may it please your Honours, with the greatest esteem and deference, your most obedient servants,

JOSEPH HAWLEY,
ELISHA PORTER,
Committee of Congress.

The foregoing letter is made by us as a Committee of Congress, without its having been read publicly, (for reasons which your Honours will not be at a loss about,) and this by express order of Congress.

GEN. FOLSON TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Camp on Winter Hill, June 27, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Since my arrival here, the harmony and willing obedience of the New-Hampshire Troops gives me the most sensible pleasure. I have got them into tolerable regulation, and shall, as far as in me lies, use my utmost exertion to get them into the greatest good order and discipline, which is so indispensably necessary in an army, and still promote and preserve unanimity and concord amongst them.

But to that end you are very sensible that they must receive regular supplies. Such brave Troops as yours are, deserve the best of living, or at least such as will conduce to the preservation of their health, and render them capable of undergoing fatigues and hardships. I would therefore beg leave to intimate, that if part or the whole of the Committee of Supplies were constantly to attend the camp, vested with discretionary power as to supplies, it would be greatly advantageous to your forces, as it is impossible any set of men can so well ascertain what properly belongs to their department when absent as when present, and can have their business carried on under their immediate inspection. The foregoing I esteemed myself in duty bound to mention; and leaving it to your well known wisdom and prudence, I remain your very humble servant,

NATHANIEL FOLSON.

To the Honourable Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-Hampshire.

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. II.

PORTSMOUTH (NEW-HAMPSHIRE) COMMITTEE TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Portsmouth, June 27, 1775.

To the Rev. SAMUEL LANGDON, D. D., to be communicated to the Committee at CAMBRIDGE.

HONOURED SIR: The Committee of Portsmouth having detected the enclosed letter, have thought proper to transmit a copy to you by way of caution, as we have heard that James Henderson has been travelling about the country lately to gain intelligence; and lest he might be the cause of more mischief to the American cause, we pray he may be prevented.

We have some cannon, with good carriages, of twenty-four and thirty-two pounders; if you need them, please to signify, and we will send them.

We are, with cordial esteem, Sir, your most humble servants, the Committee of Safety at Portsmouth, per their order.

GEORGE GAINES.

Copy of the above to be transmitted to the Committee of Supplies.

Boston, June 22, 1775.

DEAR HUGH: I take this opportunity of letting you know of our welfare. We had a good deal of confusion last Saturday, but we have great reason of thankfulness that the Troops got the better of the people. It was one of the boldest attacks almost of the age, as they had it very strong, but they did not keep it fifteen minutes after the attack begun; and such firing I never heard—so constant. I saw it all the time. There are a great many country people killed, (amongst them is Doctor Warren.) and about thirty taken prisoners who are in Town. There is one of the second fleet come in last night; so I am in hopes the Troops will be soon enabled to bring them to a sense of their duty.

If you have any apprehension of danger, I think you had best come to Town. My love to Hannah, &c.

I am yours.

The above letter came in a tender, directed to Hugh Henderson, and was stopped by the Committee at Portsmouth; it is supposed here to be wrote by James Henderson, of Boston.

ANNE ARUNDEL COUNTY (MARYLAND) COMMITTEE.

A meeting of the Committee of Observation for Anne Arundel County and City of Annapolis was requested by Captain Charles Henzell, on Wednesday, the twenty-eighth day of June, 1775.

Present: Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, Matthias Hammond, John Bullen, Chas. Wallace, John Davidson, Wm. Wilkins, Allen Quynn, John Brice, and Doctor Richard Tootell.

MR. CHARLES CARROLL in the Chair.

Captain Henzell having informed the Committee of his arrival from London with goods on board the Adventure, which was cleared, as appears by the cocket, for Maryland, he being duly sworn, deposed that the following goods, and no other, were shipped on board said vessel, to wit: two hundred dozen Porter, one hundred Pipe-Staves in packs, two thousand weight of Cheese, and forty-two chaldrons of Coal, Winchester measure, which was to be disposed of at the Island of Madeira, but through contrary winds he was prevented from landing them there: and this deponent also saith that he brought in with him about seventy persons, consisting of passengers and servants.

It appearing to the Committee, from letters produced by Captain Henzell, and by his and Joseph Eastman's depositions, that the Cheese, Porter, Pipe-Staves, and Newcastle coal, were to be sold at Madeira, and the proceeds thereof to be laid out in the purchase of Madeira Wine, he being empowered to draw bills on London for so much as said Wine should exceed the value of the above mentioned articles; and it also appearing to the Committee that Captain Henzell intended to bring to Maryland the cargo of Wine aforesaid: being interrogated whether he intended to sell the said Wine in America, he declared on oath that he did not, but proposed to carry the Wine to the London market, and report the same here to the Custom-House. Being asked whether he did not know, or had been informed that the aforesaid Wine was subject to a duty, imposed by Act of Parliament, and that consequently the importation thereof was contrary to the Continental Association, he answered that he did not know, nor had he been informed that any duty was to be paid on the Wine thus imported, and intended to be exported in the same bottom to London.

It appearing to the Committee that the above enumerated articles of goods were shipped contrary to the Continental Association, Resolved unanimously, That the said goods cannot be landed, but be sent back forthwith.

The question being put, whether Capt. Henzell should be permitted to land his Servants? Resolved in the affirmative.

Captain Henzell, together with Mr. James Hutchings, Jun., to whom the Servants were consigned, then engaged and pledged their honour to the Committee that the goods should be sent back forthwith.

Signed per order of the Committee:

G. DUVAL, Clerk.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO CONGRESS.

[Read in Congress, July 3, 1775.]

New-York, June 28, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I do myself the honour to acquaint you that I parted with General Washington yesterday, at ten o'clock, at New-Rochelle, at which place we were met by Brigadier-General Wooster's and Colonel Waterbury's Regiments. Those arrived to within two miles of this Town, about eight this morning, and got sheltered in barns and out-houses. As soon as the weather (which is at present wet and stormy) will permit, I propose to encamp them on the south side of Sand Hill, which is nearly two miles from hence.

I have been so little in Town since my first arrival here, that I have not yet had an opportunity to inform myself of the Provincial Congress, of what progress has been made in the execution of the different orders you were pleased to send them. Individuals of that body inform me there is very little powder in any part of this Colony; that about sixteen hundred barrels of flour have already been sent to different ports in the Massachusetts-Bay; that the remainder will be despatched with all possible speed.

I have prepared a letter, which I hope to forward to-day to Colonel Hinman, requesting a return of the Troops under his command; their condition; the post they occupy; a minute return of the stores of every kind, which he is possessed of; and I have pointedly urged the necessity of gaining intelligence from Canada, and cultivating a good understanding with that people and the Indians. Reports prevail here that the latter have accepted the hatchet offered them by General Carleton, and that considerable bodies of them have been seen going to Montreal; and that even the Oneidas made part of them. Should this be confirmed, too much despatch cannot be used in the appointments of proper persons to counteract the meditated evil—an evil of the most alarming nature. Some of those accounts are said to have been made by Mr. Swift, a young gentleman from Philadelphia, who passed through here a few days ago on his way from Canada.

Eight transports with Troops are now at Sandy-Hook. It is whispered by some that they mean to land. Others affirm that they are going to Boston. I have taken measures to procure intelligence of their intentions, and shall take every possible precaution to secure this City against the evil consequences that would attend their landing, should they be able to effect it.

General Washington, before we parted, desired me to inform your Honours, that he thought it most advisable that the commissions for the officers in the New-York Department should be directly sent to me to be filled up.

I foresee, that unless a Commissary-General and a Quartermaster-General be appointed for this Department, that the service will not only suffer, (from disputes already rising,) but the waste of provisions that will be occasioned by the want of the first, and the extra expenses in having the necessary supplies forwarded to the different armies through such a variety of hands, for want of the last, will enhance the expenses far, very far indeed beyond what their appointments will be. On this head I can speak with confidence, because I have had long experience.

Governour Tryon, I have reason to believe, will not create any trouble in his Government. It is said that he laments, and is sincere, that the unhappy controversy has been carried so far, and that he wishes a happy termination of it on principles friendly to both.

Some of the German people in the County of Tryon, and some few in other parts of this Colony, are said to be unfriendly to us. I beg leave to hint, that an address from their countrymen in Pennsylvania, in their own language, distributed amongst them, would, I think, have a very salutary effect. I wish some step taken to engage those people, the rather as many of them live in the vicinity of the Indians.

Be assured, honourable Sirs, that I shall omit nothing in my power faithfully to discharge the important trust with which you have honoured me. If, however, I should be unfortunate, I hope your candour will impute it to that want of abilities which I, with much truth and sincerity, avowed previous to my appointment, unless you should be convinced that any neglect of duty proceeded from wickedness of heart.

I am, honourable Sirs, most respectfully, your obedient humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Honourable Continental Congress.

PETER T. CURTENIUS TO THE NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York, June 28, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Pursuant to your order, I have purchased, on the publick credit, 261 pieces ravens duck, which is all that is in Town; also, 26 bell-tents, and 635 haversacks, of Mr. Levy; one bell and one officers' tent, from Captain Devereux. I have delivered 137 pieces duck to the tent-makers, out of which they have made 250 tents, which are finished, and in my store. There remain 124 pieces duck in my hands, which will make about 227 soldiers' tents more.

I made an inquiry about blankets, and find them very scarce, and what there is, are not of the right sort or size; particulars as under. Those I sent per Captain Wendell, were two-point blankets, two of which sewed together will make one good blanket, and therefore bought double the quantity ordered. I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

PETER T. CURTENIUS.

John Morton, 38 one-point blankets, four of which will make one good blanket.

Abraham Brinkerhoff, 140 blankets; one bale of them are one-point, the remainder are 9 and 10-quarter rose blankets, from 18 to 25 shillings a pair.

Joseph Totten, Lawrence Embrce, J. Pearsall, Eleazer Miller, and Alexander Robeson, have none but 8 and 9-4 rose blankets.

CHARLOTTE COUNTY COMMITTEE TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Manchester, June 28, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: To my great surprise I found sundry men in our County of Charlotte about to form themselves into a mob to stop the Court. They were from different parts of the County; and we have heard that some in the County of Albany were about to join them, although many were dissuaded from their proceedings; yet some were on their way to Fort Edward, to carry into execution their evil design. But when they heard that Captain Mott, from Connecticut, was at Fort Edward, with his company, and Remember Baker and Robert Cochran, with an intent to protect the Court, gave over their intended expedition. Those men, I think, are mostly debtors, and design to put a period to common law. Therefore, we do most humbly pray that a resolve may be made at your honourable Board, that will encourage and strengthen the well-minded, and weaken the ill-minded, without which we fear we shall fall into the utmost confusion.

Many of our inhabitants were greatly alarmed by the Congress ordering all the cannon to be removed from Ticonderoga, which would have laid us open to an enemy from the Northward; and in that surprise, called the people together, and chose a man to send to the Continental Congress, alleging that they feared that some designing men would make an ill use of their names, relative to the title of our lands.

This last objection seems to weigh heavy in the minds of many, however groundless in the opinion of others; therefore, do pray your indulgence relative to the return of the Association till we can better unite this people. All which we shall submit to your wise deliberation. Only beg leave to subscribe ourselves your most obedient and humble servants,

WILLIAM MARSH, }
SAMUEL ROSE, } Committee-men.

To Peter Van Brugh Livingston, President of the Provincial Congress, New-York.

P. S. If it should be necessary to appoint officers for the Army in this part, we think that Mr. Gideon Brunson, and Mr. Potter, and Mr. Joseph Lockwood, suitable men, and will accept.

ADDRESS TO THE ONEIDAS AND TUSCARORAS.

On the 28th of June, 1775, the Oneidas and Tuscaroras assembled at the German Flats, where they were met by the inhabitants of that District, and the Delegates from Albany. The inhabitants of the Flats delivered to them the following Speech:

Brothers: We are glad to have you here to return you thanks. We should have been much pleased to have spoken with you at the appointed place; that is, by your Superintendent, where of late you kept your council fire; but since his removing so far from us, we do not think it wrong or imprudent to communicate our sentiments of peace to you here. It is at this place, brothers, it has often been done, and here again we renew it, and brighten the old chain of peace and brotherly love.

Brothers: We cannot see the cause of your late council fire, or Superintendent, going away from among us. We did him no harm, and you well know that none of us ever did, and you may depend on it there was no such thing meant against him. He told our people he was going up to Thompson's (Cosby's Manor) to hold a council fire with our brothers, the Five Nations there. We helped him to provisions to support you there, and every thing we had that he wanted. But he is going away from among us, and told some of our people that he would come back with company which would not please us; which, if true, it is certain his intentions are bad; and he may depend, that whatever force he may or can bring, we regard not.

Brothers: Our present meeting does not arise from any unfriendly thoughts we entertain of you, or from any fear of ourselves. It is purely on account of the old friendship which has so long been kept up between us; that friendship we want to maintain. It is that friendship which will be an equal benefit to us. It is as much wanted on your side as ours.

Brothers: We cannot too much express our satisfaction of your conduct toward us, by your late proceedings with the Superintendent, at the carrying place, for which we are also obliged to you, and do not doubt but that your conduct will be blessed with greater benefits than any other of those who will hurry themselves into mischief, which can never be of any other benefit to them, but sorrow for the innocent blood that may be shed on an occasion where-with they have no concern. We look to you, particularly, to be men of more understanding than others, by the benefits you have received in learning; wherefore we confide and trust the more freely in you, that you can communicate to the other Tribes and Nations the error they want to lead you into; and cannot doubt but your wisdom and influence with the other Nations will be attended with that happy success which will hereafter be a blessing to you and your posterity.

Brothers: What we have said is supposed to be sufficient to convince you that our meaning is for our joint peace and friendship, in which we hope that we and our children may continue to the end of time.

ADDRESS OF ENGLISH MERCHANTS TO GENERAL CARLETON.

Quebeck, June 28, 1775.

The following is a copy of an Address unanimously agreed to, and presented by the English Merchants at Quebeck, to his Excellency General Carleton; a similar one was, at the same time, presented by the French, as also from the inhabitants of Montreal; so that the Provincials will be disappointed in their expectations of any assistance from this quarter.

To his Excellency GUY CARLETON, Esquire, Governour and Commander-in-Chief of the Province of Quebeck, &c., &c., &c.

SIR: As it has been found necessary to withdraw His Majesty's Troops from this garrison, we, the subscribers, think it our duty, in the present situation of affairs, to offer our service in protecting the King's Magazines, as well as our own property in this place; and we do therefore humbly entreat your Excellency to order the Militia of Quebeck to be embodied, and to appoint such officers for the purpose of protecting His Majesty's subjects here as to you may seem expedient; having the honour to be His Majesty's most faithful subjects, and your Excellency's most obedient humble servants.

GENERAL GREENE TO JACOB GREENE, ESQ.

Rhode-Island Camp, June 28, 1775.

The hurry I have been in, and the numerous employments I am called to, have left me no opportunity to write to you. I regret it the less, as I am confident that you have heard every day from the camp, and almost every particular transaction here, with many that never were transacted here or any where else.

The particulars of the late battle of Bunker's Hill have been differently represented. Sometimes the enemy have lost a hundred; sometimes a thousand; and now it is up to fifteen hundred. I believe, from the best accounts I can collect, that they suffered a loss nearly equal to the last accounts. Many officers fell in the action. The Welsh Fusileers, the finest Regiment in the English establishment, is ruined; there are but one Captain and eleven privates left in the Regiment. It is said, that if some Regiments on our side had done their duty as well as others did, the Regulars must have suffered a total defeat, and would never have got possession of the intrenchments. Upon the whole, I think we have little reason to complain. There were but about fifty killed on our side, thirty made prisoners, and sixty wounded. I wish we could sell them another hill at the same price.

The Regulars are now encamped on Bunker's Hill and our people on Prospect and Winter Hills, both strongly intrenched. Our people are in good spirits, but regularity and discipline are much wanted. Our own Troops are raw, irregular, and undisciplined; yet, bad as they are, they are under much better government than any Troops round about Boston. There are some officers in each Regiment who exert themselves to bring the camp under regulations. There are some Captains, and many subaltern officers, who neglect their duty; some through fear of offending their soldiers, some through laziness, and some through obstinacy. This makes the task of the field-officers very laborious. I have warned them of their negligence many times, and am determined to break every one for the future who shall lay himself open to it.

My task is hard, and fatigue great. I go to bed late, and rise early. The number of applications you cannot conceive of, without being present to observe the round of business. But, hard as it is, if I can discharge my duty to my own honour, and my Country's satisfaction, I shall go through the toil with cheerfulness. My own officers and soldiers are generally well satisfied; nay, I have not heard one complaint.

The General Officers of the neighbouring camps treat me with the greatest respect; much more than my station or consequence entitles me to. Were I to estimate my value by the attention paid to my opinions, I should have great reason to think myself some considerable personage. But fatal experience teaches me every day, that mankind are apt to pay deference to station and not to merit. Therefore, when I find myself surrounded by their flattering attentions, I consider them as due to my office, and not to me. I shall study to deserve well, but cannot but lament the great defects I find in myself to discharge, with honour and justice, the important trust committed to my care. You know I never made much parade, nor was ambitious of raising people's expectation higher than I had reason to hope my conduct would be answerable to. The world, in general, are too good judges not to learn the true merits of men, after being furnished with an opportunity to inspect them. I hope God will preserve me in the bounds of moderation, and enable me to support myself with proper dignity, neither rash nor timorous, pursuing a conduct marked with manly firmness, but never bordering on frenzy.

BIDDEFORD COMMITTEE TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Biddeford, June 28, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: As we have thought proper to forward to your Honours, under convoy of the bearers, Messrs. Noah Hooper and Edgcomb Nason, a person who calls himself Thomas Neal, we apprehend it to be our duty, as a Committee of Inspection, to transmit you an exact detail of our proceedings relative to him, that he may be disposed of as your Honours may judge expedient: Therefore, beg leave to represent, that on Saturday last the person in question arrived in this Town, and being a stranger, some of the inhabitants were prepossessed with a suspicion of his being a spy. The Committee, in consequence, were immediately applied to. We attended, when he submitted to an examination, and gave the following account of himself, to wit: That he was a native of Britain; had lived several years in America; had frequently travelled, and was well acquainted in most of the Southern Colonies, and had, previous to the present unhappy crisis of the unnatural contest between Great Britain and her Colonies, acquired the birth of a steward on board of His Majesty's ship Senegal, Captain Duddington, commander; that he left England in said ship about ten weeks since, fully persuaded, from the representations he had then received, that the disturbance in America was kindled by the breath of a faction by no means formidable; that it might be easily quelled, and was universally disapproved of the cool and dispassionate of all denominations in the Colonies; that the first American port they touched at was Boston, when they soon had orders to repair to Falmouth, in Casco Bay, at which place he had been two weeks; that on his arrival in America, found not a faction, but the whole Continent joined in opposition to Parliamentary measures; that, therefore, he could not, in conscience, continue in a service in which he must be obliged to draw the sword against America; for that reason he had left the ship, and proposed going to Philadelphia, where he has several friends and acquaintance; and that he should have applied for a pass prior to his leaving Falmouth, but that he imagined such application would be attended with danger, as the ship lay in the harbour.

In order, if possible, to be more fully ascertained of the truth of the above declaration, we next day despatched a person to Falmouth, to wait on the Committee there, who informed him that the Steward had departed the ship, and that the Captain, supposing he had been detained by the people, sent a message to Colonel Preble to demand a restoration of him. The Colonel returned for answer, that he knew nothing of him, but that he was seen a little before going out of Town. Colonel Preble likewise informed the messenger sent by us, that he had had some conversation with this person, and heard him say he intended to leave the ship for the reasons above mentioned. He hired a horse a little without the Town of Falmouth, and came publicly to this place.

The above, may it please your Honours, is a true account of what we have been able to collect relative to the person in custody; and as the people here are uneasy, and still apprehensive that he may be inimical to the interests of America, we have judged it most eligible that he should be sent to the Congress, that your Honours may give such farther orders concerning him as your wisdom may direct,

RICHARD JORDAN,
BENJ. HOOPER,
THOS. GILLPATRICK,

Committee of Inspection for the Town of Biddeford.
To the Honourable Provincial Congress.

COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

In Committee of Safety, Cambridge, June 28, 1775.

Whereas, the Honourable Provincial Congress did, on the 26th instant, pass a Resolve, "That all the small-arms that are or may be procured by the above order (mentioned in said Resolve) be delivered to the Committee of Safety at Cambridge, they to give their receipt for the same to the person from whom they receive them; that the same be delivered out to such officers as shall produce orders therefor from the Hon. General Ward," &c.

And whereas, the Honourable General Ward, in consequence of that part of the above quotation which is scored, has this day issued General Orders, in which are the words: "And the Committee of Safety are hereby ORDERED to deliver out arms to such commanding officers as make application to them for the same."

And whereas, this Committee apprehend that said Resolve does not empower the General to order them to deliver said arms, but only to order his officers to receive from this Committee such arms as they are ordered by the honourable Congress to deliver to the General's orders to his officers.

And whereas, the Committee apprehend, that it is of vast importance that no orders are issued by the military, or obeyed by the civil powers, but only such as are directed by the honourable representative body of the people, from whom all military and civil power originates: And though this Committee are satisfied that General Ward has misunderstood said Resolve, and does not mean or intend to set up the military power above the civil; yet, lest this order of the General's should be adduced as a precedent in future, we think it our indispensable duty to protest against the General's said order; notwithstanding which protest, we also think it our indispensable duty to deliver said arms, agreeable to the spirit of said Resolve, and as the exigency of the publick requires, and submit our conduct to the honourable Congress.

BENJAMIN WHITE, Chairman.

To the Hon. Provincial Congress at Watertown.

JOHN O'BRIEN TO THE MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

Machias, June 28, 1775.

The Petition of JOHN O'BRIEN, for and in behalf of the Inhabitants of MACHIAS, humbly sheweth:

That the inhabitants of said Machias are a thousand souls, who have not provision, or any method to procure it, from the situation of the times; that the provision already made for their support by this Congress fills them with gratitude, but is so small that it will not support them for any length of time. The petitioner therefore prays that said inhabitants may be supplied with some more provision, in the same or like method as upon their former petition, or they will be obliged to remove from their habitations. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

JOHN O'BRIEN.

To the Hon. Provincial Congress at Watertown.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO GENERAL FOLSOM.

In Committee of Safety, Exeter, June 28, 1775.

SIR: Doctor Ezra Green is appointed Surgeon of Read's Regiment, if he will accept. We are informed he is now with the Army. You will please to let him know he is appointed. The cannon are getting ready with all possible despatch. What you mention of the Artillery company, is under consideration of Congress.

We have not time to add, as the bearer is waiting, and in a great hurry, but shall write you fully by the Paymaster, who will be with you this week. Please to see that the enclosed is carefully delivered. We are, &c.

To General Folsom, Medford.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM THE HAGUE, DATED JUNE 29, 1775.

In a full assembly of the States General the 20th ultimo, it was resolved, that orders be issued from the Admiralty Board of their High Mightinesses the States General, to the Sieur Van Stort, Vice-Admiral of the Dutch squadron in the West-Indies, instructing him to give orders to all persons under him, to their utmost power to seize and destroy all ammunition, stores, and provisions, which may be found in any ship or ships bound from any of the Dutch settlements in that quarter, or on board Dutch ships from any quarter, which are bound to any port in the English American Colonies, except such as are consigned either to the Governours of New-England, Philadelphia, New-York, Hali-fax, or Virginia; and that such captures shall be considered as lawful prizes, and be shared among the officers and crews of those vessels concerned in taking them, the same as those who are enemies to the States, but that the crews (the captain, his chief mate, and supercargo, if any, excepted) be landed on the nearest Dominion of Great Britain, where such capture is made. Resolved, also, that Sieur Van Stort make this known in every Dutch port or harbour where he may touch.

“Ordered, that these resolutions be made known to his Excellency Mr. York, the British Minister to the States; and also a copy of the same be sent to the Dutch Resident at London.”

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM CHARLESTOWN, SOUTH-CAROLINA, TO A GENTLEMAN IN PHILADELPHIA, DATED JUNE 29, 1775.

Our place has rather the appearance of a garrison town than a mart for trade; one company keeps guard all day, and two every night. In our situation we cannot be too watchful, and we may require much strength, for our negroes have all high notions of their liberty; and we lately learned by intercepted letters, and otherwise, that there have been endeavours to set the Indians on us. Mr. Stewart, the Superintendent of Indian affairs, is accused of being the person who has forwarded this wicked design, and he has fled for safety.

The Tories in Georgia are now no more; the Province is almost universally on the right side, and are about to choose Delegates to send to the Congress.

FREE THOUGHTS ON THE PRESENT TIMES AND MEASURES; ADDRESSED TO THE PEOPLE OF VIRGINIA.

MY COUNTRYMEN: In popular, mixed, and free Constitutions, the fluctuation of power ought to be carefully marked, and diligently attended to, lest the different branches arrogate to themselves rights and privileges not originally inherent in them. To resolve such Constitutions to their first principles, is the best criterion to judge of their purity. If they will not stand this test, we may safely pronounce them defective; and then our next inquiry should be, where has the error begun, or the violation originated? When this point is gained, like a skillful physician, who reckons a competent knowledge of the distemper of his patient half way towards his cure, we ought to exert ourselves to combat the evil in its origin, and eradicate it out of the political body. If lenitives should fail we should have recourse to corrosives; for the political as well as the human state must sooner or later sustain a convulsion, if the latent or obvious infirmities in its frame are not timely removed. As prudence will ever guard against the one, so it will endeavour to discover and heal the other. It is a duty of the first importance, interwoven in the honest man's constitution, and founded in that love for his Country which, in the generous breast, supersedes all other considerations; it is a task Virginius has prescribed himself, and which he will constantly execute, let what may be the consequence.

In the present alarming situation of affairs between the American Colonies and Great Britain, if the publick attention were not wholly absorbed in the multiplicity of so many more alarming objects, a late Proclamation* would scarcely fail of attracting notice; but though it be of an inferior nature, and more capable perhaps of exciting our contempt than indignation, yet, my fellow-citizens, I think it ought not to be suffered to pass unstigmatized. The person who manifests an intention of doing you an injury in your persons or properties, is perhaps a degree less criminal than the real aggressor, under the strict letter of the law, but not a jot so in foro conscientiae. Whoever, therefore, would dare circumscribe your privileges, or abridge those rights which the laws of God, of nature, and reason, and the liberties of the British Constitution have given you, however dignified his station or exalted his condition, ought to be dragged out to open and publick view, and held up to the indignation of an injured, incensed people. Soothed as we have been hitherto by the Earl of Dunmore's vacant indifference, amidst the convulsions of this distressed Country, if we did not consider him as a friend, we never imagined him an enemy. But time, the great revealer of secrets, has at last convinced us that we were sadly mistaken. His letter to the Earl of Dartmouth, replete with the most injurious misrepresentations and the most notorious falsehoods; his removal of the powder from the magazine of the Country, at a time that the minds of the people were alarmed with the justest apprehensions; his offers to our slaves, and the general turbulence thereby occasioned all over the Colony; his late Proclamation, charging you, my countrymen, with disaffection to the present form of Government, and a settled design of altering it; but above all, his late heroick transaction in setting a trap in the magazine, with the express intention to murder our incautious fellow-citizens; all these circumstances put together, leave no doubt, my dear countrymen, I hope, in your breasts of the intentions and views of your Governour.

A countryman put a snake, pinched with cold and expiring with hunger, into his bosom. The snake no sooner began to feel a genial warmth and a renovation of strength from the fostering hand of its protector, than it displayed the native malevolence of its constitution; it bit the countryman, and if the kind protector did not expire of the wound, it was rather owing to the soundness and vigour of his constitution than to the leniency of the adder's tooth.

In whatever light I behold the late conduct of John Earl of Dunmore, his disingenuity extorts my utmost contempt. As the representative of the King, candour and truth, at least, we had some reason to expect from him. But, alas! how have we been disappointed. Witness the above mentioned letter to the Earl of Dartmouth. As freemen, I humbly think, also, we were entitled to every species of freedom that a man in Great Britain claims. The British subject claims it as his undoubted right to associate with his fellow-citizens in a peaceable manner, deliberate on his grievances, and he thinks it no very extraordinary piece of presumption to petition the King for a redress. This privilege is denied you by the Earl of Dunmore. Your grievances he styles pretended, and the measures you have concerted to obtain a redress are termed unjustifiable; consequently, my countrymen, this pageant of State, this machine of Government, thinks it incumbent on him to inhibit you the exercise of a right that the King of Great Britain was never hardy enough to deny the British Nation. If I behold him gloriously engaged in clandestinely removing the powder from the magazine in the night, how is it possible to refuse him the tribute of my applause? Aided by your worthy compeer, Collins, (no despicable auxiliary,) the fame of that night's transaction will certainly, if gratitude is not banished the world as well as virtue and honour, transmit your name, my Lord, with undiminished lustre to future ages. How will it sound in the annals of some future historian, that on such a night the Right Honourable his Excellency John Earl of Dunmore, Lieutenant-Governour and Commander-in-Chief of Virginia and Vice-Admiral of the same, had gone privately in the night, and burglariously broke open the publick magazine of the Country, and stole thereout about twenty barrels of gunpowder, lodged therein for the use and exigence of the Colony? And lest any part of this memorable transaction be forgot, I hope the historian will not omit to mention that Captain Henry Collins, commander of one of the King's armed vessels (the terror of oyster boats and fishing canoes) in the Bay of Chesapeake, had aided and assisted, and valiantly co-operated with your Lordship in that arduous and important exploit; that when remonstrated with on what the Virginians thought an imprudent, improper, absurd, disingenuous step, you honourably pledged your word that you would return the powder, and remove every cause of discontent, and that then, almost in a breath, you basely violated your word; that you made use of such low, unmanly evasions and subterfuges, to deceive the people of Virginia, as no one, unless totally dead to every sense of shame and every manly exertion, would have recourse to; that you have added the corruptions of the worst of hearts to the blunders of the worst of heads; that having once gone wrong, you think it your duty to persist in the road of error; that as you have done so,* recrimination you think is your best asylum; and that to avoid the importunity of a free expostulation, (too severe a trial to the self-condemned,) your last retreat is the Fowey. Tracing you, my Lord, through all the mazes of your iniquity, I will drop the ridicule, and seriously ask you if you can wonder that the people of this Colony have withdrawn their confidence from you? Can any confidence be reposed in a murderer? I know not how your Lordship could reconcile to your feelings the idea of the secret assassin, the dark murderer. But I believe there are very few who do not rank you in that class. I care not whether the incautious but brave young fellows who have fallen victims to your dark plans, have expired of their wounds or not; it is the intention of the agent that should regulate our judgment of any action, and here you should stand self-convicted. Will you, then, confess that evil counsellors and pernicious advisers betrayed you into that diabolical project? Or that it was the machination of your own corrupt heart? Deviate, I conjure you, for once, into candour, and make atonement for the many injuries you have done this distressed Country; drive from your presence the reptiles that have involved you in your present difficulties and embarrassment with a brave and free people, who, I believe, once esteemed you, and would doubtless continue to do so, had you continued to merit their approbation; candidly acknowledge your faults, and you may yet mitigate the resentment of the Virginians, but you can never recover their esteem.

To what fatality, my Lord, can it be imputed that you, who have been hitherto considered as an inoffensive, easy, good natured man, should suddenly become black as the Ethiop, and prostitute abilities never, indeed, designed to shine in the superior spheres of life, but which, in the calm retreats of social converse, if properly managed, might exempt you from censure? Is the paltry emolument of the government of Virginia so intrinsically considerable that you must sacrifice your honour, your virtue, your reputation, (if you ever had any,) to the preservation of it? Does it necessarily follow as an indispensable conclusion, because you have accepted an office from our most pious and gracious Sovereign, that you must, chameleon-like, alter your colour, your complexion, your sentiments, and, in short, that you must become the very reverse of what you were at the time of your investiture? Are not the strongest marks of an overbearing influence discernible in your whole conduct? Or must we impute the complexion of your political manœuvres to a parity of sentiments in your royal master? These are questions, my Lord, that the late tenour of your conduct would require a solution of. It rests with you to determine whether it needs any justification. I shall urge you no further at present, but leave you to brood in solitude, disappointed and baffled, as I wish you and all the enemies of America ever may be, over half-formed schemes of imaginary promotion, despicable as a Bernard or a Hutchinson, and with Woolsey's last consolation: "Had I as industriously served my God as I have my King, he would not now have forsaken me!"

Wonderful and unaccountable are, my dear fellow-citizens, the works and dispensation of Providence! By a strange but noble species of alchymy, we perceive the greatest possible good resulting from the greatest evil. The Boston Port Bill, intended by a most abandoned Ministry to intimidate and divide, has joined together in an indissoluble union the whole American Continent from the Bay of Fundy to the Gulf of Florida. The famine bills to the Northward were designed for the same purpose, as well as the restraining bills, to operate in these Southern Colonies; but instead of answering the ends of their devisers, I trust they will cover their guilty heads with ruin and confusion. Tyrants I from my soul abhor, and whether individuals or aggregate bodies, they are equally the objects of my detestation. Oh! if there is a God, and that there is all nature cries aloud throughout her works, he must delight in virtue, and that which he delights in must be happy. Your exertions for liberty, my countrymen, must be pleasing to the great Creator of the Universe. Your cause, O Virginians, is the cause of virtue, of justice, and of truth. Never, then, relinquish it but with your latest breath, and let it be the last glorious boast of your lives that you have transmitted the precious inheritance inviolate to your sons.

* See the Governor's reasons for leaving Williamsburgh, to reside on board the Fowey.

VIRGINIUS.

Chester County, Pennsylvania, June 29, 1775.

At a meeting of several officers of several companies of the Militia in the County of Chester, it was unanimously agreed, for the better regulation of the military order of said County, to have a general meeting of all the officers of the several companies, to be held at the house of Richard Cheney, Inn-keeper, in the Township of East Cain, on the 21st of July, at ten o'clock, A. M., which will be the day immediately after the Continental Fast, then and there to divide this County into the most proper and convenient districts, in order to form our several Battalions and choose our Field-Officers. The gentlemen officers are therefore hereby earnestly requested to attend for the abovesaid purposes.

PHILADELPHIA COMMITTEE.

Committee Chamber, June 29, 1775.

Whereas several persons, through a misapprehension of the Resolves which have been entered into by the Provincial Convention, relative to the killing of Sheep, have purchased Ram Lamb in the market of this City, contrary to the intent and meaning of said Resolve; the Committee, in order to prevent such mistakes in future, request the publick will take notice that, agreeable to the purport of the Resolve aforesaid, no Sheep of what denomination soever may be killed or purchased under four years of age; and that the names of all persons who shall, after this, be discovered to act in opposition to said Resolve, will be published forthwith to the world.

Ordered, That notice be given in the publick papers to all masters of vessels which may arrive in this port, that the Committee of Inspection will meet every day at twelve o'clock, at the Coffee-House, to receive a report of their respective cargoes. And it is expected that no Captain will fail to attend the Committee the first noon after his arrival; and that owners of vessels and consignees will direct their Captains accordingly.

Ordered, That the following Report of the District Committee, No. 2, concerning the Ship Christopher, Captain Edwards, from Gibraltar, be made publick, viz:

"We, the District Committee, No. 2, appointed to attend the discharging a cargo of Salt from on board the Ship Christopher, do report to the General Committee, that we have attended said duty with care, and that we are fully satisfied that no British Goods were imported in said ship, nor the Association of the Congress in any wise violated."

NEW-YORK CONGRESS TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read in Congress, July 3, 1775.]

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 29, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: In compliance with the Resolve of Congress of the 10th of June, instant, we have wrote to the proprietors of the Powder Mills in this Colony, requesting them immediately to put their Mills in a condition to manufacture Powder for the use of the Continent.

Upon inquiry we find that there can be purchased in this City sixteen or twenty tons of Sulphur, which we conceive will be more than sufficient for the Saltpetre that may be collected in the different Colonies.

If the Congress should be of this opinion, it will be necessary to give directions to the other Colonies not to send to this City any Sulphur, but to direct their attention to the article of Saltpetre only; of this article there are but two hundred and fifty pounds to be purchased here at present.

We submit this matter to the consideration of the Congress, and are, gentlemen, your very humble servants.

By order of the Congress:

P. V. B. LIVINGSTON, President.

To the Honourable the Continental Congress.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO CONGRESS.

[Read in Congress July 1, 1775.]

New-York, June 29, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I did myself the honour to write you yesterday, since which I have received some intelligence which I think it my duty to lay before you.

A gentleman, a member of the Provincial Congress here, is this afternoon arrived from Albany. He advises that a few of the Oneida Indians are lately arrived at that place, in a disposition very friendly to our cause; that they have declared a desire that the Indians should be called together at Albany, or in its neighbourhood; that great attention was paid them by the Albany Committee. As so good an opportunity to conciliate their affections will, I trust, be readily embraced by your Honours, I have ventured to advise the Albany Committee to dismiss them with presents, and assurances that they will speedily be requested to meet persons appointed for the purpose of holding a conference with them, either at Albany or any other convenient place.

The troops on board the transports at Sandy-Hook, from the best intelligence I am able to procure, are destined for Boston; they have been detained to take in water, and I am well assured that they are to sail to-morrow.

Permit me, honoured Sirs, to request that I may be favoured with a copy of the arrangement of the General and Staff-Officers in your Army, of the pay allowed them, and every other officer and soldier, and receive your orders what allowance of provisions each man is to have per day, that all troops under my command may be equally provided for, to prevent uneasiness. Enclose a copy of my letter to Colonel Hinman, commanding at Ticonderoga.

I am, honoured Sirs, respectfully, your most obedient and most humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Honourable the Continental Congress.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO COLONEL HINMAN.

New-York, June 28, 1775.

SIR: The honourable Continental Congress having been pleased to appoint me to a Major-General's command in the American Army, and being directed to take charge of that part of it which is or may be employed in the Province of New-York, I do myself the pleasure to advise you thereof.

You will please with all expedition to make me a return of the troops under your command and their condition, specifying from which Colony they are, what number of them are at Crown Point, what at Ticonderoga, the landing on Lake George, and the south end of said lake, or at any other post you may have occupied. And that the service may not suffer for want of any thing necessary with you, I beg of you to make me a very minute return of the provision, cannon, ammunition, artillery stores, intrenching and pioneer tools, at every of the above mentioned places; as also of the number of vessels on Lake George, what kind they are, and their burden; the same of those on Lake Champlain.

As it is of the highest importance that good intelligence of General Carleton's motions should be had, let me entreat you to spare no pains to procure the best accounts of what he is about; of the disposition of the Canadians and Savages towards us; what posts are occupied against us; if fortified, and how; the number of men with which they are garrisoned, whether of Canadians or Regular Troops; and from time to time transmit me any intelligence you may procure. Take every opportunity of giving the Canadians and Indians the strongest assurances of our friendly sentiments towards them; and if they should unfortunately have entertained any that are unfavourable from Mr. Allen's excursion into their country, try and eradicate them by assurances that what he did was without any orders; and although I am convinced he meant to serve the cause of America by what he did, yet it may be well, if the Canadians have taken umbrage at it, to inform them that his conduct in that instance was disapproved of.

In military contests it behoves every commander to be extremely diligent, careful, and circumspect to watch every movement of his opponents; this I have confidence you will not by any means neglect any more than that of putting yourself in the best posture of defence. And as it is necessary to prepare against possible accidents, I would have you take measures to secure a retreat to the south end of Lake George or South-Bay, if at any time you should be unhappily forced to so disagreeable a step.

I am, Sir, your most obedient servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To Colonel Hinman, commanding at Ticonderoga.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York, June 29, 1775.

SIR: As I propose that the troops from Connecticut should encamp this morning, permit me to beg of you to give orders that tents to the number of two hundred and fifty, with the poles, be sent down as soon as possible to the grounds the troops are to occupy. They will also be in immediate want of fuel for dressing their victuals, and for straw to lie on.

Pray be so good as to let me know at what hour you think the tents can be at the place destined for the encampment. I am, Sir, respectfully your most obedient humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., President, &c.

CHARLOTTE COUNTY (NEW-YORK) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting held at Fort Edward, June 29, 1775, to choose three Delegates to represent the County of Charlotte at the Provincial Congress convened at the City of New-York, with Doctor John Williams and William Marsh, Esq., before chosen by a number of the inhabitants of said County:

Be it known, that Doctor George Smyth, David Watkins, and Archibald Campbell, Esquires, are duly elected, and it is the sense of the inhabitants of the County aforesaid that the above named John Williams, William Marsh, George Smyth, David Watkins, and Archibald Campbell, they, or either of them, shall represent the said County in the Provincial Congress at New-York.

Signed by order of the County Committee:

ARCHIBALD CAMPBELL, Chairman.

JACOB BAYLEY TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Newbury, June 29, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Lately we received a desire from you to send a member or two to the Provincial Congress at New-York. We met and chose one, Sir, myself; but considering our distance and the danger we might be in of a visit from Canada, thought best that I do not yet attend until we were prepared to meet with an enemy at home. I am taking what pains I can to be prepared with arms and ammunition, but as yet to but little purpose; am still apprehensive of danger from Canada, and cannot be absent. I have had intelligence from an Indian to be depended on, who informs me that they shall be forced to take up arms, if we do not help them by sending an army to Canada, and say they are both threatened and flattered; says that the French and Indians will join us, and make no doubt but Quebeck will be taken, (which is their desire,) but if it is neglected much longer it may be fatal to them and us. I have employed him to bring intelligence from Canada, and must meet him myself, and shall transmit to you. I should think that if orders were sent to me, I could raise two or three hundred men from the neighbouring Governments, which must be necessary either for our defence or to proceed to Canada.

If it is thought best to raise men, arms (at least two hundred) and powder and flints must be sent. Mr. Harvey will inform more, and take care of whatever is sent. Mean time I am endeavouring to supply ourselves from seaports eastward.

We acknowledge with gratitude the notice taken of us by you; shall acquiesce in the measures which shall be taken by you; shall attend as soon as we are in a posture of defence.

Wish prosperity to the cause of liberty and truth. Am, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

JACOB BAYLEY.

To the Provincial Congress for New-York Colony.

New-York, June 29, 1775.

MR. HOLT: You are requested to publish the enclosed Association, adopted and signed by a number of the inhabitants of a Town in a neighbouring Colony, for the information of the people of this City and Province.

Newtown, Fairfield County,
Colony of Connecticut, April 12, 1775. }

Whereas, a considerable number of the inhabitants of this Town have, in a publick meeting, passed certain Resolves in opposition to the Resolves of the Continental Congress, (which have since been published in Mr. Rivington's Paper,) we have thought it expedient in some suitable way to make known our minds also respecting those matters; and therefore having subscribed the following Resolves, desire they may be printed, with the several names affixed:

We, the subscribers, do sincerely profess ourselves to be liege subjects of King George the Third. But from the best acquaintance with publick affairs that we have been able to attain, cannot but be deeply apprehensive that several Acts passed by the late British Parliament relative to North-America are of a very unconstitutional and oppressive nature in their tendency, directly subversive of those precious rights and privileges to which the Colonies have an indubitable claim, which Acts, therefore, are of a very alarming nature; and not being able to conceive but that the measures come into, and recommended by the late Continental Congress at Philadelphia, are very consistent with our sworn loyalty to our King, and in the main wisely calculated to obtain redress of said publick grievances: we do, therefore, hereby signify our willingness and purpose to be compliant in our several stations with the Resolves of said Congress.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO A GENTLEMAN IN HARTFORD, DATED FORT GEORGE, NEAR TICONDEROGA, JUNE 29, 1775.

The reports from the northward are various; it is thought, from the best accounts, that the Canadians will be very reluctant to enter into the service against the Colonies, and it is pretty certain that General Carleton has hanged two or three of them for refusing, and speaking to discourage others; so that it is on the whole believed, that through all the stratagems of tyranny, Carleton will dragoon a number of the Canadians and Indians into the service, and it is generally believed he is making preparations to come against us; but some think otherwise, and that he is only fortifying at St. John's, to prevent any incursions from us. Doubtless a short time will discover which of these is the truth. We have certain intelligence that Guy Johnson is making all the interest possible to raise the Indians about the Lakes and Oswegatchie against us.

Williamsburgh, June 30, 1775.

Last Friday there was a very full meeting of the inhabitants of this City at the Court-House, convened there by desire of our Representative, the Honourable Peyton Randolph, Esquire, to consider of the expediency of stationing a number of men here for the publick safety, as well as to assist the citizens in their nightly watches, to guard against any surprise from our enemies; when it was unanimously agreed (until the General Convention meets, who no doubt will provide against every contingency) to invite down, from a number of Counties, to the amount of two hundred and fifty men, who are expected in a very few days. Meanwhile, until they arrive, the neighbouring Counties are kind enough to lend us their assistance, the James City volunteers having furnished us with a guard on Wednesday; a party of the New-Kent volunteers did duty last night, and this day we expect another detachment from that County, as well as a number of the York volunteers.

Early yesterday morning sailed from Yorktown His Majesty's Ship Fowey, and the Magdalen Schooner; which last, we are informed, proceeded to England immediately, with Lady Dunmore and the rest of the Governour's family, attended by his Lordship's Chaplain, the Reverend Mr. Gwatkin.

CUMBERLAND COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

To the Inhabitants of CUMBERLAND County, VIRGINIA:
The Address of the Committee of the said County, convened on FRIDAY, the 30th of JUNE, 1775.

DEAR COUNTRYMEN: In contemplation of securing your dearest rights and liberties against the oppression of Great Britain, you some months ago elected us, (subordinate to those august bodies the Continental Congress and Provincial Convention,) by your free and unbiased suffrages, guardians of these invaluable blessings. At a short period after receiving this honour, we convened ourselves for the purpose of discharging the important trusts so reposed in us, and have, from time to time, devised such means for a happy event of your weighty contest as the maturest deliberation could suggest. In return, you have ever paid us the grateful tribute of entire confidence, testified by the most implicit acquiescence and concurrence in whatever we recommended. We with pleasure bear in mind a very recent instance of your confidence, that of the late speedy and cheerful contribution of moneys requested of you for the purpose of making military preparations; which, you may depend, no means shall be untried for laying out for the best advantage. We find, however, that you can still contribute much to this preparation, by applying diligently to making Saltpetre; this is an article much wanted, as an ingredient for making Gunpowder. Your tobacco-houses and stable floors are foundations from which Saltpetre may be produced, with but little work, in great abundance and perfection. We entreat you, therefore, to apply for the most short and ready process, and lose no time in making this necessary, but easily-procured, article.

We have been attentive to the movements of the cursed instruments of your troubles; and, had any prospects of an accommodation with the Parent State come within our view, we should gladly have laid them before you; but we must now expressly tell you, that it is to be feared no such event can be expected at all. Your enemies seem implacable in their determination to ruin American liberty, and, with that view, suffer no engine to lie still which can be put in motion by any manœuvre, however mean, cowardly, and detestable. For instances, we need only refer you to the late conduct of that mercenary ministerial tool, Lord Dunmore, within your own Colony; and be assured, that many such hirelings are employed, and will be as long as means can be supplied for paying them. In short, we must tell you, that nothing can be expected for your relief from the virtue of a British Ministry or Parliament; though, true it is, there are some members, in both Houses of the latter, who, ashamed of the black deeds of their body, daily, to their lasting honour, hold out their names as dissentients; yet, unhappily for Britain, and America too, they are but few. You may, indeed, at this time, consider yourselves in a state of civil war with Great Britain; for several engagements have been had between her troops and the brave inhabitants of your sister Colony of Massachusetts-Bay. We have long since considered all the American Colonies as united, in opposing the oppressive measures of Great Britain; a blow, therefore, struck at one, is a blow struck at all. Since matters have gone to such lengths there, you must daily look for the invaders in your own country, which is equally destined to destruction; or should the whole force of your enemies be bent on that, or any other Colony, you must not think a march thither too far. Believe us, when we tell you, that in your arms, under Divine assistance, rests your security. We entreat, you, therefore, by that regard you have for the safety of your persons; for your liberties, civil and religious; for every thing which can render your being on earth happy; by what is of more weighty consideration, that tender regard you have for the happiness of your posterity, for endless ages to come; under sanction of that confidence you repose in us: that you, without delay, apply to your arms as speedily as possible; put them in the best condition; make yourselves acquainted with military discipline, and stand in readiness for actual service, upon the shortest warning; put down every animosity from amongst yourselves; pay obedience to officers properly appointed; let no discontents, on account of their advancement, prevent your attention to them, for now your movements must harmonize. The time is arrived at which no private consideration should interfere with the safety of the State; observe the old maxim, "United we stand, divided we fall."

We entreat you, with like earnestness, to preserve what ammunition you have by you; do not expend it on any occasion whatever, except under the greatest necessity, for you may depend that more will be wanted for your defence than can shortly be procured. Pay attention to these our entreaties, and fear not.

Your American brethren are firm; you have many friends in Great Britain and Ireland; and, in the justness of your cause, you may, with confidence, look up to Heaven for assistance; in supplication of whose interposition to avert the approaching scene of blood and destruction, we recommend that you, universally, in compliance with the appointment of the Grand Continental Congress, devote Thursday, the twentieth day of July, to humiliation, fasting, and prayer.

GEORGE CARRINGTON, Chairman.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM ONE OF THE VIRGINIA DELEGATES TO HIS FRIEND IN WILLIAMSBURG, DATED PHILADELPHIA, JUNE 30, 1775.

You will see that our enemies had little to boast of for being able to force our Troops from Bunker's Hill. It is no wonder they did so, with superior numbers, ships-of-war, floating batteries, and field artillery. Their loss has certainly been very great, and now they dare not go from under protection of their ships' cannon. Our Army now before Boston amounts to about fifteen thousand effective men, commanded by Generals Washington, Ward, Lee, Putnam, Gates of Berkely, with several Brigadiers. In New-York, we have now about four thousand; and they are to be increased to five thousand, under the immediate command of General Schuyler. The Canadians absolutely refuse to join Carleton, and the Indians assure us they will observe a strict neutrality. Thus, we seem to be well secured in the north against ministerial madness. A faithful observance of the Association with us will surely rouse the sleeping lion ere long, and bring exemplary punishment on the most abandoned Ministry that ever abused mankind, and disgraced human nature. Sir William Meredith has cheated the Liverpool men, and they are sending out goods as usual; but all their ships, yet arrived, have been sent back. It will be necessary, however, to keep a good look out to prevent their slipping in through other doors less attentively watched than this place, and Charlestown, in South-Carolina.

We are here confined to a constant and painful attendance on business, from nine in the morning to four and five, and sometimes six o'clock in the afternoon; and, what is more, have not the most distant prospect of rising yet.

We have sent to Virginia and Maryland for two companies of riflemen from each Province, and six from this, to join the Army before Boston. Two millions of dollars are ordered to be struck upon the faith of the twelve United Colonies, for the payment of the Continental Army.

NEW-YORK DELEGATES TO PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

Philadelphia, June 30, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We have received your letter of the 23d instant, and are sorry to be informed of your being retarded by any difficulties in completing your levies. It would be extremely imprudent to suggest the least hint of your objections to the Congress. Be assured that the Northern and some other Colonies are ready to raise men on almost any terms, and would be happy of an opportunity of furnishing Troops without any allowance for bounty or clothes.

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. II.

Permit us earnestly to recommend to you to proceed in this business with alacrity and despatch. The honour as well as the interest of the Province is much concerned in the success of this measure. Your neighbours of Connecticut boast of their having raised their men in ten days' time; endeavour not to be behind hand with them.

We have the pleasure to acquaint you that a Continental currency is forming, and when completed, you will be immediately supplied with a sum adequate to your exigences.

If forces cannot be raised without bounties, we beg leave to submit it to your consideration, whether it would not be better to do it at the expense of the Province, or by advancing it on the credit of their pay, than lose this opportunity of signalizing your attachment to the cause, and provide for a great number of your poor.

From the intelligence we have received of the state of ammunition in your City and Province, we are apprehensive that you are so destitute of powder as to be exposed to very imminent danger in case of an attack, against which we think it extremely necessary that provision be speedily made.

We fear there are too many in New-York who flatter themselves with safety and security from the removal of the Troops. For our parts we consider it as a mere temporary suspension of danger, and that this opportunity of putting the Country in a posture of defence, is very fortunate, and by all means to be improved.

We are, gentlemen, with the greatest respect, your most obedient and humble servants,

PHILIP LIVINGSTON, WILLIAM FLOYD,
JOHN ALSOP, ROBT. LIVINGSTON, JUN.
JOHN JAY,

To Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq.

P. S. Since writing the above, the Congress have requested the Committee of Philadelphia immediately to send forward fifty quarter-casks of powder; it set out this day consigned to the Committee at Elizabethtown, who will send it to Dobb's Ferry. You are requested to provide for its being immediately taken from thence and carried to Albany, for the use of the Troops at Ticonderoga and Crown Point, &c.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read July 1, 1775.]

New-York, June 30, 1775.

SIR: I do myself the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 28th instant, which I received late last night, enclosing the Resolutions of Congress of the preceding day, and copy of a letter from the Committee of Albany, bearing date 20th June, 1775.

In obedience to the Resolutions of Congress, I shall without delay repair to Ticonderoga. It will, however, be necessary, previous to my departure from hence, that I should take order to have the variety of articles, necessary to carry into execution the views of the Congress, sent after me with all expedition: this will probably detain me until Monday.

The success of the intended operation will evidently depend so much on despatch, that I am sorry I do not think myself at liberty to move the Troops now here to Albany without the immediate consent of Congress. At this place I do not apprehend they can be wanted. At Albany they would greatly facilitate and expedite the service, as well as save expense by their assistance in the transportation of stores and provisions, and by their aid in building boats, carriages, &c., &c.; and as they must ultimately go on this service, the forces at Ticonderoga being vastly inadequate to the enterprise, I wish for the sense of the Congress with all possible despatch, and therefore I send this by express. On a service of this kind, in which success will be attended with such a variety of important and salutary consequences, I beg leave to suggest that every measure ought to be pursued that has a probable tendency to it; and therefore I hint that on a service in which we shall in all probability be encountered by Indians, a body of riflemen would be of vast utility. Perhaps I might be favoured with part at least of those now levying in Pennsylvania.

I shall immediately despatch a trusty person, Mr. Walter Livingston, to Governour Trumbull, for the two important articles of money and ammunition, neither of which can, at any rate, be procured here. The former is so much wanted here, that I am under apprehensions that the service in general may suffer, unless the Provincial Congress of this place can have a supply speedily.

The appointments I recommended in mine of the 28th are now become so pressingly necessary that I beg leave again to recommend them to the attention of Congress.

I am, Sir, with the greatest respect, yours and the Congress's most obedient and most humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President, &c.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York, June 30, 1775.

SIR: I do myself the honour to acquaint your respectable body, that late last evening I received some despatches containing matters of the first importance. They were accompanied by an order, the carrying of which into execution will require the aid of your body. I therefore wish to meet with a small Committee at any time and place, and the soonest possible, before whom I will lay such part of my orders as will become the subject of your consideration.

I am, Sir, with sentiments of respect and esteem, yours and the gentlemen of the Congress's most obedient and humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President of the New-York Provincial Congress.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

New-York, June 30, 1775.

SIR: I enclose your Honour a copy of a Resolution of the honourable the Continental Congress. I should have been happy if either of the important articles mentioned in it could have been procured here. The Provincial Congress of this Colony have already pledged their faith and fortunes for a very considerable debt, accrued on the publick account. They will, however, with that distinguished zeal for the common cause, which has already done them so much honour, do every thing in their power to carry into execution the important views of the Continental Congress, and furnish me with such articles as they shall be able to procure here. I am, however, left under the necessity of calling on your Honour for the aid of fifteen or twenty thousand Pounds of your money, (the latter sum if possible,) which I wish to have at Albany as soon as conveniently it may, and have therefore sent Walter Livingston, Esq., a member of the Provincial Congress here. Into this gentleman's hands your Honour will please to put the money, taking his receipt for the same; and permit me to entreat you, Sir, to give him an escort of some gentlemen, to his father's (Col. Livingston) on Hudson's River. Ammunition, that indispensably necessary article, cannot be had here even in the smallest quantity; hence my demand on your Honour must necessarily be considerable, I wish I could possibly do with less than six tons of powder. If any more can be spared you will doubtless send it. This article I wish to have forwarded by land to any part of Hudson's River. I shall immediately despatch a trusty officer to Connecticut, to take charge of it.

I shall be extremely happy to receive a line from you, the soonest possible, and by express, on the subject matter of this application, directed to me at Albany, that I may have it in my power to attempt other measures, should it be out of your power to comply with this requisition.

I am, &c., your Honour's most obedient and humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

The Honourable Jonathan Trumbull, Captain-General and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of Connecticut.

CAPTAIN JOHN LAMB TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York, June 30, 1775.

SIR: As there is no appointment of a Second Lieutenant in the arrangement of the Artillery Company proposed to be under my command, I take the liberty to recommend the bearer, Martin Johnson, as a proper person to be appointed to that station. Captain McDougall will shew you the arrangement for the Artillery Company which lately went from Rhode-Island to the Massachusetts-Bay; from which you will see the propriety of such an appointment. It will likewise be proper to appoint a Lieutenant Fireworker; but I do not at present know a proper person to recommend.

I am, with the greatest respect, Sir, your most humble servant,

JOHN LAMB.

To Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq.

SAMUEL MOTT TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Fort George, June 30, 1775.

HONOURED SIR: Two days ago by a kind hand of Providence I arrived in health at this place, and am this day going for Ticonderoga and Crown Point. I have seen the Honourable Judge Duer, of Charlotte County, one of New-York Committee, and Colonel Sullivan and two others of the Massachusetts Congress, who have been over to Ticonderoga, &c., and told me of the very extraordinary ill conduct of Colonel Arnold, the particulars of which I suppose your Honour will have from Colonel Hinman. I was advised by Judge Duer, and those from Massachusetts, to write immediately down for Captain Robert Niles, of Norwich, to come up and take command of one of the vessels, as they are a very important part of our defence, and as I could recommend him as a bold and able sea commander; but I thought your Honour the only proper judge of the feasibility and propriety of such a measure, and also that your Honour only could commission Captain Niles for that service, if judged expedient. I have nothing in my department of any importance to report to your Honour. Our reports from the northward are various. I had a verbal message from the Rev. Mr. Kirkland, informing me that Guy Johnson was doing all in his power to stimulate the Indian Nations against us; but he did not think they would in any measure be unanimous against us; yet he did not doubt that a number from the several tribes might be raised against us. After I have viewed Ticonderoga and Crown Point, I shall report their state, with my opinion thereon, to your Honour; and meanwhile am your Honour's most obedient humble servant,

SAMUEL MOTT.

His Honour the Governour.

WORCESTER COUNTY (MASSACHUSETTS) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Standing Committee for the County of Worcester, this 30th day of June, 1775:

Voted, That in the present critical situation of our publick affairs, when the Province is about assuming government, and many persons, by undue methods, may be seeking offices of profit and honour, we would offer for the consideration of the respective Towns in this County, whether it would not be expedient to instruct their several members to be very vigilant, and inquire into the characters of such as may be nominated for Counsellors; and also that they pitch on proper persons to recommend as respectable to fill up the respective executive and military offices, and that the substance of this vote be inserted in the Worcester paper.

GENERAL WARD TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read July 11, 1775.]

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, June 30, 1775.

SIR: I have this day received your favour of the twenty-second instant, in which you are so kind as to inform me of the General Officers that the honourable Continental Congress have appointed.

I wish, Sir, the appointments in this Colony may not have a tendency to create uneasiness among us, which we ought, at this critical time, to be extremely careful to avoid.

I have, Sir, to acknowledge the receipt of the commission as a Major-General, and do heartily wish that the honour had been conferred upon a person better qualified to execute a trust so important. It would give me great satisfaction if I thought myself capacitated to act with dignity, and to do honour to that Congress which has exalted me to be second in command over the American Army. I hope they will accept my sincere desire to serve them, and my most grateful acknowledgments for the honour conferred upon me, and pray they may not be wholly disappointed in their expectations. I always have been, and am still ready to devote my life in attempting to deliver my native Country from insupportable slavery.

I am, Sir, with great respect, your most obedient humble servant,
ARTEMAS WARD.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esquire, President of Congress, &c.

P. S. Colonel Gardner is wounded, I hope not mortally.

GENERAL WARD TO JOHN PIGEON.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, June 30, 1775.

SIR: There are now on Prospect Hill nearly four thousand men, who at present are obliged to come to the store in college, for all the provisions they stand in need of. If they can be supplied with provisions at the hill, it will tend much to the safety of the lines there, for a great number of the men are now obliged daily to leave the lines that they may convey provisions to others upon the hill; and the milk especially, when it is conveyed from the store in college to the hill, is unfit for any person in camp to eat; therefore, if possible, it must be altered.

I am, Sir, &c.,
ARTEMAS WARD.

To Mr. Commissary Pigeon.

GEN. THOMAS TO MASSACHUSETTS COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Roxbury Camp, June 30, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Major White has procured a small number of fire-arms, which I have presumed to stop in the camp at Roxbury for your order; when received I shall always comply with. We have a considerable deficiency of arms here. If it be agreeable, I should be glad there may be directions for the delivery of them here. I shall submit it to your consideration; and am your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN THOMAS.

GEN. HEATH TO MASSACHUSETTS COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Camp at Roxbury, June 30, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: A number of fire-arms were put under my care last winter, which were afterwards ordered to Worcester. The Committee of Safety, when sitting at Concord, gave me assurances that I should have a number of them for my Regiment, which I believe some of your Honours will remember. They are since disposed of, as I am informed, to other Regiments. A number of good arms are now brought to camp; a number of my Regiment, which Lieutenant-Colonel Greaton can ascertain, have no arms. I therefore earnestly request that you would be pleased to give order for their being supplied from those now brought to camp.

I am, gentlemen, with great respect, your humble servant,
W. HEATH.

Honourable Committee of Safety.

COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO MASSACHUSETTS CONGRESS.

In Committee of Safety, Cambridge, June 30, 1775.

Whereas the honourable Provincial Congress has this day passed a Resolve, appointing this Committee to be a Committee to consider of a farther emission of Bills of Credit, as mentioned in said resolve; but this Committee, feeling themselves unable to proceed in the business without a more perfect knowledge of the emissions lately made, both in quantity and circumstances of payment, and also for want of sufficient knowledge of the demands made, or to be made upon the Colony, do resolve that Colonel Palmer attend the honourable Congress to-morrow, in order to obtain all necessary light in the premises.

J. PALMER, Chairman.

To the Honourable the Provincial Congress now sitting at Watertown.

MASSACHUSETTS COMMITTEE OF SUPPLIES TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Chamber of Supplies, Watertown, June 30, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We understand that you have signified, in a letter to Mr. Langdon, the President of Harvard College, that you had some cannon mounted, and would send them if wanted. We therefore beg leave to inform you, that orders have been sent us from the camp for three twenty-four pounders more than we have now ready, and that we apprehend it very important that they should be forwarded as soon as may be.

We are respectfully, gentlemen, your most obedient servants,
DAVID CHEEVER, per order.

Honourable Committee of Safety, New-Hampshire.

An Eulogium sacred to the memory of the late Major-General WARREN, who fell JUNE 17, 1775, fighting against the Ministerial Army at BOSTON.

When an amiable man, with a promising family of children, perishes in the bloom of life, every friend to humanity must share in the distress which such a calamity occasions in the circle of his acquaintances. This distress is heightened when we hear that the virtues of the man were blended with the exalted qualities of a Patriot. We rise in our expressions of grief when we are told that he possessed not only the zeal of a patriot, but the wisdom, the integrity, and the eloquence of a Senator. But when we hear that these shining qualities were crowned with the patience, the magnanimity, and the intrepidity of a Warrior, we are led to contemplate one of the most august characters in human nature. When such a man falls, grief is dumb, and eloquence is obliged for a while to muse eulogiums which it cannot express.

Such were our feelings upon hearing of the death of the illustrious General Warren, who fell on the seventeenth of June, at the head of a detachment of the American Army, near Boston. It is impossible to do justice to his full-orb'd character. He filled each of the numerous departments in life that were assigned to him so well, that he seemed born for no others. He had displayed, in the course of three and thirty years, all the talents and virtues of the man, the patriot, the senator, and the hero. He was unlike the Spartan General only in not expiring in the arms of victory. But even in this unfortunate event he has served his Country, for he has taught the sons of freedom in America, that the laurel may be engrafted upon the cypress, and that true glory may be acquired not only in the arms of victory, but in the arms of death.

If our pleasures are exalted in proportion to the extent and degrees of our benevolence, how shall we describe those pleasures which the hero feels who performs the highest act of benevolence to mankind, by dying in defence of the liberties of his Country. He enjoys a prelibation, the most like the joys of heaven that mortals can taste upon earth; he partakes of the nature and happiness of God.

Say, illustrious shade! what new resentments kindled in thy bosom at the prospect of executing vengeance upon the foes of liberty? Say, what were the transports of thy mind when the twice repulsed enemy fled before thy powerful arms?

But when, alas, borne down with numbers, thou wast forced to retreat, and death showed his commission to the ball that pierced thy bosom, say what joy thrilled after it at the prospect of having thy brows encircled with the patriot's crown of martyrdom? Tell me, ye brave Americans who beheld our hero fall, did he not, in his last moments, pour forth his usual expressions of loyalty to the Crown of Britain, and his wonted prayers for the welfare of his Country? Did he not, in faltering accents, call upon his fellow-soldiers to forget his death, and to revenge his Country's wrongs alone? Ah! he breathes his last! Crowd not too closely on his shade, ye holy ministers of Heaven. Make room for yonder spirit! It is the illustrious Hampden who flies to embrace him, and, pointing to the wound that deprived him of life in a conflict with arbitrary power above an hundred years ago, he claims the honour of conducting him to the regions of perfect liberty and happiness.

How ineffable are the delights of Heaven to a virtuous lover of liberty. To behold the power of the Sovereign of the Universe, directed by unerring wisdom, and limited by the eternal laws of justice! To see perfection in Government, consisting in the happiness of every member that composes it! To enjoy the most perfect freedom, and yet to choose nothing but such things as are agreeable to the will of the Supreme Being. These, blessed shade, now constitute a part of thy enjoyments! Oh couldst thou tell us what other pleasures now occupy thy capacious mind! Dost thou still direct, by an invisible influence, the counsels of thy native Colony? Dost thou still inspire whole battalions of thy countrymen with courage, and lead them on to danger and glory? These we know would be a happiness suited to the benevolence and activity of thy spirit, and we hope not an inferior part of the happiness of Heaven. But it is not for mortals to pry too minutely into the secrets of the invisible world.

What a noble spectacle is the body of a hero, who has offered up his life as a ransom for his Country! Come hither, ye vindictive ministers, and behold the first fruits of your bloody edicts. What atonement can you make to his children for the loss of such a father, to the King for the loss of such a subject, and to your Country for the loss of such a member of society? You may now recall your military executioners. Here you may satiate your thirst for arbitrary power. You have slain its most implacable enemy.

Come hither ye mercenary wretches who are hired to commit murder upon your fellow-subjects, and behold the victim of your cruelty. You have no tears to shed over a brother whom you have butchered, for you have given up your title to humanity. You have ceased to be men, and we have nothing to expect from you but the vices of slaves. We only beseech you not to insult the body of our departed hero. Spare the anguish of an aged mother, whose affection extends to the corpse of her beloved son. You have nothing now to fear from his eloquence or his arms. Sheath your swords. You have performed an exploit which has filled up the measure of your infamy; and while the name of liberty is dear to Americans, the name of Warren will fire our hearts, and nerve our arms against the execrable mischiefs of Standing Armies.

Come hither ye American Senators, who are met to consult for the safety and liberty of the United Colonies. Here contemplate a spectacle that shall—but I forget the dignity of my auditors; let the wounds of the breathless hero before your eyes address you. Methinks I hear him call upon you with an energy that should be irresistible, never to listen to terms of accommodation with Great Britain that shall deprive you of a single privilege of Englishmen. Oh, interrupt not (methinks I hear him say) my present felicity with the least apprehension that I have sold my life for a country of slaves. I will listen with rapture to your wise deliberations, but I will haunt the midnight hours of that traitor who sues for peace or liberty with a bayonet at his breast, or who suspends for a moment the execution of vengeance upon the enemies of our Country.

Come hither ye military champions for American liberty and glory, come and behold a spectacle that shall rouse in your bosoms new principles of courage and ambition. Mark the widening lustre of that path of glory which he trod. But remember his ghost walks unrevenged among us. Ten thousand Ministerial Troops cannot atone for his death. Let not the remembrance of your former connection with them enervate your arms, nor silence the clamours of justice in your breasts. The enemies of liberty are no longer the brethren of freemen. Whet your swords once more, and let them never be returned to their scabbards till the monster tyranny is expelled from the British Empire, or till its bounds are prescribed, and America remains the land of perfect freedom and happiness.

Come hither, in the last place, ye American fathers and mothers, and behold the sad earnest of arbitrary power! Behold your friend, your fellow-citizen, one of the guardians of your liberty, the pride of your Country, the pillar of your hopes; behold this illustrious hero covered with blood and wounds! But pause not too long in bedewing his body with your tears. Fly to your houses, and tell your children the particulars of the melancholy sight. Chill their young blood with histories of the cruelty of tyrants, and make their hair to stand on end with descriptions of the horrors of slavery! Equip them immediately for the field. Shew them the ancient charter of their privileges. Point to the roofs under which they drew their first breath, and shew them the cradles in which they were rocked. Call upon Heaven to prosper their arms, and charge them with your last adieu to conquer, or, like Warren, to die in the arms of liberty and glory.

O, posterity, posterity, you will often look back to this memorable era. You will transfer the epithets of rebels and traitors from the loyal people of America to their just originals. You will unfold every part of that system of despotism which has been contrived for the British Empire. You will show pious Kings misled by arbitrary Ministers, and pious Ministers misled by arbitrary Kings. You will show that even the monarchs of Britain have shed tears in prevailing upon their subjects to accept of their hateful commissions, and at the same time have exulted in the society of a few parricides at the prospect of seeing a Continent deluged with the blood of freemen. O save human nature from the worst of infamy, by turning your eyes to the American Colonies. Here let your historians and orators kindle with Roman or ancient British eloquence. Prize the liberty we have transmitted to you. It cost us much treasure and blood. It cost us, (oh, how high the price,) it cost us a Warren's life!

It is Voted and Resolved, That the Honourable Metcalf Bowler, Esq., be, and he is hereby, appointed to receive the Town of Portsmouth's proportion of the Colony's Arms, in the room of the Town-Treasurer, whose religious principles will not admit of his receiving the same.

It is Voted and Resolved, That each of the gentlemen appointed Delegates to represent this Colony in the Continental Congress, to be holden in the City of Philadelphia on the tenth instant, draw the sum of sixty Pounds lawful money out of the General Treasury, to bear their expenses.

An Act for embodying, supplying and paying, the Army of Observation, ordered to be raised for the defence of the Colony:

Be it enacted by this General Assembly, and by the authority of the same it is enacted, That the fifteen hundred men ordered to be raised by this Colony be formed into one Brigade, under the command of a Brigadier-General, and consist of three Regiments, each of which shall be commanded by one Colonel, one Lieutenant-Colonel, and one Major; that there be one Adjutant of Brigade, or Adjutant-Major, for such purposes as appertain to that office; that there be one Adjutant, one Surgeon, one Surgeon's Mate, and one Quartermaster to each Regiment; that each Regiment consist of eight Companies; each Field Officer's Company to be commanded, under such Field Officer, by one Captain-Lieutenant, one Lieutenant, and one Ensign; and each of the other Companies by one Captain, one Lieutenant, and one Ensign; and that one of the Companies be a Train of Artillery, and have the use of the Colony's field-pieces.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That each Regiment be placed in the said Brigade upon the flanks and in the centre by rotation, so that a perfect equality in rank be preserved. And that a similar equality be preserved among the Field Officers of the different Regiments, by the Brigadier-General, in all the duties of a campaign.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That each able-bodied effective man, who shall enlist into the service, and find himself a Small-Arm, Bayonet, and other Accoutrements, shall be allowed and paid forty Shillings as a bounty; and each able-bodied effective man, not finding himself a Small-Arm, Bayonet, and other Accoutrements, shall receive twenty-four Shillings as a bounty.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That each Officer and Soldier shall receive the following monthly wages, while in the service, to wit: each Colonel fifteen Pounds, each Lieutenant-Colonel twelve Pounds, each Major ten Pounds, the Adjutant of Brigade, or Adjutant-Major, nine Pounds, each Captain and Captain Lieutenant six Pounds, each Lieutenant four Pounds, each Ensign three Pounds, each Adjutant of a Regiment five Pounds ten Shillings, each Surgeon seven Pounds ten Shillings, each Surgeon's Mate four Pounds, each Quartermaster three Pounds, each Sergeant two Pounds eight Shillings, each Corporal two Pounds four Shillings, each Drummer and Fifer two Pounds four Shillings, and each private man forty Shillings.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That each Field-Officer be allowed ten Shillings per week, and each other Officer and Soldier six Shillings per week, for billet, while in this Colony after enlistment, and before the Regiments are embodied. And each Soldier shall also have a Blanket and Knapsack given him by the Colony.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That each Officer and Soldier be paid his wages, and the weekly billet that shall be due, as soon as may be; and that one month's wages be paid in advance before the Troops march out of the Colony.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That each Soldier be enlisted by signing the following Enlistment, to wit: I, the subscriber, hereby solemnly engage and enlist myself as a Soldier in His Majesty's service, and in the pay of the Colony of Rhode-Island, for the preservation of the liberties of America, from the day of my enlistment, to the last day of December next, unless the service admit of a discharge sooner, which shall be at the discretion of the General Assembly; and I hereby promise to submit myself to all the orders and regulations of the Army, and faithfully to observe and obey all such orders as I shall receive from time to time from my officers.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no officer or soldier be arrested, prosecuted, or detained in jail, for any debt whatsoever less than fifteen Pounds lawful money, due to one creditor; and that every apprentice who shall enlist into the said Army shall be entitled to the whole of the bounty, and one half of his wages; his master receiving the other half.

And that the said Troops may be supplied with clothing and other necessaries, It is further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That a Commissary be appointed, who shall go sutler to the Troops, and have one and a half per cent. upon all the business he shall transact. And such Commissary is hereby directed and required to deliver unto the soldiers such things as the Colony shall send for the use of the Regiments at the prime cost, including all charges that may accrue thereon; provided that the said officer deliver nothing to any soldier without an order from the Captain or Commanding Officer of the company for the time being to which such soldier belongs. And the officers are hereby restricted and forbid drawing any order or orders on the Commissary, exceeding the monthly wages due to the soldier that applies for the same.

And it is further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That whoever shall be appointed Commissary and Sutler, shall give security to the General Treasurer, in the penal sum of two thousand Pounds, for the faithful performance of his duty; and shall not carry with him, on his own account, any necessaries of the same kind with those that shall be sent by the Government. And as such Commissary may want assistance, he is hereby authorized to appoint a Deputy or Deputies under him; he being accountable for the conduct of his Deputies.

And for the purposes aforesaid, Be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That a Committee of Safety be chosen by this Assembly, one of whom shall reside in each County, excepting the County of Providence, which shall have two, to furnish and pay the officers and soldiers in such County; and that each Committee-man shall give bond with surety to the General Treasurer, in the sum of one thousand Pounds lawful money, for the faithful discharge of his trust.

Christopher Gardner, Junior, Captain, Nathaniel Hawkins, Lieutenant, and William Potter, (son of Ichabod,) Ensign, of a Company in the Regiment of King's County and Kent.

John Randall, Captain, Oliver Clarke, Lieutenant, and Stephen Wells, Ensign, of a Company in the Regiment of King's County and Kent.

It is Voted and Resolved, That the Committee of Safety in the several Counties, be, and they are hereby appointed Muster-Masters of the Troops now ordered to be raised, for their respective Counties.

Whereas, the Ministry and Parliament of Great Britain, sacrificing the glory and happiness of their Sovereign, and the good of Britain and the Colonies, to their own ambitious and lucrative views, have entered into many arbitrary, illegal Resolutions, for depriving His Majesty's subjects in America of every security for the enjoyment of life, liberty, and property; and have sent, and are still sending, troops and ships of war into these Colonies, to enforce their tyrannical mandates, and have actually begun to shed the blood of the innocent people of these Colonies; in consequence whereof, this Assembly, at the session held on the 22d day of April last, passed an Act for raising fifteen hundred men, as an Army of Observation, and to assist any of our sister Colonies:

And whereas, the Honourable Joseph Wanton, Esquire, then Governour of this Colony, did enter a protest against the said Act, conceived in such terms as highly to reflect upon the General Assembly, and upon the united opposition of all America, to the aforesaid tyrannical measures:

And whereas, the said Joseph Wanton, Esquire, hath neglected to issue a Proclamation for the due observation of Thursday, the 11th of May instant, as a day of Fasting and Prayer, agreeable to an Act passed at the said session:

And whereas, the said Joseph Wanton, Esquire, hath been elected to the office of Governour of this Colony for the present year, and been duly notified thereof by this Assembly; notwithstanding which he hath not attended at this General Assembly and taken the oath required by law:

And whereas, the said Joseph Wanton, Esquire, hath positively refused to sign the commissions for the officers appointed to command the Troops so ordered to be raised: By all which he hath manifested his intentions to defeat the good people of these Colonies in their present glorious struggle to transmit inviolate to posterity those sacred rights they have received from their ancestors:

Be it therefore enacted by this General Assembly, and by the authority thereof it is enacted, That the Deputy Governour and Assistants be, and they are hereby forbid to administer the oath of office to the said Joseph Wanton, Esq., unless in free and open General Assembly, according to the unvaried practice in this Colony, and with the consent of such Assembly: that until the said Joseph Wanton, Esq., shall have taken the oath of office as aforesaid, it shall not be lawful for him to act as Governour of this Colony in any case whatever; and that every act done by him, in the pretended capacity of Governour, shall be null and void in itself, and shall not operate as a warrant or discharge to any person acting by his orders, or under his authority.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That Henry Ward, Esquire, Secretary of the Colony, be, and he is hereby directed, and fully authorized and empowered, to sign the Commissions for all officers, civil and military, chosen by this Assembly, as well those going in the service abovesaid, as others, he receiving therefor, out of the General Treasury, two shillings and eight pence for each commission. And that such commission so signed, with the Colony seal affixed, shall be as full and effectual warrant and warrants to every and all such officer and officers so chosen, for the faithful discharge of his and their duty, as if the same were signed by a Governour of this Colony, duly elected and engaged according to law; any law, custom, or usage, to the contrary hereof in any wise notwithstanding.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That his Honour the Deputy Governour be requested, and fully authorized and empowered, to call the General Assembly together upon any emergency, to meet at such time and place as he shall think most for the interest of the Colony.

Whereas, the Honourable Joseph Wanton, Esquire, who is elected Governour of this Colony for the present year, hath not attended this Assembly and taken the oath of office, and cannot, therefore, appoint a Naval Officer until he shall be sworn in before the General Assembly:

Be it therefore enacted by this General Assembly, and by the authority thereof it is enacted, That the Naval Office be kept by James Clarke, Esq., who hath for some time past kept it, until further orders from this Assembly; and that he account to this Assembly.

It is Voted and Resolved, That the Committee of Safety be, and they are hereby directed to make out the account of the expenses of raising and equipping the fifteen hundred men ordered to be raised by this Colony, as an Army of Observation, and for the assistance of any of the neighbouring Colonies, as soon as the said Troops are fully equipped, and transmit the same to the Delegates of this Colony at the Continental Congress, to be by them laid before the Congress, that the Colonies which have not been, or shall not be, at a proportionate expense in the defence of our common rights, may contribute their proportion towards reimbursing this Colony such part of the expenses of raising and equipping the said fifteen hundred men, as shall be more than this Colony's proportion towards the common defence.

Be it enacted by this General Assembly, and by the authority thereof it is enacted, That the Lieutenant-General, Brigadier-General, and the Committee of Safety, be, and they, or the major part of them, are hereby fully authorized and empowered, to order and direct when and in what manner the forces, or any part thereof, shall march out of this Colony to the assistance of any neighbouring Colony in distress.

It is Voted and Resolved, That the Brigadier-General draw up the several Regiments to be raised in this Colony, either singly or together; and that the Captains of the several companies, not belonging to the field-officers thereof, shall draw lots for their places and stations in the Regiments aforesaid.

It is Voted and Resolved, That the form of a Commission to a Colonel of a Regiment in the Army of Observation, now laid before this Assembly, be, and the same is hereby approved; and that similar Commissions, mutatis mutandis, be issued to the other officers of said Army.

It is Voted and Resolved, That the Speaker of the Lower House be, and he is hereby requested to transmit to the Speaker of the House of Assembly of the Colony of Connecticut, and to the Committee of Inspection for the City of New-York, copies of the Proceedings of this Assembly, relative to the present disputes between Great Britain and the Colonies.

Be it enacted by this General Assembly, and by the authority thereof it is enacted, That any military officer commissioned to command any part of the Army of Observation, be removed for any misbehaviour or neglect of duty, and another appointed in his stead, by a General Court Martial to be holden for that purpose.

It is Voted and Resolved, That Joshua Babcock, Esq., be requested to carry the proceedings of this General Assembly, respecting the raising an Army of Observation, &c., to the General Assembly of the Colony of Connecticut; and to request of them to transmit to this Assembly their proceedings and transactions relative to the present alarming crisis of affairs.

It is Voted and Resolved, That the following monthly wages shall be allowed and paid unto the following respective officers and men in the Army of Observation; that is to say:

To the Brigadier-General, - - - -	£20	0	0

This Assembly do Vote and Resolve, That an embargo be set on all Provisions going out of this Colony, excepting what shall be necessary for victualling vessels sailing out of this Colony, and for the use of the Army; and that this Act be in force immediately.

It is Voted and Resolved, That all business lying before this Assembly unfinished, be, and the same is hereby referred to the next session; that the Secretary publish the publick Acts and Orders made and passed at the last and present session, by beat of drum, in the Town of Providence, within ten days after the rising of this Assembly, and within thirty, send copies thereof to the Sheriff of each County in the Colony, by him to be transmitted to the several Town Clerks in the County; and that this Assembly be, and hereby is adjourned until the second Monday in June next, then to meet in East-Greenwich.

GOD save the KING.

JOSIAS LYNDON, Esq., Clerk of the Lower House.

This Assembly, at the session held at Providence on the first Wednesday in May last, having passed an Act prohibiting his Honour the Deputy-Governour, and the Assistants, from administering the oath of office to the Honourable Joseph Wanton, Esq., who was elected Governour of this Colony for the present year, and declaring all acts by him done, in the pretended capacity of Governour, null and void, until he shall be engaged in open General Assembly, and with the consent of the General Assembly, &c. And the said Joseph Wanton having appeared before this Assembly, and demanded that the oath of office be administered to him, and this General Assembly having taken the same into consideration, do vote and resolve, and it is voted and resolved, that the said Joseph Wanton hath not given satisfaction to this Assembly; that the said recited Act, passed at the last session, continue and be in force until the rising of the General Assembly at the next session, and that this Act be immediately published, by inserting a copy thereof in the Newport Mercury and Providence Gazette.

It is Voted and Resolved, That his Honour the Deputy-Governour be, and he is hereby requested to write to James Wallace, Esq., commander of His Majesty's Ship Rose, now in the harbour of Newport, and demand of him the reason of his conduct towards the inhabitants of this Colony, in stopping and detaining their vessels, and also to demand of him the packets which he detains.

Whereas Mr. John Carter exhibited unto this Assembly an account, by him charged against the Colony, for printing fifty-eight thousand lawful Money Bills, sixteen hundred Enlistments for the Army of Observation, the Proceedings of this Assembly at the sessions in April and May last, &c. And the said account being duly examined, it is Voted and Resolved, That the same be and hereby is allowed, and that fifty-nine Pounds thirteen Shillings and five Pence, lawful money, being the amount thereof, be paid the said John Carter out of the general Treasury.

It is Voted and Resolved, That no Soldier belonging to the Army of Observation, raised by this Colony, be allowed to take up of the Commissary any more than one third part of his monthly wages for his own use; and that whatever more the Commissary shall supply or pay to the Soldiers, shall be at his own risk.

It is Voted and Resolved, That the allowance to the Soldiers in camp be as followeth, to wit: one pound of bread, one pound of beef or pork, a half-penny for vegetables, half a gill of rice, one pint of milk, and one quart of beer per day, and one pint of molasses per week. That once a week, instead of meat, they have a pound of fish, an ounce of butter, and half a pint of vinegar: That if they have no milk they be allowed a gill and a half of rice per day: That if the half-penny per day for vegetables be not sufficient, the Brigadier-General be empowered to increase the same to a sufficient allowance, and that the Commissary furnish them with the same quantity of soap as is allowed by the Colony of the Massachusetts-Bay to their Troops.

It is Voted and Resolved, That the following Rules and Orders for regulating the Army of Observation raised by this Colony, be and they are hereby approved, and that the Secretary procure the same to be printed, and supply the Brigadier-General, each Field Officer, the Commissary, and each Commissioned Officer, with a copy thereof.

Whereas, the lust of power, which of old oppressed, persecuted, and exiled our pious and virtuous ancestors from their fair possessions in Britain, now pursues, with tenfold severity, us, their guiltless children, who are unjustly and wickedly charged with licentiousness, sedition, treason and rebellion; and being deeply impressed with a sense of the almost incredible fatigues and hardships our venerable progenitors encountered, who fled from oppression for the sake of civil and religious liberty for themselves and their offspring, and began a settlement here on bare creation, at their own expense; and having seriously considered the duty we owe to God, to the memory of such invincible worthies, to the King, to Great Britain, our Country, ourselves and posterity, do think it an indispensable duty, by all lawful ways and means in our power, to recover, maintain, defend, and preserve, the free exercise of all those civil and religious rights and liberties, for which many of our forefathers fought, bled, and died, and to hand them down entire, for the free enjoyment of the latest posterity: And whereas the keeping a Standing Army in any of these Colonies in times of peace, without the consent of the Legislature of that Colony in which such an Army is kept, is against law: And whereas such an Army, with a large Naval Force, is now placed in the harbour of Boston, for the purpose of subjecting us to the power of the British Parliament: And whereas we are frequently told by the tools of Administration, dupes to ministerial usurpation, that Great Britain will not, in any degree, relax in her measures, until we acknowledge her "right to make laws binding upon us in all cases whatsoever;" and that if we refuse to be slaves, if we persist in our denial of her claim, the dispute must be decided by arms, in which it is said by our enemies "we shall have no chance, being undisciplined, cowards, disobedient, impatient of command, and possessed of that spirit of levelling which admits of no order, subordination, rule, or government:" And whereas from the Ministerial Army and Fleet now at Boston, the large re-enforcement of Troops expected, the late circular letters to the Governours upon the Continent, the general tenour of intelligence from Great Britain, and the hostile preparations making here, as also from the threats and frequent insults of our enemies, we have reason to apprehend that the sudden destruction of this Colony is in contemplation, if not determined upon:

And whereas the great law of self-preservation hath required our raising and keeping an Army of Observation and defence, in order to prevent or repel any farther attempts to enforce the late cruel and oppressive Acts of the British Parliament, which are evidently designed to subject us and the whole Continent to the most ignominious slavery: And whereas, in keeping such an Army, it will be necessary that the officers and soldiers in the same be fully acquainted with their duty, and that the articles, rules, and regulations thereof be made as plain as possible; and having great confidence in the honour and publick virtue of the inhabitants of this Colony, that they will readily obey their officers, and will cheerfully do their duty, when known, without any such severe articles and rules (except in capital cases) and cruel punishments, as are usually practised in standing armies, and will submit to all such rules and regulations as are founded in reason, honour, and virtue:

It is therefore Resolved, That the following Articles, Rules and Regulations, for the Army raised by this Colony for the defence and security of our lives, liberties, and estates, be, and hereby are established and required to be strictly adhered to by all officers, soldiers, and others concerned, as they regard their own honour and the publick good; and upon the penalties and forfeitures hereinafter mentioned.

ARTICLE I. All Officers and Soldiers, not having just impediment, shall diligently frequent divine service and sermon in the places appointed for assembling of the Regiment, Troop, or Company, to which they belong; and such as wilfully absent themselves, or being present, behave indecently or irreverently, shall, if Commissioned Officers, be brought before a Regimental Court-Martial, there to be publicly and severely reprimanded by the President; if Non-Commissioned Officers or Soldiers, every person so offending shall, for his first offence, forfeit one Shilling, to be deducted out of his wages; for the second offence he shall not only forfeit one Shilling, but be confined, not exceeding twenty-four hours; and for every like offence, shall suffer and pay in like manner; which money so forfeited shall be applied to the use of the sick Soldiers of the Troop or Company to which the offender belongs.

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. II.

ART. II. Whatsoever Non-Commissioned Officer or Soldier shall use any unlawful oath or execration, shall incur the penalty of six Pence; and if a Commissioned Officer be thus guilty of profane cursing and swearing; he shall forfeit and pay for each and every such offence the sum of nine Pence, lawful money.

ART. III. Any Officer or Soldier who shall behave himself with contempt or disrespect towards the General or Generals, or Commander-in-Chief of the Rhode-Island Forces, or shall speak words tending to his or their hurt or dishonour, shall be punished according to the nature of his offence, by the judgment of a General Court-Martial.

ART. IV. Any Officer or Soldier who shall begin, excite, cause, or join in any mutiny or sedition in the Regiment, Troop, or Company, to which he belongs, or in any other Regiment, Troop, or Company of the Rhode-Island Forces, either by land or sea, or in any party, post, detachment, or guard, on any pretence whatsoever, shall suffer such punishment as by a General Court-Martial shall be ordered.

ART. V. Any Officer, Non-Commissioned Officer, or Soldier, who being present at any mutiny or sedition, does not use his utmost endeavours to suppress the same, or coming to the knowledge of any mutiny or intended mutiny, does not without delay, give information thereof to the commanding Officer, shall be punished by order of a General Court-Martial, according to the nature of his offence.

ART. VI. Any Officer or Soldier who shall strike his superiour Officer, or draw, or offer to draw, or shall lift up any weapon, or offer any violence against him, being in the execution of his office, on any pretence whatsoever, or shall disobey any lawful commands of his superiour Officer, shall suffer such punishment as shall, according to the nature of his offence, be ordered by the sentence of a General Court-Martial.

ART. VII. Any Non-Commissioned Officer or Soldier who shall desert, or without leave of his Commanding Officer, absent himself from the Troop or Company to which he belongs, or from any detachment of the same, shall, upon being convicted thereof, be punished according to the nature of his offence, at the discretion of a General Court-Martial.

ART. VIII. Whatsoever Officer or Soldier shall be convicted of having advised or persuaded any other Officer or Soldier to desert, shall suffer such punishment as shall be ordered by the sentence of a General Court-Martial.

ART. IX. All Officers, of what condition soever, shall have power to part and quell all quarrels, frays, and disorders, though the persons concerned should belong to another Regiment, Troop, or Company, and either order Officers to be arrested, or Non-Commissioned Officers or Soldiers to be confined and imprisoned, till their proper Superiour Officers shall be acquainted therewith; and whoever shall refuse to obey such Officer, (though of an inferiour rank,) or shall draw his sword upon him, shall be punished at the discretion of a General Court-Martial.

ART. X. No Officer or Soldier shall use any reproachful or provoking speeches, or gestures to another, nor shall presume to send a challenge to any person to fight a duel; and whoever shall knowingly and willingly suffer any person whatsoever to go forth to fight a duel, or shall second, promote, or carry any challenge, shall be deemed as a principal; and whatsoever Officer or Soldier shall upbraid another for refusing a challenge, shall also be considered as a challenger; and all such offenders, in any of these or such like cases, shall be punished at the discretion of a General Court-Martial.

ART. XI. Every Officer commanding in quarters, or on a march, shall keep good order, and, to the utmost of his power, redress all such abuses or disorders which may be committed by any Officer or Soldier under his command; if upon any complaint made to him, of Officers or Soldiers beating, or otherwise ill-treating any person, or of committing any kind of riot, to the disquieting of the inhabitants of this Continent, he, the said Commander, who shall refuse or omit to see justice done on the offender or offenders, and reparation made to the party or parties injured, as far as the offender's wages shall enable him or them, shall, upon due proof thereof, be punished as ordered by a General Court-Martial, in such manner as if he himself had committed the crimes or disorders complained of.

ART. XII. If any Officer shall think himself to be wronged by his Colonel, or the Commanding Officer of the Regiment, and shall, upon due application made to him, be refused to be redressed, he may complain to the General, or Commander-in-Chief of the Rhode-Island Forces, in order to obtain justice, who is hereby required to examine into said complaint and see that justice be done.

ART. XIII. If any inferior Officer or Soldier shall think himself wronged by his Captain, or other Officer commanding the Troop or Company to which he belongs, he is to complain thereof to the Commanding Officer of the Regiment, who is hereby required to summon a Regimental Court-Martial for the doing justice to the complainant, from which Regimental Court-Martial either party may, if he thinks himself still aggrieved, appeal to a General Court-Martial; but if, upon a second hearing, the appeal shall appear to be vexatious and groundless, the person so appealing shall be punished at the discretion of the General Court-Martial.

ART. XIV. Whatsoever Non-Commissioned Officer or Soldier shall be convicted at a Regimental Court-Martial of having sold, or designedly, or through neglect, wasted the Ammunition, Arms, or Provisions, or other Military Stores delivered out to him to be employed in the service of this Colony, shall, if an Officer, be reduced to a Private Sentinel; and if a Private Soldier, shall suffer such punishment as shall be ordered by a Regimental Court-Martial.

ART. XV. All Non-Commissioned Officers and Soldiers shall be allowed the limits of one mile from the place of encampment, unless the Commander-in-Chief shall think proper to mark out shorter limitations. Every Officer or Soldier found without those limits, without leave in writing, shall suffer such punishment as shall be inflicted by a Regimental Court-Martial.

ART. XVI. No Officer or Soldier shall lie out of his quarters or camp without leave from the Commanding Officer of the Regiment, upon penalty of being punished according to the nature of his offence, by order of a Regimental Court-Martial.

ART. XVII. Every Non-Commissioned Officer and Soldier shall retire to his quarters or tent at the beating of the retreat; in default of which, he shall be punished according to the nature of his offence, by order of the Commanding Officer.

Whereas, William Potter, Esquire, presented unto this Assembly the following Memorial, to wit:

To the Honourable the General Assembly of the Colony of RHODE-ISLAND, at the session to be holden in EAST-GREENWICH, on the second MONDAY in JUNE, A. D. 1775:

I, William Potter, of South-Kingstown, in the County of King's County, in the Colony aforesaid, humbly shew: That at a Session of the General Assembly held at Providence, on the twenty-second day of April last, an Act was passed for the raising, with all expedition and despatch, fifteen hundred Men, as an Army of Observation, to repel any insult or violence that might be offered to the inhabitants; and also, if necessary for the safety and preservation of the Colonies, to march out of this Colony, and join and co-operate with the Forces of the neighbouring Colonies; against which Act I, as one of the Upper House of Assembly, together with Joseph Wanton, Esquire, the then Governour, Darius Sessions, Esquire, the then Deputy-Governour, and Thomas Wickes, Esq., then also one of the same Upper House, did enter my Protest; which hath given much uneasiness to the good people of this Colony. To remove which, so far as respects myself, and as far as in me lieth, I beg leave to observe, that a rough draught was drawn up, and delivered to a person to be corrected; which Protest, as the same now stands, appears to me to be of a different import from my meaning at that time, and which, through the hurry attending the business before the House, was not so properly attended to as it might have been, and in that haste was signed. It is true, I was against the passing of the said Act at that time, as I conceived the Trade, and particularly the Town of Newport, would be greatly distressed, which a little longer time might prevent; and because it was known that the very respectable Assembly of the Colony of Connecticut would soon sit, of whose wise deliberations we might greatly avail ourselves. These were the true reasons of my conduct, however the contrary may appear from the Protest signed. No man hath ever been more deeply impressed with the calamities to which America is reduced, by a most corrupt Administration, than myself. No man hath more exerted himself in private and publick life to relieve ourselves from our oppressions; and no man hath held himself more ready to sacrifice his life and fortune in the arduous struggles now making throughout America for the preservation of our just rights and liberties; and in these sentiments I am determined to live and die. Sorry I am if any of the good people of this Colony should have conceived otherwise of me; and I greatly lament that the unguarded expressions in that Protest should give cause therefor. Should I from thence lose the confidence, just hopes, and expectations of my countrymen of my future conduct in the arduous American struggles, it might create an uneasiness of mind for which nothing can ever compensate. But should this publick declaration ease the minds of my friends and the friends of liberty, and convince them of my readiness to embark, to conflict with them in every difficulty, and against every opposition, until our glorious cause shall be established upon the most firm and permanent basis, it will be a consideration that will afford me the highest satisfaction that human nature is capable of enjoying. I am, your Honours' most humble servant,

WILLIAM POTTER.

And the said Memorial being duly considered,

It is Voted and Resolved, That the same be accepted; that it is satisfactory; and that the said William Potter be, and he is hereby, reinstated in the favour of this General Assembly.

Both Houses being resolved in a Grand Committee, the gentlemen whose names are set down in the subsequent list were chosen to serve the Colony in the offices ascribed to their names respectively, to wit:

A Petition from a number of inhabitants near Head's Creek, in the Townships of Chestnut-Hill and Domencing, in Northampton County, was presented to the House, and read, complaining of great inconveniences suffered by the petitioners, from a saw-mill dam erected on the said creek, obstructing the navigation thereof, and praying relief.

Ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. Speaker laid before the House a Letter from Benjamin Franklin, Esquire, Agent for this Province in London, dated the 15th of February last, enclosing a list of six Acts of the General Assembly of this Province, presented to His Majesty in Council the 14th of the same month, respectively intitled and passed, as follows, viz:

Thursday, June 22, 1775, P. M.

The House met, and adjourned to five o'clock, P. M.

The Committee appointed to prepare and bring in a Bill for striking the sum of Twenty-Two Thousand Pounds, in Bills of Credit, to be sunk by the excise on spirituous liquors, reported an essay for that purpose, intitled "An Act for the support of the Government of this Province, and payment of the Publick Debts;" which was read the first time, and ordered to lie on the table for a second reading.

Friday, June 23, 1775.

The Bill intitled "An Act for the support of the Government of this Province, and payment of the Publick Debts," being read the second time, and debated by paragraphs, was ordered to be transcribed for a third reading.

A Petition and Memorial from the Committee of the City and Liberties of Philadelphia, was presented to the House, and read, setting forth, that the petitioners, reflecting upon the great and imminent danger to which the liberties of America are exposed, by the open and declared determination of the British Ministry to enforce certain cruel and oppressive Acts of Parliament; and contemplating those mournful events which have already happened, as well as those which may happen, during this important struggle, have been induced to form and recommend a Military Association within this City and Liberties; that, in forming such Association, they have extended their views beyond a mere parade and useless show; and animated with a lively sense of the inestimable value of the blessings of civil liberty themselves, they have endeavoured to inculcate upon others the necessity of defending and supporting them by actual service, if the exigency of publick affairs should require it; that, under these circumstances, they find various difficulties, which require the aid and assistance of the honourable House. Reposing, therefore, the fullest confidence in the virtue and spirit of their Representatives, they beg leave to lay before them several particulars, which seem, in a peculiar manner, to claim their attention and regard, viz:

That, in the first place, there are great numbers of able-bodied men, who have acquired some skill in the use of arms, and, in case of necessity, would proceed to actual service; but their situation and circumstances in life (many having families, and others not sufficient ability to support themselves) forbid their entering into any engagements of this nature; and in case of an actual call, their ardour and readiness to devote themselves to their Country's service would be damped, if not extinguished, by the alarming consideration of leaving their families subject to want at home, and experiencing all the difficulties of unpaid Troops while in the field. The petitioners, therefore, humbly submit to the honourable House, that as there is the highest reason and justice that all the members of the community, who are equally interested in the preservation and security of our common liberties, should contribute to the assistance and support of those who take a more active, laborious, and dangerous part, it would be highly proper that a vote of credit should be passed, ascertaining and promising suitable pay and subsistence to such officers and soldiers as shall solemnly engage to go into actual service, if required; and who shall, in case of necessity and publick danger, comply with such engagements, by meeting at any rendezvous appointed, and performing such military duty as shall be deemed necessary, and may be demanded of them. And that such provision may be extended to camp equipage, wagons for transporting baggage, and such other necessities as actual field duty shall require. That the petitioners, on this subject, would only add, that the provision here requested, is no more than that made by the Militia-laws in England, and the neighbouring Provinces, in case of invasion or insurrection, and by all judicious and sensible men deemed absolutely necessary, to give efficacy, spirit, vigour, and success to any military association whatever.

That, in the second place, the petitioners beg leave to lay before the honourable House the very naked and defenceless state of this City and Harbour, now in its turn become the frontier, and exposed to equal dangers and difficulties, from which it has, at different times, cheerfully contributed to rescue the more distant parts of the Province. Vain are all our military operations; useless and lost the sums of money generously given by this honourable House for our defence, if a single ship of war may proceed, without any interruption, to the very front of the City, and impose such terms of surrendering our arms, or contributions of money and provisions, as will reduce us to the melancholy alternative of a disgraceful compliance, or exposing the City to certain destruction. That great quantities of large cannon and some stores lay in useless heaps in various parts of this City, which skillful persons have judged might, at no great expense, be so employed as to make our situation much more secure than it is at present; besides which, there are many other devices calculated for obstructing the passage of rivers and harbours, well worthy of immediate attention, if some suitable provision could be made for defraying the expense which would be incurred by so essential a service.

That, in the third place, the petitioners earnestly recommend to the patronage and assistance of the honourable House, a manufacture of that valuable and necessary article, Saltpetre. While dependant on a precarious supply from beyond sea, and that under the restraints which our cruel oppressors have laid or procured, our situation is truly alarming; but should success happily attend the infant manufactory promoted and formed by the petitioners, it may be extended so as to bid defiance to all the schemes of our enemies to deprive us of the necessary means of defence, and afford the fairest prospect of relief from our present difficulties and distress.

Besides these particular objects, which, with all due respect, the petitioners submit to the consideration of the honourable House, they beg leave to add, that in times so critical and important, when the fate of our Country, the safety and security of all which can make life valuable or desirable to a free citizen, is suspended; when every day brings with it some event of a most interesting nature, particular and unforeseen exigences and damages arise, which require immediate attention, and incur an immediate expense. That the petitioners, therefore, submit to the consideration of the House the necessity and propriety of appointing persons out of their own body, or in conjunction with others, as a Committee of Safety and Defence, with discretionary powers, upon the credit, and under the control of the House, to act on such emergencies; to appropriate such publick moneys as may be already raised, or to raise such further sums upon credit, or otherwise, as the alarming situation of the Province may require.

Signed by order, and in behalf of the Committee of the City and Liberties of Philadelphia.

JOSEPH REED, Chairman.

Ordered to lie on the table.

The House adjourned to five o'clock, P. M.

The House resumed the consideration of the Petition and Memorial from the Committee for the City and Liberties of Philadelphia; and after some time spent therein, adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Saturday, June 24, 1775.

The Members return, and report they had waited on the Governour and delivered the said List according to order.

The Governour, by Mr. Secretary, returned the Bill intituled "An Act for the support of the Government of this Province, and payment of the Publick Debts," with a written Message to the House, which was read by order; and follows in these words, viz:

A written Message from the Governour to the House.

GENTLEMEN: It being unusual to make provision for the discharge of the Orders drawn for the payment of the publick debts before the end of the year, at which time there may probably be a sum sufficient for the purpose in the Treasury, arising from the funds heretofore provided, I cannot think it proper to give my consent to the Bill intituled "An Act for the support of the Government of this Province, and payment of the Publick Debts."

JOHN PENN.

Upon consideration of the foregoing Message, Ordered, That Mr. Dickinson, Mr. Hillegas, Mr. Pearson, and Mr. Ross, be a Committee to prepare and bring in an Answer to the said Message.

The House adjourned to five o'clock, P. M.

The Committee appointed to take into consideration and report to the House such measures as may be expedient for putting this City and Province into a state of defence, reported they had essayed a draught of some Resolves for that purpose, which they presented to the Chair; and the same being read by order, was referred for further consideration.

The House adjourned to nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

Thursday, June 29, 1775.

The House met pursuant to adjournment.

Ordered, That Mr. Ferree and Mr. Ewing wait on the Governour, and inquire at what hour to-day the House shall attend him to enact into Laws the Bills that have been returned with his assent.

The Members return, and report, that they had waited on his Honour, and delivered their Message according to order, and that the Governour was pleased to say, he should be immediately ready to meet the House to pass the several Bills which have been agreed on.

The House then taking into consideration the time of adjournment, agreed to meet again on Monday, the 18th of September next, with which the Speaker is desired to acquaint his Honour when the House shall wait on him to pass the Bills.

Ordered, That Mr. Hillegas join with the Members of Council appointed by the Governour to compare the engrossed Bill with its original.

The Member reported he had assisted in collating the engrossed Bill with its original, and found them to agree.

To

which Bills the Governour had been pleased to give his assent by enacting the same into laws.

The Members appointed to see the Great Seal affixed to the said Bills, and deposite the same in the Rolls Office, reported they had performed that service according to order.

The House adjourned to three o'clock, P. M.

The Committee appointed to strike the sum of Twenty-Five Thousand Pounds in Bills of Credit, directed by the Act intituled "A supplement to the Act intituled 'An Act for erecting a new Jail, Workhouse, and House of Correction, in the City of Philadelphia,'" passed the eighteenth of March last, produced to the Chair a receipt from Joseph Fox, Esquire, one of the Commissioners of the County of Philadelphia, for the said sum of Twenty-Five Thousand Pounds in the said Bills of Credit to him paid agreeable to the directions of the said Act.

The said Committee also produced two extra sheets unsigned, which had been printed to supply any loss or deficiency happening in the said Bills during the signing and numbering the same; which two extra sheets, containing sixteen Bills of five Pounds each, and sixteen Bills of fifty Shillings each, were burned by order of the House, in the presence of the Members.

The House resumed the consideration of the Resolves of the Committee appointed to consider of such measures as may be expedient for putting this City and Province into a state of defence, and after some time spent therein, adjourned to nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

2. Resolved, That if any invasion or landing of British Troops, or others, shall be made in this or the adjacent Colonies during the present controversy, or any armed ships or vessels shall sail up the River Delaware in a hostile manner, and such circumstances shall render it expedient in the judgment of the Committee hereafter to be appointed, for any number of the officers and private men of the Association within this Colony to enter into actual service for repelling such hostile attempts, this House will provide for the pay and necessary expenses of such officers and soldiers performing such military duty, while they are in such actual service.

Tuesday, June 13, 1775, P. M.

The Committee appointed to prepare an Answer to the Governour's Speech, laid before the House the following draught of an Answer, viz:

May it please your Excellency:

Our grateful acknowledgments are due to you for your kind assurance given this House in your Excellency's speech, that you will afford all the facility in your power to every measure that may be conducive to the publick good; and that you will make the happiness and prosperity of this Government the object of your warmest wishes and constant pursuit. Your Excellency may be assured, that we, in our department, will ever consult and steadily pursue such measures as we may judge will be most likely to promote the prosperity of this Province. We desire the Treasurer's Accounts may be laid before us as soon as may be, which we will immediately proceed to inspect.

It is with the most anxious concern we view the unhappy controversy between Great Britain and her Colonies rapidly advancing to the most serious issue; a matter of such a momentous, interesting nature, cannot fail of engaging our most serious attention, while it fills us with the deepest solicitude and distress. We most ardently wish it in our power to effect, by any measures we could take, the restoration of publick tranquillity, and the re-establishment of the much-desired reconciliation with our Mother Country, upon a just, solid, and permanent basis, that the blessings of the British Constitution might thereby be diffused and enjoyed through every part of this wide and extended Empire. But we are apprehensive the settlement of the present distressing difficulties is an object of such magnitude, and a matter of such general concernment to all the Colonies, as far exceeds our circumscribed power and influence. As a variety of methods have been proposed, and measures pursued, in order to effect this desirable end, all of which have hitherto proved ineffectual, we are entirely at a loss to know what measures we can take that may afford a prospect of success. Was it in our power to settle this most unnatural, unfortunate contest, in a way consistent with the true interest and rights of the whole Nation, our calamities would be but of short duration; and we trust, had it been equally in the power of the Colonies, as it ever was their wish, matters would never have proceeded to such extremity. Intimately connected as we are with the Parent State, by the strongest ties of kindred, religion, laws, and interest, it ever must be our most sincere desire and zealous endeavour to adopt and constantly pursue such measures as may have the most likely tendency to strengthen and perpetuate such connexion, and to promote the general interest and happiness of the whole Empire.

With hearts deeply impressed with the most affectionate attachment to, and concern for, the interest and prosperity of Great Britain, as inseparably connected with our own, we trust that our conduct will invariably manifest the rectitude of our intention, and our sincere aim to restore and establish peace and harmony between Great Britain and her Colonies, and to advance the prosperity of both Countries.

Voted, That the foregoing be presented to his Excellency the Governour, in answer to his Speech at the opening of the present General Assembly.

The Deputy Secretary brought down the following Message from his Excellency, viz:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Assembly:

When a general spirit of jealousy, alarm, and apprehension, have either banished the sober reason, or blinded the cool judgment of men; when the love of order and respect to the laws, reverence and attachment to the ancient and happy Constitution of this Province, seem wholly to have deserted their seat, and disorder and confusion introduced in their stead; and when the people, as it were, seem to have lost sight of any possible alternative but slavery or civil war, and abandon the hope that there is yet remaining of possibility of reconciliation with the Mother Country, I think it incumbent upon me, in this most alarming and dangerous situation, to recommend to your most serious consideration the Resolution of the House of Commons of the 27th of February last, which hath been approved by His Majesty. There appears in this solemn Resolution so great an affection, tenderness for your liberties, and readiness to be reconciled, upon principles consistent with the just rights and dignity of the Parent State, and the privileges of the Colonies, as precludes the necessity of particular observations upon it; and I cannot but trust that it will meet with the just and grateful return from you that may be naturally expected from the wisdom which the hour of serious reflection will call forth, and from the feelings which calm consideration will produce; and be finally productive of those happy effects for which it lays so fair a foundation. But as this is a subject of a most weighty nature to the good people of this Province, the security of whose lives and properties may rest upon the moment of your decision as their Representatives, I cannot give a greater instance of my duty to His Majesty, and of zeal for the true interest of this Province, than by affording you time for candid consideration, and an opportunity to take the real, and, on this very serious occasion, I hope dispassionate sentiments of your constituents, from whence my most fervent prayers to Heaven are, that a disposition for reconciliation may spring up, whose blossoms being mutual affection and a desire for peace and harmony, we may speedily reap the blessed fruit of happy prosperity to this Province, and perpetual glory to the united British Empire.

I do therefore adjourn the General Assembly, and it is hereby adjourned accordingly, to Tuesday, the 11th day of July next, then to meet at the State-House in Portsmouth, in order to proceed to the consideration of this and the other publick affairs of the Province.

In the mean time I most earnestly recommend it to you, by all means in your power, to discourage and discountenance all acts and measures tending to increase our difficulties, by widening the breach between us and our Mother Country, which unhappily but too much prevail throughout the Province, and to use your best endeavours to cultivate a quiet and peaceable disposition among your constituents.

J. WENTWORTH.

Secretary Atkinson informed the Committee that Governour Wentworth had sent for a few days since.

Whereas, this Congress have resolved it as their opinion, that all the publick Records of this Colony were, in time of danger, unsafe in the Town of Portsmouth, and that the same should be removed to the Town of Exeter; all which Records have, in consequence thereof, been removed by a Committee appointed for that purpose, as far as came to their knowledge, except the books of Charters of the several Towns, kept in this Colony: Therefore, it is now

Resolved, That the Honourable Theodore Atkinson, Esq., Secretary of this Colony, is accountable to the people for said Records, and that he ought, without delay, to deliver the same to the said Committee.

Whereas, by a Vote of this Congress, of the 28th of June last, the publick Records were ordered to be removed to Exeter, as a place of safety; and as the real intent of the Vote may be mistaken, or not understood, it is now

Resolved, That it was the sole intent and meaning of Voted, That Deacon Samuel Brooks, Noah Emery, William Parker, Jun., and John Rice, Esq., be desired to take care and keep in safety the respective Records lately left in their custody, until the respective officers take charge of them, or till further orders of this Congress.

Resolved, That John Hurd and Israel Morey, Esquire, and Mr. Abel Webster, be a Committee to call upon and receive the aforesaid Moneys of the said Samuel Livermore, Esq., and in behalf of this Congress to give him a receipt therefor sufficient to indemnify him for the delivery thereof.

Voted, That the Committee of Safety be desired to write a Letter to the Continental Congress, and that the President sign the same in the name and behalf of this Congress, therein setting forth the state of our Forces, and the situation of this Colony, &c.

Voted, That the Committee for procuring Fire-Arms be, and hereby are directed to procure the same forthwith, on the best terms they can.

Voted, That this Congress be adjourned to Tuesday, the 22d day of August next, at three of the clock, afternoon, to meet at this place; and that if any thing should happen in the mean time that the Committee of Safety shall think of sufficient consequence, that they have power to convene this Congress sooner.

Adjourned to August 22, 1775.

HOUSE OF BURGESSES OF VIRGINIA.

General Assembly begun and held at the Capitol in the City of Williamsburgh, on Thursday, the first day of June, in the fifteenth year of the reign of our Lord George the Third, by the grace of God, of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c., Annoque Domini one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five.

On which day, being the first day of the meeting of this General Assembly for the despatch of publick business, pursuant to a Proclamation hereunto annexed, and also to the Writs which had issued for that purpose, his Excellency the Right Honourable John Earl of Dunmore, His Majesty's Lieutenant and Governour-General of the Colony and Dominion of Virginia, and Vice-Admiral of the same, having made a Commission under his hand and the seal of the Colony, hereunto also annexed, empowering the Honourable Thomas Nelson, Richard Corbin, William Byrd, John Tayloe, Robert Carter, Robert Burwell, and Ralph Wormeley, Esquires, John Camm, Clerk, and John Page and Gavin Corbin, Esquires, to administer the Oaths appointed to be taken by the Members returned to serve in the General Assembly before they go into the House of Burgesses, several of the said Commissioners came about ten of the clock into the Council Chamber, where the said Oaths are usually taken, and George Wythe, Clerk of the House of Burgesses, attending according to his duty, with a book containing a list of the names of such Members as had been returned to serve in this General Assembly, and with the Writs for electing them, delivered to him by the Clerk of the Secretary's office, the said Commissioners administered the said Oaths to such of the said Members of the House of Burgesses as appeared; which being done, the Members repaired to their seats in the House of Burgesses.

After which, a Message was delivered by John Blair, Esquire, Clerk of the General Assembly:

GENTLEMEN: The Governour commands this House to attend his Excellency immediately in the Council Chamber.

Accordingly the House went up to attend his Excellency in the Council Chamber, where his Excellency was pleased to say to them:

Gentlemen of the House of Burgesses:

You must return again to your House, and immediately proceed to the choice of a Speaker.

And the House being returned,

Henry Lee, Esquire, one of the Members for the County of Prince William, addressing himself to the Clerk, (who, standing up, pointed to him, and then sat down,) moved that Peyton Randolph, Esquire, should take the Chair of this House, as Speaker, which office he had before filled with such distinguished abilities, steadiness, and impartiality, as had given entire satisfaction to the publick; and thereupon,

Mr. Randolph was elected without opposition, and was taken out of his place by two Members, who led him from thence to the Chair; and having ascended the uppermost step, and standing there, Mr. Randolph returned his thanks to the House for placing him again in that elevated station, and assured them, that as he had gained their favourable opinion, of which their unanimous suffrages on this and other occasions were a testimony equally convincing and honourable, so he would studiously endeavour to preserve it by a strict attention to, and a faithful discharge of, his duty, in any department the publick should think him worthy to serve them in; adding, that he doubted not the House would judge of his future conduct with their wonted candour, and would support him with their assistance, more especially necessary at this critical season.

And thereupon he sat down in the Chair; and then the Mace (which before lay under the table) was laid upon the table.

Ordered, That a Message be sent to the Governour, to acquaint his Excellency that this House, in obedience to his commands, have made choice of a Speaker, and to know his pleasure when they shall attend to present him; and that Mr. Henry Lee and Mr. Treasurer do wait upon his Excellency with the said Message.

They accordingly withdrew, and being returned, Mr. Treasurer reported, that the Governour was pleased to say he would send an answer by a messenger of his own.

A Message from the Governour by Mr. Blair:

MR. SPEAKER: The Governour commands this House to attend his Excellency immediately in the Council Chamber.

Accordingly Mr. Speaker elect, with the House, went up to attend his Excellency in the Council Chamber; and he was pleased to declare his approbation of their choice.

Then Mr. Speaker did, in the name and on behalf of the House, lay claim to all their ancient rights and privileges, particularly a freedom of speech and debate, exemption from arrests, and protection for their estates; and lastly, for himself, requested that his errors might not be imputed to the House.

The Governour answered that he should take care to defend them in all their just rights and privileges.

The House being returned,

Mr. Speaker reported, that the House had attended the Governour in the Council Chamber, where his Excellency was pleased to approve the choice they had made of him to be their Speaker, and to grant and to allow to them, upon petition of claim made by him to his Excellency, in the name and on the behalf of the House of Burgesses, all their ancient rights and privileges, particularly a freedom of speech and debate, exemption from arrests, and protection for their estates.

Mr. Speaker also reported that the Governour was pleased to make a speech to the Council and this House, of which Mr. Speaker said he had, to prevent mistake, obtained a copy; which he read to the House, and is as followeth, viz:

Gentlemen of the Council, Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the House of Burgesses:

I have called you together to give you an opportunity of taking the alarming state of the Colony into your consideration, and providing remedies against the evils which are increasing therein; and I am induced to it at this time particularly, as the declaration of the King and Parliament, contained in the joint Address of the Lords and Commons, on the 7th of February last, and His Majesty's Answer, no longer admit of a doubt that your well-founded grievances, properly represented, will meet with that attention and regard which are so justly due to them; so likewise the Resolution of the House of Commons, which followed on the 27th of the same month, will, I trust, have the effect of removing the jealousy which has been the principal source of disquiet and uneasiness in the minds of the people. Therefore I entertain the strongest hopes that nothing will remain, after a just consideration of the nature and tendency of that Resolution, to prevent your seriously exerting yourselves to bring the disputes, which have unhappily raged between the Mother Country and the Colonies, to a good end; to which the step already taken by the House of Commons must be considered as a benevolent, tender, and, I hope, auspicious advance on the part of the Parent State.

It must now be manifest to all dispassionate people, that the Parliament, the high and supreme legislature of the Empire, far from having entertained thoughts so inconsistent with the wisdom and publick virtue which have ever distinguished that august body, of oppressing the people of the Colonies, or of promoting the interest of one at the expense of another part of their fellow-subjects, have only been extending their care, that the whole, in consideration of the enjoyment of equal rights, privileges, and advantages, should be obliged, according to their abilities and situation, to contribute that proportion towards the burdens necessary for the support of their civil Government, and for the common defence, which the subjects of the same State cannot, with any justice, or consistent with their own welfare, refuse to grant; the principle of which having never, I believe, been denied by the people of His Majesty's Dominion of Virginia, I hope you will think it reasonable now to acknowledge the propriety, and to engage to fulfil your part of the obligation it concludes.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House of Burgesses:

No specific sum is demanded of you for these purposes, that (as I think obviously appears) your justice and liberality may be left to their full scope, and that your gift, if you should be induced to offer any, may be, in the completest manner, free. The civil Government of this Country being already provided for, you will only have to declare what proportion, and by what means, you are willing to contribute towards the publick burdens of the State, burdens to which the Mother Country hath cheerfully submitted, to secure the Colonies from the encroachments of a dangerous and vigilant enemy. And I am warranted to say, that as it is never intended to require you to tax yourselves, without Parliament's taxing the subjects of Great Britain on the same occasion, in a far greater proportion, no prudence which you shall think necessary to observe for your security in that particular can be disapproved of.

And I can likewise assure you, that if you should judge fit to adopt the principle and imitate the example of justice, equity, and moderation in your proposals, which actuated the House of Commons in their Resolution, declaring at once what was ultimately expected of you, such a compliance on your part will be considered by His Majesty not only a testimony of your reverence for Parliament, but also a mark of your duty and attachment to your Sovereign, who has no object nearer his heart than the peace and prosperity of his subjects in every part of his Dominions.

I must recommend to you to fall upon means of paying the officers and private men employed in repelling the late invasion and incursions of the Indians, as I make no doubt you will think their services on that occasion deserving of your attention.

Gentlemen of the Council, Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the House of Burgesses:

You may be assured of my cheerful concurrence in all measures, and ready assent to all laws which it may be found expedient to adopt for the present peace, tranquillity, and advantage of the Country; and I hope you will think it necessary to these ends, that the courts of justice should forthwith be opened, in order that the laws may again have their due course.

I cannot conclude without exhorting you, in the most earnest manner, to enter upon the subject-matter now recommended to you, with that patience, calmness, and impartiality, which its great importance requires, and to reflect upon the benefits this Country hath received from the support given to it by the Parent State, which I hope will animate your zeal, now you have it in your power, to restore that harmony and mutual confidence which rendered both Countries so flourishing, and, in short, to pursue your true interest, which will convert our present gloomy apprehensions into prospects of peace, happiness, and lasting security.

Ordered, That the said Speech do lie upon the table, to be perused by the Members of the House.

Ordered, That the said Speech be taken into consideration to-morrow.

Friday, June 2, 15 Geo. III, 1775.

A Message from the Governour, by Mr. Blair:

MR. SPEAKER: I am commanded by his Excellency the Governour to deliver to your House the joint Address of the Lords and Commons, on the 7th of February last, and His Majesty's answer; and also the Resolution of the House of Commons, on the 27th of the same month, referred to in the Speech of his Excellency to the Council and this House.

And he presented the said Papers at the bar.

And the said Papers were read.

The Order of the Day being read,

The Speech of his Excellency the Governour to the Council and this House was again read by Mr. Speaker.

Resolved, That an Address be presented to his Excellency the Governour, to assure his Lordship that we will immediately take into our most serious consideration the several important matters contained in his Excellency's Speech to the Council and this House, and proceed with that coolness and deliberation which ought ever to influence the counsels of a free and loyal people.

Ordered, That a Committee be appointed to draw up an Address to be presented to the Governour upon the said Resolution.

And a Committee was appointed of Mr. Treasurer, Mr. Mercer, Mr. Jefferson, Mr. Henry Lee, Mr. Munford, Mr. Dandridge, Mr. Nelson, Mr. Jones, Mr. Cary, Mr. Francis Lightfoot Lee, Mr. Whitinge, and Mr. Charles Carter of Stafford.

Ordered, That the Governour's Speech to the Council and this House, and the Papers therein referred to, which were ordered to lie upon the table, be referred to the said Committee.

A Journal of the Proceedings of the Congress held at Philadelphia, on the 5th day of September, 1774, was laid before the House.

Ordered, That the said Journal do lie upon the table, to be perused by the Members of the House.

Resolved, That this House will, upon Monday next, resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole House to consider of the said Journal.

The Proceedings of the Convention of Delegates for the Counties and Corporations in the Colony of Virginia, held at Richmond Town, in the County of Henrico, on the 20th day of March, 1775, were laid before the House.

Ordered, That the said Proceedings do lie upon the table, to be perused by the Members of the House.

Resolved, That this House will, upon Monday next, resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole House to consider of the said Proceedings.

Ordered, That leave be given to bring in a Bill for appointing Commissioners to settle the accounts of the Militia lately drawn out into actual service, and for making provision to pay the same; and that Mr. Mercer and Mr. Mason do prepare and bring in the same.

Saturday, June 3, 15 Geo. III, 1775.

Resolved, That an Address be presented to his Excellency the Governour, requesting that his Lordship will be pleased to communicate to this House the best information he has had respecting the number of the Militia lately drawn out into actual service in defence of this Colony, by his Excellency's command, and the probable expense attending the same; and that his Lordship will inform this House what Militia his Excellency has ordered on duty since the conclusion of the late Indian expedition, and for what purposes.

Ordered, That the said Address be presented to his Excellency by Mr. Mercer and Mr. Thomas Walker.

Monday, June 5, 15 Geo. III, 1775.

A Message from the Governour by Mr. Blair:

MR. SPEAKER: I am commanded by the Governour to lay before this House his Excellency's written Message in answer to their Address relative to the Militia lately drawn out into actual service, together with the other Papers which the Message refers to. And he presented the same at the bar; and the Message was read, and is as followeth, viz:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House of Burgesses:

In answer to a Resolution of your House, brought to me by two of your members, that an Address be presented to me requesting me to communicate to you the best information I have had respecting the number of the Militia lately drawn out into actual service in defence of this Colony by my command, and the probable expense attending the same; and that I inform you what Militia I have ordered on duty since the conclusion of the late Indian expedition, and for what purposes: I can only from recollection (not having been furnished with exact returns) acquaint you that the body of militia which Colonel Andrew Lewis conducted, and that with which I marched in person, amounted together to about three thousand men, officers included; but I refer you to the Lieutenants of the Counties from whence the Militia were draughted for that service, to the Commanding Officers of the different Corps, and to the Captains under them, from the returns and lists of whose respective companies you will obtain the information in regard of number and from that of expense, which you require, in the best and most particular manner.

With respect to what Militia have been ordered on duty since the conclusion of the Indian expedition: it was thought requisite to continue a body of one hundred men at a temporary fort near the mouth of the Great Kenhawa, as well for taking care of the men who had been wounded in the action between Colonel Andrew Lewis's division and the Indians, as for securing that part of the back country from the attempts of straggling parties of Indians, who might not be apprised of the peace concluded, or others of the tribes which had not joined in it. It was likewise necessary to keep up a small body of men at Fort Dunmore, in like manner for the security of the country on that side, and also for guarding twelve Indian prisoners belonging to the Mingo tribe, which had not surrendered or acceded to the peace concluded only with the Shawanese; and seventy-five men were employed at this place for these purposes. Twenty-five men were likewise left at Fort Fincastle, as a post of communication between the two others; and all together for the further purpose of forming a chain on the back of the settlers, to observe the Indians until we should have good reason to believe nothing more was apprehended from them; which, as soon as I received favourable accounts of, I ordered the several posts to be evacuated, and the men to be discharged.

I have ordered my letters to be laid before you for your further information, which contain all the orders I gave for the embodying and drawing out the Militia upon the occasion of the Indian disturbances; and likewise the substance of the peace agreed to between me and the Indians, which has not been formally ratified, that having been deferred to a meeting intended to be held at Fort Dunmore this spring, where all the Ohio Indians, for the greater solemnity, were to be present, but which I have not been able to find time to proceed to.

If there be any thing further which the House shall require to be informed of, I shall be ready to give them all the satisfaction in my power.

DUNMORE.

Ordered, That the said Message, and the Papers therein referred to, do lie upon the table, to be perused by the Members of the House.

Mr. Treasurer reported from the Committee appointed to draw up an Address to be presented to the Governour, that the Committee had drawn up an Address accordingly, which they had directed him to report to the House; and he read the same in his place, and afterwards delivered it in at the Clerk's table, where the same was read, and is as followeth, viz:

MY LORD: We, His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Burgesses of Virginia, now met in General Assembly, take this opportunity, which your Excellency hath given us, to express our great concern at the alarming situation of our Country and those evils brought upon us by a departure of His Majesty's Ministers from that wise system of administration under the influence of which the Colonies of North America had so long and happily flourished.

However strangely this Country may have been misrepresented, we do solemnly avow the firmest and most unshaken attachment to our most gracious Sovereign and his Government, as founded on the laws and principles of our excellent Constitution, and we shall think ourselves happy in giving His Majesty every future testimony of our loyalty and affection.

We assure your Lordship that we will pursue the most speedy measures for defraying the expenses of the late military expedition against the Indians. That proper provision has not yet been made for those gallant officers and soldiers who so nobly exposed their lives in defence of this Country, cannot be justly imputed to any delay or neglect on our part, this being the first opportunity your Lordship hath been pleased to afford us of paying a proper attention to their signal services and giving them their due reward.

The occlusion of our Courts of justice can only be ascribed to a combination of untoward and distressing incidents, which we have long and deeply lamented. These Courts, my Lord, were established by different Acts of our General Assembly. In order to enable the officers of justice to receive such fees as were adequate to their services, our ancestors judged it necessary to settle and limit them by an express act of their Legislature. This law had existed and been continued with various amendments, such as the fluctuation of affairs made necessary, through a long tract of time. The late House of Burgesses, in May, 1774, finding that the Fee-Bill had expired just before they were convened, and that other most valuable acts were near expiring, proceeded to the continuance and revival of them; but their endeavours to discharge these and other important duties to their Country were arrested and cut short by a sudden and unexpected dissolution of the Assembly. Since this, my Lord, our situation has undergone a total change. For just and well known reasons, this Country, as well as our sister Colonies, have been driven to the necessity of suspending their commerce with Great Britain, Ireland, and the West-India Islands. There still, however, remained within the line of former parliamentary regulations, several other valuable branches of export to different parts of the world, which we well hoped would have enabled the inhabitants of this Country to discharge their debts more expeditiously than they could have done by continuing their usual exports and exceeding imports to and from Great Britain, so that we are convinced their creditors could have had no reasonable cause of complaint. But we have now, my Lord, received information, too well grounded it is to be feared, that these resources are to be entirely shut up by an act of the British Parliament, cutting off all our trade with all other parts of the whole universe, except the Islands of Great Britain, Ireland, and the West-Indies.

Money, my Lord, is not a plant of the native growth of this Country. If the people are totally restrained by the hand of power from sending such produce of their estates as they choose, and it is most for their general interest to make, to foreign markets, in which alone it will command a tolerable price, they are precluded from the necessary proper means of discharging their debts. In such a situation we presume it may be submitted to your Lordship's judgment, how far it would be consistent with prudence and justice, or even humanity, for us to interpose legislative authority, in order to compel the Magistrates to open the courts of civil jurisdiction, and thereby expose the people to cruel exactions; we rather think it will be better to await the time when the returning wisdom and justice of Great Britain may put it in our power to restore all things to that channel in which they formerly flowed to her aggrandizement, the prosperity and happiness of the whole Empire.

We will, my Lord, proceed forthwith to consider farther the state of the Country, the Address of the Lords and Commons, and His Majesty's answer, together with the Resolution of the House of Commons, which you have laid before us; this we will endeavour to do with that calmness and impartiality which their great importance may require; and we sincerely hope, as your Lordship conceives, that we may find the propositions now made to us a benevolent, tender, and auspicious advance on the part of the Parent State towards bringing to a fortunate, and the most desirable issue, all those disputes and dissensions which have so unhappily prevailed.

The said Address being read a second time,

Resolved nemine contradicente, That the House doth agree with the Committee in the said Address to be presented to the Governour.

Resolved, That the said Address be presented to his Excellency by the whole House.

Ordered, That the Gentlemen who drew up the said Address do wait upon the Governour, to know his pleasure when this House shall attend his Excellency to present their Address.

Resolved, That the Governour's Speech be taken into consideration to-morrow.

Resolved, That this House will, to-morrow, resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole House to take into consideration the Governour's Speech.

Ordered, That a Committee be appointed to inspect the publick Magazine in this City, and inquire into the Stores belonging to the same, and make report thereof to the House.

And a Committee was appointed of Mr. Mercer, Mr. Treasurer, Mr. Jefferson, Mr. Henry Lee, Mr. Munford, Mr. Dandridge, Mr. Nelson, Mr. Jones, Mr. Cary, Mr. Francis Lightfoot Lee, Mr. Whitinge, Mr. Charles Carter of Stafford, Mr. Braxton, Mr. Zane, Mr. Page, Mr. Carrington, Mr. Digges, Mr. Banister, Mr. Thomas Walker, Mr. Travis and Mr. Norvell. And they are to have power to send for Persons, Papers and Records.

A Petition of the Presbytery of Hanover, in behalf of themselves and all the Presbyterians in Virginia, and of all Protestant Dissenters elsewhere, was presented to the House and read; setting forth, that in or about the year 1738 many thousand Presbyterian families, relying upon the assurances of Government that they should enjoy the free exercise of their religion, removed from the Northern Colonies and settled in the Frontiers of this, forming a barrier for the lower parts thereof; and taking notice of a bill for granting a toleration to His Majesty's dissenting Protestant subjects, which, in the year 1772, was presented to the House, and afterwards ordered to be printed; and pointing out several objections thereunto; and praying that no bill may pass into a law but such as will secure to the Petitioners equal liberties and advantages with their fellow-subjects.

Ordered, That the said Petition do lie upon the table.

Resolved, That an Address be presented to his Excellency the Governour, desiring that he will be pleased to direct the proper officer to lay before this House the amount of the tonnage of one shilling and three pence sterling, imposed on Ships and Vessels trading to this Colony, from the year 1762.

Ordered, That the said Address be presented to his Excellency by Mr. Treasurer, Mr. Mercer and Mr. Henry Lee.

The Order of the Day being read, for the House to resolve itself into a Committee of the whole House, to consider of the Journal of the proceedings of the Congress held at Philadelphia, on the fifth day of September, 1774, The House resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Cary took the chair of the Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

Mr. Cary reported from the Committee, that they had come to several Resolutions, which they had directed him to report when the House will please to receive the same.

Ordered, That the Report be now received.

Mr. Cary accordingly reported from the said Committee the Resolutions which they had directed him to report to the House; which he read in his place, and afterwards delivered in at the Clerk's table; where the same were read, and are as followeth, viz:

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee that the House be moved to come to the following Resolution:

Resolved, That this House doth entirely and cordially approve the Proceedings and Resolutions of the American Continental Congress; and that they consider this whole Continent as under the highest obligations to that very respectable body, for the wisdom of their counsels, and their unremitting endeavours to maintain and preserve inviolate the just rights and liberties of His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects in America.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee that the House be moved to come to the following Resolution:

Resolved, That the warmest thanks of this House, and all the inhabitants of this Colony whom they represent, are particularly due, and that this just tribute of applause be presented to the Honourable Peyton Randolph, Esquire, Richard Henry Lee, George Washington, Patrick Henry, Junior, Richard Bland, Benjamin Harrison, and Edmund Pendleton, Esquires, the worthy Delegates deputed to represent this Colony in General Congress at Philadelphia, the fifth day of September last, for their cheerful undertaking and faithful discharge of the very important trust reposed in them.

The said Resolutions being severally read a second time, were, upon the question severally put thereupon, agreed to by the House.

Resolved nemine contradicente, That this House doth entirely and cordially approve the Proceedings and Resolutions of the American Continental Congress; and that they consider this whole Continent as under the highest obligations to that very respectable body for the wisdom of their counsels, and their unremitting endeavours to maintain and preserve inviolate the just rights and liberties of His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects in America.

The other Order of the Day being read,

The House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House to consider of the proceedings of the Convention of Delegates for the Counties and Corporations in the Colony of Virginia, held at Richmond Town, in the County of Henrico, on the twentieth day of March, 1775.

Mr. Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Cary took the chair of the Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

Mr. Cary reported from the Committee that they had come to a Resolution, which they had directed him to report when the House will please to receive the same.

Ordered, That the Report be now received.

Mr. Cary accordingly reported from the said Committee, the Resolution, which they had directed him to report to the House; which he read in his place, and afterwards delivered in at the Clerk's table, where the same was read, and is as followeth, viz:

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee that the House be moved to come to the following Resolution:

Resolved, That this House doth entirely approve the Proceedings and Resolutions of the Convention of Delegates for the Counties and Corporations in the Colony of Virginia, held at Richmond Town, in the County of Henrico, on the twentieth day of March, 1775; and that it be recommended to all the good people of this Colony strictly to conform to and observe the same.

The said Resolution being read a second time, was, upon the question put thereupon, agreed to by the House.

Address of the Council to the Governour.

To His Excellency the Right Honourable JOHN Earl of DUNMORE, His Majesty's Lieutenant and Governour-General of the Colony and Dominion of VIRGINIA, and Vice-Admiral of the same:

The humble Address of the Council:

MY LORD: We, His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Council of Virginia, now met in General Assembly, beg leave to present our humble thanks to your Excellency for your Speech at the opening of the Session, and for giving us an opportunity to take the present alarming state of this Colony into our consideration, and provide remedies against the increasing evils therein. Your doing this so seasonably, and as soon as you were properly apprised of what you thought would lay a firm foundation for our proceeding with success in so desirable a work, we cannot but regard as a proof of your attachment to the welfare of this Dominion.

As this Country hath, for many years past, made ample provision for the civil Government thereof, we have only to declare our willingness to concur with the other branch of the Legislature in such proportion and in such means as they shall be willing to contribute towards the publick burdens of the State.

The peace and good order of every Country depending on the regular administration of justice, we are desirous that the Courts should be forthwith opened, and that the laws may again have their due course; as such a step will be instrumental in removing mischiefs of the greatest magnitude and most destructive tendency.

To which His Excellency was pleased to return the following Answer.

GENTLEMEN: Your willingness to concur in measures which, if adopted, will entirely compose the destructive differences between this Country and Great Britain, and restore the order and tranquillity of the Colony, cannot but give His Majesty the most sensible pleasure, as the opportunity of communicating to him such a proof of the duty and loyalty of this branch of the Legislature of Virginia affords me the greatest satisfaction.

Tuesday, June 6, 15 Geo. III, 1775.

A Message from the Governour by Mr. Blair:

MR. SPEAKER: I have received the Governour's commands to lay before this House a written Message from his Excellency, relative to the publick Magazine, together with a paper therein referred to. And he presented the same at the bar, and the Message was read, and is as followeth, viz:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House of Burgesses:

I have received a Paper, without date or signature, desiring I would direct the keeper of the Magazine to give access to some persons, (I know not whom, the paper not saying who they are,) appointed by the House of Burgesses a Committee to examine into the state of the publick Magazine. I send the said paper for the inspection of the House, and beg to be informed whether the persons there alluded to are authorized, as therein alleged, to desire access to the Magazine.

DUNMORE.

The Paper referred to in the Message:

"MY LORD: We, being appointed by the House of Burgesses a Committee to examine into the state of the publick Magazine, wait upon your Lordship to desire that you will be pleased to direct the keeper thereof to give us access thereto, that we may be able to make a proper and full report to the House.

"Before this Resolution was known to the people, we understand that sundry persons, unknown to us, broke open the Magazine, and took out several arms; but we assure your Lordship, that, so soon as this transaction was known to the House, some of the members interposed, and prevailed on such as were to be found, to return what they had taken, and we have hopes that the rest may yet be reclaimed, which we shall not neglect our endeavours to effect."

Ordered, That the gentlemen who were appointed to inspect the publick Magazine in this City, and inquire into the Stores belonging to the same, do prepare an Answer to the said Message, and that they withdraw immediately.

Ordered, That the said Message, and the Paper therein referred to, be referred to the said Committee.

Mr. Mercer reported from the Committee appointed to prepare an answer to the Governour's Message, that the Committee had prepared an Address accordingly, which they had directed him to report to the House; and he read the same in his place, and afterwards delivered it in at the Clerk's table, where the same was read, and is as followeth, viz:

MY LORD: We, His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Burgesses of Virginia, having received your Lordship's written message respecting the proceedings of the Committee appointed to examine the Magazine, have taken the same under our consideration. The House, yesterday, as what they thought a proper foundation of inquiry into the many disturbances which had arisen in the Country, appointed Mr. Mercer, Mr. Treasurer, Mr. Jefferson, Mr. Henry Lee, Mr. Munford, Mr. Dandridge, Mr. Nelson, Mr. Jones, Mr. Carey, Mr. Francis Lightfoot Lee, Mr. Whiting, Mr. Charles Carter of Stafford, Mr. Braxton, Mr. Zane, Mr. Page, Mr. Carrington, Mr. Digges, Mr. Banister, Mr. Thomas Walker, Mr. Travis, and Mr. Norvell, twenty-one of their members, to inquire into the state of the publick magazine. Upon receipt of your Excellency's message, they examined the steps their Committee had taken, and received the following report: That the Committee having convened, and judging it decent and proper, in the first place, waited on your Excellency, who by law hath the appointment of the keeper of the magazine, to request that you would be pleased to direct him to give them access thereto; that finding some irregularities had been committed, they also thought it prudent to mention them to your Excellency, and inform you of their endeavours to have the arms, which had been taken out of the magazine, immediately restored; that, to avoid mistakes, they judged it most proper to reduce the intended application to writing; that they then in a body, and in the most respectful manner waited on your Excellency, and by their Chairman delivered their request verbally, leaving the written paper with your Lordship for your better information; that your Excellency was pleased to receive it, and promised to furnish them with the key of the magazine as soon as you could procure it; that the Committee not hearing from your Lordship, their Chairman was directed to wait on you this morning, and was referred for answer to a message you intended to send to the House.

We hope that your Lordship, upon revising these proceedings, will change your present sentiments, and think with us, that there was no impropriety in the conduct of the Committee. Their application to your Excellency, the House considers as proper and decent. The gentlemen who composed the Committee must have been all known to you; and had you conceived the least impropriety in their procedure, it would have been kind in your Lordship to have pointed it out to them. At the time this Committee waited upon your Lordship, another Committee attended, to inform you that this House had agreed to an address in answer to your Lordship's speech; this message was delivered by one Committee, who, we presume, were not better known to your Lordship than the members of the other. Though there was not an express order of the House that the Committee should apply to your Lordship for the purpose they did, yet we conceive that such application was necessarily incident to the due execution of the general order of the House to inquire into the state of the magazine.

We feel very sensibly, my Lord, the weight of the insinuation in your message; but willing, upon all occasions, and especially at this unhappy juncture, to avoid every kind of controversy, we shall direct that your Excellency be waited upon with the order of yesterday, before referred to; and should any doubts still remain, we will endeavour to remove them, on their being pointed out to us.

The said Answer being read a second time,

Resolved, That the House doth agree with the Committee in the said Answer.

Resolved, That the gentlemen who prepared the said Answer do wait upon his Excellency with the same.

A Message from the Governour by Mr. Blair:

MR. SPEAKER: I have received the Governour's commands to lay before this House a written Message from his Excellency, relative to the Gunpowder which has been removed from the publick Magazine by his Excellency's order. And he presented the same at the Bar, and the same was read, and is as followeth, viz:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House of Burgesses:

The removing, by my order, of fifteen half-barrels of the King's Powder, received from the Rippon, man-of-war, from the publick magazine, has, I find, given great uneasiness to the people. I was influenced in this by the best motives; and as I have once ventured, and, if occasion offered, should again venture my life in the service of this Country, I had hoped the most favourable construction would have been put upon my conduct. The magazine was represented to me as a very insecure depository, and, from experience, I find it so; * all the arms which have been kept there being now taken away: arms not purchased at the expense of this Colony, but sent here by His Majesty, from his Office of Ordnance, of which they bear the mark. But in confidence that you are now met to remove every grievance, and by your wisdom to establish the publick tranquillity on a sure foundation, I do promise you, that as soon as I see the magazine in a proper state for securing the Powder and other publick stores, I will replace it, and at all times be ready, most willingly, to do every thing my poor abilities are capable of for the benefit of this Colony, in which I have lived, till of late, in the greatest happiness.

DUNMORE.

Resolved, That the said Message be taken into consideration to-morrow.

The other Order of the Day being read:

Resolved, That this House will, to-morrow, resolve itself into a Committee of the whole House, to take into consideration the Governour's Speech.

A Message from the Council by Mr. Blair:

MR. SPEAKER: The Council have directed me to lay before this House a copy of their proceedings upon a report which had prevailed, relative to the Marines and Sailors belonging to His Majesty's Ship the Fowey. And he presented the same at the bar.

And then the Messenger withdrew.

The said copy of the Council's Proceedings was read, and is as followeth, viz:

It having been reported that the Marines and Sailors

* In the night of Saturday, the third instant, some young men got into the publick magazine in this City, intending to furnish themselves with arms, but were presently after surprised by the report of a gun, which was so artfully placed (said to be contrived by Lord Dunmore) that upon touching a string which was in their way, it went off, and wounded three persons, but not mortally: one of them is terribly hurt by several small balls that entered his arm and shoulder; another, by the loss of two fingers of his right hand, rendered incapable of following his profession for subsistence; the other wounded very slightly. There were two guns prepared for this horrible purpose, one of which was brought out next morning, and found to be double charged. On Monday a Committee was appointed by the Honourable House of Burgesses to examine the state of the magazine, who have placed a guard over it till measures shall be concerted for its better security.

belonging to His Majesty's Ship the Fowey, were expected to be at the Palace this day, by the Governour's order, and that the people of the City of Williamsburgh, and Counties adjoining, were greatly alarmed thereat, and were determined to attack the said Marines and Sailors if they should come, it was ordered that Richard Corbin and Robert Carter, Esquires, wait on his Excellency, in the name of the Council, to desire he would be pleased to give orders for stopping them, and thereby prevent the great calamity which was otherwise likely to ensue. Richard Corbin, Esquire, reported, that the gentlemen appointed had, according to order, waited on the Governour, who appeared to be astonished at the report which had prevailed; assured them that he had given no orders for the Marines or Sailors, nor did he know of its being intended by any body to send them to the Palace, and that in case of any such design he would send to prevent it.

Ordered, That the thanks of this House be given to the Council, for laying a copy of their Proceedings before the House upon the report relative to the Marines and Sailors belonging to His Majesty's Ship the Fowey, and that Mr. Cary, and Mr. Charles Carter of Lancaster, do acquaint the Council therewith.

Ordered, That Captain James Innis, of the Volunteer Company of the City of Williamsburgh, be desired to employ any number of men that he shall think sufficient, to guard the publick Magazine in this City, until such time as the House shall direct the guard to be discontinued, and that Mr. Braxton do acquaint him therewith.

Wednesday, June 7, 15 Geo. III, 1775.

The Order of the Day being read, for taking into consideration the Governour's written Message, relative to the Gunpowder which has been removed from the publick Magazine by his Excellency's order,

The said Message was again read.

Resolved, That an Address be presented to his Excellency the Governour, to express to his Lordship our thanks for his kind tender of services in behalf of this Colony, and for restoring publick tranquillity on a sure and firm foundation; to assure his Lordship that we have the highest sense of his services on the late Indian expedition, and sincerely lament that any event should suspend the happiness which his Lordship hath enjoyed among us; that, wishing a restoration of peace and harmony, we had directed an inquiry into the causes of the late great uneasiness given to the people, which we shall proceed on with that attention recommended by his Lordship, and apply, on our parts, remedies the best our abilities can suggest.

Ordered, That a Committee be appointed to draw up an Address, to be presented to the Governour upon the said Resolution.

And a Committee was appointed, of Mr. Mercer, Mr. Treasurer, Mr. Cary, Mr. Dandridge, Mr. Henry Lee, and Mr. Munford.

Ordered, That the Governour's Message be referred to the said Committee.

Ordered, That the other Order of the Day, for the House to resolve itself into a Committee of the whole House to take into consideration the Governour's Speech, be now read.

And the said Order being read accordingly,

Ordered, That the Governour's Speech, and the joint Address of the Lords and Commons, on the seventh of February last, and His Majesty's Answer, and also the Resolution of the House of Commons of the twenty-seventh of the same month, referred to in the said Speech, which, upon Friday last, were ordered to lie on the table, be referred to the said Committee.

Then the House resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Cary took the chair of the Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

Mr. Cary reported from the Committee that they had made some progress in the matter to them referred, and that he was directed by the Committee to move that they may have leave to sit again.

Resolved, That this House will, to-morrow, resolve itself into a Committee of the whole House, to take into their further consideration the Governour's Speech.

A Message from the Governour by Mr. Blair :

MR. SPEAKER: I am commanded by the Governour to lay before this House his Excellency's written Message in answer to your Address of this day. And he presented the same at the bar; and the said Message was read, and is as followeth, viz :

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House of Burgesses :

In answer to your address of this day, I assure the House, that my message, to which it alluded, was intended for proper information only, which I thought necessary; because as I would by no means infringe any rule of, or omit any ceremony due to your House, I could not expect but to be treated with the same attention; and to give you a proof of my desire to avoid every kind of controversy, I have ordered the keys of the Magazine to be delivered to the Committee appointed by your order of Monday.

DUNMORE.

Mr. Treasurer reported to the House that the Governour having been waited on, pursuant to the order of Monday last, to know his pleasure when he would be attended by this House, had been pleased to appoint to be attended to-morrow, at one of the clock in the afternoon, in the Council Chamber.

Mr. Treasurer reported to the House that their Address to the Governour of Monday last, desiring that he will be pleased to direct the proper officer to lay before this House the amount of tonnage of one shilling and three pence sterling, imposed on ships and vessels trading to this Colony from the year 1762, had been presented to his Excellency, and that he had directed him to acquaint the House that he would send an answer thereto by a messenger.

A Petition of William Fleming, of the County of Botetourt, was presented to the House and read, setting forth that, in the year 1755, the petitioner entered into the service of this Colony, and continued therein until the end of the war, in 1763, when the Virginia Regiment was disbanded; after which he supported himself and his family by the practice of surgery, until he was called out on duty the last year, under the command of Col. Andrew Lewis, Lieutenant of the said County, and marched, with the Troops there raised, against the Indian enemy on the frontiers, where, in an engagement the tenth day of October, the Petitioner was wounded in the breast and left arm, so that he is unable to exercise his profession of a Surgeon; therefore praying the House to take his case into consideration and grant him relief.

Ordered, That the said Petition be referred to the consideration of the Committee of Publick Claims, and that they do examine the matter thereof, and report the same, with their opinion thereupon, to the House.

Thursday, June 8, 15 Geo. III, 1775.

Mr. Cary reported from the Committee of Publick Claims, to whom the Petition of Abram Field, a soldier wounded in the late engagement with the Indians, was referred, that the Committee had examined the matter of the said Petition, and had come to a Resolution thereupon, which they had directed him to report to the House; and he read the Report in his place, and afterwards delivered it in at the Clerk's table, where the Resolution of the Committee was read, and is as followeth, viz :

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee that the said Petition is reasonable, and that the Petitioner ought to be allowed the sum of Twenty Pounds for his present relief, and the further sum of Ten Pounds per annum during his life, as a recompense for the wound he received in the defence of this Colony.

The said Resolution being read a second time, was, upon the question put thereupon, agreed to by the House.

Resolved, That the sum of Twenty Pounds be paid to Abram Field, a Soldier wounded in the late Indian expedition, and that the sum of Ten Pounds per annum be paid to him during his life.

Ordered, That Mr. Cary do carry the Resolution to the Council, and desire their concurrence.

The Order of the Day being read,

Resolved, That this House will, to-morrow, take into their further consideration the Governour's Speech.

A Message from the Council by Mr. Blair :

MR. SPEAKER: I am commanded by the Council to deliver to your House a written Message from his Excellency the Governour, which was by him communicated to the Council, to be by them sent to you; and he presented the same at the bar.

And then the Messenger withdrew.

The written Message from his Excellency was read, and is as followeth, viz :

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House of Burgesses :

Being now fully persuaded that my person and those of my family likewise, are in constant danger of falling sacrifices to the blind and unmeasurable fury which has so unaccountably seized upon the minds and understanding of great numbers of the people, and apprehending that at length some among them may work themselves up to that pitch of daringness and atrociousness as to fall upon me in the defenceless state in which they know I am in the City of Williamsburgh, and perpetrate acts that would plunge this Country into the most horrid calamities, and render the breach with the Mother Country irreparable, I have thought it prudent for myself, and serviceable for the Country, that I remove to a place of safety; conformable to which I have fixed my residence for the present on board His Majesty's Ship the Fowey, lying at York.

It is not my intention to give the least interruption to the sitting of the Assembly, but I hope they will proceed in the great business which they have before them with diligence and effect. I shall take care to make the access to me so easy and safe, that the necessary communication between me and the House may be attended with the least inconvenience possible: and I thought it would be more agreeable to the House to send to me, from time to time, some of their members, as occasion shall require, than to put all to the trouble of moving, to be near me.

I hope the House will see my proceedings on this occasion as they were really meant; and I beg them to be assured that I shall now be as ready to attend to all the duties of my office as I was before, and that I am perfectly disposed to contribute all in my power, if opportunity be given me, to restore that harmony, the interruption of which is likely to cost so dear to the repose, as well as to the comforts of every individual.

DUNMORE.

Ordered, That the said Message be referred to the consideration of a Committee of the whole House.

Resolved, That this House will now resolve itself into a Committee of the whole House, to consider of the said Message.

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Cary took the chair of the Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

Mr. Cary reported from the Committee that they had come to a Resolution, which they had directed him to report to the House when the House will please to receive the same.

Ordered, That the Report be now received.

Mr. Cary accordingly reported the Resolution which the Committee had directed him to report to the House; which he read in his place, and afterwards delivered in at the Clerk's table, where the same was read, and is as followeth, viz :

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee that an Address be presented to his Excellency the Governour, in answer to his written Message of this day, to represent to his Lordship the probable tendency of his removal from the Palace, and the propriety of his return: to assure his Excellency that we view with horror every design that may be meditated against the person of his Lordship, his very amiable lady or family; promising one cheerful concurrence in any proper measure for their future safety.

The said Resolution being read a second time, was, upon the question put thereupon, agreed to by the House.

Ordered, That a Committee be appointed to draw up an Address to be presented to the Governour upon the said Resolution.

And a Committee was appointed of Mr. Treasurer, Mr. Mercer, Mr. Jones, Mr. Munford, Mr. Henry Lee, Mr.

Dandridge, Mr. Banister, and Mr. Francis Lightfoot Lee, and they are to withdraw immediately.

Ordered, That the said written Message be referred to the said Committee.

Mr. Treasurer reported from the Committee that they had drawn up an Address accordingly, which they had directed him to report to the House; and he read the same in his place, and afterwards delivered it in at the Clerk's table, where the same was read, and is as followeth, viz:

MY LORD: We, His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Council and the Burgesses of Virginia, assure your Excellency, that it is with the greatest concern we find that your Lordship, by your messages to them, entertains any suspicions of the personal security of yourself or family, as we can by no means suppose any of His Majesty's subjects in this Colony would meditate a crime so horrid and atrocious as your Lordship seems to apprehend. We are fearful the step your Lordship hath taken, in removing from the Seat of Government, may conduce to a continuance of great uneasiness, which hath of late so unhappily prevailed in this Country. We cannot but express our concern that your Lordship did not think proper to communicate the ground of your uneasiness to us, as from our zeal and attachment to the preservation of order and good government, we should have judged it our indispensable duty to have endeavoured to remove every cause of inquietude. In proof of the great respect we shall ever pay to the representative of our most gracious Sovereign, and to remove, to the utmost of our power, your Lordship's apprehensions, we assure your Lordship that we will cheerfully concur in any measure that may be proposed proper for the security of yourself and family. It is with much anxiety we consider the very disagreeable situation of your Lordship's most amiable lady and family, and should think ourselves happy in being able to restore their perfect tranquillity, by removing all their fears.

We cannot, my Lord, but approve your intention of not giving the least interruption to the important affairs on which we are now assembled; and it is with much pleasure we receive your Lordship's assurance of your disposition to establish that harmony; so essential to the repose and comfort of every individual; but we must beg leave to observe to your Lordship how impracticable it will be to carry on the business of the session, with any tolerable degree of propriety, or with that despatch the advanced season of the year requires, whilst your Lordship is so far removed from us, and so inconveniently situated. We therefore earnestly entreat your Lordship, that you will be pleased to return with your lady and family to the Palace, which we are persuaded will give the greatest satisfaction, and be the most likely means of quieting the minds of the people.

The said Address being read a second time,

Resolved, That the House doth agree with the Committee in the said Address to be presented to the Governour.

Ordered, That the gentlemen who drew up the said Address do go to the Council, and acquaint them that this House have agreed to an Address to the Governour, to which they desire the concurrence of the Council.

A Message from the Council by Mr. Blair:

MR. SPEAKER: The Council have agreed to join with this House in their Address to the Governour; and, in consequence thereof, have made the necessary amendments, and have appointed two of their Members, to join with such of the Members of this House as may be appointed, to present the same to his Excellency.

Ordered, That the said Address be presented to his Excellency by Mr. Cary, Mr. Wood, Mr. Attorney General, and Mr. Braxton.

Friday, June 9, 15 Geo. III, 1775.

The Order of the Day being read, for the House to resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole House, to take into their further consideration the Governour's Speech,

The House resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Cary took the chair of the Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

Mr. Cary reported from the Committee, that they had made a further progress in the matters referred to them, and that the Committee had directed him to move that they may have leave to sit again.

Resolved, That this House will to-morrow resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole House, to take into their further consideration the Governour's Speech.

Mr. Cary reported that two of His Majesty's Council and the Members appointed by this House had, pursuant to the order of yesterday, presented to his Excellency the Governour, on board His Majesty's ship the Fowey, the Address of the Council and this House; and that he was pleased to say that, as the subject of their Address was of the utmost importance to the Colony, and to himself and his family, he would take time to consider of it, and would return an answer in writing after he had maturely deliberated upon its contents.

Saturday, June 10, 15 Geo. III, 1775.

The House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House, to take into their further consideration the Governour's Speech.

Mr. Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Cary took the chair of the Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

Mr. Cary reported from the Committee, that they had gone through the matter to them referred, and had come to a Resolution, which they had directed him to report when the House will please to receive the same.

Ordered, That the Report be now received.

Mr. Cary accordingly reported from the said Committee the Resolution, which the Committee had directed him to report to the House; which he read in his place, and afterwards delivered in at the Clerk's table; where the same was read, and is as followeth, viz:

*Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that an Address be presented to his Excellency the Governour, to inform him that we have taken into our consideration the joint Address of the two Houses of Parliament, His Majesty's Answer, and the Resolution of the Commons, which his Lordship has been pleased to lay before us. That wishing nothing so sincerely as the perpetual continuance of that brotherly love which we bear to our fellow-subjects of Great Britain, and still continuing to hope and believe that they do not approve the measures which have so long oppressed their brethren in America, we were pleased to receive his Lordship's notification that a benevolent tender had at length been made by the British House of Commons towards bringing to a good end our unhappy disputes with the Mother Country; that next to the possession of liberty, we should consider such reconciliation the greatest of all human blessings. With these dispositions we entered into consideration of that Resolution; we examined it minutely; we viewed it in every point of light in which we were able to place it; and, with pain and disappointment, we must ultimately declare it only changes the form of oppression, without lightening its burden. That we cannot close with the terms of that Resolution for these reasons:*

Because the British Parliament has no right to intermeddle with the support of Civil Government in the Colonies. For us, not for them, has Government been instituted here. Agreeable to our ideas, provision has been made for such officers as we think necessary for the administration of publick affairs; and we cannot conceive that any other legislature has a right to prescribe either the number or pecuniary appointments of our offices. As a proof that the claim of Parliament to interfere in the necessary provision for the support of civil government is novel and of a late date, we take leave to refer to an act of our Assembly, passed so long since as the thirty-second year of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled "An Act for raising a publick revenue, and for better support of the Government of this His Majesty's Colony of Virginia." This act was brought over by Lord Culpepper, then Governour, under the great seal of England, and was enacted in the name of the "King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the consent of the General Assembly."

Because, to render perpetual our exemption from an unjust taxation, we must saddle ourselves with a perpetual tax, adequate to the expectations, and subject to the disposal of Parliament alone: whereas, we have a right to give our money, as the Parliament does theirs, without coercion, from time to time, as "publick exigences may require." We conceive that we alone are the judges of the condition, circumstances, and situation of our people, as the Parliament are of theirs. It is not merely the mode of raising, but the freedom of granting our money, for which we have contended. Without this we possess no check on the royal prerogative; and what must be much lamented by dutiful and loyal subjects, we should be stripped of the only means, as well of recommending this country to the favour of our most gracious Sovereign, as of strengthening those bands of amity with our fellow-subjects, which we would wish to remain indissoluble.

Because, on our undertaking to grant money as is proposed, the Commons only resolve to forbear levying pecuniary taxes on us, still leaving unrepealed their several acts passed for the purposes of restraining the Trade and altering the form of Government of the Eastern Colonies; extending the boundaries and changing the Government and Religion of Quebeck; enlarging the jurisdiction of the Courts of Admiralty, and taking from us the right of Trial by Jury; and transporting us into other Countries to be tried for criminal offences. Standing Armies, too, are still to be kept among us; and the other numerous grievances of which ourselves and sister Colonies, separately and by our Representatives in General Congress, have so often complained, are still to continue without redress.

Because, at the very time of requiring from us grants of money, they are making disposition to invade us with large armaments by sea and land, which is a style of asking gifts not reconcilable to our freedom. They are also proceeding to a repetition of injury, by passing Acts for restraining the Commerce and Fisheries of the Provinces of New-England, and for prohibiting the Trade of the other Colonies with all parts of the world, except the Islands of Great Britain, Ireland, and the West-Indies. This seems to bespeak no intention to discontinue the exercise of this usurped power over us in future.

Because, on our agreeing to contribute our proportion towards the common defence, they do not propose to lay open to us a free trade with all the world: whereas, to us it appears just, that those who bear equally the burdens of Government, should equally participate of its benefits. Either be content with the monopoly of our trade, which brings greater loss to us and benefit to them than the amount of our proportional contributions to the common defence; or, if the latter be preferred, relinquish the former, and do not propose, by holding both, to exact from us double contributions. Yet we would remind Government, that on former emergencies, when called upon as a free people, however cramped by this monopoly in our resources of wealth, we have liberally contributed to the common defence. Be assured, then, that we shall be as generous in future as in past times, disdaining the shackles of proportion when called to our free station in the general system of the Empire.

Because the proposition now made to us involves the interest of all the other Colonies. We are now represented in General Congress by members approved by this House, where our former union, it is hoped, will be so strongly cemented, that no partial application can produce the slightest departure from the common cause. We consider ourselves as bound in honour, as well as interest, to share one general fate with our sister Colonies, and should hold ourselves base deserters of that union to which we have acceded, were we to agree on any measures distinct and apart from them.

To observe that there was, indeed, a plan of accommodation offered in Parliament, which, though not entirely equal to the terms we had a right to ask, yet differed but in few points from what the General Congress had held out. Had Parliament been disposed sincerely, as we are, to bring about a reconciliation, reasonable men had hoped that by meeting us on this ground, something might have been done. Lord Chatham's bill, on the one part, and the terms of the Congress on the other, would have formed a basis for negotiation, which a spirit of accommodation on both sides might, perhaps, have reconciled. It came recommended, too, from one whose successful experience in the art of Government should have insured to it some attention from those to whom it was tendered. He had shown to the world, that Great Britain, with her Colonies, united firmly under a just and honest Government, formed a power which might bid defiance to the most potent enemies. With a change of Ministers, however, a total change of measures took place: the component parts of the Empire have, from that moment, been falling asunder, and a total annihilation of its weight in the political scale of the world seems justly to be apprehended.

To declare that these are our sentiments on this important subject, which we offer only as an individual part of the whole Empire. Final determination we leave to the General Congress now sitting, before whom we shall lay the papers his Lordship has communicated to us. To their wisdom we commit the improvement of this important advance: if it can be wrought into any good, we are assured they will do it. To them, also, we refer the discovery of that proper method of representing our well-founded grievances, which his Lordship assures us will meet with the attention and regard so justly due to them. For ourselves, we have exhausted every mode of application which our invention could suggest as proper and promising. We have decently remonstrated with Parliament: they have added new injuries to the old. We have wearied our King with supplications: he has not deigned to answer us. We have appealed to the native honour and justice of the British Nation: their efforts in our favour have been hitherto ineffectual. What, then, remains to be done? That we commit our injuries to the evenhanded justice of that Being who doth no wrong, earnestly beseeching him to illuminate the counsels, and prosper the endeavours of those to whom America hath confided her hopes, that through their wise direction we may again see reunited the blessings of liberty, property, and union with Great Britain.

The said Resolution being read a second time, was, upon the question being put thereupon, agreed to by the House.

Ordered, That a Committee be appointed to draw up an Address to be presented to the Governour upon the said Resolution.

And a Committee was appointed, of Mr. Cary, Mr. Treasurer, Mr. Jefferson, Mr. Munford, Mr. Mercer, Mr. Jones, Mr. Digges, and Mr. Nelson.

A Message from the Council, by Mr. Blair:

MR. SPEAKER: His Excellency the Governour hath desired the President to communicate to this House his Answer to the joint Address of the Council and the House of Burgesses, presented yesterday to his Excellency. And he presented the said Answer at the bar.

And then the Messenger withdrew.

The Governour's Answer was read, and is as followeth, viz:

Gentlemen of the Council, Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House of Burgesses:

In answer to your joint Address, presented by your Deputies yesterday, I acquaint you that it appears to me the commotions among the people, and their menaces and threats (an enumeration of which I forbear out of tenderness) have been of such publick notoriety, that you must suppose many of His Majesty's subjects in this Colony, whether they meditated or not, have at least manifested such an inveteracy as justifies my suspicion that they would not hesitate to commit a crime, which, horrid and atrocious as it is, I had just ground to apprehend.* And when the disposition which the House of Burgesses have shown to me, the returns they have made to the respect and civility which I have been forward to offer them, the countenance they have given to the violent and disorderly proceedings of the people, His Majesty's magazine having been forced and rifled in the presence of some of the members of the House of Burgesses, and, by the information of the Committee of the House appointed to inspect the magazine, no other endeavours have been used than to prevail on the people to return the arms taken out, but not to commit the persons in whose possession they were found, in order that they might be brought to the punishment due to so heinous an offence, no less against the peace and good order of the Country than the dignity and authority of the King; when a body of men assembled in the City of Williamsburgh, not only to the knowledge, but with the approbation of every body, for the avowed purpose of attacking a party of the King's forces, which, without the least foundation, it was reported were marching to my protection, and which, if true, ought to have been approved and aided, not opposed and insulted, by all good and loyal subjects; when, especially, the House of Burgesses, or a Committee of the House, (which is the same,) has ventured upon a step fraught with the most alarming consequences, in ordering and appointing guards, without ever consulting me, to mount in the City of Williamsburgh, as is pretended, to protect the magazine, but which may well be doubted, as there then remained nothing therein which required being guarded; but if otherwise, this step nevertheless shows a design to usurp the Executive power, which, if it be persisted in, subverts the Constitution: I say, when these circumstances are duly considered, I may submit it to your own judgment whether I could reasonably expect any good effect from communicating the ground of my uneasiness to you.

* LONDON, August 3, 1775.—Many persons have been at a loss to account for Lord Dunmore's late conduct; but we have authority to say, that the true reason of his Lordship's retiring on board the Fowey, man-of-war, was an express from General Gage by the Otter, sloop-of-war, which was despatched on the seventh of June, to acquaint him of his intention of publishing the Proclamation, which appeared on the twelfth, that he might secure himself from being seized and detained as a hostage in the hands of the Americans, in case of the apprehension of Messrs. Adams and Hancock.

But as you are pleased, Gentlemen, now to assure me that you will cheerfully concur in any measure that may be proposed proper for the security of myself and family, I leave to your own consideration whether that can be effected any otherwise than by reinstating me in the full powers of my office, as His Majesty's representative, by opening the courts of justice and restoring the energy of the laws, which is all the security requisite for all parties; by disarming all independent companies, or other bodies of men, raised and acting in defiance of lawful authority; and by obliging those who have taken any of His Majesty's publick store of arms, to deliver them up immediately; and what is not less essential than any thing, by your own example, and every means in your power, abolishing that spirit of persecution, which, to the disgrace of humanity, now reigns, and pursues with menaces and acts of oppression all persons who differ from the multitude in political opinion, or are attached from principles and duty to the service of their King and Government, by which means (the deluded people never hearing but the disfigured side of a story) their minds are continually kept in that ferment, which subjects them for ever to be imposed upon, and leads to the commission of many desperate acts, and endangers the general safety. For the more speedy accomplishment of these ends, and the great object and necessary business of the sessions, I shall have no objection to your adjourning to the Town of York, where I will meet you, and remain with you till your business be finished.

With respect to your entreaty that I should return to the Palace, as the most likely means of quieting the minds of the people, I must represent to you that unless there be among you a sincere and active desire to seize this opportunity now offered to you by Parliament, of establishing the freedom of your Country upon a fixed and known foundation, and of uniting yourselves with your fellow-subjects of Great Britain in one common bond of interest and mutual assistance, my return to Williamsburgh would be as fruitless to the people as, possibly, it might be dangerous to myself. But if your proceedings manifest that happy disposition, which is to be desired ardently by every good friend to this as well as the Mother Country, I assure you, in the warmth of my heart, that I will return with the greatest joy, and shall consider it as the most fortunate event of my life if you give me an opportunity to be an instrument of promoting your happiness, and a mediator between you and the supreme authority, to obtain for you every explanation of your doubts, and the fullest conviction of the sincerity of their desire to confirm to you the undisturbed enjoyment of your rights and liberty; and I shall be well pleased, by bringing my family back again, that you should have such a pledge of my attachment to this Country, and of my wishes to cultivate a close and lasting intimacy with the inhabitants.

DUNMORE.

June 10, 1775.

Resolved, That the said Answer be taken into consideration on Monday next.

Resolved, That this House will, upon Monday next, resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole House, to take into consideration the Governour's Answer to the joint Address of the Council and this House.

Ordered, That a Committee be appointed to inquire into the causes of the late Disturbances and Commotions, and report the same as they shall appear to them, to the House.

And a Committee was appointed, of Mr. Cary, Mr. Treasurer, Mr. Mercer, Mr. Banister, Mr. Munford, Mr. Jones, Mr. Charles Carter of Lancaster, Mr. Digges, Mr. Whitinge, Mr. Nelson, Mr. Francis Lightfoot Lee, Mr. Wood, Mr. William Cabell, Mr. Braxton, and Mr. Zane, and they are to have power to send for persons, papers, and records.

Ordered, That leave be given to bring in a Bill for appointing an Agent; and that Mr. Braxton and Mr. Treasurer do prepare, and bring in the same.

Monday, June 12, 15 Geo. III, 1775.

A Petition of the community of Christians, called Methodists, was presented to the House, and read, setting forth, that the Petitioners hold it to be contrary to the holy word of God to swear in any matter whatsoever; so that they cannot become witnesses in matters of controversy depending in any Court; nor can execute the office of executor of any testament; nor undertake the administration of any intestate's estates; whereby they suffer many inconveniences; and therefore praying, that they may have the same liberty of affirming to the truth of any matter, as is indulged to the people called Quakers, whose religious persuasion that of the Petitioners nearly resembles.

Ordered, That the said Petition be referred to the consideration of the Committee of Religion; and that they do examine the matter thereof, and report the same with their opinion thereupon to the House.

Mr. Cary reported from the Committee appointed to draw up an Address, to be presented to the Governour, that the Committee had drawn up an Address accordingly; which they had directed him to report to the House. And he read the same in his place, and afterwards delivered in at the Clerk's table, where the same was read; and is as followeth, viz:

MY LORD: We, His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Burgesses of Virginia, now met in General Assembly, have taken into our consideration the joint Address of the two Houses of Parliament, His Majesty's Answer, and the Resolution of the Commons, which your Lordship has been pleased to lay before us. Wishing nothing so sincerely as the perpetual continuance of that brotherly love which we bear to our fellow-subjects of Great Britain, and still continuing to hope and believe that they do not approve the measures which have so long oppressed their brethren in America, we were pleased to receive your Lordship's notification, that a benevolent tender had at length been made by the British House of Commons towards bringing to a good end our unhappy disputes with the Mother Country. Next to the possession of liberty, my Lord, we should consider such a reconciliation as the greatest of all human blessings. With these dispositions we entered into the consideration of that Resolution; we examined it minutely; we viewed it in every point of light in which we were able to place it; and, with pain and disappointment, we must ultimately declare it only changes the form of oppression, without lightening its burden. We cannot, my Lord, close with the terms of that Resolution, for these reasons:

Because the British Parliament has no right to intermeddle with the support of civil Government in the Colonies. For us, not for them, has Government been instituted here. Agreeable to our ideas, provision has been made for such officers as we think necessary for the administration of publick affairs; and we cannot conceive that any other legislature has a right to prescribe either the number or pecuniary appointments of our offices. As a proof that the claim of Parliament to interfere in the necessary provisions for the support of civil Government is novel, and of a late date, we take leave to refer to an Act of our Assembly, passed so long since as the thirty-second year of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled "An Act for raising a publick revenue, and for the better support of the Government of His Majesty's Colony of Virginia." This act was brought over by Lord Culpepper, then Governour, under the great seal of England, and was enacted in the name of the "King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the consent of the General Assembly."

Because, to render perpetual our exemption from an unjust taxation, we must saddle ourselves with a perpetual tax, adequate to the expectations, and subject to the disposal of Parliament alone: whereas, we have a right to give our money, as the Parliament do theirs, without coercion, from time to time, as publick exigences may require. We conceive that we alone are the judges of the condition, circumstances, and situation of our people, as the Parliament are of theirs. It is not merely the mode of raising, but the freedom of granting our money, for which we have contended. Without this, we possess no check on the royal prerogative; and, what must be lamented by dutiful and loyal subjects, we should be stripped of the only means, as well of recommending this Country to the favours of our most gracious Sovereign, as of strengthening those bands of amity with our fellow-subjects, which we would wish to remain indissoluble.

Because, on our undertaking to grant money, as is proposed, the Commons only resolve to forbear levying pecuniary taxes on us, still leaving unrepealed their several Acts passed for the purposes of restraining the Trade, and altering the form of Government of the Eastern Colonies; extending the boundaries, and changing the Government and Religion of Quebeck; enlarging the jurisdiction of the Courts of Admiralty; taking from us the right of Trial by Jury, and transporting us into other countries to be tried for criminal offences. Standing Armies, too, are still to be kept among us, and the other numerous grievances, of which ourselves and sister Colonies, separately and by our Representatives in General Congress, have so often complained, are still to continue without redress.

Because, at the very time of requiring from us grants of money, they are making disposition to invade us with large armaments by sea and land, which is a style of asking gifts not reconcilable to our freedom. They are also proceeding to a repetition of injury, by passing Acts for restraining the Commerce and Fisheries of the Provinces of New-England, and for prohibiting the Trade of the other Colonies with all parts of the world, except the Island of Great Britain, Ireland, and the West-Indies. This seems to bespeak no intention to discontinue the exercise of this usurped power over us in future.

Because, on our agreeing to contribute our proportion towards the common defence, they do not propose to lay open to us a free trade with all the world: whereas, to us it appears just that those who bear equally the burdens of Government should equally participate of its benefits; either be contented with the monopoly of our trade, which brings greater loss to us and benefit to them than the amount of our proportional contributions to the common defence; or, if the latter be preferred, relinquish the former, and do not propose, by holding both, to exact from us double contributions. Yet we would remind Government, that on former emergencies, when called upon as a free people, however cramped by this monopoly in our resources of wealth, we have liberally contributed to the common defence. Be assured, then, that we shall be as generous in future as in past times, disclaiming the shackles of proportion when called to our free station in the general system of the Empire.

Because the proposition now made to us involves the interest of all the other Colonies. We are now represented in General Congress by members approved by this House, where our former union, it is hoped, will be so strongly cemented, that no partial applications can produce the slightest departure from the common cause. We consider ourselves as bound in honour, as well as interest, to share one general fate with our sister Colonies; and should hold ourselves base deserters of that union to which we have acceded, were we to agree on any measures distinct and apart from them.

There was, indeed, a plan of accommodation offered in Parliament, which, though not entirely equal to the terms we had a right to ask, yet differed but in few points from what the General Congress had held out. Had Parliament been disposed sincerely, as we are, to bring about a reconciliation, reasonable men had hoped, that by meeting us on this ground, something might have been done. Lord Chatham's Bill, on the one part, and the terms of Congress on the other, would have formed a basis for negotiation, which a spirit of accommodation on both sides might, perhaps, have reconciled. It came recommended, too, from one whose successful experience in the art of Government should have insured it some attention from those to whom it was tendered. He had shown to the world, that Great Britain, with her Colonies united firmly under a just and honest Government, formed a power which might bid defiance to the most potent enemies. With a change of Ministers, however, a total change of measures took place. The component parts of the Empire have, from that moment, been falling asunder, and a total annihilation of its weight in the political scale of the world, seems justly to be apprehended.

These, my Lord, are our sentiments on this important subject, which we offer only as an individual part of the whole Empire. Final determination we leave to the General Congress, now sitting, before whom we shall lay the papers your Lordship has communicated to us. To their wisdom we commit the improvement of this important advance; if it can be wrought into any good, we are assured they will do it. To them, also, we refer the discovery of that proper method of representing our well-founded grievances, which your Lordship assures us will meet with the attention and regard so justly due to them. For ourselves, we have exhausted every mode of application which our invention could suggest as proper and promising. We have decently remonstrated with Parliament: they have added new injuries to the old. We have wearied our King with applications: he has not deigned to answer us. We have appealed to the native honour and justice of the British Nation: their efforts in our favour have been hitherto ineffectual. What, then, remains to be done? That we commit our injuries to the evenhanded justice of the Being who doth no wrong, earnestly beseeching him to illuminate the counsels, and prosper the endeavours of those to whom America hath confided her hopes, that through their wise direction we may again see reunited the blessings of liberty, property, and harmony with Great Britain.

The said Address being read a second time,

Resolved, That the House doth agree with the Committee in the said Address, to be presented to the Governor.

Resolved, That the said Address be presented to his Excellency by Mr. Cary, Mr. Munford, Mr. Braxton, Mr. Jones, and Mr. Wood.

The Order of the Day being read,

Resolved, That this House will to-morrow resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole House, to take into consideration the Governor's Answer to the joint Address of the Council and this House.

Tuesday, June 13, 15 Geo. III, 1775.

Mr. Mercer reported, from the Committee appointed to inspect the Magazine in this City and inquire into the Stores belonging to the same, that the Committee had inspected the said Magazine, and inquired into the said Stores accordingly; and had directed him to report the same, as it appeared to them, to the House; and he read the Report in his place, and afterwards delivered it in at the Clerk's table; where the same was read, and is as followeth, viz:

It appears to your Committee, from the deposition of John Frederick Miller, keeper of the magazine, that in June last there were thirty barrels of gunpowder, containing each about fifty weight, in indifferent order; that, by the Governor's directions, he sifted twenty-seven barrels, out of which he made up twenty-six casks and better; the other three he left unsifted; that the President soon after sent the Governor, then on the frontiers, eight of those he had sifted, three hundred muskets, bayonets, cartouch boxes, and canteens, which have never been returned; that one hundred and sixty of the said muskets were furnished out of the palace, and soon after replaced out of the magazine; that the said Miller, by order of the President, also delivered out about fifty stand of arms to some gentlemen of this City, which have not been returned.

That, about the middle of April last, the said Miller delivered up the keys of the magazine to the Governour, and he then left there twenty one barrels and a half of powder, including the three unsifted; three hundred and forty-two new muskets, lately cleaned, and in complete order; others that wanted but small repairs, and a large number of old muskets, and other small guns, almost useless, and many other articles, which he could not enumerate.

It further appears to the Committee, from the depositions of the said Miller, and John Dixon, Esquire, Mayor of this City, that they were in the magazine (soon after the powder was said to be taken away) with his Excellency, who then mentioned, that he had taken away fifteen barrels of powder. They then saw eight barrels which they understood was powder; one being open, appeared to be dust of powder; and, at the same time, they observed that the cleaned muskets were without locks; and the said Miller says his Excellency rebuked him for not taking notice of that circumstance; and the said Dixon said he observed some persons had been in the magazine over night, as he saw many arms lying in the yard of it; and his Excellency then told him, he had ordered the powder to be buried in the magazine yard; for though it was but dust, yet, as he understood some persons went into the magazine for arms in the night with a light, they might set fire to the powder and injure the magazine.

Your Committee farther report, that before they proceeded to examine any witnesses, they waited on his Excellency, to request that he would be pleased to direct the keeper of the magazine to give them access thereto; and having received the keys three days after the first application, they immediately proceeded to inspect the magazine, and found therein nineteen halberts; one hundred and fifty-seven trading guns, in pretty good order, but very indifferent in the kind; fifty-one pewter basons; eight camp kettles; one hundred and eight new muskets without locks; about five hundred and twenty-seven old muskets, the barrels very rusty, and the locks almost useless; twelve hundred cartouch boxes; fifteen hundred cutlasses with scabbards; one hundred and seventy pistol holsters, and one hundred and fifty old pistols, or thereabouts, with and without locks; fifty mallets; two bundles of match rope; two hundred canteens; thirty-five small swords, in bad order; one tent and ten poles; one hogshead of powder-horns; one hundred and twenty-seven bayonets; and one hundred knapsacks in the smith's shop, and that part of the magazine called the armory; also one half barrel of dust and rotten powder; one half barrel and a quarter of unsifted powder, tolerably good, in the powder room, that has no communication with the armory; also, five half barrels of loose powder, buried in a hole in the magazine yard, the top of which (in quantity about two half barrels) was totally destroyed by the late rains, the rest very damp, but quite sound; this, his Excellency acknowledged to your Committee, was buried there by his orders. The deficiency, this Committee suppose, is owing to the fifteen half barrels which Captain Collins moved from the magazine, as acknowledged in the Governour's message to this House.

And your Committee farther report, that the morning before they entered upon this business, some persons unknown had broke into the magazine, and taken out arms, part of which, upon the application of some of the members of this House and other gentlemen, were restored. And finding the respect paid by the people to the members of this House, your Committee thought it most likely, to prevent farther depredations, to request some gentlemen of the Town to guard the magazine till application could be made to his Excellency for leave of access thereto, which your Committee immediately did, informing his Lordship of the steps they had taken therein; which he did not object to.

That the doors and windows of the magazine now want repairs, which, being done, your Committee are of opinion that it will be sufficiently secure, it never having proved otherwise since its first erection, now sixty years past, until since the powder was taken by order of the Governour aforementioned.

Your Committee also proceeded to inquire what arms and ammunition had been, from time to time, deposited in the magazine, and the disbursements thereof, but could obtain no certain information respecting the same, the late keeper being out of the Colony, and his predecessor dead; nor can your Committee find, although they have examined several persons most likely to be acquainted with such facts, and applied personally to His Majesty's Receiver-General for that purpose, that any powder had been lodged in the magazine from on board the Rippon man-of-war, or any of His Majesty's ships.

Ordered, That the said Report do lie upon the table, to be perused by the Members of the House.

Resolved, That a Message be sent to His Majesty's Council acquainting them, that since his Excellency the Governour hath been pleased to remove from the Palace, the House are exceedingly apprehensive that the publick Arms therein are too much exposed, and beg to be informed whether in their opinion some proper method cannot be taken to secure as well these Arms as those in the publick Magazine.

Ordered, That Mr. Braxton and Mr. Treasurer do carry the said Message to the Council.

A Petition of sundry persons of the community of Christians called Baptists, and other Protestant Dissenters, whose names are thereunto subscribed, was presented to the House and read; setting forth, that the toleration proposed by the bill ordered at a former session of General Assembly to be printed and published, not admitting publick worship, except in the day time, is inconsistent with the laws of England, as well as with the practice and usage of the primitive churches, and even of the English church itself; that the night season may sometimes be better spared by the Petitioners from the necessary duties of their callings; and that they wish for no indulgences which may disturb the peace of Government; and therefore praying the House to take their case into consideration, and to grant them suitable redress.

Ordered, That the said Petition do lie upon the table.

Mr. Braxton presented to the House, according to order, a Bill for appointing an Agent; and the same was received and read the first time.

Resolved, That the Bill be read a second time.

The other Order of the Day being read,

Resolved, That this House will, to-morrow, resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole House, to take into consideration the Governour's Answer to the joint Address of the Council and this House.

Wednesday, June 14, 15 Geo. III, 1775.

Richard Bland, Esq., one of the Delegates from this Colony to the General Congress at Philadelphia, acquainted the House that a petition of several persons in that part of the County of Augusta, which is on the west side of the Alleghany Mountain, addressed to the President and Gentlemen of the Continental Congress, having been presented to them, setting forth that the petitioners had grievously suffered by the devastations of the Indians in the late war; that, to avoid captivity by an enemy so insidious, cruel, and savage, many of the petitioners having been obliged to desert their habitation and retire to Forts, so that they could not till the ground, now wanted bread, and supported themselves chiefly by the spontaneous productions of the earth; that the promising appearance of a plentiful crop had encouraged them to bear these afflictions without repining, and to hope for better times; but that those fair prospects would probably be delusive, unless effectual measures were pursued to avert the calamities with which they were threatened; that Lord Dunmore, after the expedition against the Indians, promised to meet them at Pittsburgh in the spring, and conclude a peace, and then restore the hostages delivered to him, and discharge the captives; that the Indians had been uneasy for some time because the treaty was deferred; that the Delawares particularly were very much dissatisfied, and repented that they had not joined the Shawanese in the war, since they found the white people were not to be depended on; that the commandant in that quarter for Government had instructions, as the petitioners were informed, to assemble the Indians at that place so soon as he could, when the hostages and prisoners would be delivered up; and that the petitioners, unable to discover the design of Government, apprehended every evil from the threats of it to enfranchise the slaves, on condition they would rebel against their masters: and therefore praying the Congress, to which application was made because it was thought the Provincial Assemblies could not provide adequate remedies early enough, to take the case of the petitioners into consideration, and appoint Commissioners from this Colony and Pennsylvania, to attend the meeting of the Indians, and co-operate with Government for the publick good; or, if the latter should fail, to nominate persons for that purpose, and proceed without them in the treaty, which is absolutely necessary. The Congress referred the said Petition to the Delegates of this Colony and Pennsylvania, who having considered the same, and being of opinion that the matter ought to be communicated to this House, and submitted to their consideration, Mr. Bland was directed by his colleagues to lay the same before the House, which he thus did with all convenient expedition.

The said information being immediately taken into consideration,

Resolved, That Thomas Walker, James Wood, Andrew Lewis, John Walker, and Adam Stephen, Esquires, be appointed Commissioners to ratify the Treaty of Peace between this Colony and the Indians.

Ordered, That a Bill be brought in pursuant to the said Resolution, and that Mr. Treasurer and Mr. Dandridge do prepare and bring in the same.

Ordered, That it be an instruction to the gentlemen appointed to prepare and bring in the said Bill, that they have power to receive a clause or clauses, to empower the said Commissioners to join with such other Commissioners as may be appointed by the Assembly of Pennsylvania, in such manner as shall be judged most proper for conciliating the friendship of the Indians, and perpetuating the peace now subsisting between the said Indians and the Colonies.

Mr. Cary reported from the Committee appointed to inquire into the causes of the late Disturbances and Commotions, that the Committee had inquired accordingly, and had directed him to report the causes of the said Disturbances and Commotions, as they appeared to them, to the House; and he read the Report in his place, and afterwards delivered it at the Clerk's table, where the same was read, and is as followeth, viz:

It appears to your Committee, by the testimony of Doctor William Pasteur, that on Friday morning, the twenty-third of April last, there was a commotion in the City of Williamsburgh, occasioned by the Governour's removing some powder from the publick magazine; that a common hall being assembled he attended; an address was presented to his Excellency the Governour, and an answer received, as published in the Virginia Gazette; that the people, at the request of the Corporation, retired peaceably to their habitations; that, during the commotion, the Captains Foy, Montague, and Collins, walked the main street unmolested; that, in the morning of the twenty-third of April, the said Pasteur, attending a patient at the Palace, accidentally met with his Excellency the Governour, who introduced a conversation relative to what had passed the preceding day, and seemed greatly exasperated at the people's having been under arms; when the said Pasteur observed, that it was done in a hurry and confusion, and that most of the people were convinced they were wrong. His Lordship then proceeded to make use of several rash expressions, and said that though he did not think himself in danger, yet understood some injury or insult was intended to be offered to the Captains Foy and Collins, which he should consider as done to himself, as those gentlemen acted entirely by his particular directions; that his Lordship then swore by the living God, that if a grain of powder was burnt at Captain Foy or Collins, or if any injury or insult was offered to himself or either of them, that he would declare freedom to the slaves, and reduce the City of Williamsburgh to ashes. His Lordship then mentioned setting up the royal standard, but did not say that he would actually do it, but said he believed if he did, he should have a majority of white people, and all the slaves, on the side of Government; that he had once fought for the Virginians, and that, by God, he would let them see that he could fight against them, and declared that in a short time he could depopulate the whole Country. That his Excellency desired the said Pasteur immediately to communicate this to the Speaker and other gentlemen of the Town, for that there was not an hour to spare: adding also, that if Finnie and George Nicholas continued to go at large, what he had said would, from some misconduct of theirs, be carried into execution. That the said Pasteur immediately communicated this matter to the Speaker and several other gentlemen of the Town, and it soon became publicly known; in consequence of which two of the principal gentlemen of the City sent their wives and children into the country. That his Excellency at other times, more than once, did say he should not carry these plans into execution unless he was attacked. That the inhabitants of Williamsburgh were soon after informed, by an express from Fredericksburgh, that the people in that part of the country were in motion towards this City. That the next morning after this report, the said Pasteur, attending a patient at the Palace, again met accidentally with the Governour, who declared to the said Pasteur, that if a large body of people came below Ruffin's Ferry, (a place about thirty miles from this City,) he would immediately enlarge his plan and carry it into execution; but said that he should not regard a small number of men, adding, he then had two hundred muskets loaded in the Palace. The said Pasteur saith, that, to the best of his knowledge, at the time Lady Dunmore and family removed from Williamsburgh on board the Fowey, man-of-war, then lying at York, the inhabitants of this City were very peaceable.

It appears to your Committee, from the testimony of Benjamin Waller, that the morning after the powder was removed from the publick magazine, the people in the City of Williamsburgh were much alarmed, and assembled, some with, and others without arms; but when the Corporation reported the Governour's answer to their Address, they, by the persuasions of the Magistrates and other principal gentlemen of the Town, dispersed and were quiet, except in the evening, when a report prevailed that the Marines were landed, and intended to attack the Town; they expressed great uneasiness, and went with their arms to the magazine to guard it, but soon dispersed, except a few, who acted as a patrol that night. That the next day Dr. Pasteur came to the said Waller's house and informed him of the Governour's threatening, that if himself, his family, or Captain Collins, were insulted, he would declare liberty to the slaves, and lay the Town in ashes; and that the Governour had desired him to communicate this his declaration to the Magistrates of the City, for that there was not an hour to lose. That these declarations gave the said Waller and the other inhabitants of the Town great uneasiness. That several days afterwards his Excellency came to the said Waller's house on some private business; and in the course of conversation his Lordship said that Captain Collins had only taken fifteen half barrels of powder from the magazine; that some was not good, and others not full; but that he believed that one whole barrel might be got out of three half barrels; whereupon the said Waller took the liberty to mention to his Lordship, that he was sorry to tell his Excellency that he had lost the confidence of the people, not so much for having taken the powder, as for the declaration he made of raising and freeing the slaves; to which he answered, that he did say so, and made no secret of it, and that he would do that or any thing else, to have defended himself, in case he had been attacked. That his Lordship farther observed, that some slaves had offered him their service at the time the Hanover men were coming down, but that he had sent them away. The said Benjamin Waller farther says, that several young gentlemen of the Town, and others, had formed themselves into a company, (by the name of an Independent Company,) to learn the military exercise, and elected the Colonel of the Militia for their Captain, and that they usually mustered once a week. That when his Excellency returned from the Indian expedition last fall, many of the said company waited upon him in their uniform, to congratulate his Lordship on his return; but the said Waller heard they were coolly received. That said Waller says that he never heard of any powder being lodged in the magazine from the Rippon, man-of-war, until since the removal of the powder, and then only from report, the truth of which he does not know.

It also appears to your Committee, from the testimony of John Randolph, Esq., Attorney-General, of the City of Williamsburgh, that the morning after the removal of the powder, many of the people were under arms at the Court-House. That he does not recollect he heard the Governour expressly say he would proclaim freedom to the slaves, but is well satisfied such was his Lordship's intention, if it had been necessary for him to take up arms in defence of his person. That he does not recollect he ever saw any of the people under arms (except on the removal of the powder) but the volunteer company when exercising; which company had been formed a considerable time before the disturbance happened. That he thought Lady Dunmore had no reason, but the timidity of her sex, to suspect any injury would be done her or her family; nor did he know that Lord Dunmore had just cause to apprehend danger, unless he gave credit to the reports carried to him, which were of such a nature as to justify an opinion that his person was not safe. That he is of opinion, and that he informed the Governour so when he, with other gentlemen, waited upon him with the address of the House, that his person was in no danger. That his Lordship was almost every day at his, the said Randolph's, house, distant above a quarter of a mile from the Palace, and in particular the evening of his departure, and that his Lordship received no insult, as he knows of, in passing to and from thence. The said Randolph says that he understood from the Governour, in case armed people came to Williamsburgh, he would fix up the royal standard to distinguish the friends of Government from its foes; and that if negroes, on that occasion, offered their services, they would be received. That the Governour informed him (by one of his servants) some negroes had offered their service, but ordered his servant to bid them go about their business. That the morning after the removal of the powder, the said Randolph saw Captain Collins, Captain Foy, and, he believes, Captain Stretch, pass through the people unmolested.

It also appears, by the testimony of John Dixon, Esq., Mayor of the City of Williamsburgh, that, in the opinion of the inhabitants, the Militia of the City being on an independent footing, and they having heard of an independent company established at Norfolk, were desirous of forming one in Williamsburgh. That such company was accordingly formed, and, although he does not know the Governour was ever present when they were exercised, the said Dixon never heard he disapproved of it. That his Honour the President, while the Governour was out on the Indian expedition, directed the keeper of the publick magazine to furnish the company with muskets. That a Committee was chosen in the City, agreeable to the directions of the Congress, but not to act, as he knew of, under the Committee. That upon the Governour's return from the Indian expedition, one of the company waited upon his Excellency, to inform him the company intended to pay their compliments to him the next morning, before the Palace, if agreeable to Lady Dunmore, who was then indisposed; but his Lordship being out of the way, the person who went, left his compliments of the above import. That the next morning the said Dixon, as captain, with part of the company, drew up in Palace-street, and paid the usual compliments. That his Lordship did not come out to meet them; but some time afterwards there was a message delivered by Mr. Blair, from his Excellency, that he would have done himself the pleasure of waiting upon them, if they had staid a little longer, as he did not expect they would have finished their exercise so soon. That the morning after the powder was removed, many of the inhabitants being much alarmed, and greatly incensed against Capt. Foy and Capt. Collins, assembled at the Court-House under arms; but does not believe, nor has he heard any injury or insult was intended to the Governour. That some time after the Governour's answer to the address of the Corporation was read, the people, upon the interposition of the Magistrates, and other gentlemen, were satisfied, and returned home in quiet. That after the Governour had declared what Captain Collins had done was by his order, their resentment against Captain Collins subsided. That the same evening the powder was removed a report prevailed that a number of armed men from Captain Collins's schooner had landed at Burwell's Ferry, about four miles from Williamsburgh, with design, as was supposed, to remove the arms from the magazine; whereupon many of the inhabitants repaired to the magazine, to prevent such design being executed; but by the advice of some gentlemen, they all dispersed except such as patrolled that night. That the inhabitants appeared to be in perfect tranquillity, till a report was spread of his Excellency's throwing out some threats respecting the slaves, when there seemed to be great uneasiness; but nothing more was done but doubling the usual patrol. That after the alarm was over the first day, he remembers to have seen Captain Foy and Captain Montague walk the streets, and he believes without insult; and frequently saw them, Captain Collins and other officers, do the same, without their swords, unmolested by the inhabitants.

It also appears, by the testimony of Joseph Hutchings, Colonel of the Militia of the Borough of Norfolk, that some years ago the inhabitants, judging it would be a means of their greater security, proposed raising an independent company, that, by their being more regularly trained, they might be more capable of acting upon an emergency; that some time afterwards, his Excellency Lord Dunmore being at Norfolk, the said Hutchings informed him of the intention of the inhabitants, and asked his advice how to act as to granting commissions, the company intending to choose their own officers; that his Lordship highly commended the proposal, advised the said Hutchings to encourage and grant commissions to such officers as might be chosen, and expressed his wishes that the example might be followed throughout the Country. That about two years afterwards his Lordship was again at Norfolk, when the company was completely formed and regimented; and, having drawn them up, his Lordship marched through the lines in order to review them, and again expressed great satisfaction.

Your Committee then proceeded to examine several gentlemen, merchants, natives of Great Britain, who reside in different parts of this Colony, respecting the disposition of its people, and its internal peace, the causes of the late commotions, and the progress thereof; and it appears to your Committee, from the depositions by them taken, as follows:

It appears, from the testimony of Hugh Hamilton, of the County of Westmoreland, that the Courts of this Colony have always proceeded in criminal business as usual, but declined trying civil causes immediately on the lapse of the Fee-Bill, which, together with the Non-Exportation Agreement, was, in his opinion, the cause of stopping that business, rather than an inclination of withholding justice, his acquaintances having the same inclination to pay their debts as before the stoppage of the Courts. That Committees had been chosen within these twelve months, and independent companies formed in his and the neighbouring Counties about the month of February last, for the defence of the Colony, and that he never heard they were designed to protect the Committee. That, in his County, the gentlemen have been at proper pains to preserve order; and it has been recommended to the Militia to acquire a knowledge of the military exercise. That the people within his acquaintance have been very orderly, and that he never saw any commotion before the powder was taken from the magazine; that there was an alarm concerning the slaves prior to this transaction, which was greatly increased by the report of the Governour's intention to declare them free. That he never discovered the smallest inclination in any of the inhabitants to be independent of Great Britain; but, on the contrary, a most eager desire for a connexion, as it stood prior to the acts of Parliament imposing taxes on America; and he is persuaded a redress of grievances complained of would establish a perfect tranquillity throughout this Colony, and produce a reconciliation with the Parent State.

It appears, from the testimony of Thomas Mitchell, of the County of Louisa, that the loss of the Fee-Bill is generally assigned, and, he believes, was the immediate cause of stopping the civil proceedings in the courts of justice; but apprehends their not being resumed is owing to the commercial mode of opposition. That no independent company was formed in the said County until the 8th of May, 1775, or thereabouts, nor a Committee chosen until some months after the Association entered into; and it is his opinion the said company was raised with a view to put the Colony into a state of defence, but believes it would assist their Committee, if called on. That no commotions have happened in the said County, but that the Governor's declaration to give freedom to the slaves greatly inflamed the minds of those who believed it; but does not think that belief was general. That he does not think the Colony wish to be independent of Great Britain, and is satisfied a redress of the grievances complained of would restore tranquillity and reconciliation.

It appears, from the testimony of James Lyle and Robert Donald, of the County of Chesterfield, that the reason assigned for stopping the Courts in civil proceedings was the expiration of the Fee-Bill; and they are of opinion, that their refusing to proceed now is owing to the adopted mode of commercial opposition. That no independent company was formed in Chesterfield till a few weeks ago, and that they were intended for the general defence of the Country, and not, as they know, designed for the protection of the Committee, or to be under their direction; but they believe they would protect the Committee, if required. That the inhabitants were quiet and peaceable prior to the removal of the powder, and were greatly alarmed and exasperated at the Governor's declaration of giving freedom to the slaves, since which uncommon diligence has been used in training the Independent Company and the Militia to arms; but the people have always behaved themselves orderly, paying the greatest regard to the prudent advice of their officers. That they have no reason to believe the people wish an independence of Great Britain, and firmly believe a redress of the present grievances would establish general tranquillity throughout this Colony, and a reconciliation with Great Britain.

It appears, from the testimony of Thomas Hodge and James Robison, of King George County, Charles Yates and Henry Mitchell, of Spottsylvania, and Robert Gilchrist and Patrick Kennan, of Caroline, that the expiration of the Fee-Bill was the immediate cause of stopping the Courts in civil causes. That it has been since considered as a political means of obtaining a redress of grievances, by interesting the British merchants, who have property here, in our behalf; and that, since it has been determined to discontinue the exports, it has been thought necessary; but the Courts proceed in criminal cases as usual. That Committees have been established to enforce the resolutions of the General Congress, and independent companies formed to learn the use of arms, at different periods: in Spottsylvania some time last winter, in Caroline in February or March last, and in King George since the last Colony Convention in March. They do not know that they were established to protect the Committees, but believe the defence of the Colony was the first and principal motive. That some of the Independent Company of Spottsylvania have acted under the direction of their Committee, but the Caroline company refused to enlist, unless they were to be solely under the direction of officers of their own choosing. That there never were any commotions among the people till after the powder was removed from the magazine, when, in consequence of that transaction, there was a great assembly of armed men at Fredericksburgh, and adjacent places; but they were very orderly and peaceable, and upon advice of a Council they appointed, and some of the Delegates of this Colony, they all retired to their respective homes. That about this time they understood the Governor had made a declaration of freedom to the slaves, which was not generally believed; but as far as it gained credit, it tended greatly to inflame the people. That they do not believe any part of this Colony wish an independence of Great Britain, though they cannot undertake to judge of the views of individuals; and they hope and think, a redress of the present grievances would restore tranquillity here, and produce a reconciliation with the Parent State.

It appears, from the testimony of Archibald Ritchie, of the County of Essex, that the cause generally assigned for stopping the proceedings of the Courts in civil causes (the criminal proceedings going on as usual) was the expiration of the Fee-Bill; but that he believes the measure was politically adopted for carrying more effectually into execution the purposes of the Association. That the volunteer company in the County of Essex was formed about three weeks ago, not merely for protecting the Committees; but believes they would do so, if required. That previous to the seizure of the powder, the state of the Colony, as far as his observation extended, was a general acquiescence in the resolves of the Provincial and General Congress; and that in consequence thereof, no commotion happened in that County. That he does not know of any one that wishes independence of Great Britain; but, on his oath, cannot say there are none such. That he has not the least doubt, if the grievances complained of were redressed, perfect tranquillity would be established between Great Britain and the Colonies.

It appears, from the testimony of Charles Duncan, of the County of Chesterfield, near the Town of Petersburgh and Blanford, that the loss of the Fee-Bill, in his opinion, was the immediate cause of the stop to the proceedings in the Courts in civil causes, (the criminal going on as usual.) That a volunteer company in the said County was formed some time after the Convention at Richmond, and, in his opinion, solely for putting the Country into a posture of defence, without any regard to the protection of the Committee. That the state of the Colony, before the removal of the powder, was peaceable and orderly; and a strict compliance with the resolves of the Continental and Provincial Congress was, he thinks, the cause of maintaining that good order, so little to be expected in a country deprived of so essential a part of its laws. That the removal of the powder certainly occasioned the commotions complained of, and he believes, so far as the Governor's declarations gained credit, they contributed to those disturbances; but there were none such in the neighbourhood where he lives. That he never heard any person wish an independence of Great Britain, and is clearly of opinion a redress of the present grievances would immediately produce a hearty reconciliation.

It appears, by the testimony of Archibald Bryce, of the County of Henrico, that the expiration of the Fee-Bill was the reason assigned by the Court for stopping the proceedings in civil cases (the criminal going on as usual;) and he believes the commercial mode of opposition is the reason why the business of the Courts is not resumed. That the suspension in civil proceedings took place in June, 1774; and, some time in the fall, a Committee was chosen, agreeable to an article of the General Association. That the Independent Company of Henrico has not been formed above six weeks, and he believes the principal design of their institution was to put the Colony into a proper state of defence. That he knew of no commotions in the Country before the seizure of the powder; and as very few took up arms upon that occasion, he was informed that at the request of one of the representatives of the County they returned to their habitations. That he thinks, as far as the Governor's declaration gained credit with the people, it served to irritate their minds, and might possibly be a means of continuing the commotions in the Country. That he believes the Colony in general do not wish an independence, and that a redress of grievances would establish tranquillity, and produce a reconciliation.

It appears, by the testimony of Thomas Montgomery, of the County of Prince William, that, previous to the powder's being seized, Committees of Correspondence and of Observation, to carry into effect the resolutions of the Congress, and volunteer companies, were formed; military discipline was taught, arms and ammunition were industriously procured. That upon the report of the Governor's having seized the powder, many people marched to Fredericksburgh; where, upon a meeting of several Counties, it was determined, in consultation, they should return to their respective homes. That the Court proceeds in criminal cases. In civil cases, the proceedings are stopped; owing, as he thinks, to the expiration of the Fee-Bill, but not to the determination against imports and exports, which he thinks did not necessarily produce that effect. Having observed the same inclination in the people to do justice to their creditors as usual, he thinks the above steps do not proceed from any inclination to withhold justice. That no other commotions or disturbances have happened in the County but what were produced by the alarm of seizing the powder; and these subsided soon, and the people returned to their own habitations. That the political measures are adopted by all classes of men. That the Independent Company was formed in that County about September, and its design was to protect the Colony in general, and the County in particular; and that he has heard it observed, this institution would aid the execution of the resolutions of the Committee. That he believes few, if any persons in the Colony, wish an independence of Great Britain; but, on the contrary, is of opinion that a redress of grievances would establish tranquillity here, and a perfect reconciliation with the Mother Country, as he thinks they entertain not a desire but of dependance on the Mother Country, on constitutional principles.

It appears by the testimony of Archibald Govan, Thomas Evans, John Johnson, and George Braikenridge, of the County of Hanover, that proceedings in criminal cases went on as usual. That all civil law proceedings (except motions against Sheriffs and other publick officers) were stopped in June, 1774. In November, a Committee, in conformity to a regulation of the Congress, was chosen, to carry into execution the American Association, and an Independent Company enlisted, but not embodied. That, for the interruption of suits in civil cases, they assign the expiration of the Fee-Bill as the principal cause, and do not attribute that measure to the adoption of the commercial opposition, as this political measure took place some months after the Courts had stopped their proceedings. That as to the commotions, they say none have occurred, except in one instance, which proceeded from the Governour's seizing the powder, which was heightened and increased by his threatening to enfranchise the slaves. That those causes induced the Independent Company to choose their officers, and march out about twenty miles towards Williamsburgh; but how they conducted themselves on their march, they can give no information. That they think the independent companies were formed to put the Country into a state of defence; yet they suppose they would have aided the Committee. That the Colony, in their opinion, desires not an independence of Great Britain; and that a redress of the present grievances would re-establish tranquillity, and produce a reconciliation with the Parent State.

It appears to your Committee, from the testimony of Andrew Sproule, Archibald Campbell, and James Ingram, of the County of Norfolk, and Samuel Donaldson, of the County of Nansemond, that in these Counties the Courts, as usual, proceed in criminal cases. For the causes of stopping the proceedings in civil suits, they assign the expiration of the Fee Bill as the primary one; but, as a secondary cause, they think this measure was adopted to carry the purposes of the Association more effectually into execution, which, by distressing the mercantile part of the British Nation, was intended to interest them in favour of the Colony, and to produce in the end an accommodation. That the Town of Norfolk, as yet, has no independent company, but one formed before the existence of Committees, with the approbation of the Governour, and under his commission. In Nansemond County, an independent company was formed in May last; not for the avowed purpose of protecting Committees, but in conformity to the direction of the last Convention. That before the seizure of the powder, a general acquiescence under the resolutions of the General and Provincial Congress marked the political character of this Colony; and, in the above mentioned Counties, no commotions were excited by this conduct of the Governour, since in neither did the report that an insurrection was intended by the slaves, produce that effect. That they think it the universal wish to have a constitutional dependance on Great Britain; and that a redress of grievances will immediately establish tranquillity, and be productive of a reconciliation with the Parent State.

Ordered, That said Report do lie upon the table, to be perused by the Members of this House.

Ordered, That the gentlemen who managed the conference be appointed a Committee to join with a Committee of the Council in drawing up the said Address.

Ordered, That the Report of the Committee appointed to inspect the publick Magazine, and inquire into the Stores belonging to the same, which, on Tuesday last, was ordered to lie upon the table, be referred to the said Committee.

Ordered, That the Report of the Committee appointed to inquire into the causes of the late Disturbances and Com-motions, which was yesterday ordered to lie upon the table, be referred to the said Committee.

Ordered, That the extract of a Letter from the Earl of Dunmore to the Earl of Dartmouth, dated Williamsburgh, December 24, 1774, laid before the House of Commons, which extract was this day presented to this House, be referred to the said Committee.

Then the House resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Cary took the chair of the Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

Ordered, That the said Report be now received.

Mr. Cary accordingly reported from the Committee the Resolution which the Committee had directed him to report to the House, which he read in his place, and afterwards delivered in at the Clerk's table, where the same was read, and is as followeth, viz:

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee that an Address be presented to his Excellency the Governour, in reply to his Lordship's written Message in answer to the joint Address of the Council and this House, representing to his Excellency the great concern the House was under at receiving such a message; giving to his Excellency a true state of this Country; the dispositions of the people towards His Majesty and his Government; stating, from the evidence now produced to this Committee, the real causes of the late unhappy disturbances, and the effects those disturbances have produced; representing the conduct of the Committee appointed by the House to examine into the state of the publick Magazine in its proper light; explaining to his Excellency the views of this House in offering to close with any proper measures he might have recommended for the security of his person and family; giving his Excellency a faithful account of the proceedings of the Convention lately held at Richmond, and the reasons for the Resolutions then entered into; observing the tendency of his Lordship's representations of the inhabitants of this Colony in his publick letters to the Secretary of State; the design of the Committees; the origin of Independent and Volunteer Companies, their true design, and the effects they have produced; representing how inconvenient and improper it would be for the House to adjourn to Yorktown; referring his Excellency to the former Address of the House for the reasons why we cannot interpose our legislative authority in respect to the Courts of Justice; and why we cannot approve the proposition made to us by Parliament; again to assure him, that in our opinion there cannot be the least danger in his returning to the Palace with his family, and that we are still willing and desirous of doing every thing in our power for their most perfect security; to inform his Excellency, as our opinion, that the best means of mediating between the supreme authority and this Country will be to make an impartial representation of what has happened ever since his arrival in Virginia; and to assure him in the warmth of our hearts of the sincerest disposition on our part to have the utmost harmony and most perfect tranquillity restored.

The said Resolution being read a second time, was, upon the question put thereupon, agreed to by the House.

Ordered, That a Committee be appointed to draw up an Address to be presented to the Governour upon the said Resolution.

And a Committee was appointed, of Mr. Treasurer, Mr. Bland, Mr. Cary, Mr. Digges, Mr. Nelson, Mr. Jones, and Mr. Munford.

Ordered, That a Message be sent to the Council, informing them that it appears to this House, by the report of their Committee, that the locks of upward of three hundred Guns, lately in complete order in the publick Magazine, have been taken off; that one hundred and eight of these Guns are still in the Magazine, but are useless without locks; that this House requests the Council to join them in an Address to his Excellency the Governour, desiring his Lordship will be pleased to communicate to the Council and this House, whether the locks were taken off by his Excellency's command; and, if they were, that his Lordship will be pleased to direct them to be returned to the Magazine, which will be in a fit condition to-morrow to receive them.

Resolved, That this House will, to-morrow, resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole House, to consider further of the said Bill.

Mr. Cary reported to the House that their Address of Monday last had been presented to the Governour, and that his Excellency gave him a written answer thereunto; and he delivered the said answer in at the Clerk's table, where the same was read, and is as followeth, viz:

Gentlemen of the House of Burgesses:

It is with real concern I can discover nothing in your Address that I think manifests the smallest inclination to, or will be productive of a reconciliation with the mother Country.

Resolved, That an Address be presented to his Excellency the Governour, informing him the publick Magazine is now in fit condition for the reception of Arms and Ammunition, requesting his Lordship will be pleased to order the Powder, lately removed from thence by his Excellency's command, to be returned, agreeable to his promise.

To represent that it appears to this House, by a report of a Committee appointed to inspect the Magazine, that there are no Arms there fit for service; that in these critical times an Indian war is not improbable, and an insurrection of slaves may possibly be encouraged solely by the want of publick stores of Arms and Ammunition, which is now become a fact of publick notoriety; that the Legislature of this Colony have long since established a very ample fund for this necessary purpose, by granting His Majesty one shilling and three pence sterling upon the tonnage of vessels, which appears for several years to exceed three thousand Pounds sterling per annum; that the House of Burgesses heretofore, trusting that Government would provide means so essential for the preservation of this Colony, have not interfered in this business; but this House, finding that though this want was known to Government more than twelve months past, no means have been adopted to provide against it, conceive it their duty to remind Government of this great grievance, and to request that two thousand stand of Arms, five tons of Powder, and twenty tons of Lead, at the least, and a sufficient quantity of other articles, be immediately provided and lodged in the publick Magazine for the defence of this Colony, in case of any invasion or insurrection: assuring his Excellency that if the fund aforementioned shall prove insufficient, this House will cheerfully make further provision for these purposes.

Ordered, That a Committee be appointed to draw up an Address, to be presented to the Governour upon the said Resolution.

And a Committee was appointed, of Mr. Mercer, Mr. Cary, and Mr. Braxton.

Mr. Treasurer presented to the House, according to order, a Bill for appointing Commissioners to ratify and confirm the late Treaty of Peace with the Ohio Indians; and the same was received and read the first time.

Resolved, That the Bill be read a second time.

Ordered, That the Bill be now read a second time.

The Bill was accordingly read a second time.

Resolved, That the Bill be committed to Mr. Treasurer, Mr. Bland, Mr. Cary, Mr. Digges, Mr. Nelson, Mr. Jones, and Mr. John Walker.

Saturday, June 17, 15 Geo. III, 1775.

Ordered, That this House be called over upon Monday next.

The Order of the Day being read, for the House to resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole House to consider further of the Bill for appointing Commissioners to settle the Accounts of the Militia lately drawn out into actual service, and for making provision to pay the same,

The House resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Bland took the chair of the Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

Mr. Bland reported from the Committee that they had gone through the Bill, and made several amendments thereunto, which they had directed him to report when the House will please to receive the same.

Ordered, That the Report be now received.

Mr. Bland accordingly reported from the said Committee the amendments which the Committee had made to the Bill, and which they had directed him to report to the House; and he read the Report in his place, and afterwards delivered the Bill, with the amendments, in at the Clerk's table, where the amendments were once read throughout, and then a second time, one by one; and, upon the question severally put thereupon, one of them was disagreed to, and the rest were, with amendments to several of them, agreed to by the House; and several amendments were made by the House to the Bill.

Ordered, That the Bill, with the amendments, be engrossed.

Mr. Mercer reported from the Committee, appointed on Wednesday, the seventh of this instant, June, to draw up an Address to be presented to the Governour, that the Committee had drawn up an Address accordingly, which they had directed him to report to the House; and he read the same in his place, and afterwards delivered it in at the Clerk's table, where the same was read, and is as followeth, viz:

MY LORD: We, His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Burgesses of Virginia, return your Lordship our sincere thanks for your kind tender of services expressed in your Message to this House of the 6th instant; as also for your Lordship's assurance that you will do every thing in your power to restore the publick tranquillity, upon a sure and firm foundation. This House, my Lord, have the highest sense of the services you rendered to this Country on the late Indian expedition; and, while they reflect on this part of your Lordship's conduct, sincerely lament that any event should disturb the happiness which your Lordship is pleased to say you have enjoyed among us. Wishing most ardently for a restoration of that harmony which subsisted between your Lordship and the People, we have directed an inquiry into the cause of the late disturbances and commotions which have arisen in some parts of this Colony; and we assure your Lordship that we will proceed to investigate this matter with due attention, and apply, on our parts, remedies the best our abilities can suggest.

The said Address being read a second time,

Resolved, That the House doth agree with the Committee in the said Address to be presented to the Governour.

Ordered, That the said Address be presented to his Excellency by Mr. Cary, Mr. Braxton, Mr. Wood, Mr. Jones, and Mr. Zane.

A Message from the Council by Mr. Blair:

MR. SPEAKER: The Council do agree to join with this House in an Address to his Excellency the Governour, as this House have desired, concerning the locks taken off some of the Guns in the Magazine, and they have appointed two of their Members, to join the Members which may be appointed by this House, to prepare the same.

And then the Messenger withdrew.

Ordered, That Mr. Mercer, Mr. Cary, Mr. Munford, and Mr. Jones, do join the Members appointed by the Council to prepare the said Address.

Mr. Mercer reported from the Committee appointed yesterday to draw up an Address, upon the Resolution of this House, to be presented to the Governour, that the Committee had drawn up an Address accordingly, which they had directed him to report to the House; and he read the same in his place, and afterwards delivered it in at the Clerk's table, where the same was read, and is as followeth:

MY LORD: We, His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Burgesses of Virginia, beg leave to inform your Lordship that the publick Magazine is now repaired, and in fit condition for the reception of arms and ammunition. We therefore request your Lordship will be pleased to order the powder lately removed from thence to be returned, agreeable to your Lordship's promise contained in your written message to this House. We farther beg leave to inform your Lordship, that it appears to the House, from the report of their Committee appointed to inspect the publick magazine, that there are no arms therein fit for service, at this critical time. My Lord, when your Excellency assures us of the great probability of an Indian invasion, at a time, too, when an insurrection of our slaves may be encouraged merely from a notoriety of a total deficiency in our publick stores of arms and ammunition, it is a duty we owe to our Country and ourselves, to remind your Lordship that the Legislature of this Colony have long since made ample provision for the purchase of arms and ammunition, and established a competent fund for that purpose, by granting to His Majesty one shilling and three pence sterling upon the tonnage of all vessels trading to this Country. This fund, my Lord, has, for several years last past, exceeded three thousand Pounds sterling per annum; and our predecessors, in former Assemblies, trusting that Government would always make a necessary and adequate provision in a matter so essential to the immediate and future preservation of this Colony, have not interfered in this business. But, my Lord, this House, finding a total inattention in Government to this important provision, although it must have appeared essential more than twelve months ago, and still observing that no means are pursued to supply a deficiency so alarming, now conceive it to be their duty, not only to represent this grievance to your Lordship, but also to request that you will be pleased to order that two thousand stand of arms, five tons of powder, and twenty tons of lead at least, with a sufficient quantity of other military stores, be immediately provided for the defence of this Colony, in case of any invasion or insurrection, and that the same be lodged in the publick magazine. In case the fund aforementioned shall prove deficient, this House assure your Lordship that they will make such further or other provision as may be necessary to enable your Lordship to comply with this request.

The said Address being read a second time,
Resolved, That the House doth agree with the Committee in the said Address to be presented to the Governour.

Ordered, That the said Address be presented to the Governour by Mr. Cary, Mr. Braxton, Mr. Wood, Mr. Jones, and Mr. Zane.

A Message from the Council by Mr. Blair:

MR. SPEAKER: The Council have agreed to the Address prepared by a Committee of the Council and of this House, and have appointed two of their Members to join such Members as this House may appoint to present the same to his Excellency.

And he presented the said Address at the bar.

And then the Messenger withdrew.

The said Address was read, and is as followeth, viz:

MY LORD: We, His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Council and Burgesses of Virginia, beg leave to represent to your Excellency, that as you have been pleased to leave the Palace, we are very apprehensive the publick Arms therein are too insecure and very much exposed, and therefore hope your Lordship will be pleased to order them to be removed, during your Lordship's absence, to the publick magazine; which is now, in our opinion, a secure depository.

Resolved, That this House doth agree with the Council in the said Address to be presented to the Governour.

Ordered, That the said Address be presented to his Excellency by Mr. Cary, Mr. Braxton, Mr. Wood, Mr. Jones, and Mr. Zane, in conjunction with the Members appointed by the Council.

Monday, June 19, 15 Geo. III, 1775.

The Order of the Day being read,

Ordered, That the call of the House be adjourned till to-morrow.

Mr. Bland presented to the House copies of several Resolutions of the General Congress, which he delivered in at the Clerk's table; where the same were read, and are as followeth, viz:

"Wednesday, May 17.—That all exportations to Quebeck, Nova-Scotia, the Island of St. John's, Newfoundland, and Georgia, except the Parish of St. John's, and to East and West-Florida, immediately cease; and that no Provisions of any kind, or other necessities, be furnished to the British Fisheries on the American coasts, until it be otherwise determined by the Congress."

"Monday, May 29.—That no Provisions or necessities of any kind be exported to the Island of Nantucket, except from the Colony of Massachusetts-Bay, the Convention of which Colony is desired to take measures for effectually providing the said Island, upon their application to purchase the same, with as much Provision as shall be necessary for its internal use, and no more. The Congress deeming it of great importance to North America that the British Fishery should not be furnished with Provisions from this Continent through Nantucket, earnestly recommend a vigilant execution of this Resolye to all Committees."

"Friday, June 2.—That no Bill of Exchange, Draught, or Order of any Officer in the Army or Navy, their Agents or Contractors, be received or negotiated, or any Money be supplied to them by any person in America; that no Provisions or necessities of any kind, be furnished or supplied to or for the use of the British Army or Navy in the Colony of Massachusetts-Bay, and that no Vessel employed in transporting British Troops to America, or from one part of North America to another, or warlike Stores or Provisions for said Troops, be freighted or furnished with Provisions, or any necessities, until further orders from this Congress."

The said Resolutions being read a second time,

Resolved, That this House doth approve of the same, and recommend it to the several Committees within this Colony for carrying into execution the Continental Association, to be vigilant in seeing the said Resolutions strictly complied with.

Mr. Treasurer reported, from the Committee appointed on Thursday last to draw up an Address to be presented to the Governour, that the Committee had drawn up an Address accordingly; which they had directed him to report to the House; and he read the same in his place, and afterwards delivered it in at the Clerk's table, where the same was read, and is as followeth, viz:

MY LORD: The House of Burgesses received your Lordship's written Message of the tenth instant, in answer to the joint Address of His Majesty's Honourable Council and this House, with equal concern and amazement. We were totally unprepared for so severe and cruel a return to the respectful application made to your Lordship, solely dictated by our duty to His Majesty, and the most earnest desire of contributing every thing in our power towards promoting, as well your Lordship's own happiness, as that of your lady and whole family; this step we hoped would have proved the happy means of restoring that tranquillity and harmony you were pleased to flatter us with your earnest wishes to have established.

Who were the peculiar objects of your tenderness, that you so kindly, in favour to them, declined a particular enumeration, we know not; but are sorry that your Lordship had so little feeling for the honour and integrity of this House. You have now, my Lord, driven us to the disagreeable necessity of inquiring minutely into the causes of the late disturbances in this Country. It is not with the most distant inclination to give your Lordship the slightest umbrage that we engage in so irksome a task, but purely to do justice to our much injured Country, that we recur to different and some distant transactions.

The charges of disloyalty and disaffection in our countrymen to our most gracious Sovereign and his Government, as insinuated in your Lordship's message, and some other publick acts, are as grievous as they are unmerited. Words, we know, are too often but empty sounds. We appeal not to our professions, however sincere, but to facts of publick notoriety. The loyalty of this His Majesty's most ancient Colony, stands confessed, as recorded by many of your worthy predecessors. We will presume to carry your attention no further back than to the administration of a Governour immediately preceding your Lordship. Previous to his coming over to Virginia, there had arisen some unhappy disputes between Great Britain and the Colonies. His Majesty was graciously pleased to send over to us, from his immediate presence, the truly noble Lord Botetourt, who told us, that he had received it in command from His Majesty to do justice, and maintain the rights of all his subjects. He cheerfully entered upon the duties of his exalted station, in which he acted as a true representative of his royal master, at once supporting the dignity of his Crown, dispensing the utmost justice, and diffusing benevolence throughout the Country. By his exemplary conduct in all respects, he accomplished what he deemed a glorious work: he gave us tranquillity and happiness. Indeed, he was often heard to declare, that the business of a Governour of Virginia was much easier than he could have conceived, as he found that the Government almost executed itself. Matters were not at that time carried on and precipitated with so high a hand on the other side of the water, as at present. This probably was owing to his minutely examining every subject to the bottom himself—taking nothing upon trust; to his discountenancing tale-bearers and malicious informers; and, at last, making a faithful representation of things as he found them. In a short, too short a time, for the happiness of Virginia, it pleased God to remove him from us.

When we received the account of your Lordship's appointment, we indulged the pleasing hope that we should again be made happy in a ruler; and when you were pleased to honour us with your presence, we vied with each other in endeavouring to make your administration easy and agreeable. Upon the report that your lady and family were coming over to you, every one, we believe, who heard it, was eager in expectation of an event which was like to give addition to your happiness; we received her Ladyship and your children with every expression of heartfelt joy, and have considered our countrymen as exceedingly happy in having such respectable pledges amongst them.

Changes, my Lord, seldom happen without some sufficient cause. If, therefore, you have, or think you have, discovered any alteration in the sentiments or behaviour of those you preside over, it may be worth your while, as well as ours, to search out the reason of it. Respect, my Lord, is not to be obtained by force from a free people. If genuine, it must be a perfect volunteer; and nothing is so likely to ensure it to one in your station as dignity of character, a candid and exemplary conduct. We decline, on this occasion, a discussion of the subject unhappily in dispute between Great Britain and the Colonies. We presume not to interfere with your authority in summoning or dissolving Assemblies, when, by advice of your Council, you think there is proper occasion. What we claim as an act of justice, is, that our conduct should be fairly and impartially represented to our Sovereign. We do not mean to insinuate that your Lordship would, designedly, misrepresent facts; but it is much to be feared that you too easily give credit to some designing persons, who, to the great injury of this community, possess much too large a share of your confidence.

We have seen, my Lord, the copy of a letter you were pleased to write to the Earl of Dartmouth, dated the 29th of May, 1774. The design of the then Assembly was entirely misconceived, and the ill impressions your Lordship's letter may have made on the minds of His Majesty and his Ministers, prove how dangerous it is, and how very unjust it may be, to attempt penetrating the thoughts of others, when they are not certainly known. Suspicions, we humbly conceive, can never justify direct and positive accusations. Men, we know, differ in religious sentiments; some may believe in the superintendence of a Providence, and that the care, especially of Nations, is an object of Divine goodness; whilst others may think, or affect to treat this, as well as other matters which our religion teaches, as things merely chimerical. We have likewise seen an authentick copy of extracts of another of your Lordship's letters to the same noble Earl, dated the 24th of December, 1774. The more injurious the unfavourable representations contained in this letter were likely to be to this Country, the more careful we should have hoped your Lordship would have been in examining the evidences of the facts stated. Your Lordship had been pleased to represent, in the first letter, our House of Burgesses as fond of having it thought that a determined resolution to deny and oppose the authority of Parliament, always originates with them. Whether this was intended to draw down the particular resentment of Parliament on this Country, your Lordship can best determine. They have, indeed, protested against the power of Parliament, when they thought it extended contrary to the principles of the Constitution; but we do not know that they ever affected to take the lead of the other Colonies in this, or any other measure. The times of entering their protestations were merely accidental, as circumstances happened; and it is notorious, that the subject of the present complaint had been under the consideration of some of the other Colonies before the Virginians took it up.

It would seem, from your Lordship's letter of the 24th of December, that the Association adopted by the General Congress was first recommended from Virginia; whereas the truth is, that in Virginia nothing more was resolved against, at first, than the importation and use of East-India commodities. The General Non-Export and Non-Import Agreement came first recommended to us from several of the Northern Colonies; this, we own, makes no difference now, as the several Colonies have united in the Association. It is only remarked, since this circumstance seems to have been thought material, as no strong testimony of a kind disposition in your Lordship towards this Country. That Committees were chosen, in the several Counties, is admitted: the design of them was to observe the conduct of those who were inimical to the interest of the Country. They were required to publish the names of all transgressors, that the Country might know their friends from their foes. This you were pleased to term "inviting the vengeance of a lawless mob to be exercised upon the unhappy victims."

You further represented these Committees as assuming an authority to inspect the books, invoices, and all the secrets of the trade and correspondence of merchants. This, my Lord, was high colouring of assumed facts; which we, who inhabit different parts of the Country, are strangers to. To close your narrative upon this head, you were pleased to inform your noble correspondent, that every "County in this Colony was arming a company of men, whom they call an Independent Company, for the avowed purpose of protecting their Committees, and to be employed against Government, if occasion required; and that the Committee of one County had proceeded so far as to swear the men of their independent company to execute all orders which should be given them from their Committee." These, my Lord, are things entirely without our knowledge; and upon the strictest inquiry, we are convinced they deserve no credit. There were a few companies of gentlemen formed, who were desirous of perfecting themselves in military exercise; but we find not more than six or seven throughout the whole Colony, which consists of sixty-one Counties. This was done to distinguish them from the militia at large; the first and most considerable of these, was instituted for the better protection of the inhabitants of Norfolk Borough, and afterwards received your Lordship's approbation so far that you expressed the warmest wishes that the example might be followed throughout the country, and gave commissions to their officers. That these companies were connected with the Committees, or that they were ever designed to act against, or in any sort to interfere with, what you are pleased to call Government, we do not know, or believe; but, on the contrary, we are verily persuaded that they were always ready and willing to exert themselves to support the Laws and His Majesty's Government, to the utmost of their power.

Your Lordship's assertion, that "the power of Government was entirely disregarded, if not wholly overturned, and that there was not a Justice of the Peace in Virginia who acted except as a Committee-man," we cannot but consider as highly unjust, and extremely injurious to us. We have the greatest reason to believe, having it in full proof, that the Magistrates throughout the Colony duly attended their respective Courts; and though, for the reasons assigned in our former Address to your Lordship, they could not think themselves legally authorized to hear and determine civil suits, yet we are persuaded, that their former endeavours to preserve the peace and good order of Government were not interrupted, but exerted in the usual manner. The original cause of suspending the trials of civil disputes was, as your Lordship observes, the want of a Fee-Bill. This legal defect was much lamented, and not used, that we know of, as a popular argument, by any man of good sense; nor did the inhabitants of this Country join in what you are pleased to call an opprobrious measure, to engage their "English creditors to join the clamours of this Country." Your Lordship's assertion, that "not a few did it to avoid paying their debts, in which many of the principal people here are much involved," we can only answer for ourselves in the negative; and must consider so indiscriminate a charge as extremely injurious. We were so far from desiring to do injustice to creditors, that it gave us great pain to observe that such a step was thought necessary; and nothing but the hopes of being relieved from the arbitrary system of Colony Government attempted to be introduced, could have prevailed with us to submit to a stoppage of our exports. The merchants of London, in their written message, by a respectable member of their body, to the Committee of the House of Commons, have done us ample justice in this respect, by representing, that they should have no uneasiness about remittances from America, unless Parliament pursued such means as were likely to prevent them.

The Congress, my Lord, we consider as instituted on principles of publick necessity; we do not deny our having a proper respect for that body. We learn, from good authority, that their humble and dutiful Petition to His Majesty was graciously received, though it is with concern we are told it has hitherto produced no good effect. But that the inhabitants of Virginia treated with "marks of reverence the laws of the Congress, which they never bestowed on their legal Government, or the laws proceeding from it," is one of a great number of facts requiring proof; since we must take leave to say, with confidence, that His Majesty's subjects of Virginia have been second to none others, even to his dutiful and loyal subjects in any part of his wide extended Dominions, in all due respect to his Government, Governours, and all in authority under him.

We cannot but remind your Lordship of the General Congress held in America, with the royal approbation, in the last war. The united interest, indeed, of Great Britain and the Colonies, might have then demanded it. In imitation of so laudable an example, America resolved on a like measure, as equally, if not more necessary, at this critical juncture. Your Lordship's account of the effects the Association is likely to produce, considering it as a matter of opinion, we are little concerned to interfere with: time only can discover the consequences of it. But your heavy charge against those called people of fortune, "that they supply themselves and negroes for two or three years, to the distress of the middling and poorer sort," must have proceeded from your giving too easy credit to ill-founded reports. Some, but very few, may have supplied themselves, as opportunity offered, for the present year; this, we believe, is the most that has been done. And we are persuaded of a material mistake in another respect, it being the general opinion, founded on good grounds, that the middling and poorer sort will fare much better than those of fortune, who have large numbers of slaves to provide for. Engaged on this topic, we cannot refrain from observing how strangely our views have been misrepresented. By the Association we intend nothing that is illegal. We are only resolved to be content with our homespun manufactures, however mean in quality, unless things can be restored to their former channel; the only security we desire for what we know our excellent Constitution entitles us to. What your Lordship is pleased to represent as the arbitrary proceedings of the Committees, we trust will produce none of those very dreadful effects you have painted in such alarming colours. The whole Colony, very few excepted, is united; and from such union of sentiments, expectations must be exceedingly sanguine, indeed, in supposing that discord will arise.

How the proceedings of the General Convention, in the month of March last, may have been represented, we know not; but, from the foregoing specimens, it is to be presumed in no very favourable light. These meetings, my Lord, unless it can be supposed that a whole Country could entirely lose sight of its security and most essential interests, were rendered absolutely necessary; first, by the dissolution, and afterwards by repeated prorogations of the General Assembly. Upon inquiry into the state of the Colony, it was found that there had been almost a total inattention to the proper training and disciplining of our Militia. Various subsequent Acts of our Legislature, amendatory of the law of 1738, had expired; the Act providing against invasions and insurrections was near expiring, and it was uncertain whether an opportunity would be given the General Assembly to revive it. Taking a further view of our situation, it was found that our inhabitants were exposed to the incursions of a barbarous and savage enemy. From the best accounts received from Great Britain, there was too much reason to be convinced that His Majesty's Ministry were prosecuting the most rigorous and arbitrary measures towards subjugating the whole Continent of America to their despotick rule; which measures, it was more than probable, had been suggested from hence, and the other Colonies: that a scheme, the most diabolical, had been meditated and generally recommended by a person of great influence, to offer freedom to our slaves, and turn them against their masters. The Convention, to guard against these dangers not clearly seen into before that time, recommended a strict attention to the Militia Law of 1738; but, thinking this defective in many essential points, and considering that, under this law, the whole Militia were not obliged to exercise so frequently as might be necessary, it was recommended that volunteer companies should be formed in each County, for the better defence and protection of the whole Country. These proceedings, according to an usual style, it is more than probable, have been represented as designed to oppose Government: whereas, we are persuaded that nothing was farther from the intentions of the Convention. A review of their resolutions must convince every unprejudiced mind that the utmost respect was paid to His Majesty and his legal Government, and that the Convention had much pleasure in expressing their obligations to your Lordship for your late services. The truth is, my Lord, that His Majesty's dutiful subjects in this Colony have the utmost attachment to their Sovereign; they admire, they love the Constitution, and will risk every thing most dear and valuable in support of it. These are principles imbibed in their infancy, and their constant care is to inculcate them upon the minds of their children; they meditate or design nothing in the least offensive; but, if it is expected that they should sit down supinely, and submit to yokes which neither they nor their forefathers were able to bear, they must acknowledge that they have the sensibility and feelings of freemen actuating them to a proper and justifiable defence of those rights which are guarantied by the laws and principles of the Constitution.

We have, my Lord, made the strictest and minutest inquiry into the causes of the late disturbances. We find, from the examination of many respectable merchants, natives of Great Britain residing in different parts of this Colony, and from other gentlemen of character, that the Country was in a perfect state of tranquillity till they received an account of your Lordship's removal of the gunpowder from the publick magazine to one of His Majesty's ships-of-war, and of your irritating and most unjustifiable threats.

The inhabitants of this Country, my Lord, could not be strangers to the many attempts in the Northern Colonies to disarm the people, and thereby deprive them of the only means of defending their lives and property. We know, from good authority, that the like measures were generally recommended by the Ministry, and that the export of powder from Great Britain had been prohibited. Judge, then, how very alarming the removal of the small stock which remained in the publick magazine for the defence of the Country, and the stripping the guns of their locks, must have been to any people who had the smallest regard for their security; the manner and time of doing it, made no small addition to the general apprehension of your Lordship's views. The reason assigned by your Lordship for taking this step, we should have thought the most likely, at any other time, to have directed a very different conduct. We should have supposed that a well-grounded apprehension of an insurrection of the slaves ought to have called forth the utmost exertions to suppress it. The world will probably judge your Lordship's method of doing this the least likely to effect the necessary purpose. Your Lordship having represented this powder as the King's peculiar property, supposing it to have been brought from one of his ships, we have made inquiry into that matter, and cannot find that there ever was any powder brought either from the Rippon or any other man-of-war; so that we presume your Lordship must have been misinformed as to this fact since the powder was removed, as it was not relied on in your answer to the Address of the Corporation of the City of Williamsburgh; be this, however, as it may, we conceive the case would not be materially altered. We must remind your Lordship, that by a very ancient law of this Country, enacted so long since as the thirty-second year of the reign of His Majesty King Charles the Second, for raising a publick revenue, and for the better support of this Government, amongst other provisions, an impost of one-half pound of gunpowder and three pounds of leaden shot, or one shilling and three pence sterling, was imposed on all ships or vessels coming into this Colony. In the ninth year of the reign of Queen Anne, the impost of one shilling and three pence on the tonnage of vessels was continued, for port duties. It is evident, my Lord, that the original and chief design of this particular impost was to provide, from time to time, a proper stock of munition for the defence of the Country. We have examined the produce of this fund for thirteen years past, and find that it yielded in that time twenty-eight thousand five hundred and three pounds, three shillings and nine pence sterling; which, on an average, amounted to two thousand one hundred ninety-two pounds eleven shillings sterling per annum; and it is observable, that for the four last years it yielded considerably more than three thousand pounds in each year. It may from hence be fairly submitted, whether it was not incumbent on the Executive part of Government to have provided, in the first place, from so large and ample a fund, a proper stock of arms and ammunition, which was so essentially necessary for the security of the Country. If, my Lord, instead of applying a reasonable part of this money to such necessary purposes, the whole has been applied to other occasions of Government, and powder and arms had been procured through some other channel, we should presume that these, when stored in the publick magazine, built at the expense of the Country, and appropriated to the safe keeping of all military stores, ought there to have remained till the exigencies of the Country demanded them.

We find, my Lord, that the inhabitants of the City of Williamsburgh, in the midst of which the magazine is situated, upon discovering that the powder was removed, the time and manner of its being done—in the dead of the night, under an escort of armed marines, commanded by Captain Henry Collins, of the Magdalen—were exceedingly alarmed; that many of them were so exasperated that they had recourse to arms, intending, as we understand, to compel Captain Collins to restore the powder; but we cannot discover that the least insult was intended to your Lordship. We find that the Corporation of Williamsburgh presented a decent and very respectful address to your Excellency, desiring that you would be pleased to order the powder to be returned; and, on receipt of your verbal answer, amongst other things avowing that it had been removed by your orders, under which Captain Collins had acted, and promising it should be returned in case of an insurrection, the people assembled were soon appeased, returned quietly to their respective homes, and perfect tranquillity was restored in the City. That in the succeeding night, on a report that a number of armed men had landed at a ferry about four miles from this City, the inhabitants were again much alarmed; but, upon the interposition of some gentlemen, they were quieted, and nothing farther was done than strengthening the usual patrol for the security of the City. We farther find, that on the next day, when every thing was perfectly quiet, your Lordship sent a message into the City by one of the Magistrates, which you delivered with the most solemn asseverations, that if any insult was offered to Captain Foy or Captain Collins, you would declare freedom to the slaves, and lay the Town in ashes; and that you could easily depopulate the whole Country. What could have provoked your Lordship to this we cannot discover, as both Captain Foy and Captain Collins, and several other officers, had been frequently seen walking publicly in the streets, and no one offered either of them the least injury; nor can we discover any reason to believe that any thing of the sort was intended. The inhabitants, my Lord, could not but be exceedingly alarmed at so cruel a threat; many people considered it as part of that general plan they had heard was recommended in England, and which was discovered by your Lordship through accident; they, however, did nothing more, than we can learn, than continue their former patrols.

A report of these several matters having soon circulated throughout almost the whole Country, with this addition, that the most valuable guns in the magazine had been stripped of their locks, and that the inhabitants of Williamsburgh were in the most imminent danger, the minds of the people in general were much agitated; they assembled in different quarters, and a number of expresses were sent to inquire and obtain a true state of things. It appears that during this general uneasiness, an account was received from the northward of the engagement at Concord. The General, it seems, had sent an armed force to seize a Provincial magazine; this, your Lordship may suppose, increased the apprehensions of our people, as it held out to them an additional proof that the steps you had taken formed a part of that general system adopted to render the Colonies defenceless. If, upon such alarms, when the minds of the people were fretted to an extreme degree, some irregularities were committed, the causes may be found in those extraordinary attempts to stretch the powers of Government so much beyond their ancient and constitutional limits.

It gave the greatest concern, my Lord, to all acquainted with your most amiable lady and her distinguished character, to hear she had removed with her children to one of the King's Ships. We have inquired into the cause of this; and though we do not pretend to prescribe to her ladyship, yet we are persuaded, that had she known the sentiments of all the people in this Colony, every uneasiness would have been removed. We find, my Lord, that from the great pains taken by the Magistrates, and other inhabitants of the City of Williamsburgh, there could have been no real ground for fear at the time of her ladyship's removal, unless it was produced from your Lordship's threats, which might have kept the minds of some of the citizens in suspense. A few ladies, it appears, left the City; but it was not through apprehensions of any other danger than what your Lordship held over them. The inhabitants certainly could have entertained no suspicions of injury from their friends in the country, who had kindly offered to come to their assistance; so that it was in the power of your Lordship alone to have removed her ladyship's uneasiness.

It gives us the greatest pain, my Lord, to find, in your Excellency's Message, so determined a resolution to pursue a course the most likely to revive the uneasiness of the people, and prevent that restoration of harmony so ardently wished for by all good men.

You are pleased to submit to our "judgment, whether you could reasonably have expected any good effect from communicating the ground of your uneasiness to us." We give it as our opinion, that your Lordship had the greatest reason, if you had viewed our conduct in its proper light, to have expected the best effects from such communication. As we met your Lordship in General Assembly with the sincerest disposition to do every thing in our power to provide for the tranquillity of the Country, the reasons assigned for your contrary apprehensions, we are persuaded, must have been suggested to your Lordship by some designing, malevolent informer. We can hardly suppose your Lordship could have had any well-grounded fear of personal danger, when it is notorious that you appeared publicly as usual; and it is in proof, that in the same night which you left the Palace, you walked alone to the Attorney General's, at the distance of upwards of a quarter of a mile, and returned, unmolested; and we cannot discover that even the slightest insult was offered. If you judge of the disposition of the House of Burgesses, as to publick matters, from their declining to accept an invitation to dine with your Lordship, (the instance of respect and civility alluded to, and which you say you had been forward in offering to them,) you have entirely mistaken their motives. A piece of civility of this sort had formerly its due weight with us; but we had little reason to suppose that such a ceremony would, at this time, be attended, on your Lordship's part, with that cordiality which we thought we had observed on former occasions. How could your Lordship think of admitting to your table a set of men who, together with the whole body of their constituents, you had endeavoured to paint in such despicable and odious colours? That the House of Burgesses ever countenanced the violent and disorderly proceedings of the people, we must, in justice to ourselves, take leave to deny. As to the magazine's being rifled, which you are pleased to insinuate was done with the approbation of this House, we must say, that in this also the greatest injustice is done to us. The House was sitting, closely engaged in publick business, when this affair happened. Some of our members, as we believe the truth is, upon hearing what was going forward at the magazine, went up in hopes of preventing it. We are informed that a great concourse of people, from different parts of the country, were assembled, and that many of the arms had been taken out of the magazine. Several of the members, as private gentlemen, remonstrated with all the people they met with against such proceedings, and prevailed with them to return what they had taken. When your Lordship was pleased to accuse the House of Burgesses of usurping the "Executive power," from what happened on this occasion, we presume it would have been well to have considered with what propriety they could have interfered. Had they made an order for apprehending the persons concerned, who were unknown, it would have been fruitless, and, moreover, a plain departure from the line of their authority. Such a step your Lordship might, indeed, have justly censured as an usurpation of the Executive power. Or, would your Lordship have recommended to the individual members to have acted as bailiffs, in seizing all offenders they met with? We never have, nor will we ever give countenance to such unjustifiable proceedings as happened that day.

Your acquaintance, my Lord, with mankind, must suggest to you the difficulty there is in restraining an incensed multitude. Many people, the irritation of whose minds had but lately subsided, we understand, had been again greatly alarmed at a late unfortunate accident which happened to some inconsiderate young men, in their unlawful attempt to furnish themselves with arms out of the magazine; an attempt, my Lord, which we condemn as highly as your Lordship can. But whether some little apology may not be suggested, from that universal anxiety which all mankind have to prepare for the defence of their lives and property, we will not determine. The point is delicate, and we leave the world to judge of it. But the means contrived, in pursuance of your Lordship's orders, by which an unfortunate culprit might probably have been hurried into eternity, without a moment's time for reflection, we conceive can do no great honour to humanity, which, we should have supposed, would have dictated the necessity of at least giving public notice that spring-guns were prepared and fixed, which, it is imagined, would have answered every purpose of security to the magazine.

Your Lordship's reflections on our Committee, and, through them, upon this whole House, we think might have been spared, after what passed early in the session. Had the Committee misbehaved, we should not have been backward in taking proper notice of it. When we received your Lordship's very temperate message respecting their conduct, we addressed your Excellency, in hopes, by having matters properly explained, of removing all umbrage you might have taken. Your Lordship's reply to this message induced us to believe that you were satisfied; but it seems we must again enter on the same subject, or remain exposed to the weight of your Lordship's censure.

Reflecting on what had happened, the House judged it an indispensable duty they owed their constituents, to inquire into the state of the publick magazine; and, before they knew of the late disturbances, appointed a Committee for that purpose. The Committee, previous to their taking any other step, waited upon your Excellency, and in the most respectful manner desired that you would be pleased to direct the keeper of the magazine to give them access thereto. The key was delivered to them by your Lordship's orders; they at the same time informed your Excellency of the confusion that had happened; and that they had, to prevent the like depredations, requested some gentlemen of the Town to guard the magazine, till proper measures could be taken for its further security, which your Lordship did not make the least objection to. There had been, by your Excellency's permission, a considerable quantity of copper money, belonging to the country, lodged in the magazine. This was an additional reason for the Committee's taking a precaution which your Lordship is pleased to call "ordering and appointing guards, without consulting you, to mount in the City of Williamsburgh," and a design to usurp the "Executive power." The Committee did not pretend to any authority to mount guard; and had your Lordship disliked what they thought a prudent step in the then confused state of things, it would have been kind in your Lordship to have intimated as much. Upon the Committee's inquiry, they found, indeed, that there was little worth guarding in the magazine, the powder having been all removed, except about five half barrels, buried, by your Excellency's order, in the yard, for what purpose we cannot conceive, and all the valuable muskets having been spoiled of their locks.

Your Lordship speaks of a body of men assembled in the City of Williamsburgh, not only to the "knowledge, but with the approbation of every body, for the avowed purpose of attacking a party of the King's forces, which it was reported, though without foundation, was marching to your Lordship's protection." We know of no men, my Lord, assembled for the purpose you mention, though you are pleased to say it was done with the "knowledge and approbation of every body," in which number we suppose the House of Burgesses were particularly designed to be included. Upon the best information, the truth appears to be this: An account was brought into the City in the morning, that Captain Collins, of the Magdalen, had slipped his cable; and was come up the river with a number of boats, in which there were said to be a hundred armed men at least, intended to be marched into the City. It could not be conceived what was proposed by this manoeuvre:

the City was quiet, and we believe no man in it suspected that your Lordship could have the least apprehension that your person was in danger; nor had we the smallest suspicion of your fears, till the receipt of your former message, acquainting us of your removal. The citizens, however, as well as others, were astonished, and somewhat alarmed, not knowing what was intended. Your Lordship may remember, that His Majesty's Council, from their address to your Excellency, were not without their apprehensions. A number of the inhabitants, and we suppose some others, but how many we know not, assembled under arms, that they might be prepared to defend the City and its inhabitants, in case any thing hostile should be attempted. This, we are convinced, was their only view. Upon their being made acquainted with your Lordship's answer to the Council, we understood that they all immediately retired peaceably and quietly, without any disturbance. The City was again at rest, and continued composed till they heard of your Lordship's removal, with your family, in the dead of night, as if you could have supposed that any one would have attempted to offer you any obstruction, or to interfere with your inclination. This extraordinary step, which none could account for, occasioned great consternation in the City, and we believe would surprise the whole world, were they acquainted with it.

We have already, my Lord, in a former address, of which, according to custom, a copy was left with you, and which you directed to have presented on a certain day, long since passed, without your giving us an opportunity of doing it, assigned the reasons why we could not interpose our legislative authority respecting the Courts of Justice.

The occasion and design of forming Independent Companies at first, and the rise of Volunteer Companies afterwards, we have already explained, and cannot see the necessity of abolishing them. They are not designed to interfere with your Lordship's full exercise of the legal and constitutional powers of your Government, which we would wish to have supported on all occasions; and are of opinion, that the laws in force are competent to that end. But if it is expected that the Country should again be thrown into a defenceless state, self-preservation, the first law of nature, forbids it. If your Lordship were really apprehensive that your person was in danger, the tender of the Council and this House, of their most effectual assistance to remove every appearance of risk, we were hopeful would have quieted all your fears. A proper guard, at the publick expense, would have been at your service, had you judged it necessary. Your Lordship's declining to propose such a measure as we, consistent with our own security, could accept, and demanding what you must have known was not in our power to comply with, affords no strong evidence of your inclination to restore tranquillity to this Country. Those who have taken any of His Majesty's publick store of arms, are open to the law, which has its full operation as heretofore; and we wish not to interrupt its course. But surely your Lordship cannot expect us, by any new act, which would be ex post facto in the most odious sense of the words, to inflict other pains and penalties for offences already committed. This, we conceive, would be the greatest infringement of a fundamental principle of our excellent Constitution. Such a practice may, indeed, have obtained under another meridian, but it is not, my Lord, of American growth. Whether that spirit of persecution, which your Lordship has been pleased to describe, prevails in this Country, we appeal to the evidence which appears on our Journals. Were those, and those only, to be considered as persecuted men, who, from principles and duty, are attached to their King and his Government, we ourselves, my Lord, should fall under this predicament, and perhaps may, with justice, think humanity disgraced by such proceedings. That some few people may have been deluded, we shall not question. The utmost pains, we know, have been taken, in different Colonies, to alarm them with the "disfigured side of the American" story, and to render them deaf and blind to their true interest and political salvation. So far as our example can influence the people of this Country in preserving their loyalty to His Majesty, a proper respect to Government, and the good order of society, your Lordship may be assured that it shall be made as diffusive as possible.

We have, my Lord, the sincerest and most active desire to seize every opportunity of establishing the freedom of our Country upon a fixed "known foundation," and of uniting ourselves with our fellow-subjects of Great Britain in one common bond of interest and affection; but we have no "doubts" of what such freedom consists in; it is written as with a sun-beam on our hearts. We are equally sensible of those essentials which alone can admit us to the participation of a just proportion of the common interest; but for the variety of cogent reasons assigned in our address in answer to your Lordship's speech, we cannot view the proposal of the House of Commons in the same light your Lordship seems to do.

The important business of the Assembly, my Lord, has been not a little interrupted by your Excellency's removal from the proper seat of your Government. As to your Lordship's offer, that we might adjourn to the Town of York, we think this would be extremely improper, on several accounts: The Town of York could not afford tolerable accommodation for so numerous an assembly; and, what is of more consequence, we humbly conceive, that this, and this place alone is established by law for holding our General Assemblies. If there are any hopes left of your Excellency's compliance, we must reiterate our request, that you will be pleased to return, with your family, to the Palace, for the reasons assigned in our former address. We feel most sensibly the disagreeable situation your excellent lady must be in. But if, after all, your Lordship is determined to persist in your resolution of absence, we must endeavour to rest satisfied, conscious that, whilst we have been solicitous to do justice to our constituents and ourselves, we have not been wanting in the respect which is due to the representative of our most gracious Sovereign.

We cannot, my Lord, but consider the Representatives of the body of the people, when convened in Assembly, as part of that great and general council which our Constitution hath fixed for advising our Governours in all matters respecting the publick weal. His Majesty's honourable Council are especially appointed for this purpose. They are well acquainted with our Constitution; their duty to His Majesty will urge them to support the prerogative of the Crown, at the same time that their justice should lead them to maintain the rights of the People. We, therefore, (sincerely regarding your Lordship's tranquillity and happiness; as well as the important interests of this whole community,) think ourselves loudly called upon to give it as our best advice, that your Lordship will be pleased to advise with your proper and constitutional Council, in all matters of importance, and not suffer yourself to be influenced by designing men; but that you will banish all such from your presence, as the greatest enemies to your own repose, and the real happiness of this extensive Country.

The said Address being read a second time,

Resolved nemine contradicente, That the House doth agree with the Committee in the said Address to be presented to the Governour.

Ordered, That the said Address be presented to his Excellency by Mr. Cary, Mr. Braxton, Mr. Wood, Mr. Jones, Mr. Zane, Mr. Page, and Mr. Berkeley.

Mr. Treasurer reported from the Committee, to whom the Bill for appointing Commissioners to ratify and confirm the late Treaty of Peace with the Ohio Indians was committed, that the Committee had gone through the Bill, and made several amendments thereto, which they had directed him to report to the House; and he read the Report in his place, and afterwards delivered the Bill with the amendments in at the Clerk's table, where the amendments were once read throughout, and then a second time, one by one, and upon the question severally put thereupon, were, with an amendment to one of them, agreed to by the House.

Ordered, That the Bill, with the amendments, be engrossed.

Mr. Braxton reported, from the Committee to whom the Bill for appointing an Agent was committed, that the Committee had gone through the Bill, and made an amendment thereunto, which they had directed him to report to the House; and he read the Report in his place, and afterwards delivered the Bill, with the amendment, in at the Clerk's table.

Ordered, That the said Report be taken into consideration to-morrow.

Tuesday, June 20, 15 Geo. III, 1775.

The Order of the Day being read, for taking into consideration the Report which was made from the Committee to whom the Bill for appointing an Agent was committed,

Ordered, That the said Report be taken into consideration to-morrow.

The other Order of the Day being read,

Ordered, That the call of the House be further adjourned till to-morrow.

A Message from the Council by Mr. Blair:

MR. SPEAKER: I am commanded by the Council to deliver to this House a Paper, which they have received from the Governour, as his Excellency's answer to the last joint Address of the Council and of this House. And he presented the said Paper at the bar.

And then the Messenger withdrew.

The said Paper was read, and is as followeth, viz:

Experience having shewn the insecurity of the publick Magazine, and the Palace having hitherto been respected, I think it improper to give any other orders than that the arms belonging to the King, which have for so many years been lodged, may still remain there, and that they may on no account be touched without my express permission.

Mr. Cary reported that the joint Address of the Council and this House of Saturday last, and the two Addresses of this House of the same day, and likewise the Address of yesterday to the Governour, had been severally presented to his Excellency, who directed him to acquaint the House that he had sent his answer to the first to the Council, and delivered to him two Papers in answer to the second and third Addresses; which Papers he delivered in at the Clerk's table, and which were read, and are in the words following, to wit:

This Address, acknowledging the highest sense of the services I rendered to this Country on the late Indian expedition, though late,* will still, I hope, do credit to the justice of the House of Burgesses.

As the care, custody, and disposal of publick stores of ammunition, belong alone to the King's representative, I cannot consent to return the powder, lately removed from the magazine, to Williamsburgh, which experience has demonstrated to me is an improper place for the residence of the Governour; therefore as I could not attend to its preservation, I could not consequently depend upon its being in security there. The powder in question, besides, you have already been acquainted, belonged to one of His Majesty's ships; I am therefore in a particular manner accountable for it; but, as I have before declared, I shall be ready to apply it, if I find it wanted, for the protection of the Colony.

The duty upon the tonnage of all vessels trading to this Colony has been applied, as I conceive the Act which imposes that duty authorizes, towards the regular and necessary charges of Government; which, without this fund, could not have been supported, and therefore requires it all. This Colony has hitherto been preserved from invasion and insurrection by the care and attention of Government; and you have a very late instance of its exertion, through the means of which the Country has been rescued from the destruction it was threatened with, which, as it proves the contrary of an inattention to any matters essential to the preservation of this Colony, so it exposes the injustice of your present attempt, if it does not induce you to forbear others, of bringing your legal and constitutional Government, at this unhappy conjuncture, into discredit among the people.

As to your request that I order a certain quantity of arms, powder, and other military stores, to be provided: when you have complied with the requisition submitted to your consideration, in consequence of the joint address of the Council and House of Burgesses, offering to concur in any measure proper for my security, which requisition has been taken no notice of; and when the legal executive power of Government is restored, and I may with certainty rely that arms, powder, and other military stores, will be employed no otherwise than as I shall direct, who, as His Majesty's representative, have the sole authority in the case, then I shall be happy, with the means you furnish me, to provide every thing; and I promise you no attention shall be neglected which may be requisite for securing the inhabitants of Virginia from invasion and insurrection.

* One cannot help remarking the injustice of this insinuation, for the Journal of the House of Burgesses proves the Resolution for the Address (to which the foregoing was intended as an answer) passed the House upon receipt of his Lordship's Message respecting the Powder, the day before he left the City; and the Gazette, published the day he went away, must have informed his Lordship of this generous disposition of the House. So, if the Address was really late, as his Lordship conceives, the reason must be found in his Lordship's going from the Seat of Government on board an armed vessel. — Vir. Gaz.

Ordered, That the said Papers in answer to the said Addresses, be taken into consideration to-morrow.

Mr. Cary also reported, that his Excellency directed him to acquaint the House, that he would send an answer to the last Address if he should find that it required one.

Ordered, That the thanks of this House be given to Captain James Innis, of the Volunteer Company of Williamsburgh, and the persons employed by him to guard the publick Magazine in this City, for the alacrity, fidelity, and activity with which they undertook and performed that service, and that Mr. Braxton do acquaint him therewith.

Wednesday, June 21, 15 Geo. III, 1775.

The House, according to order, proceeded to take into consideration the Papers sent by the Governour in answer to the Address of the Council and this House, and to the Addresses of this House.

And the said Papers were read.

Resolved, That a free conference be desired with the Council upon several important matters respecting the state of this Colony, and the subject-matter of his Excellency the Governour's Message in answer to the joint Address of the Council and this House.

Ordered, That Mr. Bland do go to the Council, and desire the said free conference.

A Message from the Council by Mr. Blair:

MR. SPEAKER: The Council do agree to the free conference desired by this House, and have appointed three of their Members, who are now ready in the Conference Chamber, to meet the Managers for this House.

And then the Messenger withdrew.

Ordered, That a Committee be appointed to manage the said conference.

And a Committee was appointed of Mr. Bland, Mr. Treasurer, Mr. Cary, Mr. Digges, Mr. Jones, and Mr. Nelson.

Ordered, That the said Managers for this House do lay before the Managers for the Council the several Depositions taken by order of this House upon the inquiry into the causes of the late disturbances, and that they communicate to them the Address of this House, requesting his Lordship to return the Powder removed from the publick Magazine, by his order, and that he would be pleased to provide a proper quantity of Arms and Ammunition for the necessary security and defence of this Country, together with his Lordship's Answer thereto. To propose to the Council to join this House in a proper Address to his Excellency, in reply to his Message in answer to their former joint Address, and also on the subject of the several Papers to be communicated to them. To represent to his Excellency how much the important business of the session hath been impeded by his removal from the Palace, by which the necessary and free access to his Lordship, which we conceive the Constitution entitles us to, hath been cut off in a great measure; that there are several bills of the last importance to this Country now ready to be presented to his Excellency for his assent, and that though both Houses, in hopes of preserving that harmony which they wish ever to subsist between the different branches of the Legislature, have hitherto submitted to the great inconvenience of travelling twelve miles, and going on board one of His Majesty's ships, to deliver their several Addresses, yet they think it would be highly improper, and a step not warranted by any principle of the Constitution, to present their bills in the same manner. That they therefore desire his Lordship will be pleased to meet them in the Capitol, or, if he is determined not to do this, that he would be pleased at least to come on shore, and they will wait upon his Excellency in Yorktown, upon having his pleasure signified to them. That as the advanced season of the year requires our speedy return to our several Counties, we hope his Lordship will be pleased to give us his ultimate answer, as soon as practicable.

Then the names of the Managers were called over; and they went to the conference.

And being returned,

Mr. Bland reported, that the Managers had been at the conference with the Council, and had laid before them the several depositions taken by order of this House upon the inquiry into the causes of the late disturbances, and communicated to them the Address of this House requesting his Lordship to return the Powder removed from the publick Magazine by his order, and that he would be pleased to provide a proper quantity of Arms and Ammunition for the necessary security and defence of this Country, together with his Lordship's answer thereto; and proposed to the Council to join this House in a proper Address to his Excellency, in reply to his Message in answer to their former joint Address, and also on the subject of the several Papers communicated to them. And that the Council agreed to join this House in the said Address, and that the managers for this House had drawn up a joint Address accordingly, which was carried to the Council for their concurrence.

A Message from the Council by Mr. Blair:

MR. SPEAKER: The Council have agreed to the joint Address to be presented to the Governour, prepared by the Committee of the Council and of this House. And he presented the said Address at the bar.

And then the Messenger withdrew.

The said Address was read, and is as followeth, viz:

To His Excellency the Right Honourable Earl of DUNMORE, His Majesty's Lieutenant-Governour, General, and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony and Dominion of VIRGINIA, and Vice-Admiral of the same:

The joint Address of the Council and House of Burgesses:

MY LORD: We, His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Council and House of Burgesses of Virginia, have received your Lordship's answer to our joint Address, by which we represented to your Excellency how very insecure we thought the publick arms in the Palace since your Lordship's removal from thence, and requested that your Lordship would be pleased to order them to be stored in the publick Magazine, judging this a repository of much greater security.

You are pleased to tell us that experience hath shewn the insecurity of the Magazine, and that as the Palace hath hitherto been respected, you thought it improper to give any other orders; that the arms belonging to the King, which have for so many years been lodged, may still remain in the Palace, and that they may on no account be touched without your express permission. Though these arms, my Lord, may be considered in some sort as belonging to His Majesty, as the supreme head of this Government, and that they are properly under your Lordship's direction, yet we humbly conceive that they were originally provided, and have been preserved for the use of the Country in case of emergency.

We would not wish to interfere with your Lordship's authority, (of this disposition we presume our former address afforded the strongest testimony,) but the reflection that these arms are so much exposed that they may easily be made the most improper and destructive use of, is to us extremely alarming.

The Palace, my Lord, hath indeed been hitherto much respected, but not so much out of regard to the building, as the residence of His Majesty's representative. Had your Lordship thought fit to remain there, we should have had no apprehension of danger; but, considering these arms at present exposed to your servants, and every rude invader, the security formerly derived from your Lordship's presence cannot now be relied on.

In your Lordship's answer to an address of the House of Burgesses, you are pleased to say, that experience has demonstrated to you that the City of Williamsburgh is an improper place for the residence of our Governour; and give it as a reason for not returning the powder according to your own voluntary promise made to the House, that you could not attend to its preservation, nor depend on its security if returned to the Magazine. We should suppose, my Lord, that your Excellency's attention to the arms would be equally necessary for their security, as you know the Palace stands on the edge of the City, and we should, for this reason, imagine it more likely to be rifled than the Magazine in the midst of it; besides, should it be thought necessary, a proper guard might be kept at the Magazine, which we did not think so decent to propose for your Lordship's Palace. Our apprehensions, my Lord, have been not a little increased by considering the several depositions taken by order of the House of Burgesses; we decline commenting upon them, but submit to the world from whence the unhappy disturbances in this Colony took their rise. We must, my Lord, once more entreat your Excellency to order the arms to be removed to the publick Magazine.

We cannot, my Lord, decline representing to you that the important business of this Assembly hath been much impeded by your Excellency's removal from the Palace. This step hath deprived us of the necessary and free access to your Lordship, which we conceive the Constitution entitles us to. There are several bills of the last importance to this Country now ready to be presented to your Excellency for your assent.

We have hitherto, my Lord, in hopes of preserving that harmony which we wish ever to subsist between all the branches of our Legislature, submitted to the great inconvenience of sending our members twelve miles to wait on your Excellency on board one of His Majesty's ships-of-war, to present our several addresses; but we think it would be highly improper, and too great a departure from the constitutional and accustomed mode of transacting the business of the Assembly, to meet your Excellency at any other place than the Capitol, to present such Bills as have there been agreed to by the Council and House of Burgesses. We must therefore beseech your Excellency to return to us; and as the advanced season of the year requires our presence in our several Counties, we hope your Lordship will be pleased to favour us with your speedy and ultimate answer, that we may certainly know what to depend upon.

The said Address being read a second time,

Resolved, That the House doth agree with the Council in the said Address, to be presented to the Governour.

Ordered, That the said Address be presented to his Excellency by Mr. Cary, Mr. Attorney General, Mr. Lewis, and Mr. Christian, in conjunction with such of the Council as shall be appointed to join in the same.

Ordered, That Mr. Bland do go to the Council, and acquaint them that this House hath appointed four of their Members to present the said Address to the Governour, in conjunction with such of the Council as shall be appointed for that purpose.

A Message from the Council by Mr. Blair:

MR. SPEAKER: The Council have agreed to the Bill intituled "An Act for appointing Commissioners to settle the Accounts of the Militia lately drawn out into actual service, and for making provision to pay the same," without any amendment.

Ordered, That the call of the House be further adjourned till to-morrow.

Resolved, That this House will, to-morrow, resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole House upon the Bill to revive an act, intituled "An Act for the better regulating and disciplining the Militia."

And then the House adjourned till to-morrow morning ten of the clock.

Thursday, June 22, 15 Geo. III, 1775.

The Orders of the Day being read,

Ordered, That the call of the House be further adjourned till to-morrow.

Ordered, That the Committee of the Whole House, to whom the Bill to revive an act for reducing the several acts of Assembly for making provision against Invasions and Insurrections, into one act, was committed, be discharged from proceeding upon said Bill.

Ordered, That the said Bill do lie upon the table.

Ordered, That the Committee of the Whole House, to whom the Bill to revive an act intituled "An Act for the better regulating and disciplining the Militia," was committed, be discharged from proceeding upon the said Bill.

Ordered, That the said Bill do lie upon the table.

Ordered, That the Order for taking into consideration the Report which was made from the Committee to whom the Bill for appointing an Agent was committed, be discharged.

Ordered, That the said Report do lie upon the table.

Mr. Cary reported, that the joint Address of the Council and this House, of yesterday, to the Governour, had been presented to his Excellency, who delivered to him an answer thereunto, which he delivered in at the Clerk's table, and which was read, and is in the words following, viz:

Gentlemen of the Council, and House of Burgesses:

I have already declared my intentions in regard to the arms at the Palace, and I conceive the Council and House of Burgesses are interfering in a matter which does not belong to them. I should be glad to be informed who they design by the terms "rude invaders," which they have made use of.

The disorders in Williamsburgh and other parts of the Country, drove me to the necessity of changing my place of residence; and if any inconvenience has arisen to the Assembly on that account, I am not chargeable with it; but they have not been deprived of any necessary nor free access to me. The Constitution invests me with an undoubted power to call the Assembly for the business of, to any place in the Colony exigency may require.

Not having been made acquainted with the whole proceedings of the Assembly, I know of no bills of importance which, if I were inclined to risk my person again among the people, the Assembly have to present to me, nor whether they be such as I could assent to. DUNMORE.

Ordered, That a Message be sent to the Council, to desire them to acquaint this House whether they have agreed to the Bill intituled "An Act for appointing Commissioners to ratify and confirm the late Treaty of Peace with the Ohio Indians;" and that Mr. Mercer do carry the said Message.

And then the House adjourned till to-morrow morning, ten of the clock.

Friday, June 23, 15 Geo. III, 1775.

The Order of the Day being read,

Ordered, That the call of the House be further adjourned till to-morrow.

Mr. Mercer reported, that he had, according to order, attended the Council, and desired them to acquaint this House whether they had agreed to the Bill intituled "An Act for appointing Commissioners to ratify and confirm the late Treaty of Peace with the Ohio Indians;" and that the Council will send an answer by a Messenger of their own.

A Message from the Council by Mr. Blair:

MR. SPEAKER: I am commanded by the Council to acquaint this House, that the Bill, intituled "An Act for appointing Commissioners to ratify and confirm the late Treaty of Peace with the Ohio Indians," is rejected.

And then the Messenger withdrew.

Resolved, That a free conference be desired with the Council on the subject-matter of the Treaty to be ratified with the Indians.

Ordered, That Mr. Treasurer do go to the Council and desire the said free conference.

Mr. Treasurer reported, that he had, according to order, been at the Council, to desire a free conference, on the subject-matter of the Treaty to be ratified with the Indians; and that the Council will send an answer by a Messenger of their own.

A Message from the Council by Mr. Blair:

MR. SPEAKER: The Council do agree to a free conference with this House as desired; and have appointed two of their Members, who are now ready in the Conference Chamber, to meet the Managers for this House.

And then the Messenger withdrew.

Ordered, That a Committee be appointed to manage the said conference.

And a Committee was appointed of Mr. Treasurer, Mr. Bland, Mr. Braxton, and Mr. Mercer.

Ordered, That the Paper intituled "Substance of the Peace agreed to between the Earl of Dunmore, Governour of Virginia, on the part of that Colony, and the Corn Stalk, on the part of the Shawanese Indians, intended to be ratified at a general meeting of the Ohio Indians at Fort Dunmore," referred to in the Governour's written Message to this House, which, upon Monday, the fifth day of this instant, June, was ordered to lie upon the table, be communicated to the Council at the conference.

Then the names of the Managers were called over, and they went to the conference.

And being returned,

Mr. Treasurer reported that the Managers had been at the conference with the Council, and communicated to them the Paper intituled "Substance of the Peace agreed to between the Earl of Dunmore, Governour of Virginia, on the part of that Colony, and the Corn Stalk on the part of the Shawanese Indians, intended to be ratified at a general meeting of the Ohio Indians at Fort Dunmore," and that the Council proposed that an Address should be presented to the Governour, that his Excellency would appoint persons to ratify the Treaty with the Indians, and recommended it to this House to vote a sum of Money, not exceeding Two Thousand Pounds, for that business.

Mr. Attorney-General reported to the House that he had shewn the engrossed Bills and Resolves to the Governour, and that his Excellency was pleased to deliver to him a written Message, which he read in his place, and which is in the words following, to wit:

Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the House of Burgesses:

The bill for appointing Commissioners to settle the accounts of the Militia lately drawn out into actual service, and for making provision to pay the same, inasmuch as it imposes duties upon slaves imported, I cannot assent to; which, by the royal disallowance of an Act of Assembly for that purpose, passed in the tenth year of his present Majesty's reign, you must have been sensible of; and as the bill has no suspending clause, though I made it my business to intimate, by several of your members, to the House, that, without such a clause, I could not pass an act for emitting paper money, the miscarriage of a bill I had very much at heart cannot be attributed to me. And if still those objections can be removed, I should be happy to concur in an act for the rewarding of the brave people who are the particular objects of it, without delay. If not, all I can do is to transmit the bill to His Majesty, and to desire leave to assent to it; though, in regard to the duty upon slaves, I should not, I think, obtain it.

I see no objection to any other of your bills or resolves, and I am therefore ready to give my assent to them whenever the House desires. If you have any other bills ready, I must desire they may be sent in like manner, that the whole may be passed together; and I must beg that your Clerk may be ordered to lay before me a copy of the Journals of the House, before the time fixed for passing the bills.

DUNMORE.

Resolved, That an Address be presented to the Governour, in answer to his said written Message.

Ordered, That a Committee be appointed to draw up an Address to be presented to the Governour, upon the said Resolution.

And a Committee was appointed of Mr. Treasurer, Mr. Bland, Mr. Mercer, Mr. Banister, Mr. Digges, and Mr. Munford.

Mr. Treasurer reported, from the Committee appointed to draw up an Address to be presented to the Governour, that the Committee had drawn up an Address accordingly, which they had directed him to report to the House; and he read the same in his place, and afterwards delivered it in at the Clerk's table, where the same was read, and is as followeth, viz:

MY LORD: We, His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Burgesses of Virginia, cannot sufficiently express our concern that your Lordship should be under any difficulty in giving your assent to the bill for appointing Commissioners to settle the accounts of the Militia lately drawn out into actual service, and for making provision to pay the same; which hath received the approbation of the other two branches of the Legislature. We beg leave to remind your Excellency, that you particularly recommended those brave people, who are the objects of this bill, to our attention. Sensible of their important services, we seized with much pleasure the first opportunity afforded us of doing justice to their singular merit. Upon considering the most probable ways and means of effecting this desirable purpose, we soon found, from the extreme scarcity of cash in the country, that there was no possible method of doing it but by a speedy emission of paper money. The opinion has since been confirmed by transactions during the present meeting of the merchants, which have evinced, that the scarcity is even greater than we at first supposed.

We do not find, my Lord, any thing in the bill which contravenes any law, or royal instruction, which hath ever been communicated to us. A suspending clause, we conceive, would defeat the very purpose for which the bill was intended; as it would withhold that relief so immediately necessary to the comfort and support of many of our poor inhabitants, who are in the utmost distress for want of it.

In order to support the credit of our paper currency, we thought it incumbent on us to establish such funds as would effectually secure the redemption of it. In aid of others, we were of opinion that a duty of ten per cent. on slaves would be the least burdensome to the people. We do not know that such a duty was ever objected to by His Majesty; on the contrary, we understand that a duty not exceeding ten per cent. was perfectly agreeable to his royal will and pleasure. The five pounds per poll on slaves imported from the West-Indies was intended to prevent the many tricks which had been practised in this Country to avoid payment of all duties on such slaves, and amounts to no more than ten per cent., valuing them at the moderate average of fifty pounds current money.

We are pleased to find your Excellency approves the other bills and resolves submitted to your inspection. All others, which we propose to trouble your Lordship with, we have consented may undergo the earliest examination, and flatter ourselves that they will meet with the like approbation.

We still hope, my Lord, that upon reconsidering the matter, you will see sufficient reasons to alter your first opinion respecting the Militia Bill, which we have much at heart, considering it of the last importance.

We have before, in conjunction with his Majesty's Council, intimated to your Excellency how very necessary a recess is at this critical season, our harvest demanding our immediate presence at home. We must, therefore, entreat your Excellency to meet us at the Capitol to-morrow, in order to give your assent to such bills and resolves as are ready to be presented. We hope your Lordship cannot still entertain any groundless fears that your person can be in the least danger. If it is possible that you remain under such a strange influence, we pledge you our honours, and every thing sacred, for your security. Should your Lordship decline complying with this just request, we hope you will be pleased to grant your commission to the President of the Council to give your assent to such bills and resolves as you may approve, and we may present to him.

Since it hath been customary for our Governours to signify their pleasure as to adjournments, we wish not to take things out of their old channel; we therefore hope your Excellency will at the same time express your approbation that we adjourn ourselves to some convenient day in October next, when our convenience will best admit an absence from our homes, and the sickly season of the year will be over.

We do not wish to conceal from your Excellency one tittle contained in our Journals; but a full and immediate transcript of them would require more time than we can possibly devote to the publick business at present. We must observe, that this demand of us is unusual; however, we have ordered all such of our proceedings as have been printed, to be immediately transmitted to your Lordship.

The said Address being read a second time,

Resolved, That this House doth agree with the Committee in the said Address to be presented to the Governour.

Ordered, That the said Address be presented to his Excellency by Mr. Attorney-General and Mr. Lewis.

And then the House adjourned till to-morrow morning ten of the clock.

Saturday, June 24, 15 Geo. III, 1775.

Mr. Attorney-General reported, that the Address of yesterday had been presented to the Governour, residing on board the Fowey, one of His Majesty's ships-of-war riding at anchor in York River, and that his Excellency was pleased to deliver to him a written Answer thereto; which he read in his place, and afterwards delivered in at the Clerk's table, and which is in the words following, viz: Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House of Burgesses:

As you have encumbered the bill for the payment of the officers and men employed upon the Indian expedition with an imposition which you know I could not assent to, and omitted a form (in no wise tending to defeat the purpose of the bill) which you were told I could not dispense with, the blame of its not passing now into a law cannot lie upon me; but I must adhere to the reasons I yesterday signified to you on this head. The well-grounded apprehension I had for believing my person not safe at Williamsburgh, has increased daily. I cannot therefore meet you at the Capitol as you entreat; but this day being too far spent, I shall be ready to receive the House on Monday, at twelve of the clock, at my present residence, for the purpose of giving my assent to such acts as I shall approve of.

Although the convenience of the members of the Assembly will always be a strong motive to determine me as to the time of your meeting or separating, yet it becomes necessary (from an expression in your Address, that you wish not to take things out of their old channel, as if you had such power) to assert the right of the Crown to adjourn, prorogue, dissolve, or assemble you, as it is thought fit by the Governour of the Colony. I do not mean, however, to oppose the request you make of being adjourned.

DUNMORE.

The House proceeded to take the said written Answer into consideration.

Resolved, That the House do now resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole House, to take into consideration the state of the Colony and the Governour's written Answer to the Address of this House of yesterday.

Mr. Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Bland took the chair of the Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

Mr. Bland reported from the Committee, That the Committee having taken into their serious consideration the unhappy situation of this Colony, and considering the many obstructions given to the due and regular prosecution of the important business before the General Assembly by his Excellency the Governour, in first removing from the Palace on board one of the King's ships, whereby a free access to him, and that necessary intercourse between his Lordship and the other two branches of the Legislature hath been in a great measure cut off; considering that his Lordship hath withstood the repeated entreaties of the Council and Burgesses to return to the seat of his Government; and having this day received such an answer from his Lordship as, when compared with his different Messages and other parts of his conduct, convinces them of his determination not to do any thing that may be of advantage to this Colony, and particularly to the inhabitants on our frontiers, by his requiring the House to attend him on board the Fowey, man-of-war, in order to present such bills as are now ready for his assent; thought it a duty highly incumbent on them, for themselves and the whole body of their constituents, to make several Resolves, in maintenance of their just rights and privileges, and in hopes of removing those prejudices which have been already, and may be again attempted to be excited in the breasts of their most gracious Sovereign and of their fellow-subjects in Great Britain.

The said Resolves being reported to the House, and severally agreed to, are as follow:

Resolved nem. con. That his Lordship's Message, requiring this House to attend him on board one of His Majesty's ships-of-war, is a high breach of the rights and privileges of this House.

Resolved nem. con. That the unreasonable delays thrown into the proceedings of this House by the Governour, and his evasive answers to the sincere and decent Addresses of the Representatives of the People, give us great reason to fear that a dangerous attack may be meditated against the unhappy People of this Colony. It is therefore our opinion, that they prepare for the preservation of their property, and their inestimable rights and liberties, with the greatest care and attention.

Resolved nem. con. That we do, and will, bear faith and true allegiance to our most gracious Sovereign George the Third, our only lawful and rightful King; that we will, at all times, to the utmost of our power, and at the risk of our lives and property, maintain and defend his Government in this Colony, as founded on the established laws and principles of the Constitution.

Resolved nem. con. That it is our most earnest desire to preserve and strengthen those bands of amity with all our fellow-subjects in Great Britain, which are so very essential to the prosperity and happiness of both Countries.

Resolved nem. con. That it is with the deepest concern we find ourselves deprived of an opportunity of making immediate provision for those gallant officers and soldiers who so nobly defended this Country against the incursions of the Indians, unless we would sacrifice their own and the inestimable rights and privileges of all other inhabitants of this Colony; that as we have already endeavoured to make the most ample provision for this necessary purpose, so will we gladly seize every opportunity afforded us of doing the utmost justice to those brave men, and all other publick creditors.

Certain information having been received of the great discontent of the Ohio Indians, by reason of the delay of the ratification of the late Treaty of Peace concluded upon by his Excellency the Governour, on the part of this Colony, and the Corn Stalk, on the part of the Indians, and that the inhabitants on our frontiers are under just apprehensions of a renewal of an Indian war; and no steps having been pursued by his Lordship for carrying on the said Treaty, or delivering up the Indian hostages, agreeable to the terms of the said Treaty:

Resolved, That the said Treaty be immediately entered upon, and that George Washington, Thomas Walker, James Wood, Andrew Lewis, John Walker, and Adam Stephen, Esquires, or any three or more of them, be, and they are hereby constituted and appointed Commissioners, on the part and behalf of this Colony, to meet the Chiefs or Headmen of the said Ohio Indians, as soon as the same can be done, at such place as they shall find most proper, to ratify and confirm the said Treaty on the part of this Colony, and to demand and receive of the said Indians the ratifications and full performance of the said Treaty on their parts. And that Robert Carter Nicholas, Esquire, Treasurer, or the Treasurer for the time being, shall, and he is hereby directed and required, to pay all such expenses and charges, out of the publick money in his hands, as may be incurred on account of such Treaty; provided the same do not exceed two thousand Pounds, for which the said Commissioners shall account to the next General Assembly.

Ordered, That Mr. Mercer do carry the Resolution to the Council, and desire their concurrence.

A Message from the Council by Mr. Blair:

MR. SPEAKER: The Council have agreed to the Resolve for appointing Commissioners to ratify the Treaty of Peace with the Ohio Indians, and for defraying the expense thereof.

Whereas, several Companies of the Militia of this Colony have been drawn out into actual service by command of his Excellency the Governour, for the defence and protection of the Frontiers against the incursions and depredations of the Indians, and there are now due several large sums of Money, as well for the Pay of such Militia as for Provisions, Arms, and other necessities furnished them; and it will be a great saving to the Colony, as well as ease to the claimants, to have such Accounts adjusted by Commissioners in the country:

Resolved, therefore, That Archibald Cary, William Cabell, William Fleming, John Winn, and John Nicholas, Gentlemen, or any three or more of them, be, and they are hereby, appointed Commissioners for the Counties of Fincastle, Botetourt, Culpepper, Pittsylvania, Hali-fax, and Bedford, and for that part of the County of Augusta which lies to the eastward of the Alleghany Mountains; and that Richard Lee, Francis Peyton, Josias Clapham, Henry Lee, and Thomas Blackburn, Gentlemen, or any three or more of them, be, and they are hereby, appointed Commissioners for the other Counties; and for that part of the County of Augusta which lies to the westward of the Alleghany Mountains, and for the Provinces of Maryland and Pennsylvania, to examine, state, and settle the Accounts of the Pay of the Militia, and of all Provisions, Arms, Ammunition, and other necessities furnished the said Militia of the Counties for which they are appointed Commissioners, and report the same to the General Assembly.

And then the House adjourned till Thursday, the twelfth day of October next, at ten of the clock in the morning.

The Deputies for Orange Town produced a Certificate signed by Jacob Concklin, Esq., Chairman, and Thomas Outwater, Clerk, at a meeting of the Freeholders and Inhabitants of Orange Town, there held on the third day of May instant, whereby it appears that Colonel Abraham Lent and John Herring, Esq., were unanimously chosen Deputies to represent them in this Provincial Congress, to be held at the City of New-York.

Ordered, That Colonel Abraham Lent and John Herring, Esq., take their seats.

Mr. Isaac Low moved, and was seconded by Mr. Morris, that this Congress enter into a Resolution in the words following, viz:

Resolved, therefore, That the question on Mr. Low's motion be not now put.

A copy of a recommendation and direction from the Continental Congress, signed by their Secretary, bearing date on the eighteenth instant, and certified by Henry Remsen, Deputy Chairman of the Committee of New-York, to be a true copy, relating to the Artillery and Stores now in Ticonderoga, was handed to the President and read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"In Congress, Thursday, May 18, 1775.

"Whereas there is indubitable evidence that a design is formed by the British Ministry of making a cruel invasion from the Province of Quebeck upon these Colonies, for the purpose of destroying our lives and liberties, and some steps have actually been taken to carry the said design into execution; and whereas several inhabitants of the Northern Colonies, residing in the vicinity of Ticonderoga, immediately exposed to incursions, impelled by a just regard for the defence and preservation of themselves and their countrymen from such imminent danger and calamities, have taken possession of that post, in which was lodged a quantity of cannon and military stores, that would certainly have been used in the intended invasion of these Colonies: this Congress earnestly recommend it to the Committees of the Cities and Counties of New-York and Albany, immediately to cause the said cannon and stores to be removed from Ticonderoga to the south end of Lake George, and, if necessary, to apply to the Colonies of New-Hampshire, Massachusetts-Bay, and Connecticut, for such an additional body of forces as will be sufficient to establish a strong post at that place, effectually to secure the said cannon and stores, or so many of them as it may be judged proper to keep there; and that an exact inventory be taken of all such cannon and stores, in order that they may be safely returned when the restoration of the former harmony between Great Britain and the Colonies, so ardently wished for by the latter, shall render it prudent and consistent with the overruling law of self-preservation.

A true copy from the Minutes:

“CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary.

“New-York, May 20, 1775.—A true copy:

“HENRY REMSEN, Deputy Chairman.”

The President then gave some farther information relating to the matters mentioned in the said recommendation from the Continental Congress, and particularly what had been done by the Committee of the City and County of New-York, and also enjoined and gave it in charge from the Chair to the Members of this Congress, that the business concerning the Artillery and Stores at Ticonderoga, and every thing else relating thereto, is to be considered and kept as matters of secrecy.

The subject matter of the said recommendation or directions from the Continental Congress was then taken in consideration and debated; and thereupon

Resolved, That this Congress will immediately comply with the directions of the Continental Congress respecting the Cannon and Stores at Ticonderoga, and the other matters recommended in their order of the eighteenth of May instant; and Ordered, That Messrs. David Clarkson, Alexander McDougall, Walter Livingston, Robert Yates, Henry Glenn, Zephaniah Platt, Egbert Dumond, Peter Clowes, John Sloss Hobart, Paul Mischeau, and Gouverneur Morris, be a Committee to report to this Congress, with all convenient speed, the method best adapted to carry the above Resolution into execution.

Benjamin Kissam, Esq., dissented from the above Resolution, and prayed his dissent might be entered on the Minutes.

Mr. McDougall moved, and was seconded by Mr. Gilbert Livingston, that two Members of this Congress be directed to apply to all the Ministers in this City, who can pray in English, and to request them to make such an arrangement among themselves as will enable them alternately to open the Congress every morning with prayer; which was agreed to and ordered accordingly; and Ordered, That Mr. Beekman and Mr. Brasher be a Committee for that purpose.

The following gentlemen dissented, viz: Colonel Lispenard, Mr. John Van Cortlandt, Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Mischeau, Mr. Walton, Mr. Cortelyou, Mr. Conner, Mr. Journey, Mr. Low, Mr. Richard Yates, Mr. Gouverneur Morris, Mr. Lewis Graham, Colonel Van Cortlandt, Mr. Verplanck, Mr. De Lancey, Mr. Franklin, Mr. Clowes, Mr. Cuyler, Colonel Holmes, Mr. Ward, and Mr. Thomas.

BRETHREN: By a minute of the Grand Continental Congress, of the eighteenth of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five, a copy whereof we do herewith transmit to you, we are informed that Ticonderoga hath been taken by sundry inhabitants of the Northern Colonies; and from the minute aforesaid, we are assured that this measure was for the common safety of the American Colonies. In pursuance of the directions contained in that minute, we have given the necessary orders for removing the Cannon and Stores (taken in that important fortress) to the south end of Lake George, and for securing them there; and we have appointed John N. Bleeker, Henry J. Bogert, Dirck Swart, George Palmer, and Peter Lansing, superintendents of this business.

There is no doubt but that our brethren in Connecticut will feel great reluctance at the idea of ordering any of their Troops to march within the bounds of this Colony, for the purpose of defending the Fort of Ticonderoga, and the Cannon and Stores above-mentioned at Fort George; but we pray you to cast away all fears of offending us on this occasion. We shall be happy to hear that you have placed a part of your forces in these posts, with intent to defend them until they shall be relieved by Troops from this Colony.

In further pursuance of the directions of the Grand Congress, we have ordered provisions to be conveyed to Ticonderoga and Lake George, and we shall continue to furnish such supplies as we shall deem necessary.

You will be pleased, gentlemen, to appoint trusty commanders over your forces destined for the purposes above mentioned; and we do assure you of our willingness that they shall take the command at those places while garrisoned by your Troops. We beg leave to assure you, that in this and all other matters we will pay the highest attention to every recommendation of the Grand Continental Congress; and that we have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient and humble servants.

"We pray you to use every effort to preserve and improve the present peaceable dispositions of the Canadians and Indians, for which purpose we think it will be necessary to keep up the strictest vigilance to prevent any incursions from being made into the Province of Quebeck."

And the same being approved of and agreed to,

Ordered, That the said Postscript be added to the said Letter.

The Committee appointed yesterday for that purpose, brought in and reported a draught of a Letter, and also a draught of Instructions to the Agents for superintending the removal of the Cannon and Stores from Ticonderoga.

Mr. Low informed the Congress that he had been informed that some of the inhabitants of the Northern Counties in this Colony have designs of making incursions into the Province of Quebeck; and that therefore he moved, (and was seconded by Abraham Yates, Esq.,) that a Letter be wrote to the inhabitants of the Northern Counties, to the same purport as the Postscript to the Letter to the Governour and Company of Connecticut; and the same being unanimously agreed to, Ordered, That Mr. Low, Mr. John Williams, Mr. Marsh, Mr. Robert Yates, and Mr. Morris, be a Committee to prepare and report to the Congress a draught of such Letter.

The Deputies for King's County produced a Certificate subscribed by Abraham E. Lott, Clerk of a meeting of the Deputies of the several Townships in King's County, assembled at Flatbush, on the 22d day of May instant, whereby it appears that Richard Stillwell, Theodorus Polhemus, John Leffertse, Nicholas Covenhoven, Johannes E. Lott, John Vanderbilt, Henry Williams, and Jeremiah Remsen, Esquires, or any three of them, are appointed Deputies fully to represent and act in behalf of that County. The same was read, and filed.

Ordered, That those gentlemen take their seats.

A written Request from the gentlemen who are a Committee from the House of Representatives of the Colony of Connecticut, requesting a conference with Mr. Scott and Colonel Ten Broeck, was read.

Ordered, That Mr. Scott and Colonel Ten Broeck have leave to wait on the said Committee immediately.

Mr. Nathaniel Tom, from Queen's County, one of the Deputies named in the Credentials from that County, filed with the Secretaries, appeared in Congress.

Ordered, That Mr. Tom take his seat.

The Reverend Doctor Auchmuty and the Reverend Doctor Rodgers, attending at the door, were called in; and they delivered to the President an arrangement of the Clergy, who, in compliance with the request of this Congress, have agreed in the following order alternately to attend at nine o'clock every morning, to open this Congress with Prayer, viz: Doctor Auchmuty, Doctor Rodgers, Mr. Gano, Mr. Inglis, Dr. Laidly, Mr. Mason, Mr. Treat, Dr. Livingston, Mr. Bowden, Mr. Moore.

Messrs. Ten Broeck and Scott, who, with leave, went to confer with Messrs. Wales, Burr, and Edwards, the Committee of the House of Representatives of the Colony of Connecticut, returned, and reported from their memory to this Congress, that they had conferred with those gentlemen, who informed them that they had detained Mr. President's Letter to their Governour and Company, relating to Ticonderoga, till this Congress could be informed of the following facts, to wit:

That their Assembly is not now sitting; that their recess was supplied by a Council of War, with limited powers; that the said Council have only authority to direct the movements of their Troops, but not to appoint any command; that their Assembly had destined three hundred men to be quartered at Salisbury, who probably would be allotted to assist in maintaining the fortress at Ticonderoga, if necessary; that the persons who had taken that post were not any part of their regular troops, but adventurers; that among these, Colonel Arnold, from Massachusetts, and Captain Douglass, who lives on the line between that Colony and this, were present at the capture; that Captain Douglass was a principal, and had great merit in the success of the enterprise; that almost all the rest of the adventurers were inhabitants of this Colony; that they were confident their Council of War would not take upon them to appoint any person to take the command of that post; that besides, they were apprehensive that the people now there probably would dispute the delivering up that Fortress to any person appointed by their Council of War; that it was impossible for the said Council of War to grant us any other assistance than the three hundred men above mentioned, which they judged insufficient to maintain that post; that Captain Douglass is guardian of the Stockbridge Indians, and has great influence over, and almost the entire direction of them; that he is a person of great influence in that quarter; that he had raised for the enterprise two hundred men, at his own expense, and could, in ten or twelve days, augment them to seven hundred, all of which, except about one hundred, would be inhabitants of this Colony; that they recommended Captain Douglass as meriting the attention of this Congress; that they thought it necessary for this Congress to appoint to the command of the above-mentioned post; and that in that case their Council of War would have it in their power to supply the above-mentioned assistance for that service.

Which Report being made, Mr. Scott moved that the Letter to the Governour and Company of the English Colony of Connecticut, be withheld, and the subject-matter thereof reconsidered.

This motion being seconded, a debate thereon arose; after which the question was put, Whether the said Letter should be withheld, and the subject-matter thereof reconsidered?

And on a division, the said question carried in the negative.

Dissentient.—Mr. Scott, Mr. Sackett, Mr. Nicholson, Mr. Allison, Mr. Silvester, Mr. Henry Williams, Mr. Hobart, Mr. Tredwell, Mr. Marsh, Mr. Beekman, Mr. Tom, Mr. Van Rensselaer, and Doctor John Williams.

The draught of a Letter to the Agents for superintending the removal of the Cannon and Stores from Ticonderoga, was read and approved; and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, May 25, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: By the recommendation of the Continental Congress respecting Ticonderoga, already forwarded to the Committee of your County, and by our Resolution thereon, you will readily perceive the expediency of appointing proper persons to superintend the business therein mentioned, who will undertake it with cheerfulness, diligence, and despatch. This Congress being convinced that persons in the vicinage of Albany would be most proper to put in execution the directions of the Congresses, left it to the Deputies of your County, now here convened, to propose some fit men for the approbation of this Congress; and you, gentlemen, were accordingly nominated and appointed. We hope, therefore, that you will not hesitate, but enter upon what is enjoined you by both Congresses with all expedition; and in doing of which, you will please to have regard to the enclosed Instructions for your better government.

We are, gentlemen, your most humble servants.

To Messrs. John N. Bleeker and Henry J. Bogert, of the City of Albany, and George Palmer and Dirck Swart, of Stillwater, and Peter Lansing, of Saratoga, in the County of Albany.

N. B. You will please to be as secret as the nature of this work will allow you.

The draught of Instructions to the said Agents was also read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

Instructions for John N. Bleeker, Henry J. Bogert, Dirck Swart, George Palmer, and Peter Lansing, Commissioners or Agents to superintend and put in execution the recommendation of the Grand Continental Congress, of the 18th of May, 1775, relative to Ticonderoga, &c.

1st. You will immediately endeavour to have a meeting together, if possible, and see which of you it will suit best, and can most conveniently, reasonably, and expeditiously discharge this trust reposed in you.

2d. After that is fixed upon among yourselves, that you will then immediately repair to those places, either by yourselves, or such fit persons as you know can and will complete the business effectually and reasonably.

3d. It will be necessary that you have an Armourer or Engineer, whose skill ought to determine which of the cannon are useless, that such may remain where they be, and no expense arise from them.

4th. One at least of you ought to attend from time to time at the different stations, as occasion may require.

5th. You will please, whenever you employ labourers, wagoners, or others in this service, that you engage none, if it possibly can be avoided, but industrious and sober men, and such as have or will sign the Association.

6th. You will agree with every man for the sum to be allowed him for his wages, and show the resolution of this Congress of yesterday respecting the mode of payment, that no person may be ignorant of that point. You will also keep books of accounts, and make exact entries, and take just and true vouchers of all the expenses and proceedings, so that you may be able to swear as to the rectitude of your conduct for the satisfaction of the publick, when thereunto required.

7th. You will endeavour, as much as in you lies, to cultivate harmony and friendship between the New-England Troops and all others that are or may be engaged by the Northern Governments in those services, and such persons as are or may be employed by this Government.

8th. That you will keep exact lists and inventories of all such artillery, ordnance, and stores, likewise their condition, as you may find on your arrival at those posts, viz: Ticonderoga and Lake George, of all such things as may be left there or removed from there.

9th. You will be also careful in providing boats and materials for water-carriage, in transporting such cannon as should, upon examination, be thought useful, to the south end of Lake George.

10th. It may be necessary to inform you that there are lately sent up from this City, for the use of the people at the garrison, and others engaged in these services, one hundred barrels of pork, and some stores and materials, of which an inventory will be handed to you. You will take all these things under your care, direction, and inspection, and see that they are forwarded and properly used and applied, according to the true intention; and also procure such other provisions, materials and things, as may be deemed by you absolutely necessary to fulfil the design the Grand Continental and this Congress have in view.

11th. It is the determination of this Congress not to countenance any person to make any incursions into Canada; and in order to prevent, as much as in us lies, any projects of that kind, you are hereby directed to withhold any succours or support from any person or persons whomsoever for such an expedition.

Ordered, That the said Letter and Instructions be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted with all convenient speed.

Benjamin Kissam, Esq., dissented to the said Letter and Instructions, and desired that his dissent might be entered on the Minutes.

The Congress then adjourned till five o'clock, P. M.

In Provincial Congress, New-York, May 26, 1775.

BRETHREN: Having received a minute of the Grand Continental Congress, of which we send you a copy herewith, we wrote a letter to the Governour and Company of the Colony of Connecticut, of which we also send you a copy. We do not doubt of your ready concurrence in the measures recommended by that august body, in which we do entirely acquiesce.

We pray you to act on this occasion with prudence and expedition, especially as we have received intimation from our brethren in Connecticut, that they cannot send a sufficient force for the purposes mentioned to them in our letter; and we beg leave to assure you that we are, affectionately, your friends and brethren in the generous cause of freedom.

We are, gentlemen, your humble servants.

To Joseph Warren, Esq., and others, the Committee of Safety for the Colony of Massachusetts-Bay.

A copy of the above to the Committee of Correspondence for the Colony of New-Hampshire.

A Letter to the Delegates representing this Colony in the Grand Continental Congress, was prepared, read, and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

New-York, May 26, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Upon considering the present state of these Colonies, it naturally occurred to this Congress that an uncommon levy of money will soon be necessary for Continental service, and that therefore an universal paper currency may probably become the subject of consideration in your respectable body. To this scheme it may naturally be objected, that it will be imprudent in one Colony to interpose its credit for the others. On the other hand, it is clearly impossible to raise any sum adequate to the service by tax; and the necessary intercourse of expenditures throughout the Colonies will be obstructed by separate emissions on the respective credits of the several Colonies, which cannot, in their nature, gain universal circulation. We have this important subject under serious deliberation, and are still at a loss for the best expedient most effectually to answer the purpose. We have, therefore, appointed a Committee of our body to give it their closest attention, and to report their opinion to us with all possible despatch; the result of which, and our final resolution thereon, we shall communicate to you without loss of time. In the mean time, should this matter be now in contemplation in the Continental Congress, we earnestly request that its determination may be so postponed as to furnish an opportunity of acquainting you with our more mature sentiments on this important point.

We beg leave, through our Delegates, to inform the grand representative body of the Continent, that we have, in the best manner in our power, executed their order to the Committees of New-York and Albany, respecting the post at Ticonderoga; and for further satisfaction, we enclose copies of our proceedings on that subject.

We are, gentlemen, with the greatest respect, your most obedient humble servants.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, signed by the President, and transmitted to the Delegates now representing this Colony in Continental Congress.

Ordered, That copies of the Proceedings of this Congress, in pursuance of the Minutes of the Continental Congress of the 18th May, instant, be transmitted to the Delegates from this Colony at the Continental Congress.

Mr. Williams, from the Committee appointed to confer with Asa Douglass, returned a Report in the words following, to wit:

1. The purport of Mr. Douglass's desiring to be heard by this Congress, was to take the sense of this Congress whether they would choose to receive the Letter he brought from Colonel Allen for the Continental Congress, or whether he ought to proceed with the Letter to the Continental Congress.

2. He was requested by the Troops who took Ticonderoga, Crown Point, &c., to solicit this Congress would take their services into consideration, and reward them with money or provisions, as they shall think meet.

3. He was desired by a number of the Officers of King's District, to apply to this Congress to appoint him the Commander of such forces as are or may be raised in that District.

4. He begs leave to inform this Congress that he has expended eighteen Pounds, in advancing money to the Troops, and in defraying the charges of his journey in going to Ticonderoga and in coming here.

Ordered, That the said Report lay on the table for the perusal of the Members.

At the request of the Committee of the House of Representatives of the Colony of Connecticut, Ordered, That they be furnished with a copy of the Report made by Colonel Ten Broeck and Mr. Scott, of the conference between them, and of the determination of this Congress thereon.

And a copy thereof was accordingly delivered.

The Congress adjourned to four o'clock.

"In Provincial Congress of New-Jersey, }
"Trenton, May 26, 1775. }

"GENTLEMEN: We, the Deputies appointed by the inhabitants of this Province to meet in Provincial Congress, are now convened here for the purpose of pursuing such measures as may be thought expedient in the present unhappy situation to which the Colonies are reduced, and which the peculiar exigences of the times may require. As nothing can tend more to ensure success to the steps that may at this critical juncture be adopted by the several Provinces, than a uniform plan of conduct, we conceived it necessary to look up to the Continental Congress for their advice and direction, which we have accordingly applied for, and hope soon to receive. We also think it of consequence that a correspondence should be established with you and our other sister Colonies, and a free communication be had, from time to time, of such measures as may be judged most conducive to the interest of the common cause; and request that we may be favoured with such intelligence as occurs to you worthy of attention, and of which our situation may probably deprive us.

"We are, gentlemen, your humble servants,

"HENDRICK FISHER, President.

"To the Provincial Congress of New-York."

Ordered, That the said Letter be committed to the Committee of Correspondence to prepare and report a draught of an answer with all convenient speed.

A Letter from the Grand Continental Congress, signed by John Hancock, Esquire, President, directed to this Provincial Congress, and bearing date on the 26th instant, was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Philadelphia, May 26, 1775.

"SIR: I enclose you the Resolves of the Continental Congress respecting the measures they conceive more immediately necessary for the defence and safety of your City and Province, and which, it is expected, will be carried into execution with all possible despatch, and with as much secrecy, as to the particular operations intended, as the nature of the service will possibly admit of.

"I am, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

"JOHN HANCOCK, President.

"To the President of the Provincial Congress, New-York."

The said Resolves of the Continental Congress mentioned in the above Letter were also read, and are in the words following, to wit:

"In Congress, May 25, 1775.

"Resolved, That a Post be immediately taken and fortified at or near King's Bridge, in the Colony of New-York; that the ground be chosen with a particular view to prevent the communication between the City of New-York and the country from being interrupted by land.

"2. Resolved, That a Post be also taken in the Highlands on each side of Hudson's River, and Batteries erected in such manner as will most effectually prevent any vessels passing that may be sent to harass the inhabitants on the border of said river; and that experienced persons be immediately sent to examine said river, in order to discover where it will be most advisable and proper to obstruct the navigation.

"3. That the Militia of New-York be armed and trained, and in constant readiness to act at a moment's warning, and that a number of men be immediately embodied and kept in that City, and so disposed of as to give protection to the inhabitants in case any insult should be offered by the Troops that may land there, and to prevent any attempts that may be made to gain possession of the City, and interrupt its intercourse with the country.

"4. That it be left to the Provincial Congress of New-York to determine the number of men sufficient to occupy the several Posts above mentioned, and also that already recommended to be taken at or near Lake George, as well as to guard the City, provided the whole do not exceed the number of three thousand men, to be commanded by such Officers as shall be thereunto appointed by the Provincial Congress, and to be governed by such rules and regulations as shall be established by said Congress, until further order is taken by this Congress; provided also, that if the said Provincial Congress should be of opinion that the number proposed will not be sufficient for the several services above recommended, that the said Congress report their sentiments upon this subject to this Congress as soon as may be.

"5. That it be recommended to the said Provincial Congress, that in raising those Forces, they allow no bounties or clothing, and that their pay shall not exceed the establishment of the New-England Colonies.

"6. That it be further recommended to the Provincial Congress aforesaid, that the Troops be enlisted to serve until the last day of December next, unless this Congress shall direct that they be sooner disbanded.

"7. That it be recommended to the Congress aforesaid to persevere the more vigorously in preparing for their defence, as it is very uncertain whether the earnest endeavours of the Congress to accommodate the unhappy differences between Great Britain and the Colonies, by conciliatory measures, will be successful.

"A true copy from the Minutes:

"CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary."

A Letter of the 27th instant, by express, from the Honourable Jonathan Trumbull, Governour of the Colony of Connecticut, in behalf of the General Assembly of that Colony, was read.

The copy of the Letter from Colonel Arnold, dated Crown Point, May 23d, 1775, enclosed in the Letter from Governour Trumbull, was also read.

In Provincial Congress, New-York, May 29, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We have received your letter of the 26th instant, informing us that your body is formed. We agree with you in opinion that nothing can tend more to ensure success to the steps that may be taken by the several Colonies, at this critical juncture, than a uniform plan of conduct; and we are equally convinced, that to this end we ought to look up to the Continental Congress for advice and direction. We are ready to establish a correspondence with you and our other sister Colonies, and a free communication of such measures as may, from time to time, be judged most conducive to the common cause. Every intelligence to this end we shall most readily communicate. At the same time permit us to observe, that either the directions of the Continental Congress or the nature of a particular measure may render its secrecy absolutely necessary.

We are, gentlemen, your humble servants.

To the Provincial Congress of New-Jersey, at Trenton.

Ordered, That the same be engrossed, signed by the President, and transmitted.

A draught of a Letter to the Delegates representing this Colony in the Grand Continental Congress, was prepared, read, and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, May 29, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: You will be pleased to communicate to the Continental Congress that we have received their letter of the 26th instant, with the resolves of the 25th therein enclosed, to which a proper attention will be given, and the Continental Congress informed of the result in due time. At the same time we beg leave to inform you that there is no powder to be purchased in this City, and scarce any in the whole Colony; and that a very considerable number of the inhabitants are without arms.

We beg to be informed whether we could be supplied with any powder from Philadelphia, or any other of the associated Colonies.

Enclosed is a copy of a letter we received this afternoon from Governour Trumbull, of Connecticut, dated the 27th instant; and also a copy of a letter to that Government from Colonel Arnold, dated at Crown Point, on the 23d instant.

To-morrow morning we are to take in consideration the expediency of a Continental Paper Currency, the result of which will be communicated to you.

We are, gentlemen, your very humble servants.

To the New-York Delegates at Philadelphia.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, signed by the President, and transmitted to the Delegates now representing this Colony in Continental Congress, by a messenger for that purpose, and with all possible despatch.

The Committee of Correspondence (according to order) brought in and reported a draught of a Letter to the Governour and General Court of Connecticut, in answer to the Letter from Governour Trumbull above mentioned; which was read and approved.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, signed by the President, and transmitted with all convenient despatch.

Ordered, That the Committee to report the ways and means for removing the Cannon and Stores from Ticonderoga do, without delay, and as privately as possible, direct one hundred barrels of Pork, two hundred barrels of Flour, and twenty barrels of Rum to be sent forward to Albany, towards supplying the Garrisons at Crown Point and Ticonderoga.

The draught of a Resolve reported by the Committee appointed for that purpose, recommending the choosing of Committees and Sub-Committees, and signing the Association, being read and amended, was approved, agreed to, and resolved, and is in the words following, to wit:

Resolved, That it be recommended, and it is hereby accordingly recommended, to all the Counties in this Colony (who have not already done it) to appoint County Committees, and also Sub-Committees, for their respective Townships, Precincts, and Districts, without delay, in order to carry into execution the Resolutions of the Continental and this Provincial Congress. And that it is also recommended to every inhabitant of this Colony who has hitherto neglected to subscribe the General Association, to do it with all convenient speed. And for these purposes, that the Committees in the respective Counties in which Committees have been formed do tender the said Association to every inhabitant within the several Districts in each County. And that such persons in those Counties or Districts who have not appointed Committees as shall be appointed by the Members of this Congress, representing such Counties and Districts respectively, do make such tender as aforesaid in such Counties and Districts respectively; and that the said Committees and persons respectively do return the said Association, and the names of those who shall neglect or refuse to sign the same, to this Congress by the fifteenth day of July next, or sooner, if possible.

The draft of a Letter to attend the said Resolution, and recommending to carry the measures therein mentioned into execution, was also read, amended, and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

New-York, May 29, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: You will see by the enclosed Resolution of this Congress that it is recommended to such of the Counties as have not already formed Committees, to do it without delay; and that such of the inhabitants of this Colony as have hitherto neglected to subscribe the General Association, to do it, so as to enable you to make a return within the time limited in the Resolution.

As the execution of this Resolve is committed to your care, we request you to use your best endeavours to see that this recommendation be complied with. It may, nevertheless, be proper to inform you, that it is the sense of this Congress that no coercive steps ought to be used to induce any person to sign the Association. The propriety of the measure, the example of the other Counties, and the necessity of maintaining a perfect union in every part of this Colony, it is presumed are sufficient reasons to induce the inhabitants of your County to comply with this requisition.

Ordered, That five hundred copies of the said Resolve and of the said Letter be printed, and that as many copies of the said Letter as may be necessary be signed by the President, and delivered, with the copies of the said Resolve, to the Members of this Congress, to be by them directed.

The mode of taking the Votes of this Congress for the present, and the Rules, were read.

The Order for the business of the Day being read, the Congress took into consideration the Report of the Committee on the expediency of a Continental Paper Currency; which Report is in the words following, to wit:

Your Committee do most humbly report, that having made the best inquiry which the short time would admit of, they find that the proportion of Gold and Silver in this Colony, compared with her sister Colonies, does vary according to the price of Bills of Exchange in the several Colonies, (owing to the relative quantity of Paper Money circulating amongst them, their several debts, and the several balances of their trade,) but that upon the whole there is a smaller proportion of Gold and Silver in this Colony than in several others. That as to the mode of raising money for the exigency of our affairs, it will be impossible to collect a sufficient sum without issuing a Paper Currency of some sort or other. That the neighbouring Colonies of Connecticut and New-Jersey are indebted to this Colony in very considerable sums. That in the prosecution of measures necessary for our defence, large sums of the money levied or issued for that purpose must undoubtedly centre in this Colony, as an exchange for the necessities of life and other articles which this Colony must furnish. That considering the two facts last mentioned, it follows clearly that this Colony will at first possess a much greater proportion of the general Paper Currency than her sister Colonies. That of consequence it is necessary that the utmost precaution be used to give the highest credit to such emission, in order to prevent the depreciation of it. That it is also necessary the Paper Currency, when emitted, should be as much as possible general, that it may at once answer the purpose for which it is instituted, and with greater ease flow from one Colony to another, and preserve the commercial equality of money. That the emission of Paper Currency in any considerable quantity will necessarily tend to exclude from commercial circulation the Gold and Silver now current, either by sending it to Britain for payment of debts there, or by encouraging private persons to secrete it. That if the emission be very great, then exchange will undoubtedly rise, and consequently the Paper Money be depreciated. That these considerations will abate the disposition of the inhabitants of America to receive such Paper Money. That, therefore, whether it be a currency or not, will depend upon the security which can be given for the repayment of it. That the Gold and Silver being excluded, as is above mentioned, a general Paper Currency will naturally supply the place of it, provided it can obtain a general credit.

After premising these things, your Committee proceed to observe, that a Paper Currency being necessary, there are but three modes by which it can be issued:

First. That every Colony should strike for itself the sum apportioned by the Continental Congress;

Secondly. That the Continental Congress should strike the whole sum necessary, and each Colony become bound to sink its proportionable part; or,

Thirdly. That the Continental Congress should strike the whole sum, and apportionate the several shares to the different Colonies, every Colony become bound to discharge its own particular part, and all the Colonies to discharge the part which any particular Colony shall be unable to pay.

Your Committee observe, upon the first mode, that if it be followed, this Colony may not perhaps be under the same necessity of receiving the emission of any Colony which may appear unable to sink the money issued by it, as in the other instances; that therefore there may not on that account be the same danger of subjecting this Colony to the risk of losing moneys issued by its neighbours, and circulating within this Colony. That, nevertheless, it is highly probable the debts due to this Colony will be eventually paid in the Paper Money so issued by the Colonies of Connecticut and New-Jersey, or that such moneys confined within the bounds of those Colonies will be so depreciated, that the persons in trade who are possessed thereof will be rendered unable to pay their debts in any other way. That your Committee have great reason to believe that emissions of those Colonies will be depreciated in such manner, by reason of the doubts which will arise in men's minds about the sinking of them, wherefore a very considerable loss will happen to this Colony from receiving such money. That your Committee, nevertheless, are of opinion that in order to answer the purposes of striking such Paper Money in these Colonies, it will be necessary for this Colony and all others to give a general credit to every emission. Your Committee do therefore disapprove of the first mode, because they conceive that moneys issued in that way will not have the necessary general credit aforesaid, but that this Colony in particular will be under the necessity of receiving very considerable sums of money from the Colonies of Connecticut and New-Jersey, which those Colonies may not be able to repay; and if so, that then the circulation of such money in this Colony will prevent the future admission of Gold and Silver, and consequently raise the par of exchange between this Colony and Great Britain, so as greatly to distress the general commerce of this Colony, besides the loss which must be sustained by those individuals who become possessed of such depreciated moneys.

As to the second mode, your Committee observe, that it will give much greater credit and currency to the moneys so issued than the first, and consequently will better answer the ends for which it is designed. That such credit and currency will also, in a great measure, prevent the accumulation of it in this Colony, and dissipate it through those channels of trade in which the Gold and Silver now flow, so as to preserve the commercial equality of money above stated. That, nevertheless, your Committee are of opinion that if any default shall happen in sinking the moneys issued by this mode, such default will be made by the adjacent Colonies of Connecticut and New-Jersey, or one of them, and that, therefore, although there are greater advantages attending this mode than the former, yet it is subject to all the same inconveniences with respect to this Colony.

Your Committee do now observe, upon the last mode, that it will be attended with the advantage of higher and more universal credit than either of the former, and consequently, as to the general cause, will best answer the great end of its institution. That this advantage is attended with a very great disadvantage as to this Colony, because this Colony may by that means be subjected to the payment of her own proportion, and also to a proportion of the part of such Colony as may become bankrupt by her over exertions in this controversy. Your Committee, however, do conceive, that if any Colony or Colonies shall be deficient in this respect, it will most probably be those which are immediately adjacent to this. That the greater part of the moneys designated for them to refund will necessarily circulate in this Colony, and therefore in it the deficiencies which shall so happen will be most sensibly felt. That in such case, if the Colonies are generally pledged for each other, and do severally perform their engagements, then this Colony will be greatly relieved by sinking a part thereof in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, &c. That if such engagements are not performed, this Colony will not be in a worse situation by this than by either of the other modes, but continue precisely in the same predicament.

Before your Committee determine their choice, they pray leave to observe, that there are only two obstacles to an emission of Paper Money:

First. To give it an immediate and ready currency;

Secondly. To provide ways and means for sinking it.

As to the first, your Committee observe, that if the Continental Congress shall strike a Paper Currency, they have no doubts but that it will be very readily received throughout this Continent; yet they have very great doubts whether the same determination ought to be made with respect to moneys issued by a lesser authority.

As to the second point, your Committee observe, that whenever a Paper Currency has been emitted, and obtained a general credit, it will be a new bond of union to the Associated Colonies, and every inhabitant thereof will be bound in interest to endeavour that ways and means be fallen upon for sinking of it.

Now, therefore, since moneys issued in the last of those three modes above mentioned will afford higher security to those who receive them, and of consequence obtain a more ready, general, and confidential circulation, your Committee do approve of that mode. First, because it will most effectually answer the end of its emission; secondly, because most probably this Colony will not be burdened with so great a proportion of it; thirdly, because the other Colonies will be more deeply interested in preventing its depreciation; and, fourthly, because the losses to be apprehended by this Colony will be alleviated by the participation of others.

If this plan should be adopted, then, your Committee are of opinion that it will be necessary the moneys issued should, on one side, have some general device, and the moneys proportioned to any particular Colony have the arms, signature, &c., of such Colony on the other side; and that the proportion now established be stated as a fixed proportion to estimate, in case of deficiency in one Colony, the aids of the others.

All which is most humbly submitted.

The said Report of the Committee being fully debated and considered, and the question put thereon, whether the Congress does agree with their Committee in the said Report?

Resolved, nemine contradicente, That this Congress does agree with the said Committee in their Report.

Ordered, That a copy of the said Report be immediately transmitted to the Delegates representing this Colony in the Continental Congress, and that the Committee of Correspondence prepare and report a draft of a Letter to be sent to the said Delegates with the said Report.

And the Committee of Correspondence having reported a draught of such Letter to the said Delegates, the same was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress at New-York, May 30, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Enclosed you have a copy of the Report of our Committee upon the expediency of a Paper Currency, and the approbation of that Report by this Congress. Upon a perusal of it you will readily perceive the impropriety of laying it before the Continental Congress. We send it to show you our sense, and the reasons on which it is founded, out of which you will select such for use as you may think proper.

We are, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants.
To the Delegates for the Colony of New-York, now sitting in Continental Congress.

Ordered, That a copy of the said Letter be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted with all convenient speed.

Mr. Kissam moved, and was seconded by Mr. Silvester, in the words following, to wit:

Forasmuch as a reconciliation between Great Britain and these Colonies, on constitutional principles, is essential to the well-being of both Countries, and will prevent the horrors of a civil war, in which this Continent is now about to be involved, it is therefore the indispensable duty of this Congress to communicate to the Delegates of this Colony in Continental Congress their sentiments respecting the terms of such reconciliation: I therefore move, that a Committee be appointed to prepare and state the terms on which such reconciliation may be tendered to Great Britain, consistent with the just liberties and freedom of the subject in America, to the intent that the same, when approved of by this Congress, may be laid before the said Delegates as our sense on this important subject, to be humbly submitted to their consideration.

A draught of a Letter to the Delegates representing this Colony in Continental Congress to attend copies of all the despatches this day received and before mentioned, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress at New-York, June 1, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We this morning received despatches from Albany, Watertown, and Hartford, which contain, as you will observe, very important intelligence. We think it our duty, through you, to lay it before the Continental Congress, and for that purpose have prepared copies of the several papers which we received as aforesaid. We shall make no comments on them, being convinced that your own good understanding, and the knowledge of the state of these Colonies, will render any such attempts useless. Our business proceeds with great heaviness for want of the sinews of war, which we have not, neither have we any powder. Money we cannot have until we receive the directions of your body, as you will easily believe. Besides this, we would be extremely happy to know that your body had taken into their serious consideration the several circumstances of the associated Colonies, and that they in their wisdom had assigned the several quotas of men and money to each. This information will guide our deliberations to a proper object, for the want of which our present attention is distracted by the uncertainty of what shall be determined with respect to this Colony.

We have the honour to be, Gentlemen, with great respect, your most obedient and humble servants.

To the New-York Delegates at the Continental Congress at Philadelphia.

Ordered, That a copy of this Letter be engrossed and signed by the President, and transmitted (with copies of all the despatches received this day) to the Delegates representing this Colony at the Continental Congress, by a messenger for that purpose.

A draught of a Letter to the Sub-Committee of the City and County of Albany, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress at New-York, June 1, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Agreeable to the minute of the Grand Congress, we (being unable, as you know, to garrison Ticonderoga, Crown Point, or Fort George) made application to the Eastern Colonies for their assistance. In our letter to Governor Trumbull, of Connecticut, we desired him to order Troops on that service, and informed him that it is our intention that the commanding officer of those Troops should be the commander of the forts by them garrisoned. We moreover requested him to give orders to such officer to use great diligence to prevent any inroads into Canada.

This morning we have received his Honour's and the Assembly's answer, of which we send you a copy. You will find that one thousand men are already on their way to the frontier country. Their commanding officer is Colonel Hinman, wherefore we beg you will inform all persons in that part of the country of his appointment. We have at present no powder in this City, nor can we possibly tell you when we shall have any. The reason of this uncertainty is, that the British Ministry have taken measures to prevent supplies of powder from coming to America from any part of Europe. But you will easily see that though such attempts may delay, they cannot prevent us from getting some. Should the Indians again mention their uneasiness on the subject of powder, it will, as we conceive, be proper to mention to them the endeavours of Great Britain to hinder both them and us from obtaining any. We have received your despatches of the twenty-sixth ultimo, and already forwarded copies to the Grand Congress.

We are, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants.

To Doctor Samuel Stringer, Chairman of the Sub-Committee of the City and County of Albany.

Ordered, That a copy of the said Letter to the Sub-Committee at Albany be engrossed, signed by the President, and transmitted with all convenient despatch.

Mr. Low delivered a Petition of Captain Samuel Tudor, on behalf of himself and the Independent Company of Artillery in the City of New-York, setting forth that they have not any Carriages for such Cannon as they have pitched on to use until brass Field-Pieces be provided, and that they are destitute of Ammunition.

Ordered, That Mr. Samuel Tudor be desired to provide Carriages, Rammers and Spunges, and such other things as are necessary for four Guns, for training his Company.

Mr. Kissam, with leave of the Congress, withdrew his Motion of the thirtieth of May instant, in order to amend the same.

The Congress adjourned to nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

Die Veneris, 9 ho. A. M., June 2, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Opened with prayers by the Rev. Mr. Mason. Present:

The said Certificate was read and filed.

Ordered, That Mr. Clarke take his seat.

A Letter from the Delegates representing this Colony in the Continental Congress, bearing date on the thirteenth day of May ultimo, was read.

Jacob Shafer, who was sent a messenger to Philadelphia, delivered in an account of his disbursements, amounting to four pounds ten shillings four pence.

Ordered, That the President pay to the said Jacob Shafer, for his disbursements and time, six pounds eight shillings.

Ordered, That fifteen hundred copies of the said Letters be printed in French, and five hundred copies in English, with the name of the President printed to each of them, and that they be transmitted to be distributed among the People of Canada with all possible despatch.

Ordered, That Mr. Clarkson wait upon Abraham Lott, Esq., Treasurer of this Colony, and obtain from him, on loan, any such sum of Money as he may be able to lend out of the Colony Treasury, that the same may be applied towards the present exigences of the Colony; and Mr. Clarkson, for the present, give his Note to the Treasurer, to be accountable to him for such sum as he may receive, until farther security shall be given for the same.

Mr. Clarkson returned, and reported that he had obtained Two Hundred Pounds from the Treasurer, upon his own Note given for that sum.

Ordered, That Mr. Clarkson pay the said Two Hundred Pounds to Dirck Swart, and take his receipt for the same; and

Resolved, That all the Members of this Congress do agree to be responsible to Mr. David Clarkson for their several proportions of the said Two Hundred Pounds, until Mr. Clarkson shall be repaid or otherwise secured for the same.

Mr. Kissam moved (and was seconded) in the words following, to wit: "Forasmuch as a reconciliation between Great Britain and these Colonies, on constitutional principles, is essential to the well being of both Countries, and will prevent the horrors of a civil war, in which this Continent is now about to be involved, I move that a Committee be appointed to prepare a plan of such accommodation, and report the same to this House."

And debates arising thereon, Mr. McDougall (seconded by Mr. Brasher) moved for the Previous Question.

And the question being put, and the votes of the Counties represented taken, it was carried against the Previous Question in the manner following, to wit:

For the Previous Question.	Against the Previous Question.
2 Ulster County.	2 King's County.
2 Orange County.	3 Albany City and County.
2 Suffolk County.	2 Richmond County.
2 Dutchess County.—Mr. Hoffman dissenting.	2 Queen's County.—Mr. Robinson dissenting.

The question was then put on the said motion, and it was carried for the motion, in manner following, to wit:

For the Motion.	Against the Motion.
3 Albany City and County.	2 Suffolk County.
2 King's County.	2 Ulster County.
2 Queen's County.	2 Orange County.

Colonel Woodhull then moved, and was seconded by Mr. Tredwell, that an amendment be made to the said motion, by adding thereto the following words, to wit: "That we may be ready, if we shall think it necessary, to communicate our sentiments upon that subject to our Delegates at Philadelphia." Which amendment being read a second time, was approved of and agreed to.

Resolved, therefore, That although we would by no means presume to dictate to the General Continental Congress, yet it is highly necessary that this House be prepared to give our sentiments to our Delegates in the said Congress upon such plan of accommodation; and

Resolved, That Mr. Scott, Mr. Morris, Mr. Low, Mr. McDougall, Mr. Robert Yates, Mr. Kissam, Mr. Hobart, Mr. Thomas Smith, Mr. Silvester, Mr. Payne, Col. Woodhull, Mr. John Williams, Mr. Micheau, and Mr. Tredwell, be a Committee for that purpose, and do make report with all convenient speed.

A Letter from John Hancock, Esquire, President of the Continental Congress, being received, was read, and is in the words following:

"Philadelphia, May 31, 1775.

"Sir: I am directed by the Congress to transmit to your Convention their Resolve, and to desire an immediate compliance with it, so far as it respects the furnishing batteaus, provisions, stores, &c. I am, Sir, your most humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President,

"To the Honourable the President of the Provincial Convention of New-York."

The Resolve of the Continental Congress received enclosed in the above Letter, was also read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"In Congress, May 31, 1775.

"Resolved, That the Governour of Connecticut be requested immediately to send a strong re-enforcement to the Garrisons of Crown Point and Ticonderoga, and that so many of the Cannon and other Stores be retained as may be necessary for the immediate defence of those Posts, until the further order of this Congress; and that the Provincial Convention of New-York be informed of this Resolve, and desired to furnish those Troops with Provisions and other necessary Stores, and to take effectual care that a sufficient number of Batteaus be immediately provided for the Lakes."

"A true copy from the Minutes:

"CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary."

The Committee appointed to view the ground near King's Bridge, delivered in their Report, and a Map or Draught of a place thereto annexed.

Ordered, That the said Report lay on the table for the perusal and information of the Members.

Ordered, That Colonel Ten Broeck and Mr. Dirck Swart wait on Abraham Lott, Esquire, Treasurer of the Colony, and obtain from him an order on the Loan Officers of the City and County of Albany, for a sum of Money, to be applied for the publick exigences of the Colony, in such manner as this Congress shall direct; and that Colonel Ten Broeck, for the present, give his Note to the Treasurer for such order, or the amount of the sum to be therein mentioned, until farther security shall be given for the same.

Colonel Ten Broeck returned and produced to this Congress an order on the Loan Officers at Albany, for the sum of Seven Hundred Pounds, payable to Mr. Dirck Swart, and informed that he had given his Note to the Treasurer for that sum.

Resolved, That all the Members of this Congress do agree to be responsible to Colonel Abraham Ten Broeck for their several proportions of the said Seven Hundred Pounds, until Colonel Ten Broeck shall be repaid or otherwise secured for the same.

In pursuance of the engagements made by this Congress in their Letter to the Governour and General Court of Connecticut of the twenty-ninth ultimo, and of the Resolve of the Continental Congress, bearing date on the thirty-first May, directing that this Congress furnish Provisions and Stores for the Garrisons at the Posts of Ticonderoga and Crown Point, it is conceived necessary to employ a Commissary at New-York, and Mr. Peter T. Curtenius, of the City of New-York, merchant, being mentioned and esteemed a proper person to be Commissary, the Congress sent for Mr. Curtenius, who attended; and being called in by order of the Congress, he was informed by the President that the Congress thought it necessary to have a Commissary to provide and forward Provisions and Stores of sundry kinds to the Commissioners at Albany, for the use of the Garrisons at Ticonderoga and Crown Point, and such other parts or places as may be necessary; and also to provide and forward materials for the building of Batteaus, and to provide Artificers and Mariners to proceed to Lake Champlain.

That if he would accept of that trust he should purchase such Provisions and Stores as the Congress should, from time to time, direct; and that he should be allowed a commission of one and a half per cent., until he shall be supplied with cash to purchase such Stores and Provisions with; and that after he is supplied with cash to purchase such Stores and Provisions, and to pay all such disbursements as may be necessary, that he shall be allowed a commission of one per cent.

Mr. Peter T. Curtenius agreed to be Commissary, and to accept and perform that trust and business for the commission above mentioned: Whereupon it is

Resolved, That the said *Peter T. And also Resolved, That the said Peter T. Curtenius shall have for his services the commissions above mentioned, beside all his disbursements: and

Resolved, That this Congress does agree to indemnify the said *Peter T. And it is further Resolved and Agreed, That for any sums of money that shall be advanced or lent by the said

A Letter from James Rivington, Printer, directed to this Congress, as also a copy of his Address to the Continental Congress, and a copy of his Letter to the General Committee of the City of New-York, were read, and the subject matter taken into consideration.

Whereas the Continental Congress, in their Resolution of the fifteenth ultimo, have recommended to the inhabitants of this City, that if the Troops which are expected should arrive here, this Colony act on the defensive so long as it may be consistent with their safety and security: And whereas the General Committee of the City and County of New-York, in their Address to the Lieutenant-Governour of this Colony, have requested that in case any Troops from Great Britain should arrive here, that he would endeavour to procure orders from General Gage to prevent their landing or encamping in this City and County: And this Congress being informed that orders have been received from the General for the embarkation of the Troops now in this City: We do, therefore, as well in conformity to what we conceive to be the spirit of the above order of the Continental Congress, as the intention of the above Address, earnestly recommend it to the inhabitants of this City and County, and all others, not to obstruct the embarkation of the said Troops, but to permit them to depart this City peaceably.

Ordered, That one thousand of the above Resolve be printed in handbills.

In pursuance of the Letter from the Delegates for this Colony, now at the Provincial Congress, of the 30th May, 1775, a draught of a Letter to the inhabitants of Tryon County was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 3, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We lately wrote to a few individuals of your County, representing the use and necessity of your appointing Deputies to associate with us in this present Convention, upon a presumption that you have already chosen Committees with a view that our thoughts on the subject might be made known to the publick, and the measure recommended carried into execution by a ready and speedy compliance, at least of those who are friendly to the liberties of the subject, and consequently foes to tyranny and oppression. Since those letters were sent up to your County, we yesterday received one from our Delegates in the Grand Congress at Philadelphia, in which, among other things, there is a paragraph in substance following: "That if there are any Counties in which no Committees have been chosen, as we are informed there are, that it would be proper to recommend that they be immediately elected. We observe that Tryon County has not sent up Deputies to your Convention, and would submit it to your consideration whether it would not be proper to send them a message, suggesting the inconveniences attending such conduct, and the necessity it will lay you under of breaking off all connections with them. The day rapidly approaches which will determine the important point of American freedom; and though there are but very few, comparatively speaking, who still have not signified their union with their brethren in this glorious cause, yet we would have every reasonable effort used to increase the numbers of our friends, as it will not only afford additional weight to the controversy, but probably will most effectually destroy the expiring hopes of our adversaries."

We once more call upon you, for your own reputation's sake, for the love of your Country, and as you tender your own happiness and welfare, the prosperity of the whole Continent, and of the millions yet unborn, that you will not separate from your brethren upon this momentous occasion, who are embarked and deeply engaged in this grand struggle. Permit us to entreat you not to omit or delay this essential requisition, but co-operate with us cheerfully, by redoubled vigilance and activity, and make up for your long negligence and backwardness. Perhaps this will be the last application to you, as the time is almost come that we should be able to distinguish those who are inimical among us. We should with reluctance be compelled to hold your County up to the publick as a disjointed and disaffected part of the community.

We are, gentlemen, your most humble servants.

To Messrs. John Fry, Peter Wagener, Jacob Clock, Anthony Van Veghten, Christopher Yates, and the rest of the inhabitants of the County of Tryon.

Ordered, That four copies thereof be engrossed, signed by the President, and transmitted.

A draught of a Letter to Colonel G. Johnson was also read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 3, 1775.

SIR: At a time when the American subjects on this extensive Continent are almost with one voice and united effort nobly exerting themselves in the glorious cause of liberty, and endeavouring to reconcile the unnatural and unhappy differences between the parent State and these Colonies upon permanent and constitutional principles, we cannot help lamenting that we have received disagreeable accounts from your quarter, that there are individuals officiously interrupting the mode and measures conceived necessary to bring about these salutary purposes.

On the one hand, you may depend upon it that we shall discourage and discountenance every attempt against your person and property, and shall use our utmost endeavours to render them safe and secure; but on the other hand, we expect you will not counteract any of the measures expedient for the common weal recommended by the Continental or Provincial Congress, or by the Committees formed or to be formed. Should you take so unfriendly a part, we cannot answer for the consequences of such a conduct; on the contrary, if you and our Indian brethren under your superintendency, do not interfere in this controversy, you may promise yourselves all the protection that this House can afford you. The dispute is become so serious now that we cannot silently suffer our plan to be frustrated by our own countrymen. We are, &c.

To Colonel GUY JOHNSON, &c.

Ordered, That the same be signed by the President, and transmitted.

Ordered, That the Resolve of this Board of the 26th of May ultimo, respecting the People of Canada, be translated into French, and that a copy thereof in French, and the copy of the Resolve in English, be prefixed to the printed copies of the Letters to the People of Canada.

A Letter from John Lamb to this Congress was read.

Ordered, that the said Letter be referred to the Committee appointed to make an arrangement of the Troops to be embodied in this Colony.

The Congress adjourned to next Tuesday morning nine o'clock.

Die Martis, 9 ho. A. M., June 6, 1775.

A Letter from the Committee at Albany to this Congress being read, was in the words following, to wit:

"Albany Committee Chamber, June 2, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: In consequence of a letter from this Committee to Governour Trumbull, dated 27th ult., we received his answer of the 30th; whereof you have a copy enclosed, and from which it appears that you have sent them a resolve, with a request to send up forces to Ticonderoga, &c. In consequence whereof one thousand of them are now on their way. You will therefore be pleased to send up, with all possible despatch, a sufficient supply of provisions (except flour, peas and bread, which we can supply them with) and other necessities, for which purpose we send you enclosed copy of a list from Colonel Arnold's letter to us of the 29th ult.

"We have in the alarm above raised several companies to go up to Ticonderoga, &c., two of which are on their way up. This we did in consequence, first, of the resolution of the Continental Congress of the 18th ult.; secondly of the letter from the New-York Committee enclosing said Resolve, dated 20th ult.; and thirdly, Colonel Arnold's letter to us requiring immediate assistance. But on our receipt of the above letter from Governour Trumbull, we are in great doubts with respect to our men already raised in this County, and those who stand ready to march up, as we know not the nature of the resolve you have sent to Governour Trumbull; and his letter contains a clause that these one thousand forces are to continue at Ticonderoga, &c., until relieved by troops from this Colony, &c.

"We should be extremely glad to have plain explicit instructions from time to time, that we need not wander astray, and act counter to your intentions and the general good of the publick.

"There are some troops (twelve in number) taken by the Provincial Forces from St. John's, who are now in this City, and who daily call upon this Committee for the common necessities of life, but can give the Commissioners or Agents no directions in the premises, as their instructions from you will not warrant them to supply them with provisions, although they have been hitherto supplied out of the Provincial store. But we would be glad of your resolution on this matter, and let us know whether we should supply these troops any longer, or leave them to be supported from the provisions here in the King's store; and, upon the whole, what you would have us do with them, as they are only a burden to us.

"Please to take these matters into your immediate consideration, and send us your resolution in consequence thereof; and you will oblige, gentlemen, your most humble servant. By order of the Committee:

"SAMUEL STRINGER, Chairman p. t."

The copy of a Letter from the Governour and Company of Connecticut to said Committee at Albany; and a list of men, implements of war, and stores, from Colonel B. Arnold, wanting at Ticonderoga, and enclosed by the Committee of Albany, were separately read and filed.

A Letter from John Hancock, Esq., President of the Grand Continental Congress, dated Philadelphia, June 1, 1775, was read.

The Resolve of the Grand Continental Congress first above mentioned was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"In Congress, Thursday, June 1, 1775.

"Resolved, That it be recommended to the Government of Connecticut, or the General of the Forces of that Colony, to appoint Commissaries to receive at Albany and forward the Supplies of Provisions for the Forces on Lake Champlain from the Provincial Convention of New-York; and that the said Convention do their utmost endeavours in facilitating and aiding the transportation thereof from thence to where the said Commissaries may direct."

"A true copy from the Minutes:

"CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary."

The Resolve to be transmitted to the Commander at Ticonderoga was read, and is in the words following:

"In Congress, June 1, 1775.

"As this Congress has nothing more in view than the defence of these Colonies, Resolved, That no expedition or incursion ought to be undertaken or made by any Colony or body of Colonists against or into Canada; and that this Resolve be immediately transmitted to the Commander of the Forces at Ticonderoga.

"A true copy from the Minutes:

"CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary."

A draught of an answer to the Governour and Company of Connecticut was read, and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 6, 1775.

May it please your Honour:

We take leave to enclose a resolution of the Grand Congress of the thirty-first of May, and at the same time to present you our acknowledgment for the letter which we had the honour to receive from you, dated the twenty-ninth. Be assured, Sir, that we are most gratefully sensible of the cheerfulness with which the Government of Connecticut has exerted itself to support the important posts of Crown Point and Ticonderoga, until our abilities may enable us to execute that trust which the Continental Congress has on that subject thought proper in the first instance to repose in us.

We are sorry to present you with the very disagreeable intelligence that we have not a sufficient quantity of powder in this Colony to enable us at present to contribute in the least towards supplying those posts with that article, a circumstance which is the more distressing as we have great reason to believe that a very considerable quantity will be required for the defence of the Northern Frontier.

In compliance with the requisition made upon us, we have expedited our orders for the several things contained in the enclosed list, at the bottom whereof is an account of the several articles already sent for that service, and the persons employed in it.

We pray your Honour to believe that we feel the utmost desire of co-operating with our sister Colonies in executing the resolves of the Congress; and that we are, with great respect, your Honour's most obedient and humble servants.

To the Honourable Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., Governour of the Colony of Connecticut.

Ordered, That the Powder which Mr. Peter T. Curtenius has in his custody, be sent to the Committee at Albany, to be by them retained, and that Mr. Curtenius write to the Committee and acquaint them therewith.

Ordered, That the gentlemen who are Deputies for the City and County of Albany, and Mr. Richard Lawrence be a Committee to prepare a draft of an answer to the Letter this day received from the Committee at Albany; and that they make report with all convenient speed.

Henry Watkeys, a Gunsmith, was sent for by order of the Congress, and attended; after conversing with him on the subject of making Gun-barrels, he agreed to go to New-Windsor to consult with Mr. Robert Boyd about the forging of Gun-barrels and making Muskets.

Ordered, That the said Henry Watkeys proceed to New-Windsor, and endeavour to fix a proper plan with Robert Boyd, for carrying on Gun and Musket making, and on his return report to this Board his proceedings in the premises: and

Resolved, That this Congress will defray the expenses of the said Henry Watkeys in his journey to New-Windsor, or allow him such daily wages during that time as he can usually earn at his trade.

A Letter from the New-York Delegates in the Continental Congress, dated Philadelphia, June 3, 1775, was received and read.

Mr. Scott (seconded by Mr. Morris) moved that that part of the Letter of the New-York Delegates in the Continental Congress, dated on the 3d instant, which respects the recommendation of a Major and Brigadier-General for the Continental Army, be immediately taken into consideration.

And debates arising thereon, it was postponed till the morning at the request of the Deputies of Albany, Suffolk, and Richmond Counties.

Dissentients—Albany, Col. Van Rensselaer, Mr. Cuyler; Suffolk, Mr. Hobart.

The Congress adjourned to nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

Die Mercurii, 9 ho. A. M., June 7, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment, and opened with prayers by the Rev. Mr. Bodin. Present:

For the City and County of New-York.—Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., President; Isaac Low, Alexander McDougall, Leonard Lispenard, Joseph Hallett, Abraham Brasher, Isaac Roosevelt, John De Lancey, James Beekman, Samuel Verplanck, David Clarkson, Benjamin Kissam, John Morin Scott, Jacobus Van Zandt, John Marston.

For Queen's County.—Jacob Blackwell, Jonathan Lawrence, Joseph Robinson, Nathaniel Tom.

For Charlotte County.—John Williams, William Marsh.

Mr. Morris, from the Committee for that purpose, reported a draught of a Letter to the New-York Delegates at the Continental Congress, on the subject of erecting a Fortification at King's Bridge. The same was read and approved of, and is in the words following:

In Provincial Congress at New-York, June 7, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Upon receiving the resolutions of the Congress which relate to the fortifying King's Bridge, &c., we appointed Committees to view those places. Our Committee from King's Bridge made a report the third instant, of which we send you a copy. We have only to add, that by reason of the easiness of approach, which will arise from the great irregularity of the ground on Manhattan's Island, especially to the northward, no fortification can be so constructed as to be tenable for any length of time; and even if such thing were practicable, yet if the enemy are superiour in the field, then, as they must necessarily command the rivers, such fortification might be reduced by famine, if not otherwise to be taken. It follows, therefore, that if the post is to be fortified, with a view to render it a magazine or place of arms, that no part of the island is properly adapted to that purpose.

Considering it in the light of a post for preserving the communication between the city and country, upon a supposition that the rivers are occupied by ships-of-war, then if the place marked A were strong and capable of sustaining a regular siege, still a body of forces on the island could as effectually cut off the communication in many other places. On the other hand, if the enemy should possess themselves of the post A, besides that it is commanded by the two heights marked B, particularly Tippett's Hill, yet it would by no means serve to cut off the communication, because it would be easy to cross Harlem River in boats, with a body of forces, in several places, where no vessel-of-war could lay without being exposed to fire from such very high grounds as to be quite out of the reach of her artillery; and also because that river is fordable in places which are covered from any fire which can be made from the said post. And not only would the enemy's possession be ineffectual for their purposes, it would also bring on them certain destruction; for that it would be very easy to cut off their retreat to the Town, and, from the great elevation of ground above the river, to prevent any relief which they would receive from vessels-of-war; wherefore, if we have the superiority in the field, they would be with great ease driven from that post, or starved in it.

This place, therefore, (the only one which can secure the bridges,) being of little consequence to us, and of still less to them, we are of opinion that it would be very imprudent to fortify it at present, because the expense will be much greater than after we have troops embodied, who can perform much of the labour, and also for a reason mentioned in the report of our Committee.

You will take notice, gentlemen, that we have no ammunition, nor any Engineer—two most necessary implements of war, you will certainly acknowledge; the first we hope for from the endeavours of our merchants, the last you will take some care to procure, if to be had amongst you.

Be assured that we have the greatest willingness to obey the resolutions of the Grand Congress; and if in their wisdom they shall think fit to overrule the reasons which we have offered, doubt not that we shall use our utmost efforts to comply with their requisitions.

We are, gentlemen, your most humble servants.

To the New-York Delegates in Continental Congress.

Ordered, That a copy of this Letter be engrossed, signed by the President, and, together with a copy of the Report therein mentioned, and a copy of a Draught or Plan therein mentioned, be transmitted by the first conveyance.

The Report above mentioned is in the words following, to wit:

We, your Committee appointed to view the ground in the environs of King's Bridge, do most humbly report:

That in obedience to your commands we have examined the heights in that neighbourhood, taking such assistance as the shortness of the notice permitted us to procure, and are of opinion that a post (capable of containing three hundred men) erected on the high ground adjoining Mr. Hyatt's house, marked A in the annexed map, will answer the purpose proposed by the Continental Congress in their requisition, so far as the occupying that bridge can contribute to the keeping up a communication between the country and this city; for we beg leave to observe, that an enemy may land and seize on several posts in this island capable of interrupting, though not totally cutting off that communication held up as a point of so much importance by the Continental Congress. We are farther of opinion that this work should be constructed by troops when embodied and ready to occupy it, your Committee being humbly of opinion it would be the highest imprudence to erect a fortification before we have the means of defending it. By this mode of proceeding the expense will also be very much reduced. We believe that though there be no water immediately on the spot proposed for this post, yet means may be fallen upon to cover those who go to a well sunk in the adjoining low ground, near Mr. Hyatt's house, especially as we conceive this post is not supposed to sustain any regular attack, or of many hours' duration, without relief. We think fascines the cheapest and best materials to face this work, and that an abattis or fallen wood will contribute much to the security of the post. With respect to the particular form and dimensions, your Committee dare not venture (without the assistance of an Engineer) to recommend any particular plan to your consideration; and therefore pray your attention to provide a person of experience in this line of military science. All which is most humbly submitted.

By order of the Committee:

JAMES VAN CORTLANDT, Chairman.

The Order of the Day being read, the Congress resumed the consideration of the Letter from the Delegates of this Colony at the Continental Congress; and after some time spent therein the Congress unanimously resolved and agreed that Colonel Philip Schuyler is the most proper person in this Colony to be recommended as a Major-General, and Richard Montgomerie, Esq., as a Brigadier-General.

And Ordered, That Mr. Scott and Mr. Morris be a Committee to prepare and report the draft of a Letter to our Delegates at the Continental Congress, informing them of our sentiments on this subject, and the reasons of our choice.

The Committee appointed for that purpose, reported a draft of a Report of additional Artificers and Stores to be forwarded to Ticonderoga. The same was read and agreed to, and is in the words and figures following, to wit:

The Committee having considered the requisition on this Colony made by Colonel B. Arnold, commandant at Ticonderoga, for provisions and stores, &c., transmitted to this Congress by the Committee of Albany, and at the same time compared it with the list of supplies already ordered to be sent, do report, that the following additional stores, &c., ought to be provided and sent: 10 men of the train of artillery: 12 ship carpenters and caulkers: 2 gunsmiths: 2 blacksmiths: 2 masons: 100 hatchets: 20 broadaxes: 50 spades: 50 hoes: the iron work for 4 gins and blocks: 8 falls for do, of 4½ inch rope: 1 coil 2½ inch rope, 1 coil 2 inch rope, 1 coil 1½ inch rope, 100 fathoms each: 4 pieces ravens duck: 40 pounds sewing twine: 10 dozen of sail and bolt rope needles: 1 dozen palms: 2 seines, 30 fathom long, capt 12 feet, and arms 6 feet deep, of coarse twine, meshes 1½ inch square: 2 dozen of nail hammers: 1 faggot of steel.

As to the oxen, carts, &c., mentioned in the said requisition, your Committee are of opinion that those can be procured in the neighbourhood of that post.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be made and delivered to Peter T. Curtenius, and that he be desired to obtain the said Artificers, Men, and Stores, and forward the same to Albany with all possible despatch.

The same Committee also reported a draft of a Letter to the Committee of Albany, which was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

New-York Provincial Congress, June 7, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Before this comes to hand you will be furnished with our directions, dated 1st instant. We are convinced of the necessity of giving you explicit instructions respecting your conduct; but the variety of business in which this Congress has been engaged, and the time which is necessarily taken up in our friendly intercourse with the Continental Congress and the Colony of Connecticut, does necessarily occasion at times an apparent delay in our directions to you.

We highly approve of your zeal and activity in raising troops, but request you not to proceed in making farther levies until further orders. The two companies raised in your County and already on their march, you will suffer to proceed to join the forces at Ticonderoga; but must observe to you, that by the direction of the Continental Congress, their pay will stand on the same footing with that of the Eastern Colonies, without allowing bounties or clothing to the men; and that they are to continue in the service until the last day of December next, unless the Continental Congress shall direct that they be sooner disbanded.

Those companies who are under your direction formed, and not sent up, you will continue in pay, if your engagement with them will not justify your discharging them; and request that you send to this Congress a return of the officers and men in each company.

The troops taken at St. John's who are with you, should remain at liberty, and they may probably be of service in instructing your inhabitants the military exercise. If they refuse earning their bread in this, or any other way, it is however the intention of this Congress that they shall receive their subsistence out of the Colony provisions.

Enclosed we send you a copy of a letter from the Continental Congress, and their resolve respecting the appointment of Commissaries for receiving supplies of provisions at Albany.

Enclosed is also a copy of a resolve of the Grand Congress to discourage any incursions into Canada; but this has in some measure been anticipated by a former resolution of this House, already published, as well as your request respecting our letter to Governour Trumbull a copy of which has been sent you by Colonel Ten Broeck. We are, &c.

Ordered, That a copy of the said Letter to the Committee of Albany be engrossed, signed by the President, and transmitted.

The gentlemen appointed a Committee for that purpose, reported draughts of two several Letters to the Delegates of this Colony at the Grand Continental Congress, which were severally read and approved, and are in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 7, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Your favour of the third instant we have received, and are happy to find that we have the honour of your concurrence in our sentiments on the subject of emitting a Paper Currency. We pray leave to add, that unless your respectable body shall make some speedy order with relation to the levying of money, it will be impossible for us to comply with their further requests. Publick faith has been stretched as far as it will go, and the pledge of a future fund to be hereafter devised, hath been trusted to its full value. We have engaged ourselves personally, and further we cannot proceed, unless every private gentleman amongst us will consent to sacrifice his own property to the pressing calls made upon him by the publick.

The importance, the necessity of attention to Indian affairs, is deeply impressed on our minds, because our publick peace is more endangered by the situation of the barbarians to the westward of us, than it can be by any inroads made upon the sea-coast. Britain will spare the last for her own sake, and policy will teach her Ministers to light up an Indian war upon our frontiers, that we may be driven for protection to embrace their terms of slavery. To obviate such evils will, we hope, occupy a considerable share of your wise attention. We do not presume to dictate any measure to you, being confident of your prudence and knowledge; at the same time we submit it to your consideration whether it is proper to leave the management of the numerous tribes of Indians entirely in the hands of persons appointed and paid by the Crown. If it be not, then you will best be able to determine the proper remedy for this evil, and whether it will not be both politick and just to nominate a Continental Superintendent of Indian affairs, and provide ways and means to defray the expenses of his office; or whether we may not have greater cause to apprehend danger from such appointment than by suffering these things to flow in their former channel, seeing that the Indians have already declared their willingness to preserve peace unless their Superintendent shall be molested.

We have hitherto received no sufficient supply of powder or other ammunition for the defence of our Colony; and whilst we regret our present inability, we beg leave to assure you, that if Connecticut can furnish a sufficient store for the garrisons of Ticonderoga and Crown Point, (posts which are necessary for our mutual protection,) as soon as it is in our power we shall gladly replace the expediture.

The extensive qualifications necessary to form the General, are far beyond the reach of our humble abilities, and better fitted to the wisdom of the Continental Congress. We feel ourselves under the deepest obligations to you for enabling us to recommend persons to the offices of Major and Brigadier-General. We are sensible of the extent of this condescension, and are equally affected by the honour of the trust, and our incapacity to execute it.

Courage, prudence, readiness in expedients, nice perception, sound judgment and great attention, these are a few of the natural qualities which appear to us to be proper. To these ought to be added an extensive acquaintance with the sciences, particularly the various branches of mathematick knowledge, long practice in the military art, and, above all, a knowledge of mankind. On a General in America, fortune also should bestow her gifts, that he may rather communicate lustre to his dignities than receive it, and that his country in his property, his kindred, and connexions, may have sure pledges that he will faithfully perform the duties of his high office, and readily lay down his power when the general weal shall require it.

Since we cannot do all that we wish, we will go as far towards it as we can, and therefore you will not be surprised to hear that we are unanimous in the choice of Colonel Philip Schuyler, and Captain Richard Montgomerie, to the offices of Major and Brigadier-General. If we knew how to recommend them to your notice more strongly than by telling you that, after considering the qualifications above stated, these gentlemen were approved of without a single dissent, our regard to the publick service would certainly lead us to do it in the most forcible terms; nor will we enter into a minute detail of the character and situations of two gentlemen with whom our Delegates cannot but be acquainted. In a word we warmly recommend them, because we have no doubt but their appointment will give general satisfaction.

We beg leave to assure you, gentlemen, that we are, &c.

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 7, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The Colonies of Massachusetts and Connecticut have formed their respective armies, and nominated to the general command of them; the supposition that in case a Continental Army should be established by authority of your respectable body, their officers will be permitted to preserve their respective ranks, appears to us highly probable. In this view, we think it not improbable that we should be called on for a recommendation to fill the offices in the military appointment of this Colony. We take the liberty for the present to furnish you with our sentiments on the appointment of a Major and Brigadier-General; and submit them to your superiour wisdom, either for use or concealment. Our only motive is to prevent a delay that might otherwise be occasioned by an opinion you may entertain of the necessity of asking our sentiments on that subject.

Courage, prudence, readiness in expedients, nice perception, sound judgment, and great attention, these are a few of the natural qualities which appear to us to be proper. To these ought to be added, an extensive acquaintance with the sciences, particularly the various branches of mathematick knowledge, long practice in the military art, and, above all, a knowledge of mankind. On a General in America, fortune also should bestow her gifts, that he may rather communicate lustre to his dignities than receive it, and that his country in his property, his kindred, and connexions, may have sure pledges that he will faithfully perform the duties of his high office, and readily lay down his power when the general weal requires it.

Since we cannot do all that we wish, we will go as far towards it as we can, and therefore you will not be surprised to hear that we are unanimous in the choice of Colonel Philip Schuyler and Captain Richard Montgomerie to the offices of Major and Brigadier-General. If we knew how to recommend them to your notice more strongly than by telling you that, after considering the qualifications above stated, these gentlemen were approved of without a single dissent, our regard to the publick service would certainly lead us to do it in the most forcible terms; nor will we enter into a minute detail of the characters and situations of two gentlemen with whom our Delegates cannot but be acquainted. In a word, we warmly recommend them, because we have no doubt but their appointment will give general satisfaction.

We beg leave to assure you, gentlemen, that we are, with the profoundest respect, &c.

Ordered, That a copy of each of the said Letters be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted to the Delegates from this Colony in the Continental Congress, by Joseph Stevens, as a messenger for that purpose; and that the President write a private Letter to the Delegates, to inform them of the reason of sending both these Letters, and requesting them to produce either, and suppress the other, as they may see fit.

Resolved, That whensoever doubts shall arise with respect to the Recommendations or Resolutions of the Continental Congress, or of this Board, in the minds of private persons, it is the duty of such persons to apply to this Board for an explanation thereof; and that any attempts to raise tumults, riots, or mobs, either under colour of a dubious interpretation of such Recommendations or Resolutions, or for any other reasons or purposes, is a high infraction of the General Association, and tends directly to the dissolution of this Congress.

Ordered, That this Resolution be published in the Newspapers; and that two thousand copies thereof be printed in handbills.

The Congress adjourned to four o'clock, P. M.

Mr. Kissam reported a draught of a Letter to Joseph Warren, Esq., and others, the Committee of Safety for the Colony of the Massachusetts-Bay; which was read, and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 7, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The multiplicity of business brought before us by the Continental Congress, and a short adjournment of our body from Saturday till Tuesday morning, have rendered it impossible for us to give a more early attention to your favour of the 26th ultimo. We have little to say upon the principal subject of your letter, as we conceive that the Provincial Congresses of both Colonies are concluded from any discretionary provision relative to the ordnance and other stores taken at Crown Point and Ticonderoga, of which you must be fully convinced by the acts of the Continental Congress on that subject, copies of which are enclosed.

We are fully apprised of the dangerous consequences that would await this Capital of our Colony, either from supineness, or a confidence in the honour of those who, being the avowed instruments of ministerial vengeance, we cannot expect will hold any faith with us. Whatever articles we are now possessed of that may be used to the injury of this City in particular, or of the Continent in general, we shall be studious to prevent, if possible, from falling into the hands of our enemies.

In sympathizing with you for the unhappy Town of Boston, we shall do every thing in our power to prevent this City from being reduced to the same deplorable situation, and shall watchfully attend to every means of defence which our present or future circumstances may enable us to improve.

We are, gentlemen and brethren, with great respect and sincere affection, your most obedient humble servants.

To Joseph Warren, Esq., and the Committee of Safety for the Colony of Massachusetts-Bay, Watertown.

Ordered, That the above Letter be engrossed, signed by the President, and transmitted by the first opportunity.

Captain Montgomerie, from the Committee appointed for that purpose, brought in a Report of such parts of the Goods retained by the Merchants of this City, at the request of the Committee of the City of New-York, as may be necessary to be retained at the expense of the Colony.

Ordered, That the said Report lay on the table for the perusal of the Members.

Whereas, James Rivington, of this City, Printer, hath signed the General Association, and has lately published a handbill declaring his intention rigidly to adhere to the said Association; and also asked the pardon of the publick, who have been offended by his ill-judged publications:

Resolved, therefore, That the said James Rivington be permitted to return to his house and family; and that this Congress doth recommend it to the inhabitants of this Colony not to molest him in his person or property.

The Congress then took into consideration the case of Robert and John Murray, which lies before this Congress by a general reference from the Continental Congress; and after some time spent therein, it was ordered to be deferred for further consideration.

The Congress adjourned till nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

A Letter, dated Cambridge, June 4, 1775, from Artemas Ward, General of the Massachusetts Army, Joseph Warren, Chairman of the Committee of Safety, and Moses Gill, Chairman of the Committee of Supplies, was read.

An answer to the said Letter was read, and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 8, 1775.

BRETHREN AND COUNTRYMEN: Your letter of the 4th instant hath afflicted and astonished us. We did console ourselves in our want of ammunition, with an assurance that you were possessed of a very ample quantity for your defence. We expected a supply with patience, because we had a good hope that the absolute necessity would not arise before it was provided against; and incautiously, the whole of what was in the Colony of New-York, hath been so disposed of that there is not now one hundred weight to be purchased for any price. We have forwarded your letter to the American Congress, and hope that the Colony of Pennsylvania may be able to succour you, though we cannot. You have our warmest wishes in the great cause of American liberty, and we pray you to believe that we are firmly resolved to withstand the encroachments of Ministerial tyranny to the utmost of our abilities, and to labour for the restoration of that harmony between these Colonies and the parent State, which is essential to the peace, the glory, the existence of the whole British Empire.

We are, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants,
To the Hon. Artemas Ward, General of the Massachusetts Army; Joseph Warren, Chairman of the Committee of Safety; Moses Gill, Chairman of the Committee of Supplies, at Cambridge, Massachusetts-Bay.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, signed, and transmitted.

The President, with the leave of the Congress, left the Chair, and went to Elizabethtown, to confer with the Committee there on the above-mentioned Letter from General Ward; and the Vice-President took the Chair.

A draught of a Letter to the honourable the Continental Congress, to attend a copy of the above-mentioned Letter from General Ward and Messrs. Warren and Gill, was read and approved.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, signed by the Vice-President, and transmitted.

Whereas, by an Order of the Continental Congress of the 15th of May ultimo, and the explanation of the Continental Delegates of this Colony accompanying the said Order, it appears that the inhabitants of this City are directed not to remove any Military Stores belonging to the Crown: And whereas, this Congress is well informed that some persons have lately seized and removed the Military Stores belonging to the Crown at Turtle-Bay, this Congress doth Resolve, That such a step is a direct breach of the Continental Order, and tends to destroy the weight of their and our authority, is inimical to the true interest of the Colonies, and tends to involve this City in the utmost confusion and distress: and also,

Resolved, That Messrs. Isaac Roosevelt, John Van Cortlandt, Alexander McDougall, David Clarkson, Joseph Hallett, Benjamin Kissam, Gouverneur Morris, and Isaac Low, be a Committee to repair immediately to Turtle-Bay, to signify this Resolution to the persons that may be assembled there for the purpose aforesaid, and to order them immediately to disperse, and desist from the further execution of the said measure.

And Resolved also, That such of the said Stores as may have been removed, be immediately replaced.

The Congress then adjourned till four o'clock, P. M.

Mr. President, as I am of opinion that it is absolutely necessary to dismantle the fort, and to secure certain implements and other accommodations for war in this City, to the end that they may not be hostilely used against us, I move that application be immediately made to the Continental Congress, to authorize this Congress to exercise a discretionary power with respect to every measure that may appear to us necessary to prevent the said fort and other fortifications, implements, and accommodations for war in this City, from being offensively used against it.

Mr. McDougall, Walter Livingston, Colonel Hoffman, dissentients against the vote of the Counties they respectively represent.

Mr. Kissam, from the Committee who went to Turtle-Bay, reported, that the Committee went to Turtle-Bay, and found no person there; that having been informed that sundry persons were at the house of David Devore, the Committee went there, and found some persons there armed; that upon informing them of the Resolve of this Congress, in consequence of which the said Committee was appointed, the persons there armed acknowledged that some Military Stores had been removed from Turtle-Bay; and they did engage that the said Stores should be returned, if carts were sent up to Turtle-Bay for that purpose. And Mr. Kissam farther reported, that Mr. Low and himself had sent up cartmen with carts to Turtle-Bay, to carry back and replace the said Stores.

The Congress took into consideration the Report of the Committee who were appointed to examine the list of the Goods retained by the Merchants, at the request of the Committee of the City of New-York; and, after some time spent therein, it was deferred till to-morrow morning.

Thomas Wickham having the care of Gardner's Island, which is much exposed to having the stock taken off by armed vessels for the use of the King's Troops at Boston, or elsewhere; and the said Island being in a defenceless state, desires the advice of this Board, whether he be permitted to take pay for said stock, in case it is not in his power to prevent their taking the same.

After some time spent in consideration thereof, it was deferred for further consideration.

The Congress then adjourned to nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

Mr. Isaac Sears attending at the door, was called in, and produced a Certificate from the General Committee of Association for the City and County of New-York, signed by Henry Remsen, Deputy Chairman; which being read, is in the words following, to wit:

New-York Committee Chamber, June 8, 1775.

In pursuance of an order of this Committee, at their last meeting, a poll was this day opened at the City-Hall for the election of a Deputy to represent this City and County in Provincial Congress, in the place of Mr. George Folliot, who declines serving; and by a return of the said poll, it appears that Mr. Isaac Sears was elected by a great majority as a Deputy for the purpose above-mentioned.

A true copy from the Minutes:

HENRY REMSEN, Dep. Chairman.

Ordered, That the said Certificate be filed, and that Mr. Sears take his seat accordingly.

Ordered, That Mr. Sears, Mr. De Lancey, and Mr. McDougall, be a Secret Committee to examine what quantity of Saltpetre is in the hands of the Apothecaries in this City, and to make report with all convenient speed.

The Congress resumed the consideration of the Report of the Committee appointed to examine the list of Goods retained by the Merchants of this City, at the request of the General Committee; and after some time spent therein, Ordered, That Captain Montgomerie, Colonel Holmes, Mr. Hallett, Mr. Brasher, Mr. Glenn, and Mr. Cuyler, be a Committee to estimate and report to this Congress the quantity of every article necessary for equipping three thousand effective men, including officers; and that they make report with all convenient speed.

The Congress resumed the case of Robert and John Murray; and after some time spent therein, Ordered, That it be deferred for further consideration.

Mr. Sears informed this Congress, that the following small quantities of Gunpowder, formerly delivered out of the Magazines in this City for sale, yet remain unsold, to wit: one hundred weight in the care of Messrs. Woodward and Kip; one hundred weight in the care of Jeremiah Platt; one hundred pounds of damaged powder in the care of Comfort Sands; and fifty pounds do., in the care of Messrs. Berrian and Fish; about twenty pounds in the care of Thomas Hazard.

Ordered, That those several gentlemen who have the care of the said Powder, be respectively directed to keep the whole now in their custody until the farther order of this Congress.

Ordered, That all the damaged Powder now in this City, and also the damaged Powder at Ticonderoga and Crown Point, be sent to the Powder-Mill near Hudson's River, in Rhynbeck Precinct, to be remanufactured.

And the following Letter to the Commander-in-Chief at Ticonderoga, and also the following Letter to the Commissioners at Albany, appointed to superintend the removal of the Cannon and Stores from Ticonderoga and Crown Point, being respectively read, were approved of.

And the said Letter to the said Commander-in-Chief is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 9, 1775.

SIR: This Congress have received credible information that there is a very large quantity of damaged gunpowder under your care at Ticonderoga, which can be so cured and manufactured as to render it fit for use. There is a mill erected near the east side of Hudson's River, in Rhynbeck Precinct, in Dutchess County, for the purpose of making gunpowder. We have therefore requested our Commissioners at Albany, with all diligence and despatch, to send the said damaged powder to that place; and we request that you will, on their application, assist in forwarding it; and that this matter may be kept as secret as possible.

By order and in behalf of the Provincial Congress.

We are, Sir, your very humble servants.

P. S. We enclose a Resolve of the Continental Congress, certified by their Secretary, enclosed to us to be forwarded.

And the said Letter to the Commissioners at Albany, is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 9, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We are well informed that there is a large quantity of damaged gunpowder at Ticonderoga, which may be rendered fit for use, and that there is a mill erected in Rhynbeck Precinct, near Hudson's River, for that purpose. That article is now become an object of great importance. This Congress do therefore request, that you will, without delay, give directions that all the damaged powder at Ticonderoga and Crown Point be immediately brought down to the said manufactory; and that you acquaint us with the quantity which you shall have sent to the said manufactory.

By order and on behalf of the Provincial Congress.

We are, gentlemen, your humble servants.

To Messrs. John N. Bleecker, Henry J. Bogert, George Palmer, Dirck Swart, and Peter Lansing, at Albany.

Ordered, That a copy of each of the said Letters be engrossed, signed by the President, and transmitted with all convenient speed; and that a copy (certified) of the above Order of this Congress for the removal of the said damaged Powder, be enclosed to the Commander-in-Chief at Ticonderoga; and also that a certified copy thereof be sent to the said Commissioners at Albany.

Whereas, sundry Mills and other Manufactories for the making of Gunpowder and Muskets, are now erected and about to be erected within this Colony; and forasmuch as all such Manufactories will greatly tend both to the immediate defence and the future wealth of this Colony,

Resolved, therefore, That for every hundred weight of good Gunpowder which, upon due proof, shall be certified by the Committee of the County where any Powder-Mill is or shall be erected, to have been manufactured within this Colony, and to have been delivered to the said Committee, the bounty of five Pounds shall be paid to the manufacturer thereof, over and above the price of such Powder; and for every hundred good Muskets, of proof so certified, the bounty of twenty Pounds; the bounties abovesaid to continue for twelve months from the date of this Resolve.

Mr. Tredwell made a motion, in the words following, to wit:

As it may hereafter be necessary to dismantle the Fort in this City, for the preservation of the inhabitants from the insults of the soldiery, in case of the arrival of Troops from Great Britain or Ireland; and as the Cannon and other implements of war in the said Fort, and upon the Battery, and in other parts of this City, will be necessary for the completing those fortifications which the Continental Congress have ordered us to erect; and as, by an early order from that respectable body, we conceive that we are not at liberty to take possession of any of the King's munitions or stores of war, I move that we do immediately despatch a Letter to the Continental Congress, praying their most speedy advice and directions in the premises.

The said motion being seconded by Mr. Scott, debates arose thereon; and it was insisted by those Members who opposed the motion, that it was the same in substance with a motion made, voted on, and carried in the negative on yesterday.

And the question being put thereon, Whether this motion is the same in substance with that of yesterday?

It was carried in the affirmative, in the manner following, viz :

That it is the same Motion.	That it is not the same Motion.
3 Albany,	2 Dutchess,
2 King's,	2 Orange,
2 Westchester,	2 Charlotte,
2 Richmond,	2 Ulster.

Mr. Tredwell, Colonel Hoffman, and Mr. Henry Williams, respectively, dissented from the votes of their respective Counties, and desired their dissents to be entered.

The President of this Congress, who went to Elizabethtown to confer with the Committee there on the subject-matter of the Letter received yesterday from General Ward, returned, and reported to this Congress, that the Committee at Elizabethtown have only eight quarter casks of Gunpowder, which they are ready to spare for the Provincial Army of Massachusetts-Bay; that the said Committee of Elizabethtown have expectations to obtain a further supply of Powder at Brunswick, which, if obtained, shall be sent to New-York for the use of the said Provincial Army of Massachusetts-Bay.

Ordered, That Mr. Peter T. Curtenius, as Commissary of this Congress, give a receipt for the said eight quarter casks of Powder; and also, that the said Commissary give a receipt for such farther quantity of Powder as may be received from the said Committee of Elizabethtown, or from Brunswick, and put the same into the Powder-House in this City, until the farther order of this Congress.

Mr. Scott moved, that the motion made by Mr. Tredwell this day, as before entered on the Minutes, be taken into consideration to-morrow; and the same being seconded by Mr. Tredwell, debates arose thereon; and the question being put, it was carried in the affirmative, in manner following, viz :

For the Affirmative.	For the Negative.

Ordered, That the said Powder, together with that received yesterday, be committed to the care of Mr. McDougall, to be forwarded; and ordered that he purchase such other quantity as he can get, for the same purpose, and forward the whole in such a manner as he shall think most safe and prudent.

Ordered, That any Cooper in this City of New-York be at liberty to go to Turtle-Bay, or any place adjacent thereto, and cooper and put in order the Crown Stores which were lately removed from thence, in such a manner as Francis Stevens, Esq., shall direct.

The Mayor of the City of New-York attending at the door, was called in, and informed the Congress that application had been made to him respecting some Arms lately taken out of the baggage-carts of the Troops lately embarking from this City; and he delivered a Letter from his Honour the Lieutenant-Governour to him on that subject; which was read: And thereupon,

Mr. Morris moved, and was seconded by Mr. Low, in the words following, to wit :

I move that the Arms and Military Accoutrements taken from His Majesty's Troops on Tuesday last, be restored; and for that purpose that a Resolve of the Congress be made, as follows :

Resolved, That it is the sense of this Congress, that every inhabitant of this Colony who is possessed of any of the said Arms and Accoutrements, should immediately deliver them to the Mayor of New-York; and that a Committee be appointed to see that this Resolve be complied with.

And debates arising on the said motion; and the question being put thereon, it was carried in the affirmative, in the manner following, to wit :

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, signed by the President, and delivered to Mr. McDougall, to be forwarded.

This Congress then resumed the consideration of the case of Robert and John Murray; and the Memorial of Robert and John Murray, on the subject of their breach of the Association of the late Continental Congress, and the several papers annexed to it, whereby they pray to be restored to their former commercial privileges, being read, on a reference thereof to us by the Continental Congress; and it appearing that they, the said Robert and John Murray, have published a printed handbill expressing their contrition for their said offence, and their resolution for the future strictly to adhere to the said Association, and to the further orders of the Continental Congress, the Provincial Congress of this Colony, and the General Committee of Association for this City and County, with a saving for the said Robert, (who is one of the people called Quakers,) as to his religious principles; and they having voluntarily paid the expenses that accrued for boat-hire, and otherwise, in the attendance of the Committee of Observation, for the purpose of preventing any goods from being landed from on board the said ship Beulah; and they having also, by letter under their hands, requested the Committee of Elizabethtown, in New-Jersey, to keep in their custody, at the cost and risk of them, the said Robert and John Murray, the several goods by them landed from on board the said ship, contrary to the said Association, until two vessels shall arrive from London with goods into this Colony, after a general importation from Great Britain to the Colonies shall take place:

Resolved, therefore, That the said Robert and John Murray shall be, and they are hereby fully restored to their commercial privileges, and declared to be entitled to the forgiveness of the publick.

Ordered, That Robert and John Murray may have a copy of this Resolve.

Colonel Clinton and Mr. Tappen, who were a Committee to examine the banks of Hudson's River through the Highlands, and report the most proper place for erecting one or more fortifications, and an estimate of the expense of erecting the same, delivered in their Report, with a Map or Plan of the said River through the Highlands; which Report was read.

The President informed this Congress that he had received a Letter from the New-York Delegates at the Continental Congress, the contents and subject-matter whereof ought to be kept a profound secret. And the said Letter being read, is in the words following, to wit:

“Philadelphia, June 10, 1775.

“GENTLEMEN: We are now to acknowledge the honour of your despatches of the 7th instant. We have long foreseen the difficulties you must be reduced to for want of money. They will not be lessened by the resolution of the Congress of yesterday, recommending it to you to procure and forward five thousand barrels of flour for the use of the Army at Boston. We communicated the paragraph of your letter, in which you complain that unless the Congress shall make some speedy order with relation to the levying of money, it will be impossible for you to comply with their farther requests. They, however, seem persuaded that their vote of credit, which accompanies the order for the supply, will remove every obstruction; and relying on your zeal for the common cause, they hope you will be able to throw in this provision, which we are apprehensive will soon become highly necessary. We may venture to hint to you, that the emission of paper money will be discussed on Monday, and we expect, in the course of next week, to be able to present you with a determination of this important business, which will free us from much anxiety. We shall not fail to attend to what you suggest concerning the Indians. This is an object to our Colony of the highest moment, and we hope, in due time, it will be considered by the Congress. We think the Indians will not be disposed to engage in this unhappy quarrel, unless deceived and deluded by misrepresentations; and this, with vigilance and care on our part, can be prevented; as one step towards it, which we much applaud, are the assurances you have given the Superintendent of his safety. From the temper and customs of the Indians, they would illy brook the extinguishing of their council fire; and had it been damped by any violence to Colonel Johnson's person or property, they must have been alarmed, and very probably excited to extremities.

“It is much to be lamented that we are still destitute of ammunition. The Government of Connecticut have been more provident, or more fortunate, and will be able to supply the forces at Ticonderoga with powder.

“We commend your caution in addressing two letters to us upon the subject of General Officers to command our Troops. What we wrote to you was in the character of your own immediate Delegates, and with a view to discover the sense of our Colony, that we might, when this matter came to be debated in Congress, be fortified with your opinion and arguments, which having obtained, we shall, to the utmost of our power, enforce your recommendations.

“Your remarks on the resolution of the Continental Congress relative to the taking post at King's Bridge, appears to us to be conclusive. We shall, however, lay them before our body, as soon as the other important matters under consideration are determined.

“We have the honour to be, with the greatest respect, gentlemen, your most humble servants, “PHIL. LIVINGSTON, Wm. FLOYD,

“FRANCIS LEWIS, Jno. ALSOP.

“To the Provincial Congress at New-York.”

The President having also received a Letter from the Continental Congress, desired that the contents and subject-matter thereof be kept a profound secret. And the same was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

“Philadelphia, June 10, 1775.

“GENTLEMEN: The enclosed resolution of this Congress I am directed to transmit you, and to desire you will order it to be executed in as expeditious and secret a manner as possible, referring to your judgment the most suitable places for landing it, and where there will be the least risk of interruption from the ships-of-war. You will please to consign it to the Committee of Correspondence in each place, with a direction to forward the flour to the Army as soon as possible.

“I have it also in charge to recommend to you that the flour be transported in small quantities, as there may be danger of the enemy. I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,
JOHN HANCOCK, President.

“To the Honourable Members of the Provincial Congress of New-York.”

The Resolutions mentioned in the above Letter from the Congress being also read, are in the words following, to wit:

“In Congress, June 9, 1775.

“Resolved, That the Provincial Convention of New-York be requested to convey, as soon as possible, to Providence, in Rhode-Island, or to any port in the Government of Massachusetts-Bay, five thousand barrels of Flour, for the use of the Continental Army.

“Resolved, That the Committee of Correspondence at Providence, and in the Government of Massachusetts-Bay, where the said Flour may be carried, be desired to receive and forward it to the camp before Boston, as soon as may be, and to lodge such part thereof as cannot be immediately sent thither, in places of security.

“Resolved, That this Congress will make provision for defraying any expense incurred for this service.

“A true copy from the Minutes:

“CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary.”

A Letter from Robert Boyd, at New-Windsor, dated the 10th instant, on the subject of making Muskets, was read and filed.

William Ustick, attending at the door, sent in a Bill of Exchange, appearing by its date to be drawn at Boston, on the 14th ultimo, May, on the said William Ustick, by John Montreson, in favour of Jonathan Hampton, for thirty Pounds, New-York currency, endorsed by Jonathan Hampton to Jonathan Blake, and appearing to be accepted by the said William Ustick, on the 3d day of June instant. And the said William Ustick desired the sense of this Congress, whether he could pay the said Bill consistent with the Resolve of the Continental Congress of the 2d of June instant.

And the said Resolve of the Continental Congress being read, it is declared to be the sense and opinion of this Congress, that the said Bill comes within the intent and meaning of the said Resolve.

The Congress then proceeded to the consideration of ways and means to carry into execution the Resolution, Request, and Order of the Continental Congress of the 9th instant, for supplying five thousand barrels of Flour for the use of the Continental Army, and forwarding the same towards the camp before Boston: And, thereupon,

Ordered, That Messrs. Isaac Sears, Abraham Walton, and Joseph Hallett, be a Committee to purchase the said quantity of Flour for the purpose aforesaid, or so much thereof as they can obtain, and to ship and forward the same agreeable to the said Resolution.

And it is now Resolved and Agreed, nem. con., That every Member of this Congress will be responsible to Messrs. Sears, Walton, and Hallett, for their respective proportion of all moneys that they may disburse, or hereafter be obliged to pay, by means of the purchase of the said Flour, or of their appointment, to comply with the said Resolution and Request of the Continental Congress.

Ordered, That Mr. Peter T. Curtenius, as Commissary of this Congress, be directed to purchase, and he is hereby directed to purchase three hundred barrels of Pork of such persons as will sell the same, on the credit of this Congress, and to forward the same to Albany, in parcels, with all possible despatch.

Mr. Scott, from the Committee appointed to confer with Mr. Price, of Montreal, reported a draught of a Letter to the Merchants of Canada; which was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 12, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Mr. Price, one of the inhabitants of your Province, has signified to us the absolute necessity of keeping up a communication between New-York and Canada, by the establishment of a regular post. The friendly sentiments which we feel for our brethren in the northern parts of this Continent, commanded our ready acquiescence in those reasons which that gentleman assigned in favour of such a communication as the necessary commercial intercourse between you and the rest of the world seems evidently to require. You may easily conceive that our ability is equal to our wishes, to support that communication up to Crown Point. To establish that place or Ticonderoga for the exchange of the mails between your country and ours, is the most proper expedient to obtain the end proposed; and the means of communication between Montreal and the place to be agreed on for exchange of the mails, rest entirely with you. Upon the first information you may be pleased to afford us of an establishment in your quarter, we shall not fail in conspiring with you by a similar establishment on our part.

We should be extremely sorry should the misrepresentations of the enemies of America impress our brethren in Canada with an opinion that the Confederated Colonies on this Continent aim at independence. Our allegiance to our Prince, and our attachment to the illustrious House of Hanover, we rank among our most singular blessings. A due subordination to Parliament, in matters for which they alone are competent, we wish firmly to maintain. Our resistance to Ministerial measures proceeds not either from a desire to oppose the rightful authority of our Sovereign, or the constitutional acts of the supreme Legislature of the British Empire. But while we are contented that Great Britain should enjoy that pre-eminence alone which properly belongs to the parent State, as individuals we are resolved to stand on the same secure basis of liberty with our fellow-subjects on the other side of the Atlantick, which can never be obtained under taxations by authority of Parliament. In prosecuting this idea of freedom, we include our brethren the inhabitants of the Province of Quebeck, as far as will consist with the utmost of their wishes.

For a further evidence of the sincerity of our intentions, we beg leave to refer you to Mr. Price, and to assure you that we are, gentlemen and brethren, with the most undissembled friendship, your very humble servants.

By order and on behalf of the Congress.

To the Gentlemen Merchants of the Province of Quebeck.

Ordered, That two copies of the said Letter be engrossed, signed by the President, and delivered to Mr. Price unsealed, to be by him sealed at such time and place as he shall think most prudent.

Ordered, That one half of the printed Letters to the inhabitants of Quebeck be delivered to Mr. Price, and that he be requested to have them distributed in the most advantageous manner.

The Congress adjourned till to-morrow morning, nine o'clock.

Die Martis, 9 ho. A. M., June 13, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Opened with prayers by the Rev. Mr. Gano. Present:

For the City and County of New-York.—Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., President; Isaac Low, Alexander McDougall, Leonard Lispenard, Joseph Hallett, Abraham Walton, Abraham Brasher, Isaac Roosevelt, John De Lancey, James Beekman, Samuel Verplanck, Richard Yates, David Clarkson, Thomas Smith, John Morin Scott, John Van Cortlandt, and Isaac Sears.

For the City and County of Albany.—Volkert P. Douw, Esq., Vice-President; Robert Yates, Abraham Yates, Jacob Cuyler, Peter Silvester, Walter Livingston, Robert Van Rensselaer, and Henry Glenn.

For Dutchess County.—Dirck Brinckerhoff, Anthony Hoffman, Zephaniah Platt, Richard Montgomerie, Ephraim Payne, Gilbert Livingston, Gysbert Schenck, Melancton Smith, and Nathaniel Sackett.

For Ulster County.—James Clinton, Christopher Tappen, and John Nicholson.

For Orange County.—David Pye, Abraham Lent, and Jeremiah Clarke.

For Suffolk County.—Thomas Tredwell, John Foster, and Ezra L'Hommiedieu.

For Westchester County.—Lewis Graham, James Van Cortlandt, Joseph Drake, Philip Van Cortlandt, James Holmes, Robert Graham, and William Paulding.

For King's County.—Jonathan E. Lott, Henry Williams, Jeremiah Remsen, Theodorus Polhemus, and John Vanderbilt.

For Richmond County.—Paul Micheau, John Journey, Aaron Cortelyou, Rich'd Lawrence, and Rich'd Conner.

For Queen's County.—Jonathan Lawrence, Zebulon Williams, Samuel Townshend, and Joseph Robinson.

For Charlotte County.—John Williams, William Marsh.

Colonel Clinton and Mr. Tappen, a Committee for that purpose, reported a draught of a Letter to the New-York Delegates; which was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 13, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: In consequence of one of your Resolves, we appointed a Committee to view the Post in the Highlands, whose Report, with a Map thereto annexed, you have enclosed, which is all as yet we have been able to do respecting that matter. As soon as the proper measures on that head are concluded, we will transmit them to you.

We are, gentlemen, with esteem, your most obedient and humble servants.

To the New-York Delegates in the Continental Congress.

The Report mentioned in the above Letter, is in the words following, to wit:

Your Committee, in obedience to your order of the 10th ultimo, do most humbly report: That, taking to their assistance Captain Samuel Bayard and Captain Erasmus Williams, they proceeded to the Highlands, and made a survey of the ground adjoining to Hudson's River, for the purpose mentioned in the said order, and do report it as their opinion, that a Post, capable of containing three hundred men, erected on the east bank of Hudson's River, marked A, and another on the west side of said River, to contain two hundred men, marked B, in the annexed map, will answer the purpose proposed and directed by the Continental Congress, as it is not only the narrowest part of the said river, but best situated, on account of the high hills contiguous to it, as well on the west as east side of the river which cover those parts; so that without a strong easterly wind, or the tide, no vessel can pass it; and the tide on said part of the river is generally so reverse, that a vessel is usually thrown on one side of the river or the other, by means whereof such vessel lay fair and exposed to the places your Committee have fixed on. Your Committee are further of opinion, that the cheapest and best materials to face these works, would be stone and lime, as there are plenty of stone on the same, and adjoining to it; and lime can be had from a little distance up the river. Your Committee beg leave to observe, that they are informed that by means of four or five booms chained together on one side of the river, ready to be drawn across, the passage can be closed up, to prevent any vessel passing or repassing. Your Committee are further of opinion, that if the last measure should be adopted, it would be requisite and highly prudent to place one or two cannon at the mouth of the Highlands, under the care and inspection of a faithful man, to alarm the Troops to be embodied at the places proposed, in time of danger. Your Committee are also further informed, and are of opinion, that there is on the east side of the said river, near the place fixed on in the said annexed map, marked A, a good and convenient place to build a magazine for the lodgment of gunpowder and other stores. We believe that though there is no fresh water on the spot proposed for the east post, yet a good spring is near it, so that it can be conveyed thereto with a very small expense. We think it would be also necessary to build a number of small boats for maintaining a communication between the two posts.

Your Committee are unable to make a true estimate of the expense that will attend the erecting the said fortifications; but from the best computation they are able to make, it will at least amount to one thousand five hundred Pounds. All which is most humbly submitted by your Committee.

JAMES CLINTON,
CHRIST. TAPPEN.

Ordered, That the foregoing Letter to the New-York Delegates be engrossed, signed by the President, and, together with a copy of the above Report, transmitted by the first opportunity.

The Congress took into consideration the Letter from Robert Boyd, and the Proposals of Henry Watkeys, relating to the making of Muskets and Bayonets; and after some time spent therein,

Resolved, That this Congress will agree with Robert Boyd and Henry Watkeys, that they shall make one thousand good Muskets, with steel ramrods and Bayonets with scabbards, at the price of three Pounds fifteen Shillings, New-York money, for each good Musket with a steel ramrod, and Bayonet with a scabbard, including the bounty agreed to be allowed by this Congress; and

Resolved, That this Congress will immediately advance the sum of one hundred Pounds, New-York money, to assist them in procuring necessary tools and materials for carrying on the said business; and Ordered, That Colonel Lispenard, Captain Montgomerie, and Colonel Clinton, be a Committee to treat with the said Robert Boyd and Henry Watkeys, and agree with them accordingly.

Ordered, That Colonel Lispenard and Mr. McDougall be a Committee to agree with any person in this City for importing, without delay, any quantity of Gunpowder not exceeding thirty tons, allowing such importer one hundred per cent. upon the first cost, for the quantity to be imported, he being at all charges and risk; and the Powder to be delivered in good and merchantable order.

Ordered, That Doctor Graham and Mr. Verplanck be a Committee to confer with Messrs. Van Vleeck and Kip, on the subject of making Saltpetre, and to know what encouragement they would expect from this Congress, for carrying on a manufacture of Saltpetre.

Ordered, That Mr. McDougall apply to the General Committee of New-York for two hundred Pounds of the money raised by subscription; and that when he has received that sum, he pay one hundred Pounds thereof to Robert Boyd and Henry Watkeys, to enable them to carry on the business of Musket and Bayonet making, after the Committee for that purpose above-mentioned shall have perfected an agreement with them; and that he pay the other one hundred Pounds to the President of this Congress, to expend in paying Messengers and other necessary disbursements.

Mr. Gilbert Livingston has leave of absence for a few days.

The Congress then adjourned to nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

For Charlotte County.—John Williams, William Marsh.

Messrs. Christopher Miller and Patrick Dennis attending at the door, were called in; when they informed this Congress that they were requested by a number of the Members of the Marine Society of this City, to inform this Congress that they were about to form themselves into an Artillery Company, and they had nominated Mr. Anthony Rutgers, of this City, for their Captain; and pray the approbation of this Congress in the nomination.

The Congress having taken the same into consideration, do unanimously approve of the nomination of Mr. Anthony Rutgers to be Captain of the said company; and recommend to the said Society to nominate, for the approbation of this Congress, such persons for their other officers as may be confided in.

The Congress this day received sundry informations, that one Angus McDonald is giving a bounty and enlisting men to be employed against the liberties of the inhabitants of this Country; and therefore the Congress does appoint Mr. McDougall to have the said Angus McDonald brought before this Congress; and they direct an order to Colonel Lasher, signed by the President and countersigned by the Secretaries, to be issued and sent to Colonel Lasher, in the words following, to wit:

Colonel LASHER:

You are desired to furnish Mr. Alexander McDougall with a Sergeant's guard, properly appointed, to attend him, and in all things to obey him, immediately.

By order of the Congress:

PETER V. B. LIVINGSTON, President.

Done in Congress:

JOHN MCKESSON, } Secretaries.
ROBERT BENSON, }

Captain Thompson, at the request of this Congress, attended at the door, and being called in, gave the following information in substance, to wit:

That he left Cove, near Cork, in Ireland, on the 6th of May last; that six Regiments had sailed in twenty-four transports for Boston, including a Regiment of Horse; and three Regiments had embarked, and a fourth was embarking, or ready to embark, for New-York; that it was reported that the Regiments coming to New-York had been wrote for by persons here to support people's property and assist against mobs. And the other parts of the information given by Captain Thompson appears in the short notes taken thereof and filed among the papers of this Congress.

Thereupon, a draught of a Letter to the New-York Delegates at Philadelphia, was read and approved.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed and signed by the President, and, together with the notes of Captain Thompson's information, sent by the first conveyance.

A draught of a Letter to the Governour of Connecticut, was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 14, 1775.

SIR: Captain Thompson arrived here in a ship from Cork last evening, and as we understood he had reported that several Regiments had sailed from thence for Boston, and four other Regiments were embarked and embarking for New-York, this Congress desired him to attend their Board this morning, to examine him upon the subject. Upon his attendance we took notes of the intelligence he gave, and enclose a copy thereof to you, and beg you will forward the same to the Camp at Cambridge. We have forwarded the intelligence to the Continental Congress; and are, Sir, your very humble servants.

By order and on behalf of the Provincial Congress.

To the Honourable Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., Governour of the Colony of Connecticut.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, signed by the President, and, together with the notes of Captain Thompson's information, be transmitted by the first conveyance.

A draught of a Letter to John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress, was read and approved.

Ordered, That a copy of the said Letter be engrossed, signed by the President, and, together with a copy of the Resolve therein mentioned, transmitted by the first conveyance.

William Duer, Esq., sent in a Letter to the President and Congress; which was read. He therein complains of sundry insinuations against his conduct, with relation to the Northern Frontier of this Colony; and of such reports having been industriously circulated as deeply to endanger his person and property; and praying that a Committee may be appointed to examine into his conduct this afternoon.

The Congress, considering that Mr. Duer must attend a Court in Charlotte County, which is speedily to sit, and cannot conveniently be held without his attendance, do therefore appoint Mr. Montgomerie, Mr. Silvester, Mr. Abraham Yates, Mr. Scott, Mr. Morris, Mr. Marsh, and Mr. John Williams, a Committee to hear and examine into the case of Mr. Duer, and report thereon to this Congress.

Mr. McDougall returned into Congress, and reported that Angus McDonald, who had been armed and made resistance when called on by him, was in custody of a Sergeant's Guard; and a Letter found in his custody from him to Alexander McDonald, was read.

The said Angus McDonald being brought before the Congress and examined, confessed that he had taken the names of upwards of forty men who had promised to enlist in a battalion, to wear Highland dress; and also confessed sundry other matters, of which short notes are taken and filed.

And the said Angus McDonald having consented voluntarily to make oath to the substance of the information by him given to this Congress, his affidavit was drawn, and to which he subscribed and was duly sworn, and which is in the words following, to wit:

"City of NEW-YORK, ss.—Angus McDonald, of this City, being duly sworn upon the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, deposes and saith: That some time last fall this deponent was at the Town of Boston, and had a conversation with Major John Small upon the subject of raising a Regiment in America, to serve against the inhabitants of America in the present contest. That the plan laid for that purpose was, that such officers as are now on half pay in the several Colonies should be promoted in consequence of enlisting such persons as had formerly served as soldiers in this Country. That Major Small informed this deponent that the deponent should be taken notice of, and promoted, if the scheme should take place, and mentioned to this deponent the being sutler to the regiment so raised. That this deponent then told him that he was not possessed of sufficient property to engage in that business, and therefore could not accept of that; whereupon the said Major told this deponent that he (deponent) should be taken notice of if called upon; and this deponent further saith, that in consequence of the plan so laid, a number of men have engaged themselves in the service; but that they have not yet received any bounty money for their enlistment. And this deponent further saith, that he verily believes many half-pay officers are acquainted with the aforesaid plan. That the said plan cannot take place without orders from home; and this deponent believes that no such orders will be obtained. That Captain Alexander McDonald is also concerned in the said scheme, and hath corresponded with Major Small on that subject. That this deponent hath seen and read one of the said Major Small's letters to the said Alexander McDonald, which letter came by the Asia, man-of-war. That one encouragement held up to those soldiers who should enlist was, that they should have each of them one hundred acres of land when the troubles in America should be over. That the deponent does not believe any men are engaged in the County of Albany, because that there is no person there to engage them. That this deponent is unwilling to serve against his countrymen and fellow-subjects in America, and is sorry the disturbances have risen to so great a height. And further this deponent saith not.

"ANGUS McDONALD.

"Sworn this 14th of June, 1775, before me:

"JOHN MCKESSON, Notary Publick."

It appearing to this Congress by a Letter found in the custody of Angus McDonald, and by the Deposition of the said Angus McDonald, and by the examinations of sundry witnesses before this Congress, that Alexander McDonald, now, or late of Richmond County, has been concerting measures and employing agents to enlist men to be employed against the liberties of America, Ordered, therefore, That the said Alexander McDonald be secured and kept in safe custody, and that all his papers be secured and examined; and that Messrs. Abraham Brasher, Zephaniah Platt, and Melancton Smith, be a Committee for that purpose; and that Colonel Lasher be desired to send a Sergeant's Guard (with those gentlemen) properly appointed, to attend them, and to obey Mr. Brasher in all things.

Whereas, from the information of Captain Thompson, received this day, there is reason to apprehend that Troops may soon arrive here from Ireland; and from the evidence before this Congress, it appears that it would be very unsafe and imprudent to permit or suffer so dangerous a person as Angus McDonald to remain in this Colony, and enjoy his liberty at this juncture:

Ordered, therefore, That the said Angus McDonald be sent to General Wooster's camp, with a request from this Congress that he may be put in such a state of security as may effectually prevent any mischief that might arise from his being left at large.

And Ordered, That a request be sent to Colonel Lasher to send a guard of twelve trusty men, properly equipped and armed, to take the custody and charge of Angus McDonald, and to convey him to General Wooster's camp at Greenwich, in Connecticut. And that the whole guard go with the said Angus McDonald to King's Bridge; that half of the guard be at liberty to return from thence, and that the other half of the said guard proceed with the said Angus McDonald, by the way of White Plains, to General Wooster's camp.

A Letter to General Wooster, covering a copy of the Affidavit of the said Angus McDonald, was read, and approved of; and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 14, 1775.

SIR: From the enclosed affidavit you will be able to collect the design of sending Angus McDonald to you under guard. We have received information by Captain Thompson, who arrived here last night from Cork, in Ireland, that four full Regiments have embarked in Ireland for this City, and may be expected here every hour; we therefore think it unsafe to suffer so dangerous a person to enjoy his liberty at this juncture; and beg leave to recommend it to you to put him in such a state of security as may effectually prevent any mischief that might arise from his being left at large.

We are, Sir, with great respect, your most humble servants.

To Major-General Wooster.

Ordered, That a copy of the said Letter to General Wooster be engrossed, signed by the President, and transmitted with the said Guards.

Mr. Foster (seconded by Colonel Clinton) moved in the words following, to wit: I move that a message be immediately despatched to Major-General Wooster, commanding a body of Troops in the southern part of Connecticut, requesting him forthwith to march the said Troops to the distance of five miles of this City.

Agreeable to the tenth Rule of this Congress, at the request of the Deputies of three Counties, to wit: the Counties of Albany, Richmond, and Charlotte, Ordered, That this matter be deferred till to-morrow morning.

Mr. Silvester, from the Committee appointed to examine into the case of William Duer, delivered in their Report, which being read, is in the words following, to wit:

Your Committee do report: That, agreeable to your order of the day, they have made a full inquiry into Mr. Duer's case, which they conceive to be of a most delicate nature. They are fully of opinion that insinuations against his conduct, with relation to the Northern Frontier of this Colony, have by some means been circulated, which in their nature deeply endanger his person and property. That nevertheless they are fully convinced that those insinuations are entirely groundless; that they are altogether satisfied of his integrity and attachment to American liberty; and do therefore recommend him as really meriting the publick countenance and protection of this Congress. The above are the sentiments of your Committee, which is nevertheless submitted to the better opinion of the Congress.

By order:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 15, 1775.

SIR: You will see by the enclosed order, that this Congress think it expedient to request you to march to this Colony with the Troops under your command. If you are not at liberty to comply with the terms of this order until you consult the Governour and Company of Connecticut on this subject, we beg you would immediately despatch this requisition to them, and transmit to us their determination as soon as possible.

As we have at present but few tents, we beg you would direct such as you have, to be sent to the place intended for their encampment, and make such other disposition for the support of your Troops as is in your power.

That he was informed by some of the officers of the Troops on board the Spry, that the Mercury, man-of-war, had ordered the Spry transport to Boston, and was cruising thereabout to order all the transports with Troops, which were destined to New-York, to proceed to Boston; that he has also had the like information from some of the officers of the Mercury.

Thereupon, a draught of a Letter to Major-General Wooster was read, and approved of; and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 17, 1775.

SIR: Being well informed that four Regiments, containing near three thousand effective men, were sailed in transports for this City, we took the liberty to request the assistance of those brave sons of freedom who are under your command. We are this instant further informed that the Mercury, ship-of-war, was cruising upon our coast, and is now at Sandy-Hook, to order those transports to Boston immediately; and did, on Tuesday last, thirty leagues to the southeast of the Hook, deliver his orders to the Old Spry, man-of-war, now a transport, with part of the Forty-Fourth Regiment on board, which immediately altered her course. From hence we conclude that a very capital stroke is meditated against our brethren of the Massachusetts-Bay. You best can determine, Sir, whether it is proper on this occasion for the forces under your command to march westward; but we are led to believe that it is of more important consequence to secure the several passes with which nature hath bounteously fortified the eastern country; that if some unexpected chance of war should prove fatal to us in the first contest, the enemy may, by such means, receive a check in his career of vengeance.

We beg you to transmit this intelligence to the Provincial Camp with the utmost despatch. We are, Sir, your most obedient humble servants.

By order and on behalf of the Provincial Congress.
To Major-General Wooster.

SIR: We enclose you a letter forwarded from the Congress to our care, a part of the contents whereof we are made acquainted with. You will observe, Sir, that the resolutions of the Congress, on the subject of marching your Troops hither, are previous to the important intelligence communicated to General Wooster last Saturday. How the Congress would have determined if they had known that the Troops intended for this post were ordered to Boston, we know not. But we desire you, Sir, to use your own good judgment upon the whole of the intelligence conveyed to you, and be confident that we shall heartily acquiesce. We have lately received a small supply of gunpowder, and shall very soon forward to General Wooster half a ton for the Provincial Army near Boston, that it may be despatched with the utmost speed. JOHN BAY, Secretary pro tem.

“To Peter V. B. Livingston, Esquire, President of the Provincial Congress, New-York.”

The copy of the Letter from Mr. Kirkland, therein enclosed, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“Cherry Valley, June 9, 1775.

“GENTLEMEN: This acknowledges the receipt of your favour, with an enclosed paper, the authenticity of which I have no doubt. I am much embarrassed at present. You have doubtless heard Colonel Johnson has orders from Government to remove the dissenting Missionaries from the Six Nations, till the difficulties betwixt Great Britain and the Colonies are settled. In consequence of which he has forbid my return to my people at Oneida. He has since given encouragement that I may revisit them after the Congress; but, to be plain, I have no dependance at all upon his promises of this kind in particular. He appears unreasonably jealous of me, and has forbid my speaking a word to the Indians, and threatened me with confinement if I transgress. All he has against me I suppose to be this: a suspicion that I have interpreted to the Indians the doings of the Continental Congress, which has undeceived and too much opened the eyes of the Indians for Colonel Johnson's purposes. I confess to you, gentlemen, that I have been guilty of this, if it be any transgression. The Indians found out that I had received the abstracts of said Congress, and insisted upon knowing the contents. I could not deny them, notwithstanding my cloth, though in all other respects I have been extremely cautious not to meddle in matters of a political nature.

“I apprehend my interpreting the doings of the Congress to a number of their Sachems, has done more real service to the cause of the Country, or the cause of truth and justice, than five hundred pounds in presents would have effected. If you think proper, you may acquaint your Provincial Congress with the contents of this, but you must be cautious in exposing my name; you cannot but be sensible my situation is extremely difficult. You may expect either to see or hear from me again very soon; wishing you the blessings of peace, and that we may all be disposed to acquiesce in the Divine Government.

“In utmost haste subscribe, gentlemen, your obedient and very humble servant,

SAMUEL KIRKLAND.

“To the Committee of Albany.

Resolved, therefore, That this Congress does agree with their Committee in the said sixth paragraph of their Report.

The seventh paragraph of the said Report being then read, is in the words following, to wit: "The Colonies are ready and willing to assent to a Continental Congress, deputed from the several Assemblies, to meet with a President appointed by the Crown, for the purpose of raising and apportioning their general aids, upon application made by the Crown, according to the advice of the British Parliament, to be judged of by the said Congress."

On reading the same, debates arose, and on motion of Mr. Platt, seconded by Messrs. Hobart and Scott, the following amendments were proposed and agreed to, to wit: the word "from" between the word "deputed" and the word "the" obliterated, and the word "by" there inserted. And that the word "Assemblies" be obliterated, and the word "Colonies" inserted in its stead.

And the question being put, whether the Congress does agree to the said seventh paragraph, with these amendments, it was carried in the affirmative, in the manner following, to wit:

For the Affirmative.

Resolved, therefore, That this Congress does agree with their Committee in the said seventh paragraph of their Report, as now amended.

Mr. Morris (seconded by Colonel Woodhull) then moved that a Resolution be entered into by this Congress, and added to those mentioned in the said Report of the Committee on the Plan of Accommodation with Great Britain, to wit:

"Resolved, That no one article of the aforesaid Report be considered as preliminary to another, so as to preclude an accommodation without such article; and that no part of the said Report be deemed binding or obligatory upon the Representatives of this Colony in Continental Congress; the same being merely intended to testify our sense of a mode by which the unhappy differences between Great Britain and America may be finally accommodated, and of the propriety of an overture for that purpose."

And the same being read a second time, was unanimously resolved and agreed to.

The Congress being informed by several Members, that nothing has as yet been done towards cleansing the Barracks in this City,

Therefore Ordered, That Messrs. Garret Roorback and John Lamb be requested to have all the Barracks in this City immediately cleansed and made wholesome, so that they may be ready to receive such Troops as this Congress shall direct.

Mr. Melancton Smith (seconded by Mr. Hobart) then moved in the words following, to wit: I move for the following addition to the Report; "And as the free enjoyment of the rights of conscience is of all others the most valuable branch of human liberty, and the indulgence and establishment of Popery all along the interior confines of the old Protestant Colonies tends not only to obstruct their growth, but to weaken their security, all concerns of a religious and ecclesiastical nature, so far as they may be under the cognizance and control of civil authority, ought to remain exclusively with the respective Colony Legislatures, as the most inestimable object of their internal police."

The said motion being delivered in at the table, and read a second time, Mr. Thomas Smith moved for the following amendment, to wit: that from the word "security" to the end of the said motion, be obliterated, and instead thereof the following words inserted, to wit: "that the Parliament of Great Britain cannot constitutionally or of right interfere or interpose in any wise howsoever in the religious and ecclesiastical concerns of the Colonies."

Which amendment being read, Mr. Morris proposed the following additional amendment, which was read and agreed to, to wit: That between the words "that" and "the," the word "neither" be inserted, and that the words "cannot constitutionally or," be obliterated; and instead thereof the words "nor any other earthly legislature or tribunal ought or can," be inserted in their stead.

And both the amendments being together read and agreed to, nemine contradicente, the said motion, as before amended, was again read, and is in the words following, to wit: "And as the free enjoyment of the rights of conscience is of all others the most valuable branch of human liberty, and the indulgence and establishment of Popery all along the interior confines of the old Protestant Colonies tends not only to obstruct their growth but to weaken their security, that neither the Parliament of Great Britain, nor any other earthly legislature or tribunal, ought or can of right interfere or interpose in any wise howsoever in the religious and ecclesiastical concerns of the Colonies."

And debates arising on the said motion, as now amended, and the question being put thereon, whether the Congress agrees thereto, and will order it to be added to, and made a part of their said Plan of Accommodation, it was carried in the affirmative, in the manner following, to wit:

For the Affirmative.

Ordered, therefore, That the same motion, as amended, and last read, be added to and made a part of the said Plan of Accommodation; and that it be inserted therein, immediately following that part of the said Plan of Accommodation which was reported by the Committee, and preceding the Resolution last before made and entered into.

Mr. McDougall then made a motion (which was seconded by Mr. Brasher) in the words following, to wit: "As I conceive it would be presumptuous in this Congress to offer our sentiments either directly or indirectly to the Continental Congress, on a Plan of Accommodation with Great Britain, until the same be called for by that honourable body, I move that our Committee's Report on that subject be not transmitted to our Delegates until a private Letter be wrote to them, signifying that we have digested our sentiments on that subject, and are ready to furnish them to those gentlemen, when called for by them or by the Continental Congress, or until we have received their answer to such Letter."

This Congress being about to adjourn,

Ordered, That the said motion be postponed for further consideration.

Colonel Hoffman obtained leave of absence.

The Congress then adjourned till nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Solis, 9 ho. A. M., June 25, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment, and opened with prayers by the Rev. Mr. Ingles. Present:

Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., President.

List of the Members was not called.

A Letter from General Schuyler, dated at New-Brunswick, June 24, 1775, informing this Congress that General Washington, with his retinue, would be at Newark this morning, and requesting this Congress to send some of its Members to meet him there, and advise the most proper place for him to cross Hudson's River in his way to New-York, Ordered, That Messrs. Thomas Smith, Hobart, Morris and Montgomerie, go immediately to Newark, and recommend to General Washington the place which they shall think most prudent for him to cross at.

And information being received that Governour Tryon is at the Hook, and will land at about one o'clock: Colonel Lasher was called in, and requested to send one company of the Militia to Paulus Hook to meet the Generals; that he have another company at the side of the ferry for the same purpose; that he have the residue of his Battalion ready to receive either the General or Governour Tryon, which ever shall first arrive, and to wait on both as well as circumstances will allow.

A Letter from Joseph Warren, President of the Provincial Congress at Watertown, was read, and is in the words following:

"In Provincial Congress. Watertown, June 13, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: Considering the exposed state of the frontiers of some of the Colonies; the danger that the inhabitants of Canada may possibly have disagreeable apprehensions from the military preparations making in some of the other Colonies; and the rumours that there are some appearances of their getting themselves in readiness to act in a hostile way, this Congress have made application to the honourable Continental Congress, desiring them to take such measures as to them shall appear proper, to quiet and conciliate the minds of the Canadians, and to prevent such alarming apprehensions.

"We also have had the disagreeable accounts of methods taken to fill the minds of the Indian tribes, adjacent to those Colonies, with sentiments very injurious to us; particularly we have been informed that Colonel Guy Johnson has taken great pains with the Six Nations, in order to bring them into a belief that it is designed by the Colonies to fall upon them and cut them off. We have therefore desired the honourable Continental Congress, that they would, with all convenient speed, use their influence in guarding against the evil intended by this malevolent misrepresentation. And we desire you to join with us in such application.

JOSEPH WARREN, President.

"Attest: SAMUEL FREEMAN, Secretary.

"To the Honourable Delegates of the Congress of the Province of New-York."

A Letter from the Committee at Albany was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Albany, June 17, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: You have enclosed, by order of the Committee, a request of Adonijah Strong (Deputy Commissary) to the Committee of this City and County.

"I am, gentlemen, your humble servant,

"JOHN BAY, Secretary p. t."

The request of Adonijah Strong, mentioned and enclosed in Mr. Bay's Letter, being read, Ordered, That the same be put on file.

A Letter from the Committee at Albany was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Albany Committee Chamber, June 21, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: Mr. Dirck Swart, a member of this Board, who is just returned from Crown Point, brings us the following intelligence: "That one Mr. Kay, who lives about forty miles up Lake Champlain, came down to Crown Point, who told Colonel Benedict Arnold and others, that he had been at Montreal for some flour; that Governour Carleton had him seized and confined for several days; that by the interposition of the English merchants of that place, he received liberty to return home, and that the merchants who procured him the pass from the Lieutenant-Governour, desired him to go down to Crown Point and Ticonderoga, with all speed, and communicate to the commander of those fortresses, that the French Caughnewaga Indians had taken up the hatchet, but that they refused to go out upon any scouts until nine of their men, who were then out, returned, and that Governour Carleton was giving them presents daily.

"We are very sorry to inform you that, from a number of corroborating circumstances, we have but too much reason to believe the above information to be true; and more especially as the Troops, which amount to about six hundred men, suffer no persons coming up the lake to pass St. John's if they can avoid it, where they are building floating batteries and boats. Mr. Swart also acquaints us that Mr. Kay said, that Governour Carleton had asked the English merchants to take up arms against the Yankees, (to make use of his own phraseology,) and that the merchants refused; upon which he told them he would set the town on fire, which the merchants said he was welcome to do; and added, that they could carry as much fire as himself. Mr. Kay also desired Mr. Swart if he should happen to meet Mr. Price, he should request him not to proceed, as the English merchants in Canada conceive it unsafe for him.

"The forces above are in no proper state of defence, principally owing to the scarcity of powder, of which article we have not been able to send up more (with the supply we have received from you) than three hundred and fifty pounds; which quantity is altogether insufficient to answer the purpose intended, and of little service in case of an attack. We can further inform you, this City is not half supplied, nor have the frontier inhabitants either powder or arms, for which application have been and daily are making to us; we must therefore beg you will afford us all the assistance in your power, and send us, per the first opportunity, such an additional quantity as you can conveniently spare.

"We must also beg of you to send seventy-eight blankets for so many of the men enlisted in this County who are now at Fort George without any, as also some money to pay the companies, as they are very uneasy, and threaten to desert. Two of their officers are now in Town, and declare they dare not return without some cash to satisfy their men.

"We thought it our indispensable duty to inform you of these matters, therefore send them to you per express. By order of the Committee.

"We are, gentlemen, your very humble servants.

"SAMUEL STRINGER, Chairman.

"To the Gentlemen of the Provincial Congress of the Colony of New-York."

Ordered, That Mr. Peter T. Curtenius purchase seventy-eight Blankets, and forward the same to the Committee at Albany with all possible despatch. And Ordered, That Mr. Abraham Yates write a private Letter to the Committee in answer to their Letter.

A Petition from William A. Forbes and John Hoogland was received and read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"To the Honourable the Provincial Congress of the Colony of NEW-YORK: The Petition of Wm. A. Forbes and John Hoogland, of the City of NEW-YORK, Saddlers, humbly sheweth:

"That your petitioners have been informed that the Congress hath in contemplation the ordering of making a number of cartridge-boxes, slings, and belts, for the use of the Provincial Troops. That your petitioners are well able to make the same, in as cheap and workmanlike a manner as any of their calling in this City, and willing to do the same with the utmost expedition. Your petitioners therefore humbly pray this honourable Board to be employed in this work; and your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

"WILLIAM A. FORBES,

"JOHN HOOGLAND.

To His Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, Generalissimo of all the Forces raised and to be raised in the confederated Colonies of AMERICA: The Address of the Provincial Congress of the Colony of NEW-YORK:

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: At a time when the most loyal of His Majesty's subjects, from a regard to the laws and constitution by which he sits on the throne, feel themselves reduced to the unhappy necessity of taking up arms to defend their dearest rights and privileges, while we deplore the calamities of this divided Empire, we rejoice in the appointment of a gentleman from whose abilities and virtue we are taught to expect both security and peace. Confiding in you, Sir, and in the worthy Generals immediately under your command, we have the most flattering hopes of success in the glorious struggle for American liberty, and the fullest assurance, that whenever this important contest shall be decided by (that fondest wish of each American soul) an accommodation with our Mother Country, you will cheerfully resign the important deposit committed into your hands, and resume the character of our worthiest citizen.

The Congress being informed by sundry Members, that they have viewed the ground about five miles from this City, where it was first intended that General Wooster's Troops should encamp, and find that the ground is damp and unfit for the purpose.

Colonel Lispenard, Mr. McDougall, and Mr. Beekman, informed the Congress, that they have viewed an orchard, part of the estate late of Elbert Herring, deceased, which they conceive to be a proper place for an encampment, and that the owner is willing that General Wooster's Troops may encamp there.

Ordered, That Mr. Beekman wait on General Wooster, or any other officer that he may appoint for that purpose, to shew him the ground in the orchard above mentioned.

The Congress then adjourned to five o'clock, and went to wait on General Washington with their Address.

A Letter from the Committee of Intelligence for Charlestown, South-Carolina, enclosing a copy of an intercepted Letter from General Gage, dated at Boston, April 12, 1775, directed to Governour Martin of North-Carolina; also a printed copy of the Association entered into by the Provincial Congress of South-Carolina, were read, filed, and are in the words following, to wit:

“Charlestown, South-Carolina, June 6, 1775.

“GENTLEMEN: We are to thank you for your intelligence of the fifth ultimo, and do most heartily congratulate you upon that proper spirit which now appears in your Colony. The apprehension of a defection in you, which we are happy to find was unjustly formed, occasioned in us, and must undoubtedly have given to all America inexpressible anxiety, and at the same time have encouraged Ministry to proceed in their measures. As a proof of the confidence which our enemies placed in you, and as a means to prevent their diabolical purpose, we are ordered by Provincial Congress, now sitting, to transmit to you an authentick copy of an original letter from General Gage to Governour Martin, which has just fallen into our hands. We have also received intelligence that the latter, by his agents, has been secretly enlisting a number of those men in the back parts of this Province, formerly called Regu- lators, whose vengeance against the lower inhabitants may induce them to oppose in return for past injuries. We are not apprehensive that he will succeed to any great degree, but depend upon your vigilance to prevent his getting arms and ammunition for them through your Province, as intended. We also enclose a copy of the Association entered into on the fourth instant, by the fullest representation of this Colony ever known, which has been signed by every member. We would hint to you the necessity of sending your letters by some particular person, and not trusting them to the fate of common letters in a ship's bag. We also beg leave to recommend to you secrecy in relation to the above letter, as we would not wish to put them upon their guard in future.

“We have the honour to be, gentlemen, your very humble servants, “ARTHUR MIDDLETON, CHARLES C. PINCKNEY, “WILLIAM TENNENT,

“Committee of Intelligence.

“To the Grand Committee of New-York, to the care of Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq.”

The following is the copy of General Gage's Letter:

“Boston, April 12, 1775.

“SIR: Your letter of the sixteenth March I have had the pleasure to receive, and am glad to hear that many of the people in your Province are beginning to find they have been misled, and that they seem inclined to disengage themselves from the arbitrary power of the Continental Congress and of their Committees. I wish I could say as much for the people of this Province, who are more cool than they were, but their leaders, by their arts and artifices, still keep up that seditious and licentious spirit that has led them on all occasions to oppose Government, and even to acts of rebellion. The late accounts from England have embarrassed their councils much. They have applied to the New-England Governments, and doubtless will to those to the southward, to assist them; but I hope the madness of the latter is wearing off, and that they will get no encouragement from thence. This Province has some time been, and now is, in the new-fangled Legislature termed a Provincial Congress, who seems to have taken the Government into their hands. What they intend to do I can't pretend to say, but they are much puzzled how to act. Fear in some, and want of inclination in others, will be a great bar to their coming to extremities, though their leaders use every measure to bring them into the field. I am very sorry it is not in my power to supply you with the number of arms you request. I have them not to spare in the present conjuncture of the service here. I may assist you with some powder, but can get no safe opportunity from this to send it to you. I shall order you a supply by way of New-York; and whatever may be in my power to assist you, to keep up the present good disposition of the loyal part of your Province, I shall be happy to do, and am sorry I cannot at present do more.

“I have the honour to be, with great esteem, Sir, your most obedient and most humble servant,

“THOMAS GAGE.

“His Excellency Governour Martin.”

The above copy of the Letter from General Gage having been recommended by the Committee of Charlestown, South-Carolina, as necessary to be kept secret, the President recommended to the Members of this Congress that the subject-matter of the said copy of the said Letter be kept a profound secret.

Ordered, That copies of the Letter from the Charlestown Committee, and the Letter from General Gage to Governour Martin, be transmitted to the Continental Congress.

A draught of a Warrant to such gentlemen as are intended to be Officers of the Troops to be raised in this Colony, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress at New-York, June —, 1775.

To, Gentleman, greeting:

Know you, that the Grand Continental Congress of the associated Colonies have resolved and ordered, that a certain number of Troops should be embodied in this Colony, to give protection to the inhabitants, and to be employed as part of the American Continental Army. We, therefore, reposing special confidence in your prudence, courage, and affection to the liberties of this Country, do request and authorize you to enlist and raise a company of seventy-two able-bodied, sober men, of good reputation, (including three sergeants, three corporals, one drummer, and one fifer,) to serve as part of the said Troops; and that from time to time you report your progress in the premises to this Congress, for which this shall be your warrant. And we hereby give you assurance that you will be appointed a in the said Troops when raised and embodied, if the number of men enlisted by you, (and intended to be the other officers of one company,) and received into the said Troops by such proper officer or muster-master as shall be appointed for that purpose, shall amount to the number above-mentioned.

A draught of Instructions to the several Officers to be employed in raising Troops, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

Instructions of the Enlisting of Men.

First. You are not to enlist any man who is not able-bodied, healthy, and a good marcher; but as men of good appearance may have ruptures and venereal complaints, which render them incapable of soldier's duty, you must give attention that you be not imposed upon, and take the opinion of a surgeon where there is room for suspicion.

Second. You will have great regard to moral character, sobriety in particular; let our manners distinguish us from our enemies, as much as the cause we are engaged in.

Third. Those who engage in defence of their Country's liberties, shall be enlisted till the last day of December, of the present year, unless sooner discharged by the Continental Congress.

Fourth. You shall appoint such men sergeants and corporals as recommend themselves by their ability, activity, and diligence.

Fifth. You will use all diligence in completing your Company, and report to the President of the Provincial Congress, to the end that you may receive orders to join your Regiment.

Sixth. During the time you are filling up your Company, you will engage, at the cheapest rate, for the provisions of such men as are already enlisted, (if there be no public magazine of provisions from whence you may be supplied,) not exceeding eight shillings per week.

Seventh. You will lose no time in disciplining your men, so far as your situation will admit.

Eighth. You will take notice that proper persons will be appointed to inspect your men, and reject such as do not answer to your instructions.

Ninth. You will furnish the subalterns appointed to your Company with a copy of these instructions, who are hereby ordered to put themselves under your command.

Tenth. You will observe that the Troops raised by this Colony will be placed precisely upon the same footing as to pay, clothing, &c., with other the Continental Troops now raised, or hereafter to be raised for the general defence.

Eleventh. No apprentice or servant to be enlisted, without the consent of his master.

Ordered, That five hundred copies of the said Warrant, and as many copies of the said Instructions, be printed.

Colonel Holmes has leave of absence.

Ordered, That all the Muskets and Bayonets belonging to this Colony, which are in the different Counties in this Colony (except Albany) be sent to the Committee of the City of New-York, with all convenient speed, and in such manner as that they may come with the greatest safety; and the Committees of the respective Counties, where any such Muskets and Bayonets now are, are hereby requested and desired to take all such Arms into their care, and to see that this order be complied with immediately.

The Congress then adjourned to four o'clock, P. M.

The Congress resumed the consideration of the Report of the Committee on the subject-matter of a Plan of Accommodation with Great Britain.

The same was read, and after some time spent therein, Mr. Scott moved, and was seconded by Mr. Verplanck, that the following words be added to the second paragraph, at the end thereof, to wit: "For the general benefit of the whole, and not for the separate interest of any particular part."

The same was unanimously approved of and agreed to.

Resolved and Ordered, therefore, That this addition be made to the said second paragraph.

Mr. Scott then moved, and was seconded by Colonel Hardenbergh, in the words following, to wit: I move that the following article be added to the Report of the Committee upon the Plan of Accommodation with the Mother Country, viz: "That the Colonies, respectively, are entitled to a free and exclusive power of legislation within themselves, respectively, in all cases of internal polity whatsoever, subject only to the negative of their Sovereign, in such manner as has been heretofore accustomed."

And the same was unanimously resolved and agreed to, and ordered to be added to and made a part of the said Plan of Accommodation; and that it be inserted therein previous to the Resolution of this Congress on that subject, entered into on the 24th instant, "That no one article thereof shall be considered as preliminary to another."

Mr. McDougall, with the unanimous leave of the Congress, withdrew his motion of the 24th instant, "for retaining the copy of the Plan of Accommodation until the Delegates from New-York can be written to and their answer received."

The Report of the Committee, as amended, with the Resolution subjoined thereto, are as follow:

Your Committee appointed to prepare a Plan of Accommodation between Great Britain and America, do report:

That all Statutes and parts of Statutes of the British Parliament, which are held up for repeal by the late Continental Congress in their Association, dated the 20th day of October, 1774; and all the Statutes of the British Parliament passed since that day, restraining the Trade and Fishery of the Colonies on this Continent, ought to be repealed.

That from the necessity of the case, Britain ought to regulate the trade of the whole Empire, for the general benefit of the whole, and not for the separate interest of any particular part; and that from the natural right of property, the powers of taxation ought to be confined to the Colony Legislatures respectively; therefore, that the moneys raised as duties upon the regulations of Trade, ought to be paid into the respective Colony Treasuries, and be subject to the disposal of their Deputies.

That in those Colonies whose Representatives in General Assembly are now chosen for a greater term than three years, such Assemblies for the future ought in their duration not to exceed that term.

That the Colonists are ready and willing to support the civil Government within the respective Colonies, and on proper requisitions, to assist in the general defence of the Empire, in as ample a manner as their respective abilities will admit of.

That if objections be made, that a resort to a variety of Colony Legislatures for general aids is inconvenient, and that large unappropriated grants to the Crown from America would endanger the liberty of the Empire: then the Colonies are ready and willing to assent to a Continental Congress, deputed from the several Colonies, to meet with a President appointed by the Crown, for the purpose of raising and apportioning their general aids, upon application made by the Crown, according to the advice of the British Parliament, to be judged of by the said Congress.

And as the free enjoyment of the rights of conscience is of all others the most valuable branch of human liberty, and the indulgence and establishment of Popery all along the interior confines of the old Protestant Colonies tends not only to obstruct their growth, but to weaken their security, that neither the Parliament of Great Britain, nor any other earthly legislature or tribunal, ought or can of right interfere or interpose in any wise howsoever in the religious and ecclesiastical concerns of the Colonies.

That the Colonies, respectively, are entitled to a free and exclusive power of legislation within themselves, respectively, in all cases of internal polity whatsoever, subject only to the negative of their Sovereign, in such manner as has been heretofore accustomed.

Resolved, That no one article of the foregoing Report be considered preliminary to another, so as to preclude an accommodation without such article; and that no part of the said Report be deemed binding or obligatory upon the Representatives of this Colony in Continental Congress.

Ordered, That the consideration of the state of Queen's County be deferred till to-morrow morning.

The Congress adjourned till to-morrow morning.

Die Mercurii, 9 ho. A. M., June 28, 1775.

The Order for taking into consideration the state of Queen's County, being read, the Congress took into consideration the state of Queen's County; and it appearing that a great number of inhabitants of the said County are not disposed to a representation at this Board, and have dissented therefrom,

Resolved, That inasmuch as the people of this Colony have appointed us to watch over their preservation and defence, and delegated unto us the power necessary for that purpose, such dissent ought not to be of any avail, considered as an objection to the exercise of those powers, but that the said County, as well as every other part of this Colony, must necessarily be bound by the determination of this Congress; and therefore, inasmuch as the Members chosen for the said County were elected by a considerable part of the inhabitants of the same, and the dissent of others is not to the persons chosen, but to the choice of any persons, Ordered, That the Members do take and hold their seats at this Board, notwithstanding such dissent.

Ordered, That the Members of Queen's County, who have not attended this Congress, be served with a copy of the above Resolution and Order.

Mr. Beekman reported, that in pursuance of the Order of this House of Monday last, he had shown the ground therein mentioned to the proper officer of the Connecticut Troops, appointed for that purpose; that the ground is approved of; that fifteen hundred of the said Troops are arrived, and that he has procured covering for them in barns and other out-houses near the ground.

A Letter from Peter T. Curtenius, was read and filed.

Ordered, That the affidavit of Angus McDonald be published in the Newspapers.

The Order of the Day being read, for taking into consideration Mr. Morris's motion of last Friday, to restrain the killing of Sheep, Ordered, That the same be postponed till to-morrow morning; and,

Resolved, That the Congress will then reconsider the Resolution made on Friday last, to restrain the killing of Lamb.

Mr. Morris has leave of absence for two days.

Mr. Roosevelt reported, that Mr. Walton and himself, by order of this Congress, had called on the gentlemen in this City, mentioned in the Report of the Committee of Arrangement for Officers in the Troops to be raised; that several of them had consented to accept of the service; that Messrs. Helme and Stockholm had declined the service; that several others had desired some time to consider of the proposal; and that some of the gentlemen named for Lieutenants were very anxious that their particular situations as to the Captains they were to serve under might be changed.

And the Congress being informed that John Quackenboss is a proper person, and very anxious to be in the service,

Ordered, That the name of John Quackenboss be inserted in the room and stead of Andrew Stockholm; and,

Ordered, That Colonel Lispenard, with Messrs. Roosevelt and Walton, be a Committee to consider the present arrangement of the Lieutenants, and to make such arrangements or alterations in the stations of the Lieutenants as they may think will give the most satisfaction to the officers; and that they report to this Congress what they shall have done in the premises.

The Congress then resumed the consideration of the Committee's Report for estimating the articles necessary to complete three thousand effective men; and after some time spent therein,

Ordered, That Peter T. Curtenius, as Commissary of this Congress, be desired to purchase on the publick credit the following quantities of coarse broadcloths, viz: coarse blue broadcloth, sufficient to make 712 short coats, and crimson cloth sufficient for cuffs and facings for the said coats; and that if blue cloth cannot be had, that in such case he purchase blue coating for that purpose; light brown coarse broadcloth sufficient to make 712 short coats, with blue cloth sufficient for cuffs and facings; grey coarse broadcloth sufficient to make 712 short coats, with green cloth sufficient for cuffs and facings; dark brown coarse broadcloth sufficient to make 712 short coats, with scarlet cloth sufficient for cuffs and facings for the same; and that he be also desired to purchase 1,000 stand of arms, 20,000 oil flints, 8,000 pounds of lead, 40 reams of cartouch paper, 2,852 gun-worms, 2,852 screw-drivers, ticking or Russia drilling to make 14 bell-tents, 169 pieces of ravens duck as soon as it can be got, and also 520 camp kettles, 2,852 canteens, 2,852 haversacks, 800 small hatchets, 400 falling axes, 80 pickaxes, and 400 spades; and that he be desired to get all the ravens duck which he has on hand made up into soldiers' tents.

A draught of a Letter to the Delegates of this Colony at the Continental Congress, to accompany the Resolves of this Congress on the subject of a Plan of Accommodation with Great Britain, was read and approved of, and is in the words following:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 28, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Deeply impressed with the importance, the utility, and necessity of an accommodation with our Parent State, and conscious that the best service we can render to the present and all future generations, must consist in promoting it, we have laboured without intermission to point out such moderate terms as may tend to reconcile the unhappy differences which threaten the whole Empire with destruction.

We now take the liberty of enclosing to you the result of our deliberations; and although we have not the presumption to suppose that our weak ideas on this momentous subject will be entirely approved of by you, much less by that august body of which you are members; yet we take leave to observe, that the breach has been much widened since our first dispute on the subject of taxation; and as this was the source of all our grievances, so we have the hope that the temptation being taken away, our civil and religious and political rights will be easily adjusted and confirmed.

You will observe, gentlemen, that by a resolution of the House, subjoined to the report of our Committee, we consider the whole as entirely subjected to your better judgment, and each article as far independent of each other as you may think most proper or convenient. We must now repeat to you the common and just observation, that contests for liberty, fostered in their infancy by the virtuous and wise, become sources of power to wicked and designing men; from whence it follows, that such controversies as we are now engaged in frequently end in the demolition of those rights and privileges which they were instituted to defend. We pray you, therefore, to use every effort for the compromising of this unnatural quarrel between the parent and child; and if such terms as you may think best shall not be complied with, earnestly to labour, that at least some terms may be held up, whereby a treaty shall be set on foot to restore peace and harmony to our Country, and spare the further effusion of human blood; so that if even at the last our well-meant endeavours shall fail of effect, we may stand fair, and stand unrepachable by our own consciences in the last solemn appeal to the God of battles.

We are, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants.

To the Delegates for the Colony of New-York in Continental Congress.

Ordered, That two copies of the above Letter be engrossed, and signed by the President; that one copy thereof, together with a copy of the Report of the Committee of Accommodation, be sent to-morrow by express to our Delegates at the Continental Congress, and the other copy of the said Letter and Report be sent by Francis Lewis, Esquire.

Ordered, That the Commissary deliver any articles which he shall at any time have purchased and have in his custody for the use of the Continental Army, to General Schuyler, on his request, taking his receipt for the same.

A Letter to John Alsop, Esquire, at Philadelphia, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 28, 1775.

SIR: We are informed that you have engaged the refusal of a number of Blankets. We have now to tell you, that for the three thousand men we are desired to raise, we shall want two thousand eight hundred and fifty-two Blankets, and that there are not any to be purchased here. We beg, therefore, that you will procure so many, which may be paid for out of the publick money with you.

We are, Sir, your most obedient servants.

To John Alsop, Esq., at Philadelphia.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, signed by the President, and sent by the first opportunity.

A Letter from General Schuyler, dated New-York, June 29, 1775, was read.

Mr. Mayor attending at the door, was called in, and informed the Congress that Mr. Francis Stephens, the King's Storekeeper in this City, had applied to his Excellency Governour Tryon, declaring his apprehensions that the Stores at Turtle-Bay are not in a state of safety, and his inclination to remove them. That the Governour had expressed to the Mayor his wish and inclination, that Mr. Stephens might, at his own expense, be permitted to remove those Stores without tumult or opposition, and put them on board a vessel; and that Mr. Mayor now applies to this Congress for their countenancing that measure.

And thereupon, Ordered, That an offer be made to the Mayor, that this Congress will (if it be agreeable to Government) request Major General Schuyler to keep a sufficient command at Turtle-Bay to guard the King's Stores which are now there; and that in case the said offer be accepted of, and such guard can be obtained, the said Stores be delivered into their care by inventory; and that in such case this Congress will be accountable for the re-delivery of the said Stores when the present unhappy commotions in North America shall be at an end.

Ordered, That one of the Secretaries wait on his Worship the Mayor, and serve him with a copy of the foregoing Order.

In pursuance of the Order of the Day, the Congress resumed the consideration of Mr. Morris's motion for restraining the killing of Sheep, and the Order for reconsidering the Resolution to restrain the killing of Lamb.

And after some time spent therein, Mr. McDougall moved, in the following words: "I move that the killing of Lamb be restrained to the first of August next, instead of the first of November, as determined by a Resolution of the Congress on the 23d day of June instant."

And the said motion being read, Mr. Morris moved that the said motion be amended thus: "that the question be put, whether it is the sense of this House that the killing of Sheep and Lambs be restrained to a certain time."

And the question being put on the said amendment, it was carried against the amendment, in manner following:

Against the Amendment.	For the Amendment.

2 King's.
2 Ulster.	8
2 Queen's.

Ordered, therefore, That the said amendment be rejected.

2 Suffolk.	2 Tryon.

Resolved, therefore, That no person in this Colony kill any Lambs until the first day of August next. And Ordered, That five hundred copies of this Resolution be published in handbills, and that it be also published in the Newspapers.

A draught of a Letter to the Continental Congress, to cover a copy of the Letter of the 6th of June, from the Committee of Intelligence at Charlestown, in South-Carolina, and a copy of General Gage's Letter to Governour Martin, of the 12th of April last, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 29, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We lately received a Letter from the Committee of Intelligence at Charlestown, in South-Carolina, covering a copy of a letter from General Gage to Governour Martin. From the importance of the contents of those Letters, we have thought it our indispensable duty to transmit copies of them to your respectable body.

We are, gentlemen, most respectfully, your faithful friends and humble servants. By order.

To the Honourable the Continental Congress.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed and signed by the President, and, together with copies of the Letters therein mentioned, be sent by the first conveyance.

A draught of a Letter to Elisha Phelps was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 29, 1775.

SIR: Your letter of the twenty-second instant was this day received in Congress, and the contents observed. The embarrassments you and the Troops stationed at Lake Champlain might have met with, in respect to the Provisions and Stores at Albany, we are persuaded did not arise from any other design than that of fulfilling the orders the Commissaries appointed by this Provincial Congress received previous to your appointment as Commissary, in consequence of a later order of the Continental Congress. Your difficulties, if they are not already, will now, we trust, be removed; and that you may have no farther trouble on that head, we have wrote a letter and order to the Commissaries heretofore appointed by this Board, to deliver up all the Provisions and Stores in their custody for that service to you, and have enclosed to them a copy of the order of the Continental Congress, by which they will perceive they are superseded in that business.

We also received a letter, dated 15th instant, from your Deputy, Adonijah Strong, directed to the Committee of Albany, couched in terms not so very suitable. However, for answer to the most necessary parts, we remark, that two of the articles mentioned in it as wanting, to wit, Rice and Rum, were sent up some time ago. A sufficiency of Peas we suppose can be procured at Albany; you will please, therefore, to buy there as much as is requisite on the publick credit of this Colony. Butter and fresh meat we know to be scarce commodities at Albany; the former we shall endeavour to send you a proper supply of from this City, and the latter article we imagine you do not for the present stand so much in need of, as it appears, by Governour Trumbull's letter of the 19th instant to us, that a drove of fat cattle was forwarded up to you. We shall also send you from hence ten hogsheads of Molasses, to brew beer with.

We are, Sir, your very humble servants. By order.

To Mr. Elisha Phelps, Commissary of Provisions.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, signed by the President, and transmitted.

A draught of a Letter to John N. Bleecker, and four other persons, formerly appointed agents at Albany, was read and approved, and is in the words following:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, June 29, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We have received a letter from Mr. Elisha Phelps of the 22d instant, informing us that, in the absence of Mr. Bleecker, he was refused the Provisions and Stores left in his custody, and designed for the Troops at Lake Champlain, &c. You will perceive by the enclosed copy of an order of the Continental Congress, that the appointment of Commissary in that department is left to the disposal of that Government, or the General of the Forces of Connecticut. And it appears to us, by a letter from Governour Trumbull, dated the 19th instant, that Mr. Phelps is appointed Commissary, and that he doubts not he will conduct with prudence and good satisfaction; that he had directed him to correspond with Colonel Hinman, to employ persons already engaged, especially George Palmer, Esq. You will please, therefore, to deliver up to him or his order all the supplies of Provisions and Stores in your hands and custody for the said Forces, and take his receipt for every thing you deliver him; and send us an account of all such Stores as you have issued to the Troops, or shall deliver to the said Commissary, and your account of expenses to this time.

To the Commissaries at Albany, appointed by the Provincial Congress.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

The Congress adjourned to five o'clock, P. M.

The President informed the Congress that General Schuyler had been under the necessity to send the messenger (who was provided yesterday) to Philadelphia, and therefore was under a necessity of having another messenger to go to Albany, which the President was desired to order and to pay, in pursuance of the former order of this Congress.

Mr. Walter Livingston has leave of absence.

Ordered, That Messrs. Verplanck, Van Zandt, and Beekman, be a Committee for auditing all accounts that may be brought into this Congress, and that the report of them, or any two of them, on any account of the sum that ought to be paid thereon, shall be a sufficient warrant to the President to pay the same.

The Congress resumed the consideration of the arrangement of the Battalions. And thereupon, Agreed and Ordered, That the New-York Regiment be considered as the First Regiment, and have rank accordingly.

And in order to enable the said Henry Watkeys to comply with this contract, it is agreed to advance to him the sum of fifty Pounds, which sum is to be accounted for out of money that may be due to him on the first parcel of muskets that shall be delivered by him. And it is understood by the parties, that the said Henry Watkeys is not to be entitled to the bounty offered by the Congress to encourage the making of muskets in this Colony, upon the muskets to be delivered by virtue of this contract.

"New-York, July 3, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: I do myself the honour to enclose you an estimate of such stores, &c., as at present appears to me necessary to be forwarded to Albany. The pitch, oakum, and nails, I wish to have sent with all possible despatch. I am very certain that a variety of other articles will be wanted, which I shall be better able to ascertain after my arrival at Albany, for which place I propose setting out to-morrow. I am informed that a considerable quantity of lead was found at Ticonderoga; but if it should not equal my expectations, I may be exposed to insurmountable difficulties. I therefore wish that at least half of the quantity which I have estimated may be ordered up without delay, together with fifty casks of powder, which I am advised will be sent you from Philadelphia.

"As it is probable, from the manœuvres of Governour Carleton, that I shall speedily want a re-enforcement of Troops at Ticonderoga; and not being at liberty to remove the Connecticut Troops from hence, I entreat that you will be pleased to forward whatever men may be levied in this Colony immediately to Albany, without waiting until the corps are completed.

"I hope, gentlemen, on every occasion, to be favoured with your advice; and, indeed, as the important charge conferred on me by the Continental Congress, was done in deference to your polite and honourable (yet altogether unmerited) recommendation of me, I shall, with the fullest confidence, look up to you for your aid and countenance, at once to promote the publick service, and to prevent me from sinking under the weighty concerns of my office; and give me leave to assure you, that though I have the clearest conviction that I shall never be able to equal the high opinion you have induced the Congress to entertain of me, yet no effort shall be wanting on my part to deserve it as far as possible, that I may not draw disgrace on you, my country, or myself.

"I am, gentlemen, with sentiments of the most profound respect, your most obedient and most humble servant.

"P. H. SCHUYLER.

"The Gentlemen of the New-York Provincial Congress."

The Estimate of Stores, &c., mentioned in the foregoing Letter of General Schuyler, was read, and filed.

Mr. Henry Williams then moved, seconded by Mr. John Van Cortlandt, in the words following, to wit: "I move that orders be immediately issued by this Congress for making uniform Coats for all the men to be raised in this Colony."

And debates arising on the said motion, and the question being put thereon, it was carried in the affirmative, in the following manner, to wit:

For the Affirmative.		For the Negative.
2 Dutchess,	2 Cumberland,	3 Albany,
2 Richmond,	2 Ulster,	2 Suffolk.
2 Westchester,	2 King's.	—
4 New-York,	—	5
2 Queen's,	20	Orange County equally divided—no vote.
2 Tryon,	—	—

Ordered, therefore, That Mr. Peter T. Curtenius get uniform Coats made for all the non-commissioned officers and men to be raised in this Colony; that the Coats of each Regiment be made with different cuffs and facings.

And Ordered, That Mr. Curtenius be at liberty to purchase any goods for the use of this Colony of Robert and John Murray, which were directed by this Congress to be kept in store until the second ship shall arrive from Great Britain with goods, after the Non-Importation Agreement is dissolved, if Messrs. Murray will consent to wait for their money until that time.

Ordered, That Messrs. Low, Clarkson, and Kissam, be a Committee to wait on General Schuyler, and confer with him on the subject of his Letter received and read this day, and the List of Stores therein enclosed; and inform him that it may be disadvantageous to remove the new levied Troops immediately.

Ordered, That Mr. Peter T. Curtenius send to Philadelphia for proper Parchments for Drum-heads; and when he obtains them, that he get good Drums made for the Regiments now raising in this Colony, in such manner as the Field-Officers shall direct.

Ordered, also, That Mr. Peter T. Curtenius (for the present) provide Provisions for the men now enlisted and raising in this City, and deliver the same in such quantities as may be necessary, to the Quartermaster of the First Regiment; and that he deliver out such Tents as he has or may have ready, to Colonel McDougall, or his order, for the use of his men.

Ordered, That Colonel McDougall have leave to nominate such persons to fill up the vacancies in his Regiment, below the rank of Captain, as he may think proper; and that he report to this Congress such persons as he shall nominate.

A Receipt from Philip Lansing to Egbert Dumond, Esq., for two hundred barrels of Flour, to be by him conveyed to Albany, for the use of the Troops at Ticonderoga, was read, and filed.

The Committee appointed to wait on General Schuyler, returned, and reported in substance, that General Schuyler having conceived that it might be disadvantageous to remove the new levied men immediately, had wrote to the Congress on that subject, and received positive orders not to remove from hence the Connecticut Troops under the command of General Wooster; but that he will leave the new levied men here for the present; that with respect to the List of Stores delivered in by General Schuyler, he had made a list of all the stores of the several kinds therein mentioned, that he conceived necessary for the present, and that such quantities of the several articles therein mentioned as are already sent, are to be considered as part of the stores mentioned in the said List.

The Congress resumed the consideration of the Resolves of the Continental Congress, bearing date the 23d ult.; and after some time spent therein, the Congress was informed that Ethan Allen was at the door, and desired admittance.

Mr. Sears then moved, seconded by Mr. Melancton Smith, in the following words: "I move that Ethan Allen be permitted to have an audience at this Board."

And debates arising thereon, and the question being put, it was carried in the affirmative, in manner following:

For the Affirmative.		For the Negative.
2 Suffolk,	2 Dutchess,	3 Albany,
2 Queen's,	2 Tryon,	2 Richmond,
2 King's,	2 Cumberland.	4 New-York.
2 Ulster,	—	—
2 Orange,	18	9
2 Westchester,	—	—

Ordered, therefore, That Ethan Allen be admitted. He delivered a List of Officers, which is filed.

Seth Warner was also admitted at the same time.

Ethan Allen and Seth Warner having been heard, they withdrew.

Ordered, That in consequence of a recommendation from the Continental Congress, a body of Troops, not exceeding five hundred men, officers included, be forthwith raised, of those called Green-Mountain Boys; that they elect all their own Officers, except Field-Officers; that Major General Schuyler be requested to forward this Order to them, and receive from them a list of such Officers as they shall elect, to be communicated to this Congress; and that General Schuyler be further requested, without delay, to procure the sense of those Troops concerning the persons who will be most agreeable to them for Field-Officers, and to make other inquiry; and upon the whole advise this Congress what persons will be most proper to be appointed as Field-Officers to command those Troops; that the said Troops, when raised, be considered as an independent body, their Field-Officers taking rank after the Field-Officers of the other Troops to be raised by this Colony for the Continental service; that their corps of Officers consist of one Lieutenant-Colonel, one Major, seven Captains, and fourteen Lieutenants; and that the General be furnished with blank Warrants, to be filled up by him agreeable to such election, as above mentioned.

The County of Albany, and Mr. John De Lancey, dissented to the above Order and Resolve.

Ordered, That a certified copy of the above be given to General Schuyler by the Secretaries.

The Congress then adjourned to five o'clock, P. M.

"I am, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

"PH. SCHUYLER.

A Letter from Isaac Thompson, of Islip, covering a copy of the General Association, signed by the greatest part of the inhabitants of that District, was read and filed.

The said General Association, signed as aforesaid, and also a list of the names of such persons as have refused to sign the same subjoined thereto, was read and filed.

“In behalf of the Committee of Philadelphia.

“Provincial Convention or Congress of New-York.”

A Letter from Governour Martin (enclosed in the foregoing Letter from Charles Thomson) to Henry White, Esq., was read, and is in the words following:

“Cape Fear, North-Carolina, June 13, 1775.

“DEAR SIR: I take the liberty to enclose herewith a letter to Mrs. Martin, whose safe arrival I am most anxious to learn, the winds having been easterly almost ever since her departure.

“I shall be extremely obliged to you if you can contrive to send me, with the royal standard I mentioned to you some time ago, or without it if that is not to be had, a good tent and marquee, of the size of the Colonels' tents in the Army, with a tent-bed to fit the boot of it, and furniture, viz: mattress, bolster, and pillows, to be sent by any vessel bound to Cape Fear River, or in default thereof to Newbern, directed to the care of Mr. Cornell. I should rejoice to see a prospect of a happy termination of the present deplorable times, that more or less threaten the happiness of every man throughout the British Dominions. My compliments and warmest wishes attend you and Mrs. White, and all your family. I am, dear Sir, ever yours,

“JO. MARTIN.

“The Honourable Henry White, Esq.”

“I forbear to give you your due additions on the outside of my letter, to obviate prying curiosity.”

Ordered, That Messrs. Sears, Morris, and Low, be a Committee to wait on Mr. White, and receive from him such intelligence as they can obtain, and report to this Congress with all convenient speed.

Mr. Pye returned from Dobbs's Ferry, and reported to the Congress that he had proceeded to the said Ferry, and waited there until last evening; that no Powder is arrived; that the Sloop which was to have taken in the said Powder was gone to Albany, and that he has left the order of this Congress with Mr. . . . , and ordered the Powder, when it arrives, to be left at Jonathan Lawrence's.

The Congress being informed that a quantity of Powder lately passed through Hackinsack in wagons, Ordered, That Mr. Pye be requested to inquire of some gentlemen of the Committee of Elizabethtown, now in New-York, whether they can give any information of the said Powder; and also, that Mr. Pye, if he find it requisite, go to Bull's Ferry, to receive and forward the said Powder to Albany, if it should be there.

A Letter from General Wooster was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Camp near New-York, July 7, 1775.

"SIR: We have among the Connecticut Troops a number of apprentices and indented servants, who ran away from their masters in this City, and have enlisted themselves and received their pay in Connecticut. Since our arrival at this place many of them have been detained in Town by their masters. As the Governour of Connecticut has subjected me, and the Troops under my command, to the direction of the Continental and this Provincial Congress, I desire you to take the opinion of your Congress, and advise me what plan of conduct I shall pursue with regard to such persons, and you will oblige, Sir, your humble servant,

"DAVID WOOSTER.

"To Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., President of the Provincial Congress."

The Congress took the same into consideration, and resolved to advise General Wooster that the Masters of such Servants or Apprentices, belonging to this Colony, as are enlisted in his Troops, be restored to their Masters; provided the Masters pay to him the disbursements, deducting therefrom the pay, if any be due.

A draught of a Letter to General Wooster, signifying the sense of this Congress on the subject of Apprentices and Servants, was read and approved.

The Committee appointed to wait on Mr. White returned, and reported that Henry White, Esquire, informed them that he had received the former letter from Governour Martin, mentioned in the letter of Governour Martin now before this Congress; that he never sent the standard therein mentioned, and did not intend to send it; that he has at present mislaid Governour Martin's first letter; that he will send the letter when he can find it to this Congress; that he is not privy to Governour Martin's intentions as to the matters suspected from his letter; and that he will send in writing to this Congress an account of the correspondence and transactions between him and Governour Martin, and attest it upon oath if desired.

A Sub-Committee from the Committee of the City and County of New-York being at the door, were admitted, and delivered to the President a Letter (which was read) from the Committee of Elizabethtown, setting forth that William McLeod, an Ensign in the Fifty-Second Regiment of Foot, now at Boston, who had resided at or near Elizabethtown for some time past, was about embarking for Boston in order to join his Regiment; that the said Committee of Elizabethtown had stopped his baggage, and that he was now in the City of New-York waiting for a passage to Boston.

The Congress took the same into consideration, and thereupon Ordered, That the Committee of the City and County of New-York do take the body of William McLeod, Ensign in the Fifty-Second Regiment of Foot at Boston, and send him in safe custody to the Committee of the Town of Elizabethtown. And it is recommended to the Committee of New-York not to use unnecessary violence, but to treat him with all possible lenity as a gentleman and soldier.

Ordered, That Mr. Morris, Mr. Brasher, Mr. McDougall, and Major Williams, be a Committee to form a proper method for an arrangement of the Militia of this Colony, and proper instruction for the Militia of this Colony, and that they report with all convenient speed.

Major Williams and Doctor Spooner, agreeable to a notice for that purpose given yesterday, proceeded to inform the Congress of the state of Cumberland County, which they represent; and after some time spent therein, Ordered, That Mr. Morris, Mr. Low, and Mr. Silvester, be a Committee to receive information of the Members of that County, and of any other persons, of the state of that County, and report thereon to this Congress.

Whereas this Congress, on the fourth day of July instant, published a Resolution, ordering that the Arms belonging to the Corporation of this City be returned to Messrs. Abraham Walton and Isaac Sears, who were appointed a Committee to receive them; and whereas few of those Arms have as yet been returned, and it is essentially necessary for the publick service that a compliance with that order be no longer delayed:

Resolved, That every person to whom such Arms were originally delivered, or who is now possessed of any of them, and does not on or before Friday, the fourteenth instant, deliver the same to the Committee aforesaid, or their order, at the Upper Barracks, shall be deemed and treated as an enemy to his Country.

A Letter from Henry White, Esq., was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Saturday, July 8, 1775.

"SIR: Three gentlemen of the Provincial Congress called upon me with an intercepted letter from Governour Martin of North-Carolina, dated the thirteenth June, to send him a royal standard from hence. They desired to know if I had complied with his request, and whether I could inform them respecting the measures he was now pursuing. In answer to which I have to observe, that he some time ago wrote to me to send him such a standard, which I declined to do, lest it might be disagreeable to the people of this place; and I wrote him to that purport, which letter I apprehend miscarried, or he must have received it before the thirteenth of last month. With regard to the steps he is now taking in his Government I am utterly unacquainted; he has not communicated to me any particulars. Governour Martin is a gentleman I am intimately acquainted with, and have transacted business for him ever since he has been at North-Carolina, which accounts for his applying to me for the above standard. I imagine it will be believed that I did not solicit the commission. I am, Sir, your most humble servant,

HENRY WHITE.

"To Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq."

A draught of a Letter to Charles Thomson, Esquire, in answer to his Letter read yesterday, was read, and approved of, and is as follows, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, July 8, 1775.

SIR: The Congress received yours enclosing Governour Martin's letter to Mr. Henry White, and immediately appointed a Committee to confer with him on the subject. From the answer he gives to the Committee, and a letter received from him, (a copy of which is enclosed,) the Congress are fully satisfied that Mr. White's conduct in this matter has been unexceptionable, and such as becomes the character of a good citizen.

I am, Sir, your humble servant.

To Charles Thomson, Esquire.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, signed by the President, and, together with a copy of Mr. White's Letter of this day, be transmitted by the first opportunity.

It being suggested to the Congress that Priming Wires and Brushes are wanting for the Connecticut Troops, Ordered, That Mr. Curtenius be requested to assist the Quartermaster of the Connecticut Troops to get Priming Wires and Brushes for the said Troops, the said Quartermaster paying for the same.

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esquire, President of this Congress, be Treasurer for this Congress of all Money received or to be received in this Colony for the general defence of America or the Continental service, until some other Treasurer be appointed by the Continental Congress.

The Continental Congress having recommended it to the inhabitants of the Colonies to keep the twentieth day of July, instant, as a Day of Fasting and Prayer, this Congress does strictly enjoin all persons in this Colony religiously to observe the said recommendation. And we being taught by that holy Religion declared by the merciful Jesus, and sealed by his blood, that we ought to acknowledge the hand of God in all publick calamities, and being thoroughly convinced that the Great Disposer of events regardeth the hearts of his creatures, do most earnestly recommend it to all men to conform themselves to the pure dictates of Christianity, and by deep repentance and the sincere amendment of their lives, to implore of our Heavenly Father that favour and protection which he alone can give.

Resolved, That this Congress will adjourn until next Tuesday fortnight, and that a Committee of Safety be appointed during the recess of this Congress in manner following, to wit: That New-York appoint three Members to give two Votes, and every other County each one to give one Vote. And that such other Members of the several Counties as shall attend, may join in the vote of their respective Counties, or give such vote in the absence of the Member or Members so appointed. And Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esquire, Colonel Lispnard, and Colonel McDougall, being appointed for the City and County of New-York; Mr. Morris for the City and County of Albany; Jonathan Landon for Dutchess County; Egbert Dumond for Ulster County; David Pye for Orange County; Abraham Brasher for Suffolk County; Gouverneur Morris for Westchester County; Henry Williams for King's County; Richard Lawrence for Richmond County; Colonel McDougall for Queen's County; Peter Van Brugh Livingston for Tryon County; and John Morin Scott for Cumberland County:

Resolved, That all the said Votes, or a major part thereof, shall constitute such Committee. And that the said Committee, when met, shall be empowered to open all Letters directed to the said Congress, and to answer the same; that they be farther empowered to take such measures as they shall think proper to carry into execution all orders of the Continental Congress, and all Resolutions and recommendations of this Congress, and to comply with any requisitions made by the Generals of the Continental Army, or any of them, as far as they shall think proper. That they be authorized to give directions to General Wooster, or the Commander and Commanders, for the time being, of the Continental Troops stationed in this Colony, as from this Congress: Provided, That such directions do not contravene the orders of the Continental Congress, or of his or their superiour officers respectively. And lastly, that they have authority to appropriate such Moneys of the Continental Congress as may arrive in payment of the debts already contracted for the publick service, and for the use of the said service, as they shall think necessary, the accounts being first audited and allowed by the Committee of Accounts.

Ordered and Agreed, That Jacobus Swartwout be, and is appointed by this Congress Mustermaster of the Troops which shall be raised in defence of American liberty by the following Captains, to wit: Lewis Duboys, Andrew Billings, Henry B. Livingston, and Rufus Herick.

A copy of this Order was made, and signed by P. V. B. Livingston, President.

Ordered and Agreed, That Colonel Phineas Fanning, David Melford, Esquire, of East-Hampton, and Captain Timothy Earle, be, and are appointed by this Congress Mustermasters of the Troops that shall be raised in Suffolk County in defence of American liberty.

The Committee of Safety agreed to meet at the City-Hall of the City of New-York, on Tuesday next, at nine o'clock, A. M.

The Congress then adjourned until next Tuesday fortnight, then to meet again at the City of New-York, at nine of the clock in the morning of that day.

MASSACHUSETTS COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

May 31, 1775.

The Committee met by adjournment at Watertown, being the day appointed by Charter for the election of Counsellors, when the Congress convened, and had a suitable discourse delivered them by Mr. President Langdon, at the Meeting-House, where the Committee attended in the afternoon. Afterwards they met, and adjourned to meet at Cambridge, Tuesday morning, eight o'clock.

June 1, 1775.

On a motion made by Mr. Samuel Whittemore, of Gloucester, that the Forces now raised in said Town and Manchester should remain there for the present, for the security of the Seaports:

Voted, That there be returns immediately required of the number of men now in Camp; and if it shall then appear that the safety of the whole will permit it, the request will be granted.

June 2, 1775.

A Gun taken from Samuel Flagg, of Grafton, for the use of the Colony, was appraised by a Committee appointed for that purpose, at forty Shillings, lawful money, which Gun was delivered to Captain Luke Drury, for the use of his Company, and a receipt taken for the same, in the rough minutes.

Colonel John Nixon having satisfied this Committee that his Regiment is in good forwardness, he had a certificate thereof, and a recommendation to the Provincial Congress that such Regiment be commissioned accordingly.

In Committee of Safety, Cambridge, June 2, 1775.

This Committee have taken into their most serious consideration the state of the New-England Army proposed to be raised for the defence and security of the lives, liberties, and properties of the Americans, and find that the several Colonies have not, collectively, raised more than 24,500 men,* whereas 30,000 were supposed necessary. And said Committee also find a considerable number of Officers of Minute-men now at Head-Quarters, who, with their men, cannot find room for employment in the Army upon the present establishment of this Colony. And as our enemies have determined to distress us upon our sea-coast, by taking our Vessels with Provisions, Salt, Molasses, &c., as well as by plundering our islands and coasts of Live Stock, which will require a greater number of men to guard said coasts than was at first estimated; and as said Army, or any part thereof, may be disbanded at any future time, when the publick safety will admit thereof; and as the publick military spirit now runs high, it is therefore Resolved, That the consideration of these premises be recommended to the Honourable Congress, and that Col.

Palmer be directed to attend said Congress with this Resolve, in order to know whether they will make any addition to their present establishment.

BENJAMIN WHITE, Chairman.

June 3, 1775.

Voted, That Mr. Devens be a Committee to join Col. Putnam, from the Council of War, as a Committee to wait upon the Committee of Supplies for a conference, and to desire their attendance at Head-Quarters.

Voted, That Colonel Gridley be required to make immediate return of the Regiment of Artillery.

The honourable the Provincial Congress having, by their Committee, inquired of this Committee what progress had been made in raising a Regiment for the Train,

Resolved, That the honourable Congress be informed that this Committee have given out Enlisting Orders to raise nine Companies; that they will immediately procure a return and forward it to the Congress.

June 5, 1775.

A number of Officers belonging to Colonel John Nixon's Regiment were recommended to the Congress to be commissioned, and a list of said Officers ordered to be put on file.

June 7, 1775.

Colonel Glover having satisfied this Committee that he has about four hundred and sixty men in his Regiment, a Certificate was given him to that purport, and it was recommended to the honourable Congress that said Regiment may be commissioned accordingly.

June 9, 1775.

A number of Officers belonging to Colonel Whitcomb's Regiment were recommended to the Congress to be commissioned, as per copy of the list on file.

Two Small-Arms, taken from General Brattle's house, were appraised by Captain White and Mr. Devens, a Committee appointed for that purpose, at one Pound six Shillings and eight Pence; which Guns were delivered to Captain Joseph Stebbins, for the use of his Company, and a receipt taken for the same in the rough minute-book.

Resolved, That the Armourers repair no Fire-Arms for any Soldier without a certificate from his Commanding Officer; and that they keep an exact account what Arms they repair, and the soldiers' names to whom they belong, and what Regiments they belong to; and also, that the Arms that first come be first repaired. And that this Vote be transmitted to the several Armourers in the Colony service.

Captain Hall, of Mistick, having informed that a parcel of Spars were brought on this side Mistick Bridge, Voted, That Mr. Hall be desired to remove them to such a place of security as he shall judge proper, till the further order of this Committee.

Voted, That Captain Ebenezer Winship have the recommendation of this Committee to the Honourable Congress for his being commissioned with his Subalterns in Colonel Nixon's Regiment.

In Committee of Safety, Cambridge, June 9, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Colonel Paul Dudley Sergeant, late of New-Hampshire, having applied to this Committee for directions respecting four Companies enlisted under him in the service of this Colony, we beg leave to state the facts to your Honours.

From the exigences of the times, on the 25th of April last past Colonel Sergeant received encouragement from this Committee to command a Regiment, and received beating orders for the raising the same, on the following conditions, viz: Should he fill said Regiment, and the Province of New-Hampshire aforesaid would not take him, with his Regiment, into their service, in that case he should be established in the service of the Colony of the Massachusetts.

It appears to this Committee, by the account Colonel Sergeant has given them, that he has only four Companies at Head-Quarters, and that some more are enlisted and in Hampshire; he therefore desires he may be directed whether to hold or discharge said men. This Committee apprehend, should said four Companies be discharged from the service of this Colony, they would immediately enter the service of New-Hampshire, and as we conceive the Army of thirteen thousand six hundred men will be complete without said four Companies, are of opinion it would be prudent said Companies be dismissed from the service of this Colony. The whole of this matter we submit to your Honours; you will act thereon as to you in your wisdom shall seem meet.

We are, with great respect, your most humble servants,
BENJAMIN WHITE, Chairman.

The Honourable the Provincial Congress at Watertown.

June 10, 1775.

Whereas, a return has been made by Col. John Glover of the state of his Regiment, now at Marblehead, and it appears to this Committee to be for the safety of this Colony said Regiment should continue at present at Marblehead; therefore,

Resolved, That Colonel John Glover be, and he hereby is, directed to continue said Regiment under his command at Marblehead until further orders, and that he hold them in readiness to march at a minute's warning to any post where he may be directed, and that he fill said Regiment as soon as possible.

Whereas, sundry pieces of mowing land, belonging to persons who have left this Town, have upon them considerable quantities of grass, which, if not cut soon, must diminish much in quantity; and as Hay will be wanted for the use of this Colony; therefore,

Resolved, That it be recommended to the honourable Provincial Congress, that they appoint a Committee of Congress to view said pieces of land, and act thereon as to them in their wisdom shall seem meet.

Voted, That Colonel Learned be empowered to appoint one Armourer and an assistant for the Army at Roxbury, provided he can obtain tools and accommodation for them.

A list of the gentlemen who have been commissioned, or that have received any encouragement for commission, was sent to Congress, a copy of which is on file.

The following Return was sent in to the Provincial Congress:

In Committee of Safety, Cambridge, June 10, 1775.

In obedience to a Resolve of the honourable Provincial Congress "to certify to their Congress the names of such gentlemen as are candidates for the command of a Regiment, with the number of privates, &c., that have been enlisted under them, and any other claims or pretensions that any gentleman may have to a commission," this Committee would now certify, that, besides twenty gentlemen to whom they have given certificates, (viz: Colonel Asa Whitcomb, General Ward, Lieutenant-Colonel Doolittle, Colonel Glover, Colonel Frye, Colonel Learned, Colonel Read, Colonel Nixon, Colonel Fellows of General Pomeroy's Regiment, General Thomas, Lieutenant-Colonel Bayley, Colonel Bridge, Colonel Cotton, Colonel Walker, Colonel Prescott, Colonel Scammon, Colonel Donaldson, Colonel Patterson, Colonel Gardner, Colonel Mansfield, Colonel Gerrish,) General Heath early took out ten sets of orders, and raised a full Regiment, which has done duty for several weeks, as he has informed this Committee, but has made no return in writing, nor applied for a certificate. Colonel David Brewer, who received ten sets of orders, has made us no return, though we hear he has enlisted a number of men as Rangers. Colonel Robinson has applied to this Committee for a recommendation, in consequence of a petition signed by ten Captains, a copy of which accompanies this Report. The Committee promised Colonel Robinson that they would recommend him, if there should be a vacancy. Colonel Woodbridge informs this Committee, and it appears by the return he has made, that three hundred and sixty men stand ready to go under him. We would observe that Colonel Woodbridge has been in Camp with his Minute-Men doing duty ever since the battle, but did not apply to this Committee for enlisting orders until the Committee had issued orders sufficient to complete the Army, and therefore the Committee did not give him orders, but promised they would recommend him if there should be a vacancy. Colonel Porter was, in conjunction with Colonel Patterson, and by agreement with Colonel Patterson, to have the chief command in that Regiment, and officiated some time in that capacity, waiting for the men raised by Colonel Porter's orders to arrive; but they not arriving so soon as expected, and another officer with several companies arriving, and offering to join and fill Colonel Patterson's Regiment, Colonel Porter said he was willing to resign rather than the publick service should be hindered. Since this, we are informed by Colonel Porter that the men raised by his orders are upon their march to Cambridge. Col. Joseph Henshaw expected to have the command of Lieutenant-Colonel in General Ward's Regiment, and the dispute between him and Colonel Ward having been already laid before Congress and acted upon, we would only represent that he has signified to this Committee that a number of companies incline to go under him, as will appear by his return, which accompanies this Report.

About five or six weeks past Mr. Greenleaf applied to the Committee of Safety, desiring that the men raised in and about Newbury might not be annexed to Colonel Gerrish's Regiment, or any other where it would be disagreeable to them. He afterwards applied to this Committee respecting said men, and desired that the eight companies enlisted upon orders issued by this Committee, through Colonel Gerrish's hands, who have since petitioned in favour of Colonel Little's taking the command of them, might be put under him as Colonel of a Regiment. We then found we had given orders for as many Regiments as would complete the Establishment made by this Colony, and therefore did not give said Colonel Little any orders to raise a Regiment, but promised that if any vacancy should happen, he should have the preference. We find said companies were early in the field, and have done duty ever since, and are very well equipped.

Early after the 19th of April this Committee sent ten sets of beating orders to the Honourable General Preble, desiring him to give out said orders to such persons as he thought suitable for commissions, in order to form a Regiment; and Colonel March was also supplied with ten sets of orders, for the purpose of raising a Regiment to be commanded by him. Soon after it was represented to us by the Committee of Correspondence for Falmouth, that it would be inconvenient to that County, in their exposed situation, to raise men for the Army, and the same was agreed to by Colonels Finney and March in the Committee; on which we wrote to General Preble, informing him of the same, but heard nothing further until about six days past, we received a return from Colonel Finney of about five hundred men, enlisted in a Regiment to go under his command, and Colonel March certified that he had agreed to come in as his second; the copy of which letter to General Preble accompanies this. Colonel Sergeant's case having been represented to Congress, the copy of said representation accompanies this Report.

The Committee beg leave to represent that the reason why more enlisting orders were delivered out than were sufficient to enlist the number of men established by Congress, was an apprehension that the Province was in the utmost danger for want of men, the Committee not being able to prevail on the Militia and Minute-Men to tarry in Camp; and but very few men being at that time enlisted, we were obliged to issue further orders.

BENJAMIN WHITE, Chairman.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress at Watertown.

June 12, 1775.

The Committee not apprehending that it was necessary to detain Eliphalet Hill, of Newbury, any longer as a Rider in the Colony service, he was dismissed therefrom on the yesterday.

Shubael and Joseph Sever, of Framingham, entered into the Colony service as Armourers, the 10th instant.

Captain Lawrence, in Colonel Prescott's Regiment, offering to act as an Armourer without any pay for his labour, and to return home for some tools which are necessary to effect the repairs of the Muskets, it was consented to by the Committee, and the said Lawrence was desired to procure his tools as soon as may be.

June 13, 1775.

Jonathan Stickney, in Colonel Woodbridge's Regiment, received a Small-Arm of one Guillam, a scholar, for which he gave a receipt in the rough minute book, to deliver the same again to this Committee when so required.

Whereas, it is daily expected that General Gage will attack our Army now in the vicinity of Boston, in order to penetrate into the country, it is of the utmost importance that said Army be in every respect prepared for action as soon as possible; therefore,

Resolved, That the General be desired to order each Colonel in the Army to make immediate return to him of the state and equipment of their respective Regiments, setting forth what number of men are destitute of arms, and what arms are fit for immediate service; and that this vote be laid before the Committee as soon as may be.

Mr. Devens appointed a Committee to inquire of the Committee of Supplies relative to the quantity of Powder in their possession, and where the same is.

On motion made,

Resolved, That the debates and determinations of this Committee be kept a profound secret by its members and their attendants, until further order of this Committee.

Whereas Daniel Adams, of Boston, a lunatick now in Camp at Cambridge, occasions great disorder in said Camp; therefore,

Resolved, That the Selectmen of the Town of Woburn be, and they hereby are directed and empowered to take into their custody and care the above-mentioned Daniel Adams, and make such provision for him, at the expense of this Colony, as his circumstances, being peculiar, may require, and also for the guards while there.

Whereas, frequent complaints have been made to this Committee of the waste and destruction of the property of some persons who have left their habitations in sundry Towns in this Colony, and taken refuge in the Town of Boston; therefore,

Resolved, That it be recommended to the honourable Congress now sitting at Watertown, that they take the above into their consideration, and act thereon as to them in their wisdom shall seem meet.

The Committee earnestly recommend to the honourable Congress, that the representations from the Quartermaster-General be taken into immediate consideration, especially as the Committee, from their own knowledge, find the rooms too much crowded, and the health and lives of the Soldiers thereby greatly exposed; and if tents cannot be immediately furnished, that some barracks be forthwith erected.

June 14, 1775.

Whereas this Committee are informed that Dr. How, of Andover, is prepared to receive, and well skilled in such disorders as Daniel Adams, of Boston, sent on the 13th instant to the Town of Woburn, is affected with; therefore,

Resolved, That the Selectmen of the Town of Woburn be, and they hereby are released from the keeping said Daniel Adams in the Town of Woburn, and they are required to provide a horse and carriage, with provisions, to forward the said Adams to Andover, the expense of which will be paid by this Colony.

Resolved, That Daniel Adams, a lunatick now at Woburn, be carried to the Town of Andover, and committed to the care of Dr. How; and the said Dr. How is hereby desired to take proper care of the said lunatick, at the expense of this Colony.

And every Soldier who shall receive any such Fire-Arms, shall give his receipt for the same to the Officers from whom he shall receive it, to be returned as aforesaid, and the Officer shall return the said receipt to the Committee of Safety. And in case the same shall not be returned at the close of the campaign, or sooner, the value of the said Fire-Arms shall be deducted out of the wages of the person receiving the same ; and that the Committee of Safety shall appraise all such Arms as have not already been appraised, and take an account of the whole.

"By order of Congress:

"JAMES WARREN, President."

The following was received from General Ward in consequence of the above vote of Congress, viz :

"[GENERAL ORDERS.] Head-Quarters, Cambridge, June 28, 1775.

"SAMUEL OSGOOD, Major of Brigade."

In consequence of the above order of the Council of War, the following Protest was entered, and a copy of the same, together with the other proceedings, were, by a vote of this Committee, laid before the honourable Congress, viz:

Whereas, the Provincial Congress did, on the twenty-sixth instant, pass a Resolve, "That all the Small-Arms that are or may be procured by the above order (mentioned in said Resolve) be delivered to the Committee of Safety at Cambridge, they to give their receipt for the same to the person from whom they received them, that the same may be delivered out to such officers as shall produce orders therefor from the Honourable General Ward, &c.:"

And whereas the Honourable General Ward, in consequence of that part of the above quotation which is scored, this day issued General Orders, in which are these words: "And the Committee of Safety are hereby ordered to deliver out Arms to such commanding officers as make application to them for the same.:"

And whereas this Committee apprehend that said Resolve does not empower the General to order them to deliver said Arms, but only to order his officers to receive from the Committee such Arms as they are ordered by the honourable Congress to deliver to the General's orders to his officers:

And whereas the Committee apprehend that it is of vast importance that no orders are issued by the military, or obeyed by the civil powers, but only such as are directed by the honourable Representative Body of the People, from whom all military and civil power originates; and though this Committee are satisfied that General Ward has misunderstood said Resolve, and does not mean or intend to set up the military power above the civil; yet, lest this order of the General's should be adduced as a precedent in future, we think it our indispensable duty to protest against the General's said order. Notwithstanding which protest, we also think it our indispensable duty to deliver said Arms agreeable to the spirit of said Resolve, and as the exigency of the publick requires, and submit our conduct to the honourable Congress.

His Excellency General Washington having this day ordered to the direction of this Committee ten prisoners, taken some time past at Machias, on board an armed Cutter, the Committee, apprehending from their commission of the 8th instant that they are altogether restricted from acting as a Committee but only in the recess of Congress, except in conformity to certain special Resolves of Congress, or for making provision for the Poor of Boston and Charlestown, and guarding against the Small-Pox, as mentioned in said commission, have resolved that the said prisoners be sent to Congress for their orders, and that Dr. Church be directed to attend Congress with this Resolve.

Whereas, Lieutenant Ely Stiles has represented to this Committee that he has been at considerable expense in conducting the prisoners from Machias to Head-Quarters, and desires to be repaid; but this matter not being within the powers with which this Committee is vested, they beg leave to recommend the consideration of this case to the honourable Congress.

"MOSES LITTLE, Colonel."

Complaint having been made to this Committee by the Hon. General Ward, and other officers in the Army, that several men were dangerously sick, and their lives would be greatly hazarded except immediate application of Medicine be made to them, and that the Surgeons of some of the Regiments had applied but could not obtain any, a Sub-Committee was therefore chosen to visit the Hospital, and to see the Surgeons; and, upon inquiry, found there were no such Medicines as are immediately wanted: therefore,

Resolved, That the lives of some part of the Army are in great danger for want of Medicines; and notwithstanding the commission of the Committee of Safety does not admit of direction in this matter, that Mr. Commissary Craigie be desired to procure, at the expense of the Colony, such Medicines as may be immediately and absolutely necessary.

In consequence of which, the following Order was given Mr. Commissary Craigie, viz:

"SIR: You are hereby desired immediately to supply the store under your care with such Medicines as are absolutely necessary for the present relief of the sick in the Army."

The following Resolution was adopted, and transmitted to the Provincial Congress:

In Committee of Safety, Cambridge, July 17, 1775.

Whereas, the honourable Provincial Congress by a commission issued to this Committee, bearing date July 8th, have authorized and empowered this Committee to make such further provision for the reception, sustenance, and support of the Poor of Boston and Charlestown as have or may come out of said Towns, as shall appear necessary for their comfortable support, according to the intention of Congress: this Committee, although ever ready to obey all the orders and directions of the honourable Congress that they may receive, are, notwithstanding, of opinion, that the above order respecting the poor inhabitants of the Towns of Boston and Charlestown is of such importance, and requires such attention to carry it into execution, that this Committee presume, with permission, that it will better answer the purposes designed, should a special Committee for that purpose be appointed by the honourable Congress, the business already before this Committee being such as will not admit of their attending to this matter unless they should neglect other business of importance. The Committee therefore pray the honourable Congress would take this affair under consideration, and conduct therein as to them in their wisdom shall seem meet.

Attest: WILLIAM COOPER, Secretary.
To the Honourable Provincial Congress.

The following account of the late battle of Charlestown, prepared in obedience to a Resolution of the Provincial Congress, was presented, accepted, and ordered to be transmitted to Great Britain:

"In Provincial Congress, Watertown, July 7, 1775.

"In compliance with a Resolve of the Committee of Safety, recommending that a Committee be appointed to draw up, and transmit to Great Britain, a fair and impartial account of the late battle of Charlestown, as soon as possible,

"Ordered, That the said Committee of Safety be a Committee for that purpose, and that they likewise be a Standing Committee for that and like purposes."

"A true extract from the Minutes:

"SAMUEL FREEMAN, Secretary."

In Committee of Safety, July 25, 1775.

In obedience to the above order of Congress, this Committee have inquired into the premises, and upon the best information obtained, find that the commanders of the New-England Army had, about the 14th ult., received advice that General Gage had issued orders for a party of the Troops under his command to post themselves on Bunker's Hill, a promontory just at the entrance of the peninsula of Charlestown, which orders were soon to be executed. Upon which it was determined, with the advice of this Committee, to send a party, who might erect some fortifications upon said hill, and defeat this design of our enemies. Accordingly, on the 16th ult. orders were issued that a detachment of one thousand men should that evening march to Charlestown, and intrench upon that hill. Just before nine o'clock they left Cambridge, and proceeded to Breed's Hill, situated on the farther part of the peninsula next to Boston; for by some mistake, this hill was marked out for the intrenchment instead of the other. Many things being necessary to be done preparatory to the intrenchments being thrown up, (which could not be done before lest the enemy should discover and defeat the design,) it was nearly twelve o'clock before the works were entered upon; they were then carried on with the utmost diligence and alacrity, so that by the dawn of the day they had thrown up a small redoubt, about eight rods square. At this time a heavy fire began from the enemy's ships, a number of floating batteries, and from a fortification of the enemy's upon Copp's Hill in Boston, directly opposite to our little redoubt. An incessant shower of shot and bombs was rained by these upon our works, by which only one man fell; the Provincials continued to labour indefatigably till they had thrown up a small breast work, extending from the east side of the redoubt to the bottom of the hill, but were prevented completing it by the intolerable fire of the enemy.

Between twelve and one o'clock a number of boats and barges, filled with the Regular Troops from Boston, were observed approaching towards Charlestown. These troops landed at a place called Moreton's Point, situated a little to the eastward of our works. This Brigade formed upon their landing, and stood thus formed till a second detachment arrived from Boston to join them. Having sent out large flank guards, they began a very slow march towards our lines. At this instant smoke and flames were seen to arise from the Town of Charlestown, which had been set on fire by the enemy, that the smoke might cover their attack upon our lines, and perhaps with a design to rout or destroy one or two Regiments of Provincials who had been posted in that Town. If either of these was their design, they were disappointed, for the wind shifting on a sudden, carried the smoke another way, and the Regiments were already removed. The Provincials, within their intrenchments, impatiently awaited the attack of the enemy, and reserved their fire till they came within ten or twelve rods, and then began a furious discharge of small-arms. This fire arrested the enemy, which they for some time returned, without advancing a step, and then retreated in disorder, and with great precipitation, to the place of landing; and some of them sought refuge even within their boats. Here the officers were observed by the spectators on the opposite shore, to run down to them, using the most passionate gestures, and pushing the men forward with their swords. At length they were rallied, and marched up with apparent reluctance towards the intrenchment. The Americans again reserved their fire until the enemy came up within five or six rods, and a second time put the Regulars to flight, who ran in great confusion towards their boats. Similar and superiour exertions were now necessarily made by the officers, which, notwithstanding the men discovered an almost insuperable reluctance to fighting in this cause, were again successful. They formed once more, and having brought some cannon to bear in such a manner as to rake the inside of the breastwork from one end of it to the other, the Provincials retreated within their little fort. The Ministerial Army now made a decisive effort; the fire from the ships and batteries, as well as from the cannon in the front of their Army, was redoubled. The officers in the rear of their Army were observed to goad forward the men with renewed exertions, and they attacked the redoubt on three sides at once. The breastwork on the outside of the fort was abandoned; the ammunition of the Provincials was expended, and few of their arms were fixed with bayonets. Can it then be wondered that the word was given by the commander of the party, to retreat? But this he delayed till the redoubt was half filled with Regulars, and the Provincials had kept the enemy at bay some time, confronting them with the butt-end of their muskets.

The retreat of this little handful of brave men would have been effectually cut off, had it not happened that the flanking party of the enemy, which was to have come up on the back of the redoubt, was checked by a party of Provincials, who fought with the utmost bravery, and kept them from advancing farther than the beach. The engagement of these two parties was kept up with the utmost vigour; and it must be acknowledged that this party of the Ministerial Troops evidenced a courage worthy of a better cause. All their efforts, however, were insufficient to compel the Provincials to retreat, till their main body had left the hill. Perceiving this was done, they then gave ground, but with more regularity than could be expected of troops who had no longer been under discipline, and many of whom never before saw an engagement.

In this retreat the Americans had to pass over the neck, which joins the peninsula of Charlestown to the main land. This neck was commanded by the Glasgow man-of-war and two floating batteries, placed in such a manner as that their shot raked every part of it. The incessant fire kept up across this neck, had, from the beginning of the engagement, prevented any considerable re-enforcement from getting to the Provincials upon the hill, and it was feared would cut off their retreat, but they retired over it with little or no loss.

With a ridiculous parade of triumph, the Ministerial Troops again took possession of the hill, which had served them as a retreat in their flight from the battle of Concord. It was expected that they would prosecute the supposed advantage they had gained, by marching immediately to Cambridge, which was distant about two miles, and which was not then in a state of defence. This they failed to do. The wonder excited by such conduct soon ceased, when, by the best accounts from Boston, we were told that of three thousand men who marched out upon this expedition, no less than fifteen hundred, (ninety-two of whom were commissioned officers,) were killed or wounded, and about twelve hundred of them either killed or mortally wounded. Such a slaughter was perhaps never before made upon British Troops in the space of about an hour, during which the heat of the engagement lasted, by about fifteen hundred men, which were the most that were at any time engaged on the American side.

The loss of the New-England Army amounted, according to an exact return, to one hundred and forty-five killed and missing, and three hundred and four wounded. Thirty of the first were wounded and taken prisoners by the enemy. Among the dead was Major General Joseph Warren, a man whose memory will be endeared to his countrymen, and to the worthy in every part and age of the world, so long as virtue and valour shall be esteemed among mankind. The heroick Colonel Gardner, of Cambridge, has since died of his wounds; and the brave Lieutenant-Colonel Parker, of Chelmsford, who was wounded and taken prisoner, perished in Boston jail. These three, with Major Moore and Major McClary, who nobly struggled in the cause of their country, were the only officers of distinction which we lost. Some officers of great worth, though inferior in rank, were killed, whom we deeply lament; but the officers and soldiers in general who were wounded, are in a fair way of recovery.

The Town of Charlestown, the buildings of which were in general large and elegant, and which contained effects belonging to the unhappy sufferers in Boston to a very great amount, was entirely destroyed; and its chimneys and cellars now present a prospect to the Americans, exciting an indignation in their bosoms which nothing can appease but the sacrifice of those miscreants who have introduced desolation and havoc into these once happy abodes of liberty, peace, and plenty.

Though the officers and soldiers of the Ministerial Army meanly exult in having gained this ground, yet they cannot but attest to the bravery of our troops, and acknowledge that the battles of Fontenoy and Minden, according to the numbers engaged, and the time the engagements continued, were not to be compared with this; and, indeed, the laurels of Minden were totally blasted in the battle of Charlestown. The ground purchased, thus dearly purchased by the British Troops, affords them no advantage against the American Army, now strongly intrenched on a neighbouring eminence. The Continental Troops, nobly animated from the justice of their cause, sternly urge to decide the contest by the sword; but we wish for no farther effusion of blood, if the freedom and peace of America can be secured without it. But if it must be otherwise, we are determined to struggle. We disdain life without liberty.

Oh, Britons! Be wise for yourselves before it is too late, and secure a commercial intercourse with the American Colonies before it is forever lost; disarm your Ministerial assassins; put an end to this unrighteous and unnatural war, and suffer not any rapacious despots to amuse you with the unprofitable ideas of your right to tax and officer the Colonies, till the most profitable and advantageous trade you have is irrecoverably lost. Be wise for yourselves, and the Americans will contribute to and rejoice in your prosperity. J. PALMER, per order.

"In regard to what I know of the setting fire to Charlestown, on the 17th of June, is: I was on Copp's Hill at the landing of the Troops in Charlestown; and about one hour after the Troops were landed, orders came down to set fire to the Town, and soon after a carcass was discharged from the hill, which set fire to one of the old houses just above the ferryways; from that the meeting-house and several other houses were set on fire by carcasses; and the houses at the eastern end of the Town were set on fire by men landed out of the boats. WILLIAM COCKRAN."

"Then William Cockran personally appeared before me, the subscriber, and made solemn oath to the truth of the within Deposition. JAMES OTIS,

A Justice of the Peace through the Province of the Massachusetts-Bay, in New-England."

[The foregoing account of the battle of Charlestown was transmitted to London soon after the date, accompanied with a letter to Arthur Lee, Esq., of which the following is a copy, viz:]

"In Committee of Safety, Watertown, July 25, 1775.

"SIR: The Committee of Safety of this Colony having been ordered by the honourable Provincial Congress to draw up and transmit to Great Britain a fair and impartial account of the late battle of Charlestown, beg leave to enclose the same to you, desiring you to insert the same in the publick papers, so that the European world may be convinced of the causeless and unexampled cruelty with which the British Ministry have treated the innocent American Colonies. We are, Sir, with great respect, your most humble servants, J. PALMER, per order.

Letter to Colonel BENEDICT ARNOLD.

"SIR: This Congress have received yours of the 19th and 23d of May, ult., per Captain Brown and Captain Phelps, a copy of which has been sent to New-Hampshire. They highly approve of, and take great satisfaction in the acquisitions you have made at Ticonderoga, Crown Point, on the Lake, &c. As to the state you are in respecting men, provisions, &c., we have advices from Connecticut and New-York, that ample preparation is making, with the greatest despatch, in those two Colonies, from whence you may depend on being seasonably supplied. They are sorry to meet with repeated requests from you, that some gentleman be sent to succeed you in command; they assure you, that they place the greatest confidence in your fidelity, knowledge, courage, and good conduct, and they desire that you at present dismiss the thoughts of quitting your important command at Ticonderoga, Crown Point, Lake Champlain, &c.; and you are hereby requested to continue your command over the forces raised by this Colony, posted at those several places, at least until the Colony of New-York or Connecticut shall take on them the maintaining and commanding the same agreeable to an order of the Continental Congress.

"To Colonel Benedict Arnold, Ticonderoga.

"P. S. We have just received intelligence, by a letter from Governour Trumbull, that the General Assembly have ordered a thousand men to march immediately to re-enforce the Army now at Crown Point, Ticonderoga, &c., as also five hundred pounds of powder, and also that each soldier is furnished with one pound of powder, &c. The Congress further advise that in case your present necessity requires it, you make use of the one hundred and sixty Pounds you found on board the sloop, for the service of this Colony, you accounting for the same to this or some other Congress, or House of Representatives of this Colony; and they hereby assure you that this Colony will repay it whenever it shall be ordered by the Continental Congress; and that you also complete the raising the number of four hundred men, in the pay of this Colony, if you judge it necessary."

"To the House of Assembly of CONNECTICUT.

"GENTLEMEN: We gratefully acknowledge the receipt of your favour of the 27th ultimo. We fully concur in opinion with you, that maintaining a post at Ticonderoga or Crown Point, is of the utmost importance; therefore take particular satisfaction that you have on this subject so early and repeatedly expressed your minds to the Continental Congress. By private intelligence of the 29th ultimo, sent to Captain Joseph Trumbull, we are informed that the Provincial Congress of New-York do not understand the resolve of the Continental Congress, concerning said fortresses, to extend so far as wholly to dismantle them, but so far only as to supply any fortification that may be built at the south end of Lake George; which resolve, in this sense of it, they are with despatch executing. Therefore, in our present distressing situation, we have postponed sending further assistance to Captain Arnold, especially since New-York have not requested it.

"To the Hon. William Williams, Speaker of the House of Assembly of the Colony of Connecticut."

"To the Provincial Congress of NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

"GENTLEMEN: We send you enclosed a copy of a letter from Colonel Arnold, commander of the troops at Ticonderoga and Crown Point, together with a copy of a letter from the Speaker of the House of Representatives for the Colony of Connecticut, by which you will be acquainted with the present situation of those fortresses, and the measures necessary to be taken for securing and defending so valuable acquisitions. You will doubtless agree with us in sentiment, that it is a matter of the greatest importance that those places remain in our possession, in order to secure our frontiers from the depredations of our enemies, if they should attempt to attack us from that quarter, of which there appears to be great danger.

"It was the agreement of this Colony, that four hundred men, and one hundred pounds in money, should be raised for the reduction of the place; and it is our determination to contribute our full proportion toward securing the acquisition. By the letter from the Speaker of the House of Representatives for Connecticut, you will find that that Colony have voted to send immediately to their assistance four companies, and five hundred pounds weight of powder, and we suppose that the troops are upon the march there. And we most earnestly request that you would contribute your endeavours likewise for the speedy and effectual security of the aforementioned places, which, considering the importance of the affair, and the ready disposition which you have discovered for the defence of the common cause, leaves us no room to doubt of your compliance therewith.

"To the Provincial Congress of New-Hampshire."

Resolved, That the Secretary be, and hereby is, empowered to appoint some person to assist him in his office.
Adjourned till to-morrow morning, eight o'clock.

The Committee appointed to bring in a Resolve for giving currency to the Bills of Credit of the other Governments, reported as follows:

Whereas, a former Congress of this Colony, holden at Watertown, on the 20th day of May now last past, resolved, "That for the payment of advance pay to the Massachusetts Army, there should be issued by the Receiver-General, on the credit of this Colony, a sum not exceeding Twenty-Six Thousand Pounds, lawful money, in notes of the following denominations, to wit: of Twenty Shillings, of Eighteen Shillings, of Sixteen Shillings, of Fifteen Shillings, of Fourteen Shillings, of Twelve Shillings, of Ten Shillings, of Nine Shillings, and of Six Shillings; to be four thousand three hundred and thirty-three of each denomination, and no more:"

And whereas, it is absolutely necessary that the Bills aforesaid should have free currency, and be supported in full credit: It is, therefore,

Resolved, That no person within this Colony shall purchase or take in payment any of the Bills aforesaid at any discount, or for a less sum than what is specified on the face of them; and that every person so offending, shall be deemed an enemy to his Country, and shall be punished by fine or imprisonment, at the discretion of any Congress of this Colony before whom he or she shall be convicted thereof.

And whereas it is expedient, for divers reasons, that the Bills of the other Colonies on this Continent, except those that have been or may be issued by the Governments of Quebeck and Nova-Scotia, should have full credit and free currency in this Colony: It is, therefore,

Resolved, That the above Resolution respecting the Bills of the Colony, shall be extended to have as full force with respect to the Bills of the other Colonies on this Continent, (excepting Quebeck and Nova-Scotia,) as to the Bills of this Colony; and it is also

Resolved, That the Bills of the other Colonies, excepting as aforesaid, shall be received in all payments, and have equal credit as those of this Colony; and it is also

Resolved, That any person who shall inform this or any future Congress of this Colony, against any person who shall violate either of these Resolutions aforesaid, shall, on conviction of such person, be entitled to receive out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, in reward for such information, the sum of; and it is also

Resolved, That any person who shall inform against persons violating either of the aforesaid Resolutions to any Committee of Correspondence in this Province, shall, on the conviction of any person offending as aforesaid, be entitled to the same reward as if the said complaint had been made to any Congress of this Colony; and all the Committees of Safety in this Colony are strictly enjoined, when any such complaint shall be made to them, that they, as soon as may be, send the same complaint, with the name or names of the witness or witnesses of the fact, to the Congress of this Colony.

Mr. Cushing informed the Congress, that Mr. Benjamin Edwards, on hearing at the door of this House, of the determination of the Congress respecting Mr. Brewer, made use of the following expression, viz: "By God, if this Province is to be governed in this manner, it is time for us to look out; and it is all owing to the Committee of Safety; a pack of sappy-headed fellows; I know three of them myself." Whereupon,

Resolved, That Mr. Edwards be directed to attend this House to make answer to the above charge.

Therefore, Resolved, That such suffering Poor shall be allowed to remove into any Town or District in the Colony, other than such Towns or Districts as are already ordered to provide for and receive the number of said Poor to them assigned; and every Town and District in the Colony that shall receive and provide necessary support for such suffering Poor, shall be indemnified in every respect as fully as any other Town or District in the Colony, provided they observe and comply with directions already given relative to said Poor.

And whereas, in the present distressed circumstances and confusion of the Town of Boston, some of said Poor have or may remove out of said Town without a proper certificate from the Committee of Donations, and the Town to which such persons may remove may refuse to receive them for want of the same,

Resolved, That it is recommended to the Selectmen of the several Towns and Districts in this Colony, to which such persons may remove, that such provision be made as is necessary to prevent their suffering, until such certificate can be procured; and such Town or District shall be indemnified as before provided, they observing the directions given in the Resolve passed by the last Congress relative to said Poor; and such persons shall be considered as part of their assignment.

And whereas, it is found extremely difficult for the Committees at Charlestown and Roxbury to remove said Poor to the several Towns and Districts to which they are destined, for want of teams to go such a distance as is necessary in many cases, it is further recommended to the Selectmen of each Town and District in this Colony, that they assist in removing said Poor upon every necessary occasion, when it is in their power, to the several places of their assignment, keeping a particular account of their trouble and expense, and the names of the persons they assisted; and they shall be paid in manner as before provided. And the Committees at Charlestown and Roxbury, who were appointed by this Congress to make provision for such Poor as might come out of the Town of Boston, are desired to procure a list of said Poor from the Committee of Donations for future use; and also to take the advantage of the teams that may come from the westward, for the removal of said Poor by every opportunity in their power.

Ordered, That the Committee appointed to inquire into the circumstances of bringing four Prisoners from Cambridge, be directed to make such provision for them as is necessary, till further orders from this Congress; and that Mr. Robinson be added to the Committee; and that said Committee report what they think would be best to be done with them.

Ordered, That Mr. Wheeler be appointed to number the small Colony Notes, in the room of Mr. Goodwin, who has leave to go home.

The Committee appointed to consider the Letter from the Stockbridge Indians, reported the following; which was accepted, and ordered to be authenticated by the Secretary, if the President is not in Watertown, and sent forward:

"To the MOHEAKOUNUCK Tribe of Indians, living in and about STOCKBRIDGE:

"Brothers: We this day, by the Delegate from Stockbridge, first heard your friendly answer to our speech to you by Captain William Goodrich; which answer we are told you made to us immediately by a letter which we have not yet received. We now reply.

"Brothers: You say that you were once great, but that you are now little; and that we once were little, but are now great. The Supreme Spirit orders these things. Whether we are little or great, let us keep the path of friendship clear, which our fathers made, and in which we have both travelled to this time.

"The friends of the wicked counsellors of our King fell upon us and shed some blood, soon after we spake to you last by our letter. But we with a small twig killed so many, and frightened them so much, that they have shut themselves up in our great Town, called Boston, which they have made strong.

"We have now made our hatchets and all our instruments of war sharp and bright. All the chief counsellors who live on this side the great water, are sitting in the grand Council-House in Philadelphia. When they give the word, we shall all, as one man, fall on and drive our enemies out of their strong fort, and follow them till they shall take their hands out of our pouches, and let us sit in our council-house, as we used to do, and as our fathers did in old times.

"Brothers: Though you are small, yet you are wise; use your wisdom to help us. If you think it best, go and smoke your pipe with your Indian brothers towards the setting of the sun, and tell them all you hear and all you see, and let us know what their wise men say. If some of your young men should have a mind to see what we are doing here, let them come down and tarry among our warriors. We will provide for them while they are here.

"Brothers: When you have any trouble, come and tell it to us, and we will help you.

"Signed by order of Congress:

"SAMUEL FREEMAN, Secretary.

"To Captain Solomon Uhhannawauummut, Chief Sachem of the Moheakounuck Tribe of Indians at Stockbridge."

Whereas, it appears to this Congress, that great benefit may arise to the American cause, should our friends of the Stockbridge or Moheakounuck Tribe of Indians send belts and messengers to the several tribes connected with them; and as the same may be attended with expense: therefore,

Resolved, That the Selectmen of the Town of Stockbridge, for the time being, be a Committee to promote the forwarding such messengers and belts; and that the Committee aforesaid be allowed to draw out of the publick moneys in the hands of Stephen Nash, late Collector for the Town of Stockbridge aforesaid, any sum or sums, not exceeding fifteen Pounds, for which said Committee shall account to this or some future Congress or House of Representatives, and be allowed all reasonable charges that have or may arise for promoting and forwarding the premises.

Ordered, That the Papers exhibited to this Congress by Captain Phelps be returned to him by Major Bliss.

Adjourned to nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

Saturday, June 10, 1775.

Ordered, That the Committee of Safety be directed to make return, in writing, to this Congress, as soon as may be, of the names of all those persons who claim or offer themselves to be commissioned as Colonels of Regiments in the Colony Army and are not commissioned, with any agreement that may have been made with any such persons by the Committee of Safety, as also a state of those Regiments which such persons claim the command of, as to their numbers, equipments, and the time they have been engaged in the service.

The Committee appointed to consider what is proper to be done with the Prisoners brought from Arundel, reported as follows, viz:

The Committee appointed to examine the persons and papers sent to this Congress by the Committee of the Town of Arundel, have attended that service, and after due perusal of said papers, Josiah Jones and Jonathan Hicks, therein referred to, were brought before them. Said Jones, in his defence, says, he had no concern with the Sloop Polly, otherwise than as a passenger in her to Nova-Scotia; notwithstanding which it appears clearly to this Committee, by said papers, as also by the evidence of Captain Smith, master, herewith transmitted, that said Jones went on board said sloop as supercargo, in the service of General Gage, to bring hay and other articles to Boston, to supply our enemies. We find by said Jones's account of himself, that he went to Boston soon after the memorable Lexington battle, on the 19th of April last, in company with John Ruggles, of Hardwick, who was ordered by a Committee to the said Town of Hardwick; and that said Jones was knowing to the proceedings of said Committee against said Ruggles before they set out together from Weston to take refuge in Boston; that they left the common road, and went in the woods and difficult places, to pass the Town of Roxbury. This Committee, upon the whole, have not the least reason to doubt of said Jones's being a notorious enemy to his Country, and of his having been in the actual employment of our enemies against the just liberties of the people; therefore beg leave to report the following Order, viz:

Ordered, That Josiah Jones, taken from the Sloop Polly, be sent with a sufficient guard to the Town of Concord, in the County of Middlesex, and committed to the common jail, there to remain until the further orders of the Congress, or House of Representatives of this Colony.

Said Jonathan Hicks, in his defence, says, that since the publick disputes respecting the liberties of the Country, he has not liked the part that has been acted, in many respects, on either side, therefore could not see his way clear to join with any.

Upon examination the Committee find, by evidence, that at Gardinerston, while he lived there, he expressed himself highly against Committees of Correspondence, &c., calling them rebels, and using other opprobrious language against the people who appeared for liberty, and endeavoured to hinder their unity. That also, while he, the said Hicks, lived at Plymouth, he was esteemed by the good people there inimical to the liberties of his Country by his general conduct, and that at certain times he appeared very high, and once drew his sword or spear upon certain persons. Said Hicks, upon the whole, owns his general conduct has been such as the people for liberty call a tory, but still says he is against the oppressive acts.

Said Hicks confesses that the evening after the battle of Lexington, aforesaid, he left Plymouth and took shelter with the Troops at Marshfield, not thinking himself safe in the country; that he went with them to Boston, and there remained until he went on board the Sloop Polly with Jones, and says he designed for Halifax, there to tarry, if he could find business, in order to be out of the noise. Captain Smith, master of said sloop, can give no account of Hicks's business on board. All he can say is, he in general appeared inimical, calling the liberty people rebels, &c. The Committee, therefore, beg leave to report the following Order:

Ordered, That Jonathan Hicks, taken from the Sloop Polly, be sent with a sufficient guard to the Town of Concord, in the County of Middlesex, and committed to the common jail, there to remain until the further orders of the Congress, or House of Representatives of this Colony.

Resolved, That the Keeper of the Jail in the County of Middlesex be directed to receive Messrs. Jones and Hicks, who were taken prisoners from the Sloop Polly, at Arundel, and keep them in safe custody till further order, and provide them necessaries for their subsistence whilst in jail; and that the Committee of Correspondence for the Town of Watertown be directed to see that the Resolves of Congress respecting the said Jones and Hicks be forthwith carried into execution, and to take such guard as they think necessary for that purpose.

Ordered, That the Hon. Mr. Sever, Colonel Otis, and Mr. Davis, be added to the Committee who were appointed to consider the expediency of establishing a number of armed Vessels for the protection of the sea-coasts.

Ordered, That Major Hawley, Captain Stone of Framingham, Colonel Parks, Hon. Mr. Sever, Mr. Johnson, Hon. Mr. Spooner, and Deacon Plympton, be a Committee to take into consideration the Artificers which may be necessary for the Army in the pay of this Colony, and that they report, as soon as may be, in what way such Artificers shall be established, the numbers wanted for the Army at Cambridge and Roxbury, of each kind, and the sum that is proper to be allowed them per month.

Ordered, That Mr. Whittemore, Captain Dwight, and Mr. Kollock, be a Committee to bring in a Resolve for the appointment of a number of Armourers for the Massachusetts Army, and for the establishment of their pay.

The Resolve for establishing an allowance of Provisions for the Soldiers was again read, and accepted, and ordered to be printed in handbills, and is as follows, viz :

The Committee appointed to make an establishment for the allowance for Provisions for the Soldiers of the Massachusetts Army, beg leave to report the following Resolve, viz :

Resolved, That each Soldier in the Massachusetts Army shall have the following allowance per day, viz : one pound of Bread ; half a pound of Beef and half a pound of Pork, and if Pork cannot be had, one pound and a quarter of Beef, and one day in seven they shall have one pound and one quarter of salt fish, instead of one day's allowance of meat ; one pint of Milk, or if Milk cannot be had, one gill of Rice ; one quart of good spruce or malt Beer ; one gill of Peas or Beans, or other sauce equivalent ; six ounces of good Butter per week ; one pound of good common Soap for six men per week ; half a pint of Vinegar per week per man, if it can be had.

The Committee appointed to inquire into the state of the Army reported, that in order to execute their commission, it is necessary that they should be furnished with a copy of all recommendations for commissions sent to this Congress by the Committee of Safety, and a list of all Officers commissioned by the Congress ; and asked leave to sit again. The Report was accepted.

Ordered, That Mr. Sayer, Mr. Edwards, and Major Fuller, be a Committee to consider the proposal of the Hon. General Ward respecting furloughs for the Soldiers, and report.

Afternoon.

The Petition of a number of the Freeholders of Wilmington was read, and committed to Mr. Hale, Mr. Lyman, and Colonel Danielson.

The Petition of Davis and Coverly was read, and committed to Mr. Fairbank, Mr. Webster, and Col. Sawyer.

Monday next, three o'clock, P. M., was assigned to make choice of three Delegates, to meet those that may be sent from the other New-England Colonies.

The choice of two Major-Generals referred to Monday, five o'clock, P. M.

Hon. Colonel Warren, Hon. Mr. Spooner, Dr. Taylor, Captain Stone, Mr. Edwards, Colonel Cobb, and Colonel Thompson, were appointed a Committee to consider the expediency of establishing a number of armed Vessels.

Sunday, June 11, 1775.

The Congress met at eight o'clock, and adjourned to half past three, P. M.

Resolved, That the Hon. Major Hawley, Hon. Mr. Spooner, Hon. Colonel Warren, and Hon. Colonel Foster, have leave to offer for the consideration of this Congress an Address which they have prepared to the Continental Congress.

The same being read and amended, was accepted, and ordered to be transcribed and signed by the Hon. Major Hawley, as Vice-President, and sent immediately by express to Philadelphia, and that the Committee of Supplies be desired to procure some person to carry it. It is as follows, viz :

May it please your Honours :

The situation of any Colony or People perhaps was never before such as made it more necessary for fully exercising the powers of civil Government, than the present state and situation of the Colony of the Massachusetts Bay.

The embarrassments, delays, disappointments, and obstructions in executing every undertaking necessary for the preservation of our lives, and much more of our property, are so great and many, as that they cannot be represented or enumerated ; and that is chiefly to be attributed to our want of a settled civil polity or government. Besides, every thing necessary for the abovesaid most important purposes, which is in some degree effected, is done in the most expensive manner ; in short, although the times we are fallen into, and the prospects before us, are such as require the utmost economy, yet nothing of the kind can be preserved in our present state.

There are in many parts of this Colony alarming symptoms of the abatement of the sense in the minds of some people of the sacredness of private property, which is plainly assignable to the want of civil government ; and your Honours must be fully sensible that a community of goods and estate will soon be followed with the utter waste and destruction of the goods themselves. Besides, the necessity of civil government appears more and more apparent, from the extreme difficulty of maintaining the public peace without it ; although we can truly say much fewer enormities and breaches of the peace have happened among us, than it was natural to expect from the contemplation of such a state as we have been cast into.

May it please your Honours : The pressing weight of our distresses has necessitated the sending a special post to obtain your immediate advice upon this subject ; and we do most earnestly entreat that you would as soon as possible despatch the messenger with such advice.

Our former application to you of the 16th of May last, has rendered it unnecessary that we should further enlarge upon this subject ; and to prevent repetition, we beg leave to refer you to our letter of that date.

The Army under the command of General Gage we estimate to amount at least to five thousand men, well appointed, under the command of Generals of character and experience, and prepared with every thing necessary for action, exclusive of the additional strength derived from negroes, which the General has taken into his service, and disaffected Americans. We have great reason to apprehend that a re-enforcement of at least eight regiments of foot, and one of horse, may be hourly expected. We enclose a copy of an intercepted letter from Major Sheriff, (dated May 29, 1775,) which exhibits to you one ground of this apprehension. We have had under our consideration the propriety and necessity of augmenting our Army, notwithstanding our embarrassments, and though we have not yet adopted it, nothing perhaps but the more ample provision of the neighbouring Colonies will relieve that necessity.

The depredations and piracies frequently committed on our sea-coasts, and the little trade which remains to us, whereby, among other capital articles, the importation of ammunition and provision is almost totally obstructed and threatens our ruin, have also occasioned our contemplating steps to prevent these inconveniences, by fitting out a number of armed vessels with sufficient strength to encounter their small though numerous cutters.

We shall only add, that as the seat of war, with all its attendant distresses, have for the present taken their principal residence here, we should consider it as a happy event, if you should think proper to adjourn to some part of the Continent not so far distant, that the advice and aid of the Continent may be more expeditiously afforded upon any emergency.

Adjourned to Monday morning, eight o'clock.

Monday, June 12, 1775.

Ordered, That Mr. Wheeler, Deacon Baker, and Mr. Webster, be a Committee to consider some measures for preventing the violation of the Sabbath, and to bring in a Resolve for this purpose.

Resolved, That five o'clock in the afternoon be assigned for the consideration of the Report of the Committee who were appointed to bring in a Resolve for giving a free currency to the Bills of Credit of this and the other Colonies.

Ordered, That the Hon. Mr. Spooner, Hon. Colonel Gerrish, and Dr. Whiting, be a Committee to consider the Petition from the Committee at Charlestown, and report.

Resolved, That the Secretary have liberty to procure such assistance from time to time as he shall think necessary.

Resolved, That two persons be appointed to repair to the Fortress of Ticonderoga, to examine into the state of that Fortress, and of affairs there, and to act in such a manner as they shall be directed by this Congress, and that four o'clock in the afternoon be assigned for the choice of such persons by ballot ; and that the Hon. Major Hawley,

Hon. Colonel Warren, and Mr. Sullivan, be a Committee to prepare instructions for such Delegates.

The Committee who were appointed to consider the expediency of establishing a number of armed Vessels, reported. The consideration of the Report was put off to ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Hon. Mr. Dexter, one of the Committee who were appointed to prepare Letters to the Continental Congress, New-York, and the New-England Governments, being absent, Ordered, That the Hon. Mr. Spooner be appointed in his room.

Ordered, That Mr. Sayer be directed forthwith to fill up and deliver commissions to the Officers of Colonel Whitcomb's Regiment.

Ordered, That Mr. Holten, Mr. Mitchell, and Mr. Colville, be a Committee to consider the Petition of Mr. Ebenezer Prout.

Ordered, That Dr. Whiting, Dr. Taylor, and Mr. Parks, be a Committee to consider some method of supplying the several Surgeons of the Army with Medicines.

The Committee appointed to prepare a Letter to the Continental Congress, &c., reported the following, which was accepted, viz:

May it please your Honours:

The views of Administration having been made evident, by their conduct for some years past; and the late regulations of civil and ecclesiastical polity of Quebeck having clearly discovered an intention to make use of the Canadians as engines to reduce this Continent to slavery, it has been found absolutely necessary, for the preservation of the liberties of America, to take possession of the important pass of Ticonderoga, and to send forward a sufficient force to hold the same against any attempt which may be made to retake it, and to prevent General Carleton from sending off forces by the way of the Lakes to annoy and distress the frontiers. But as we apprehend there never has been any intention to give the least disturbance to our brethren of Canada, to whom we most sincerely wish the full and free enjoyment of their civil and religious rights, we humbly request that your Honours would take such steps to prevent any false impressions which our enemies may attempt to make on their minds concerning our designs, or to remove any such as have already been made, as you in your wisdom shall think most expedient, as we look upon it to be of the utmost importance that there should no jealousies subsist between them and the other Colonies. We also have had the most disagreeable accounts of methods taken to fill the minds of the Indian tribes adjacent to these Colonies with sentiments very injurious to us; particularly, we have been informed that Colonel Guy Johnson has taken great pains with the Six Nations, in order to bring them into a belief that it is designed by the Colonies to fall upon them and cut them off. We therefore pray you would, with all the speed convenient, use your very great influence in guarding against the evil intended by this malevolent misrepresentation. And we have wrote to our sister Colonies in New-England and to New-York, requesting they would make a similar application to you respecting these matters.

We are your most obedient humble servants.

Resolved, That the vote for choosing two persons to repair to the Fortress of Ticonderoga, be so far reconsidered as that there be three persons chosen, instead of two, for that service.

Afternoon.

Ordered, That Colonel Farley, Major Brooks, and Mr. Cross, be a Committee to consider and report what is proper to be done with the Grass growing on the estates of the Refugees at Cambridge, Charlestown, Roxbury, and Milton. Who reported as follows:

Resolved, That it be recommended to the Committee of Safety that they appoint some person or persons in the Towns hereafter mentioned, viz: Cambridge, Charlestown, Roxbury, and Milton, to cut the Grass and secure the Hay growing on the estates of the Refugees in the above mentioned Towns, in some convenient place, for the benefit of the Colony, as to them shall seem meet.

Ordered, That Mr. Sullivan, Hon. Colonel Warren, and Colonel Gerrish, be a Committee to consider what is best to be done with respect to a Vessel said to be going from Salem to New-Providence for Fruit and Turtle for the Army at Boston, and report.

Resolved, That Mr. Gerry have leave to bring in a Resolve for preventing the exportation of Fish and other Provisions.

This Resolve was accordingly read and accepted, and ordered to be printed in handbills, and sent to the several maritime Towns in this Colony, and is as follows, viz:

Whereas, the enemies of America are multiplying their cruelties towards the inhabitants of the New-England Colonies, by seizing Provision Vessels, either the property of, or intended to supply them, and also by plundering the stock of Cattle, Sheep, &c., on their sea-coasts:

Resolved, That it be, and it is hereby recommended to the inhabitants of the Towns and Districts in this Colony, that they forthwith exert themselves to prevent the exportation of Fish, and all other kinds of provision, excepting such only as shall be intended to supply the inhabitants of the Colonies aforesaid, and as in the opinion of the Selectmen, and Committees of Correspondence, and Committees of Safety, of the Towns where the same shall be stored, may with prudence be shipped for conveyance by water, for the purpose aforesaid; and it is strongly recommended to the Selectmen, Committees of Correspondence, and Committees of Safety, throughout the Colony, that they cause this Resolve to be strictly executed.

The Committee appointed to consider some method for supplying the Surgeons in the Army with Medicines, reported. The Report was read and accepted, and is as follows, viz:

The Committee appointed to take into consideration a complaint that the Surgeons in the Army are not properly furnished with Medicines, have attended that service and beg leave to report:

Whereas, it appears that there is not as yet a sufficient number of Medicine Chests provided to furnish each Regiment with a distinct Chest; and whereas, the Committee of Supplies are making provision for the supplying of each Regiment with such Medicine Chests as soon as possible: therefore

Resolved, That the Committee of Supplies be, and hereby are directed, immediately to furnish the Surgeon of the First Regiment at Cambridge, and also the Surgeon of the First Regiment at Roxbury, each of them, with a Medicine Chest for the present, and that all the other Surgeons in the Armies at Cambridge and Roxbury have free recourse to the said Chests, and be supplied from them from time to time as they shall find occasion, until more ample provision shall be made for them. All which is humbly submitted, and the Committee beg leave to sit again.

WM. WHITING, per order.

Ordered, That the same Committee be appointed to examine into the Medical Stores, and make a list of what is necessary for the supplying each Regiment, that the same may be laid before the Committee; and that the same Committee consider what Medicines are necessary, and bring in a list of what Medicines are in the Medicinal Store, and that they be directed to report what Instruments are necessary for the Surgeons of the Army.

The Committee appointed to consider what is best to be done relative to a Vessel going from Salem to New-Providence, reported. The Report was read and accepted, and is as follows:

Whereas, this Congress has been informed that a Schooner belonging to the Irvings in Boston, is fitted out under colour of being chartered by one Thompson, who has lately fled from Medford to Boston, but is really destined to Salem, and from thence to New-Providence, to get Fruit, Turtle, and Provisions of other kinds, for the sustenance and feasting of those Troops who are, as pirates and robbers, committing daily hostilities and depredations on the good people of this Colony and all America :

It is therefore Resolved, That Captain Samuel McCobb, a Member of this Congress, be immediately despatched to Salem and Marblehead, to secure said Thompson, and prevent said Vessel from going said voyage, and cause the said Thompson to be brought to this Congress. And the Committees of Correspondence, Safety, and Inspection, of said Towns, and all the good people of this Colony, are directed to give the said Capt. McCobb all needed assistance therein.

Ordered, That Mr. Sullivan, Captain Stone, and Major Bliss, be a Committee to count and sort the votes for three gentlemen as a Committee, to meet Committees from the other Governments of New-England, at Worcester, on the twenty-eighth of June current.

The Committee having attended that service, reported, that the Hon. Mr. Dexter, the Hon. Major Hawley, and the Hon. Mr. Sever were chosen. The Hon. Major Hawley and the Hon. Mr. Sever having desired to be excused, and having offered their reasons therefor, they were excused accordingly; whereupon, Resolved, That ten o'clock to-morrow morning be assigned for the choice of two persons, in the room of Major Hawley and Mr. Sever, to attend the said Convention at Worcester, on the twenty-eighth of June current.

Resolved, That the prayer of said Petition be granted, and that the petitioners have leave to make the exchange asked for.

"To WALTER SPOONER, JEDEDIAH FOSTER, and JAMES SULLIVAN, Esquires.

"You are directed to proceed, as soon as may be, to the posts of Ticonderoga and Crown Point, by the road through the new settlements called the New-Hampshire Grants; that you carefully observe the quality of the said road, and judge of the feasibility of transporting provisions by the said road to the waters of Lake Champlain; that you take with you copies of the commission and instructions of the Committee of Safety to Colonel Benedict Arnold, and inform yourselves as fully as you shall be able, in what manner the said Colonel Arnold has executed his said commission and instructions.

"That you make and give to the said Arnold, and any men whom he shall, by virtue of the said commission and instructions, retain in the service of this Colony, such orders as to you shall seem meet, provided always that you do not authorize the said Arnold to engage and retain in the pay of this Colony, as soldiers, a greater number than that specified in his said commission and instructions, and provided that the said Arnold, and the men whom he has retained, are free, and willing to remain at one or both of the said posts, under the command of such chief officer as is or shall be appointed by the Government of Connecticut; and in case you shall order such number of men to be continued at or near the said posts, in the pay of this Colony, as you shall judge it necessary there should be, that you appoint a Committee of one or more persons, in the pay of this Colony, to provide supplies for such men, and a Commissary to deal out such supplies to them; which Committee and Commissary you are to appoint in writing under your hands.

"And you are to determine and order respecting the said Arnold's continuing in the commission and pay of this Colony, as to you shall appear most for the general service and safety, after having made yourselves fully acquainted with the spirit, capacity, and conduct of the said Arnold.

"And in case you shall judge it proper to discharge the said Arnold, that you direct him to return to this Colony, and render his account of the disposition of the money, ammunition, and other things, which he received at his setting out upon his expedition, and also of the charges he has incurred, and the debts which he has contracted in behalf of this Colony, by virtue of the commission and instructions aforesaid.

"And in case you shall find any men at the said posts properly retained and engaged there in the service of this Colony, that you cause them and their arms to be mustered, and that to such as shall pass muster, you pay, out of the moneys which you shall receive from our Receiver-General for that purpose, the same advance pay as is, by order of Congress, paid to such men as are retained and mustered to serve within this Colony; and in case you shall not find any men at the said posts, properly engaged and retained in the service of this Colony, or that the number which you shall find so retained shall be much short of the number which said Arnold was empowered to enlist, that then you, if you shall judge that the effectual security of said posts shall require it, and if you shall also find a proper person in those parts fit and suitable for the command of four hundred men, or such less number, as together with such men as you shall find ordered and posted there by any other Colony or Colonies, and shall also find that soldiers can be raised in those parts so seasonably, as that thereby the effectual maintenance of the said posts may be served or promoted; you are to appoint meet persons to be officers and commanders for such a number of men as you shall order to be enlisted, and give the necessary orders for raising, enlisting, and maintaining them, for such term as you shall judge necessary for defence of said posts, and also appoint some sufficient and faithful man as Muster-Master and Paymaster of such men, and leave sufficient moneys in his hands for that purpose, taking proper receipts and his security that the money so left shall be applied to that use.

"And you are to take a careful survey of the ordnance stores and ordnance at those posts, together with all other articles necessary for the maintenance thereof, and report the state thereof to this Congress.

"And if you shall find it necessary to purchase powder for the men who shall be retained there on the part of this Colony, that you procure the same, and so much as you shall judge needful, in the best and most expeditious way you can, on the credit of this Colony.

"And in general, you are fully empowered to do every thing in behalf of this Colony for the effectual securing and maintaining those posts, which you shall judge necessary equal to the importance of the same.

"You are further directed, when you shall have transacted what you are, by the foregoing instructions, authorized to do and transact at the posts aforesaid, by the very first opportunity to advise the General American Congress thereof, as also of your opinion of the necessity and importance of maintaining the said posts for the general defence of these Colonies; and when you shall have made yourselves fully acquainted with the state and condition of the said posts, and the dispositions and establishments which you shall find are made for maintaining of them, if you shall judge that any further provisions are necessary for securing and maintaining them, you are directed, fully and respectfully, to signify your thoughts thereon to the General Congress. You are also directed to advise the General Convention of the Colony of New-York, and the Governor of the Colony of Connecticut, respectively, of what you shall order and transact by virtue of the said instructions."

Considering the exposed state of the frontiers of some of the Colonies, the danger that the inhabitants of Canada may possibly have disagreeable apprehensions from the military preparations making in several of the other Colonies, and the rumours that there are some appearances of their getting themselves in readiness to act in a hostile way; this Congress have made application to the honourable Continental Congress, desiring them to take such measures as to them shall appear proper to quiet and conciliate the minds of the Canadians, and to prevent such alarming apprehensions. We have also had the most disagreeable accounts of methods taken to fill the minds of the Indian Tribes, adjacent to these Colonies, with sentiments very injurious to us; particularly, we have been informed that Colonel Guy Johnson has taken great pains with the Six Nations, in order to bring them into a belief that it is designed by the Colonies to fall upon them and cut them off. We have therefore desired the honourable Continental Congress that they would, with all convenient speed, use their influence in guarding against the evil intended by this malevolent misrepresentation, and we desire you to join with us in such application.

To the Continental Congress, New-York, and the several Governments in New-England.

Whereas, it is necessary that this Colony be provided with a Magazine of Arms, which are good and sufficient; therefore,

Resolved, That any person or persons who may have such to sell, shall receive so much for them as the Selectmen of the Town or District in which he or they may dwell, shall appraise said Arms at, upon the delivery of the same to the Committee of Supplies at Watertown, and exhibiting a certificate of said appraisal, attested by said Selectmen, to the Committee aforesaid, provided said delivery be made within one month from the date hereof.

Afternoon.

Ordered, That Mr. Parker, Colonel Thompson, and Mr. Aikin, be a Committee to apply to the Committee of Supplies and the Generals of the Army, and inquire whether the Army is sufficiently supplied with Ammunition.

Ordered, That Daniel Davis, Esq., be on the Committee appointed to take care of the Estates of the Refugees, in the room of Mr. Partridge, who is absent.

The Committee appointed to examine and consider two accounts exhibited to this Congress by Mr. John Brown, reported. The report on each of them was accepted, and is as follows, viz :

The Committee appointed to examine the within account, beg leave to report, that the same be laid upon the table, till Mr. Brown exhibits an account of particulars, with his journal.

JOHN HALE, per order.

The Committee appointed to examine the within account, beg leave to report, that it does not appear to them that the within mentioned services were rendered in consequence of an application by any person employed by this Colony.

JOHN HALE, per order.

Ordered, That Colonel Warren, Mr. Sever, and Colonel Otis, be a Committee to consider the application of the Rev. Dr. Langdon, President of Harvard College, and report thereon.

The Committee appointed to consider the claims and pretensions of several Colonels in the Army, reported ; which Report was accepted. Whereupon,

Ordered, That Colonels Glover, David Brewer, Woodbridge, Little, and Jonathan Brewer, be commissioned as Colonels in the Massachusetts Army; and that Joseph Haven, Esquire, administer the oath prescribed by Congress. The Report is as follows, viz :

The Committee appointed to consider the claims and pretensions of the several gentlemen hereafter named, who suppose that they have just ground to expect of this honourable Congress that they should receive commissions, appointing them severally to be chief Colonels in the Massachusetts Army, now raising for the defence of the rights of this and the neighbouring Colonies, viz : Col. Glover, General Heath, Colonel David Brewer, Col. Robinson, Colonel Woodbridge, Colonel Little, Colonel Henshaw, and Colonel Jonathan Brewer, beg leave to report the following state of facts to this Congress, viz : That the said Colonels Glover, David Brewer, Woodbridge, Little, Henshaw, and Jonathan Brewer, have exhibited their claims to your Committee ; and, according to the returns which the said gentlemen have respectively made to us, the said Colonel Glover has levied ten companies, making, in the whole, five hundred and five men, inclusive of officers, and about three quarters of the said number armed with effective firelocks, who are willing and choose to serve in the said Army under him, the said Glover, all now at Marblehead.

That the said David Brewer has levied nine companies, amounting, inclusive of officers, to the number of four hundred and sixty-five men, who choose to serve under him as their Colonel, and that three hundred and seven of the said men are armed with effective fire-arms, and that said companies, excepting thirty-four men, who are on their way to Head-Quarters, are posted at Roxbury, Dorchester, and Watertown.

That the said Woodbridge has levied eight companies, amounting, inclusive of officers, to the number of three hundred and fifty-four men, who choose to serve under him as their chief Colonel, and that two hundred and seventy-three of the said men are armed with good effective firelocks, and that all the said men, excepting seven, are now in the Camp in Cambridge; the said seven men are on the road hither.

And that the said Little has raised eight companies, (according to General Ward's return,) amounting, inclusive of officers, to the number of five hundred and nine men, who choose to serve under him as their chief Colonel, and all the said men are armed with good effective firelocks, and three hundred and eighty-two of them with good bayonets fitted to their firelocks, and that seven of the said companies are at the Camp in Cambridge, and one company at Cape Ann, by order of the Committee of Safety.

And that the said Jonathan Brewer has levied eight companies, amounting, inclusive of officers, to the number of three hundred and ninety-seven men, who choose to serve under him, the said Jonathan, as their chief Colonel, and that three hundred and two of the said men are armed with good firelocks, and that all the said men, excepting twenty-seven who are on the road hither, are posted at Cambridge and Brookline; and the said Brewer supposes, from accounts he has received, that one Captain Murray is on the road from Hatfield hither with a full company.

And that the said Colonel Henshaw has returned to us that he has a prospect of several companies arriving shortly here, who he supposes would be inclined to serve under him as their chief Colonel.

And that General Heath and Colonel Robinson have made no returns to us, your Committee, of their levies, or whether they are willing to serve in the said Army as Colonels.

And upon these facts your Committee are clearly of opinion, that the safety of the Country, and the promoting the publick service, make it highly necessary and expedient that the said Colonels Glover, David Brewer, Woodbridge, Little, and Jonathan Brewer, be, without delay, commissioned as chief Colonels in the Army aforesaid, and that their Field-Officers, Captains, and Subalterns be also commissioned as soon as a list of them can be settled, inasmuch as your Committee are fully satisfied, from good documents, that all the men contained in the nineteen Regiments already organized, together with all the men levied by the said Colonels Glover, David Brewer, Woodbridge, Little, and Jonathan Brewer, together with an allowance of four hundred and fifty men which may have been enlisted by General Heath, and the like number by Colonel Robinson, will fall considerably short of amounting to thirteen thousand six hundred men; and also because your Committee apprehend that this Congress may, without any injustice to the Field-Officers already commissioned, or any other, make such orders, that the amount of the pay of the whole Army may not be unreasonably enhanced, by a greater number of Regiments than by the last establishment it was intended the Army should consist of. All which is most humbly submitted by your Committee.

JOSEPH HAWLEY, per order.

SIR: Your letter, wherein you express yourself willing to continue in the service of this Colony until the Army is regulated and properly encamped, and then rely on a discharge, was read with much concern by this Congress, who earnestly hope you will continue in office till the conclusion

Resolved, That the Receiver-General be, and hereby is directed to pay to Colonel Joseph Henshaw the sum of seven Pounds, fourteen Shillings, in full for his account, reported and accepted by the Congress.

Ordered, That Commissions be delivered to the following officers of Colonel Nixon's Regiment, viz: Captain Ebenezer Winship, Lieut. William Warren, Ensign Richard Buckminster.

Ordered, That Mr. Orne, Mr. Glover, and Major Brooks, be a Committee to consider what may be done with respect to such Vessels as are now ready to sail with Fish on board, there being a Resolve of this Congress against the exportation of Fish, &c.; and in particular the case of Mr. Ellis Gray and Richard Hinckley, which has been laid before this Congress.

The Committee on the violation of the Sabbath reported; which Report was accepted, and is as follows, viz:

As it has pleased Almighty God, in his Providence, to suffer the calamities of an unnatural war to take place among us, in consequence of our sinful declensions from him, and our great abuse of those invaluable blessings bestowed upon us; and as we have reason to fear that unless we become a penitent and reformed people, we shall feel still severer tokens of the divine displeasure; and as the most effectual way to escape those desolating judgments which so evidently hang over us, and, if it may be, obtain the restoration of our former tranquillity, will be that we repent and return, every one from his iniquities, unto him that correcteth us, which, if we do in sincerity and truth, we have no reason to doubt but he will remove his judgments, cause our enemies to be at peace with us, and prosper the work of our hands:

And as among the prevailing sins of this day, which threaten the destruction of this land, we have reason to lament the frequent profanations of the Lord's day or Christian Sabbath; many spending their time in idleness or sloth, others in diversions, and others in journeying, or business, which is not necessary on that day:

And as we earnestly desire that a stop might be put to this great and prevailing evil: It is, therefore,

Resolved, That it be recommended by this Congress to the people of all ranks and denominations throughout this Colony, that they not only pay a religious regard to that day, and to the publick worship of God thereon, but that they also use their influence to discountenance and suppress any profanation thereof in others.

And it is further Resolved, That it be recommended to the Ministers of the Gospel to read this Resolve to their several congregations, accompanied with such exhortations as they shall think proper.

And whereas, there is great danger that the profanation of the Lord's day will prevail in the Camp, we earnestly recommend to all the officers not only to set a good example, but that they strictly require of their soldiers to keep up a religious regard to that day, and attend upon the publick worship of God thereon, so far as may be consistent with other duties.

Ordered, That the foregoing Resolve be printed in handbills, and sent to the several Ministers of each Town and District in this Colony.

General Heath and Colonel Robinson returned a list of their Companies. And whereas there are several of the same Companies returned in each, Ordered, That Mr. Batchelder, Mr. Durfee, Major Perley, Major Fuller of Middleton, and Major Bliss, be a Committee to consider of the same, and report.

A further time was assigned to make choice of Brigadier-Generals, Quartermasters-General, and Adjutants-General, viz: to-morrow morning, eleven o'clock.

Colonel Coffin, Mr. Stephen Hall, and Col. Davis were chosen a Committee to consider the Petition of James Kirkwood.

The Committee on the Petition of Ellis Gray and Richard Hinckley, &c., reported. The two Reports were accepted, and are as follow:

The Committee appointed to take under consideration the Petition of Messrs. Ellis Gray and Richard Hinckley, relative to eighty hogsheads of Jamaica Cod-Fish laden on two vessels bound to the West-Indies, the one of which would have sailed before the Resolve of this honourable Congress, forbidding the exportation of Fish, was published, had she not been detained by the elopement of her hands, beg leave to report, that being fully convinced by the accounts given us by Mr. Gray and Mr. Hinckley, that the Fish those two gentlemen were about to export is of such a kind (being old Jamaica Fish) as, if detained, cannot possibly be of any advantage to this Colony, but must perish, this Colony being plentifully supplied with new Fish, that permission be given by this Congress to the owners of said vessels for their proceeding on their voyage, provided there is no other kind of provision on board, except what is for the ship's use. And further, that toleration be given to all other owners of vessels for their departure, who shall convince this Congress, or a Committee thereof, that their vessels and cargoes are in the same predicament; as no possible advantage can accrue from their detention,
J. ORNE, per order.

The Committee appointed to examine the bearer of a certificate from Newburyport, setting forth that Jonathan Titcomb and Stephen Hooper, Esquires, of Newburyport, have shipped on board two vessels one hundred and thirty hogsheads Jamaica Fish, which is said to be old Fish, beg leave to report, that they are fully convinced the Fish above mentioned is of such a kind as is expressed in the certificate, and that the vessels who have laden it have no other provisions but a supply for the ship's use, and as such, are of opinion that the owners of said vessels be tolerated to despatch them on their voyages, agreeable to a Resolve of this Congress just now passed, granting indulgence to the owners of vessels in such a predicament for so doing.
J. ORNE, per order.

The Committee appointed to consider the late extraordinary Proclamation, signed Thomas Gage, reported as follows:

Resolved, That the following Proclamation be signed by the President, printed, and published throughout this Colony:

BY THE PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

The confidence which our countrymen have reposed in us, lays us under the strongest obligation to watch and guard against all the malignant designs of their inveterate enemies.

That the British Administration have formed, and have been for several years executing a plan to enslave this and the other American Colonies, is a proposition so evident, that it would be an affront to the understanding of mankind to adduce proofs in support of it. We shall therefore only advert to those unhappy circumstances which have been the immediate causes of plunging this People into the horrors of war and desolation. When a Fleet and Army were sent forth to deprive us of every thing that man holds dear; when the Capital of this Colony became a garrison, and fortifications were erected upon the only land entrance into the Metropolis; when the Commander of the Army so far manifested his designs against us as to send out his soldiers in the night to remove the publick magazines of the Colony from their safe lodgment in the country, and place them under the command of a foreign Army; when he evidenced his enmity to the liberties of this Country, by sending a detachment from that Army against the peaceable inhabitants of one of our principal Towns, only because they were assembled quietly to concert measures to save themselves from ruin; when we were totally deprived of the benefit of a legislative body; when the whole system of distributive justice was so mutilated that there could be no reason to hope for any advantages from it; when an Act of Parliament was passed, which the General of the Army resolved to execute, by which our countrymen were given up as a prey to a lawless soldiery, who were screened from punishment here for the murders they might commit; in fine, when the Army and Navy breathed nothing but blood and slaughter, and all our accounts from England but too strongly proved the inhuman intentions of those in power: it became us as men, as freemen, and as Christians, to take some steps to preserve our own lives and properties, as well as to secure the inheritance purchased at no less a price than the blood of many thousand of our brave ancestors, entire and undiminished for succeeding generations. The Congress, whom this people then chose, recommended it to them to provide themselves with such articles for their defence as the law of the land required; and further recommended it to them to appropriate some part of their property for the purchasing such stores, to be laid up in publick magazines, as might be useful for the general defence, in case an attack should be made upon us by the Army. The recommendation was cheerfully complied with, and stores were procured in the most peaceable and quiet manner, and deposited in magazines, where they were to have continued without the least injury or disturbance to any one, unless drawn out by necessity to save the Country from destruction. But the possibility of our making resistance to the bloody schemes of our adversaries was the source of continual terror to the traitors, whose aim was to enslave this Country; and General Gage, after many little pillerings and several humiliating disappointments in his attempts to rob the people, at length determined to destroy the magazines at Concord; he sent the Grenadiers and detachments of Light-Infantry of every Regiment, about one thousand in number, secretly by night over Charles River. On their way some of the officers captured and otherwise infamously abused several of the inhabitants; and when the body arrived at Lexington meeting-house, which was very early in the morning of the ever-memorable nineteenth of April, they, in a most barbarous and infamous manner, fired upon a small number of the inhabitants, and cruelly murdered eight men. The fire was returned by some of the survivors, but their number was too inconsiderable to annoy the regular Troops, who proceeded on their errand, and, upon coming up to Concord, began to destroy by fire and water the stores and magazines, until a party of them again fired upon and killed two more of the inhabitants. The native bravery of our countrymen could now no longer be restrained; a small party, consisting of about two or three hundred men, attacked them with such spirit and resolution, as compelled them soon to retreat. At Lexington they met a re-enforcement of regular Troops, consisting of about eight hundred, with two field-pieces, commanded by Lord Percy; this, however, did not encourage them to keep their ground, but they continued their route towards Charlestown, marking their way with every species of desolation and cruelty which their haste would permit. The burning and robbing of houses, the abuses and barbarities offered to defenceless women and children, the wanton slaughter of the aged and helpless, will be perpetual memorials of the base spirit which actuated the perpetrators. Upon their arrival at Charlestown our countrymen quitted the pursuit, and the next day suffered them, without annoyance, to cross the river and return to Boston.

This action of the Troops destroyed every hope of coming to any accommodation with them; we therefore were compelled to raise an Army to prevent such bloody excursions in future. An Army is therefore raised and appointed for that purpose, and we are, with the greatest reluctance, obliged to declare, that we have now nothing to depend upon, under God, to preserve America from slavery and destruction but our own arms. To these we have been forced to make our appeal, and by these we are determined to maintain our rights. And we are obliged to declare, and do now publicly declare all persons who shall afford any aid, assistance, or relief, or hold any manner of communication of any kind whatsoever with General Gage, Admiral Graves, or the Army, or Navy, or any one of those now under their command, who are stationed in our Metropolis and the harbour of Boston, or elsewhere, or any persons who are known or shall hereafter be known to have afforded such aid, or to have had such communication with them, or either of them, to be enemies and traitors to their Country, and they shall be proceeded against and treated as such; excepting only such of the unhappy inhabitants of Boston as have, by a treacherous and most infamous breach of faith in General Gage, been prevented from removing out of the Town of Boston, whose peculiar circumstances this Congress will, at all times, make due allowance for, so long as they shall avoid doing any thing to obstruct or counteract such steps as this Congress shall think fit to take. But the said inhabitants are strictly forbidden, whatever may be the consequence of their refusal, to be in any the least degree instrumental in assisting the enemy, or opposing the Country, as they would avoid the penalties due to the enemies thereof.

From a real tenderness to our fellow-men, we most sincerely regret the unhappy situation of the soldiery and sailors in the Army and Navy now stationed in the Town and harbour of Boston, and assure them, upon that faith which never has been, and we trust never will be violated, that upon their quitting the infamous service in which they are (as we must in charity suppose, contrary to their own inclinations and principles) engaged, we will receive them as brethren and fellow-subjects, and protect them against every attempt that may be made by our enemies to force them again into the disgraceful and inhuman service in which they are now employed.

And that our earnest desire to discover our tender regard to our few misguided fellow-countrymen, and our readiness to forgive even those who have knowingly offended, we do promise and engage a full and free pardon to all persons who have fled to the Town of Boston for refuge, and to other publick offenders against the rights and liberties of this Country, of what kind or denomination soever; excepting only from the benefit of such pardon, Thomas Gage, Samuel Graves; those Counsellors who were appointed by mandamus and have not signified their resignation, viz: Jonathan Sewall, Charles Paxton, Benjamin Hallowell; and all the natives of America not belonging to the Navy or Army who went out with the regular Troops on the nineteenth of April last, and were countenancing, aiding, and assisting them in the robberies and murders then committed; whose offences are of too flagitious a nature to admit of any other consideration than that of condign punishment; provided they take the benefit hereof by making a surrender of themselves to any General Officer belonging to the Massachusetts Army, and subscribe a declaration of their readiness to comply with, support, and abide by all the resolutions and determinations which are already made by this or any former Congress, or that shall hereafter be made by this or any future Congress or House of Representatives of this Colony, within thirty days from the date hereof. And it is earnestly enjoined upon the Selectmen, Committees of Correspondence, Committees of Safety, and all other officers of every Town in this Colony, that they use their utmost diligence to discover and make known to this Congress any person or persons who shall, in any respect, attempt to do any thing tending to render ineffectual their designs and doings. And we trust that the God of Armies, on whom we rely for a blessing upon our arms, which we have taken up in support of the great and fundamental principles of natural justice, and the common and indefeasible rights of mankind, will guide and direct us in our designs, and at last, in infinite goodness to this his injured people, restore peace and freedom to the American world.

Voted, That Tuesday next, ten o'clock, before noon, be assigned for the further consideration thereof.

Ordered, That Mr. Lothrop, Colonel Grout, and Mr. Crane, be a Committee to fill commissions for the Field-Officers of the Regiment of Artillery, as recommended by the Committee of Safety.

Resolved, That a Commission be made out for Mr. Heath, as Colonel of a Regiment of the Massachusetts Army.

Resolved, That Deacon Plympton be appointed to countersign the small Notes, instead of Col. Richmond.

The Committee appointed to consider the application of President Langdon, reported; which Report was accepted, and is as follows, viz:

Voted, That the Receiver-General, Henry Gardner, Esquire, as also Deacon Plympton, have leave of absence from to-morrow afternoon until Monday morning.

Whereas, the hostile incursions this Country is exposed to; and the frequent alarms we may expect from the military operations of our enemies, make it necessary that the good people of this Colony be on their guard and prepared at all times to resist their attacks, and to aid and assist their brethren:

Therefore, Resolved, That it be, and hereby is, recommended to the Militia in all parts of this Colony to hold themselves in readiness to march at a minute's warning to the relief of any place that may be attacked, or to the support of our Army, with at least twenty cartridges or rounds of powder and ball. And to prevent all confusion or delay, it is further recommended to the inhabitants of this Colony living on the sea-coasts, or within twenty miles of them, that they carry their arms and ammunition with them to meeting on the Sabbath, and other days when they meet for publick worship.

On the Petition of a number of the Inhabitants of Egagon Reach, No. 4, so called, praying for a small supply of Provisions:

The Committee appointed to consider the Resolutions of the Committee of Safety, reported the following Resolve and Schedule, which were accepted:

Whereas, some of the inhabitants of the new plantations in this Colony, not incorporated, and some of the inhabitants of the neighbouring Colonies, together with a number of the late inhabitants of the Town of Boston, have enlisted into the Army now raising in this Colony, to whom the Resolve of Congress, dated May 9, 1775, empowering the Selectmen to supply the inhabitants of their respective Towns with Arms, &c., did not extend, and by that means many of such men are not provided with sufficient Arms: therefore,

Resolved, That the inhabitants of the several Towns and Districts in the Counties specified in a list hereunto annexed, who may have good and sufficient Firelocks, be, and hereby are, most earnestly advised, as soon as possible to provide and deliver to such person or persons as are to be now appointed by this Congress to receive the same, the full number of good effective Firelocks specified in the said list for each Town and District to supply; for which Firelocks every owner thereof shall receive such sum, in the bills of credit of this Colony, as the person or persons now to be appointed by this Congress to receive such Firelock, and the owner thereof, shall agree to be the value of the same, within forty days after the delivery of such Firelock; for all which Firelocks, delivered as aforesaid, the person to be appointed by this Congress to receive the same, shall give his receipt therefor, in the form following:

"The day of , 1775.

"Received of A B Firelock, to the use of the Colony of the Massachusetts-Bay, of the value of , which sum the Receiver-General of the said Colony is directed, in forty days after the date hereof, to pay to the said A B, or order, in bills of credit of this Colony."

And the Receiver-General, upon such receipt being produced to him, is empowered and required to pay out of the Treasury of this Colony the sum specified in such receipt, in the bills of credit aforesaid, to the person named therein, or his order; and, furthermore, the Selectmen and Committees of Correspondence of the several Towns and Districts aforesaid, are hereby most earnestly requested to afford all possible aid and assistance to the persons to be appointed by this Congress to procure the said Firelocks, that so the said Arms may be supplied to our Army with the greatest expedition. And the persons to be appointed to procure said Firelocks are hereby severally empowered and directed to employ such Wagoners and Teamsters as shall be necessary, with great despatch to convey the same to the Army, and to order the Receiver-General of this Colony to pay out of the Treasury of the same, in bills of credit as aforesaid, such sums as they shall agree on and draw for; and the said Receiver-General is hereby authorized and directed to pay the orders so drawn.

And as there is no Council there, and the inconveniences arising from the suspension of the powers of Government are intolerable, especially at a time when General Gage hath actually levied war, and is carrying on hostilities against His Majesty's peaceable and loyal subjects of that Colony: That in order to conform as near as may be to the spirit and substance of the Charter, it be recommended to the Provincial Congress to write Letters to the inhabitants of the several places which are entitled to Representatives in Assembly, requesting them to choose such Representatives; and that the Assembly, when chosen, should elect Counsellors, which Assembly and Council should exercise the powers of Government, until a Governour of His Majesty's appointment will consent to govern the Colony according to its Charter.

The Committee appointed to prepare a Letter to the Continental Congress, reported. The Report was read, paragraph by paragraph, and accepted, and ordered to be transcribed, authenticated, and sent forward, and is as follows:

To the Honourable the Continental Congress, now sitting at PHILADELPHIA:

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: Having been favoured with your Resolve respecting the assumption of Government in this Colony, we seize the earliest opportunity to express our grateful sentiments for that compassion, seasonable exertion, and abundant wisdom evidenced in your recommendation to this people on that head, and for the generous provision you have made for our support in our efforts for the defence of the common liberty and essential rights of the whole Continent.

As we are plunged into the accumulated distresses of a domestick war, our constant attention to the calls of our brethren in the field will leave us but little time to contemplate the acts of ordinary legislation; but as we are impressed with the indispensable necessity of rescuing this people from the danger they are in of falling into a state of anarchy, and that our publick resolutions may be taken and executed with the greater despatch, we shall apply ourselves with all diligence to fulfil your benevolent intentions, and establish the form of Government recommended by your Honours, that so order and government may be restored to this disturbed community.

We think it our indispensable duty to inform you that re-enforcements from Ireland, both of Horse and Foot, being arrived, (the number unknown,) and having good intelligence that General Gage was about to take possession of the advantageous posts in Charlestown and on Dorchester Point, the Committee of Safety advised that our Troops should prepossess them, if possible. Accordingly, on Friday evening, the 16th instant, this was effected by about twelve hundred men. About daylight on Saturday morning, their line of circumvallation, on a small hill south of Bunker's Hill, in Charlestown, was closed. At this time the Lively, man-of-war, began to fire upon them. A number of our enemy's ships, tenders, cutters, and scows or floating batteries soon came up, from all which the fire was general by twelve o'clock. About two the enemy began to land at a point which leads out towards Noddle's Island, and immediately marched up to our intrenchments, from which they were twice repulsed, but in the third attack forced them. Our forces which were in the lines, as well as those sent for their support, were greatly annoyed on every side by balls and bombs from Copp's Hill, the ships, scows, &c. At this time the buildings in Charlestown appeared in flames in almost every quarter, kindled by red-hot balls, and are since laid in ashes. Though this scene was most horrible, and altogether new to most of our men, yet many stood and received wounds by swords and bayonets before they quitted their lines. At five o'clock the enemy were in full possession of all the posts within the isthmus. In the evening and night following, Gen. Ward extended his intrenchments before made at the Stone-House over Winter Hill. About six o'clock, P. M., of the same day, the enemy began to cannonade Roxbury from Boston Neck and elsewhere, which they continued twenty-four hours, with little spirit and less effect.

The number of killed and missing on our side is not known, but supposed by some to be about sixty or seventy, and by some considerably above that number. Our most worthy friend and President, Doctor Warren, lately elected a Major-General, is among them. This loss we feel most sensibly. Lieutenant-Colonel Parker and Major Moore, of this Colony, and Major McClary, from New-Hampshire, are also dead. Three Colonels, and perhaps one hundred men, are wounded. The loss of the enemy is doubtless great. By an anonymous letter from Boston, we are told that they exult much in having gained the ground, though their killed and wounded amount to about one thousand; but this account exceeds every other estimation. The number they had engaged is supposed to be between three and four thousand. If any error has been made on our side, it was in taking a post so much exposed.

As soon as an estimate can be made of publick and private stocks of gunpowder in this Colony, it shall be transmitted without delay, which we are well assured will be very small, and by no means adequate to the exigences of our case. We apprehend that the scantiness of our stock of that article, cannot fail to induce your Honours still to give your utmost attention to ways and means of procuring full supplies of it. We feel ourselves infinitely obliged to you for your past care in this respect.

We beg leave humbly to suggest, that if a Commander-in-Chief over the Army of the United Colonies should be appointed, it must be plain to your Honours that no part of this Continent can so much require his immediate presence and exertions as this Colony.

Ordered, That the Honourable Major Hawley and Mr. Phillips be a Committee to draw up a Resolve to be sent to General Ward, suggesting to him the expediency of drawing part of the Forces stationed at Roxbury to the Camp at Cambridge.

The said Committee reported the following Letter, which was accepted, and ordered to be sent by Mr. Thaxter to the Camp at Cambridge immediately:

SIR: This Congress, considering the present situation of the enemy and that of the division of our Army at Cambridge, think proper to suggest to your serious consideration, whether it is not proper and expedient that there should be an immediate draught of a Regiment or more from the Roxbury Camp to that at Cambridge. Your good sense will undoubtedly incline you to consult General Thomas before you determine absolutely on this measure; but we conceive the consideration of this matter ought not to be delayed a moment.

To the Hon. General Ward.

Adjourned to Wednesday morning, eight o'clock.

Wednesday, June 21, 1775.

Resolved, That the vote of this Congress, for ranking the Major-Generals agreeable to the order of their choice, be reconsidered.

The Commission prepared for General Heath was presented to Congress, read and accepted, and is as follows:

"The Congress of the Colony of the Massachusetts-Bay to the Honourable William Heath, Esq., greeting:

"We, reposing especial trust and confidence in your courage and good conduct, do, by these presents, constitute and appoint you, the said William Heath, to be a Major-General of all the Forces raised by the Congress aforesaid, for the defence of this and the other American Colonies. You are therefore carefully and diligently to discharge the duty of a Major-General, in leading, ordering, and exercising the said Forces in arms, both inferior Officers and Soldiers, and to keep them in good order and discipline; and they are hereby commanded to obey you as their Major-General. And you are yourself to observe and follow such orders and instructions as you shall from time to time receive from the General and Commander-in-Chief of said Forces, or any other your superior Officers, and to demean yourself according to military rules and discipline established by said Congress, in pursuance of the trust reposed in you.

"Dated at Watertown, the 21st of June, 1775.

"By order of Congress:

" , President."

Ordered, That Colonel Gerrish, Major Hawley, Doctor Taylor, Mr. Durfee, and Mr. Jewett, be a Committee to consider the expediency of directing General Ward to call Colonel Glover's Regiment, now stationed at Marblehead, to the Camp at Cambridge, and report.

And that such proceeding will not be contrary to the Resolve passed by the Grand American Congress, the 17th of May last, or any other Resolve that honourable Congress have yet published.

Resolved, That Colonel Phinney be admitted into this House, to inform the Congress of the state of the Regiment enlisted in the County of Cumberland.

Ordered, That Colonel Sayer wait on General Ward with it.

Ordered, That Mr. Sayer draw, in the form of a Resolve, the Report of the Committee relative to the Estates of the Refugees.

Ordered, That the President sign the Resolve relative to the violation of the Sabbath, which passed the 16th instant.

Ordered, That Doctor Jones, Capt. Stone, and Capt. Bragdon, be a Committee to consider the Petition of Thomas Twining.

Mr. Sayer reported a Resolve relative to the Estates of the Refugees; which was accepted, and ordered to be printed in the Cambridge, Watertown, and Worcester Papers, and is as follows,* viz:

Whereas, the property of some persons who have left their habitations in sundry Towns in this Colony, and have discovered themselves to be enemies to the rights of this Colony, and the Continent of America in general, and have taken refuge in Boston and other places, under the protection of the enemies to said Colony and Continent:

Therefore, Resolved, That it be recommended to the Selectmen and Committees of Correspondence of the several Towns and Districts of this Colony, where any property is to be found belonging to any of the aforesaid persons, that they take the same into their care, and make the best improvement thereof in their power; and also, that it be recommended to the said Committees or Selectmen, to use their endeavours that no strip or waste be made on such property, and to keep an account of all the rents and profits arising from the same, and to be accountable for the same to this or some other Congress or Assembly of this Colony, when thereunto required, they having a reasonable allowance made for their trouble.

* The following is a copy of the Resolution, as printed under this order of the Congress. The Resolution in the text is recorded on the manuscript Journal:

IN PROVINCIAL CONGRESS, Watertown, June 21, 1775.

Resolved, therefore, That the Selectmen and Committees of Correspondence of the several Towns and Districts of this Colony, be directed to take under their care the effects and estates of the several persons who have fled for protection to Boston or elsewhere, and to improve the same to the best advantage, and render a true account of the profits arising therefrom, to this Congress, or some future House of Representatives of this Colony, they being allowed a reasonable consideration for their trouble.

The Committee who were appointed to confer with the Indians, reported as follows, viz:

The Committee appointed by the honourable Colony Congress now sitting, to treat with the Indian Chief from the Penobscot Tribe, after an introduction on their part, received from the Indian the following Address, viz:

The representation he now makes, and the engagements he enters into, are in behalf of the whole Tribe he represents. His heart is good, honest, and upright in all he says. The English are a people old and strong, but they are children and weak. They have a large tract of land which they have a right to call their own, and have possessed accordingly for many years. These lands have been encroached upon by the English, who have for miles on end cut much of their good timber. They ask that the English would interpose and prevent such encroachments for the future, and they will assist us with all their power in the common defence of our country; and they hope, if the Almighty be on our side, the enemy will not be able to deprive us of our lands. They request that Captain Lane be an agent for them to settle all matters relative to the above difficulties respecting their lands. They desire a Commissary may be sent among them, of whom they may purchase goods. They desire provisions, powder, &c., may be sent them, which they will buy at a reasonable rate. They say they have been much imposed upon by our traders, and desire such evils may be by us prevented.

The Committee appointed to consider the request of the Indians now in Watertown, reported. The Report was accepted, and is as follows, viz:

We, the Delegates of the People of this Province, assembled in Congress, being appointed to transact the public business, have no doubt that any engagement we shall make for and in behalf of our constituents will, on their part, be faithfully ratified and adhered to. We do not doubt of the integrity and honest intentions of our brethren of the Penobscot Tribe, and hope, on their parts, that they entertain no jealousy of the uprightness and fidelity of their brethren.

The inhabitants of this Colony disdain to make use of unjustifiable force or artifice to rob their unsuspecting brethren of their rights, and are heartily disposed to prevent any injuries and encroachments upon their neighbours, and to restrain and chastise such invaders as have evidenced any such unjustifiable dispositions. And we hereby strictly forbid any person or persons whatsoever from trespassing or making waste upon any of the lands and territories or possessions beginning at the head of the tide on Penobscot River, extending six miles on each side of said river, now claimed by our brethren the Indians of the Penobscot Tribe, as they would avoid the highest displeasure of this Congress.

We thank our brethren of the Penobscot Tribe for their generous offers of friendship and assistance in our present war with our brethren in Great Britain, who are endeavouring, by murder and violence, to rob us of our lands and property, and hereby engage to defend their just claims against every invader.

As soon as we can take breath from our present fight, we will take care that our brethren, the Penobscot Tribe, shall be furnished with a proper Commissary, who shall be directed to furnish them with provisions, ammunition, and goods, at a reasonable rate; and proper and effectual measures shall then be taken to prevent any dishonest persons from carrying on a fraudulent traffick with them.

We accept of Captain Lane as an agent appointed by our brethren of the Penobscot Tribe, who is hereby authorized and empowered to take cognizance and make report to this Congress, or any future Assembly of this Colony, of any molestation or depredations which the Indians of the Penobscot Tribe may hereafter sustain from any person whatsoever, so that seasonable and effectual measures may be taken to afford those our brethren such redress as their circumstances may require. To the Fountain of all Justice we dare appeal, that our intentions are equitable towards all our neighbours, and on that Almighty Being we rely, that while we are struggling against rapine and tyranny, we shall be supported in the conflict, and our just endeavours be finally crowned with success.

The Committee likewise reported, verbally, that it is their opinion, the said Indians should have, each of them, two yards of blue Broadcloth and one piece of Ribbon, and have their expenses paid out and home; which Report was accepted, and the Committee of Supplies directed to furnish said Indians with the said Ribbon and Cloth.

The Committee appointed to inquire into the grounds of a report which has prevailed in the Army, that there has been treachery in some of the Officers, beg leave to report facts: Your Committee proceeded to Cambridge, waited upon the General, and made him acquainted with their business. He informed your Committee that General Putnam had made complaint of an officer in the Train, but by a mistake in the name, the wrong officer was confined. We applied to General Putnam, and other officers, who were in the heat of the engagement, for further intelligence. General Putnam informed us, that in the late action, as he was riding up Bunker's Hill, he met an officer of the Train drawing his cannon down in great haste; he ordered the officer to stop and go back; he replied, he had no cartridges; the General dismounted and examined his boxes, and found a considerable number of cartridges, upon which he ordered him back; he refused, until the General threatened him with immediate death, upon which he returned up the hill again, but soon deserted his post and left the cannon. Another officer, who had the direction of another cannon, conducted much in the same manner. The relation of this matter from General Putnam was confirmed by several other officers of distinction, as to what is most material relative thereto. These officers' names are, Captain Gridley and Captain John Kallander. General Putnam declared to your Committee, as his opinion, that the defeat of that day was owing to the ill-behaviour of those that conducted the artillery, and that one of these officers ought to be punished with death, and that unless some exemplary punishment was inflicted, he would assuredly leave the Army. That upon the defeat of the officers of the Train, the re-enforcements ordered up the hill could not be prevailed upon to go; the plea was, the Artillery was gone, and they stood no chance for their lives in such circumstances, declaring they had no officers to lead them. An officer of rank affirmed to your Committee that he absolutely knew that some of the cartridges and balls were too large for the cannon, and that it was necessary to break the cartridges before they could be of use.

Ordered, That the Report lie on the table till they are ready to report in full.

Ordered, That the Committee of Safety be directed to make out a new list for Officers of the Train of Artillery, and that no person unworthy of the office be appointed.

A draught of a Letter to Governour Trumbull was presented by the Committee appointed to prepare one, and was read and accepted; and the Committee of Supplies directed to forward it by express, and is as follows, viz:

"MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR: From advices received divers ways, we have the greatest reason to determine that all the British Troops already destined, or that may be yet ordered to America this season, will come to Boston, it being evidently their design, if possible, to rout our Army before that place, destroy all our magazines, and thereby to strike terror and faintness into the hearts of all the friends to right and liberty throughout the Continent; to revive and animate their scattered friends, and break the union of the Colonies, and in that way insure final success to their tyranny. This being undoubtedly the plan of our enemies, it is of inexpressible consequence that the ground which we have taken should at all events be maintained. Your Honour is no doubt fully sensible that our Army, for the present, is unavoidably checked, with regard to offensive operations, for a reason of which you are not unapprized; but, however, we have the means of acting on the defensive.

"As Boston is impregnable against every thing but great artillery, very few troops are sufficient to keep it; and as there are two passes at least, very distant from each other, by which the enemy will probably attempt to advance into the country, it is thereby rendered necessary that we should throw our Army into at least two grand divisions, each of which ought to be able to withstand almost the whole strength of the enemy. Your Honour is acquainted that it was at first supposed to be necessary that thirty thousand men should be raised and stationed to act for this season in the environs of Boston. Thirteen thousand six hundred was the number supposed by our Congress to be this Colony's proportion of such an Army, and that number we have to our utmost been endeavouring fully to complete; but because there are deficiencies in our Regiments, (as your Honour well knows there always will be in such cases,) in order to make that quota good, we have been obliged to increase the number of the Regiments, but still there is a deficiency; and because of the inexpressible importance of having our Army effectually strong, we are, by unremitted efforts, and by every device, at vast expense, labouring to make that number fully complete, or rather to exceed it.

"May it please your Honour: Because we are so vastly apprehensive of the fatal consequences of a general defeat of this Army to the whole American cause, and are so unutterably solicitous to have it effectually strengthened, we have called in every individual of our levies, from all our outposts, to join the Army; although by that measure we expose all our Towns on the sea-coasts to the rage and depredations of the enemy, and run the dreadful risk of the best of our Towns being reduced to ashes, and taking the miserable fate of Charlestown.

"We beg leave to acquaint your Honour, that it is most clearly our opinion, and that we have the best grounds to suppose, that as soon as the enemy have recovered a little breath from their amazing fatigues of the seventeenth of June, and the surprising losses which they then undoubtedly sustained shall be made up by arrivals of new Troops, which is almost daily taking place, they will direct all their force to some one point, and make the utmost efforts to force our lines, destroy our magazines, and thereby strike general terror and amazement into the hearts of the inhabitants of the whole Continent.

"From this view of the case we cannot a moment longer forbear addressing your Honour, and most earnestly suggesting to the immediate consideration of your General Assembly, not only the expediency, but indispensable necessity of an immediate augmentation of the Troops from your Colony, for the more effectual strengthening of the Army. What the number of the augmentation ought to be, we most cheerfully submit to the good judgment of your Assembly, not in the least doubting but their wisdom and justice will direct and dispose them to do all that is proper in so important a crisis as we really consider the present.

"We need not express to your Honour the indispensable necessity of despatch in making re-enforcements, nor the propriety and advantage of marching any new levies, which your Assembly may order, with all possible speed, without the first raised companies waiting for the completing of others, inasmuch as your Colony has here on the spot all the proper officers to make the necessary disposition for their reception. And as the season of their being of any advantage for the support of our Army may be irrevocably lapsed before their arrival, if the least unnecessary delay should be indulged, we have made a representation to the Lieutenant-Governour of Rhode-Island, similar to the foregoing, and are about to make a like representation to the Congress of New-Hampshire, and to send the same by special express.

"We suppose the whole number of our enemy's land forces, when joined with the four regiments which were ordered to New-York, will amount to upwards of ten thousand, exclusive of negroes and tories, who are every way provided and furnished in the best manner for action.

"We have the fullest confidence that your Honour's zeal and ardour for the salvation of our Country, and the preservation of our inestimable rights, will render any importunity unnecessary to induce you to take all the requisite steps to effect the proposed augmentation for which we are most solicitous."

The Committee appointed to consider what steps are proper to be taken for the reception of General Washington, reported. The Report was ordered to lie on the table.

* PETITION FROM THE COMMITTEE OF CORRESPONDENCE OF PLYMOUTH.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress, now sitting at WATERTOWN: The Petition of the Committee of Correspondence for the Town of PLYMOUTH humbly sheweth:

That your petitioners have this day received intelligence that a vote passed your House the . . . instant, determining to remove to Head-Quarters that part of Colonel Cotton's Regiment which has been, by order of your most respectable body, stationed in this place for the security and protection of the lives and property of this greatly exposed and much threatened Town. We, your petitioners, have lately received undoubted intelligence, by one of our townsmen, who has been taken by a tender, and carried into Boston, that Admiral Graves made particular inquiry into the circumstances of this Town, and said that we were a rebellious people, and that, in consequence of our building a fort in opposition to the King's Troops, it should not be long before he would blow the Town about our ears. Your petitioners are very sensible that, should the troops be called away from this station, the Town of Plymouth, as well as the adjacent Villages, will lie open to the ravages of our enemies, and that it will be no difficult matter for them to plunder and destroy us. The poor of this Town are already much distressed, by reason of the stop put to the Fishery, and can scarcely subsist upon what they get out of the clam banks, and by fishing in boats; and should they be driven from their huts into the barren country that surrounds us, they must (for aught we see) perish with hunger and for want of habitations, there not being houses within twenty miles sufficient to receive them. These poor people consist principally of women and children, their husbands and parents having enlisted themselves into the service of the Colony. Your petitioners are very far from desiring to create any unnecessary expense to the Colony; but, at the same time, think it necessary that said troops remain with us, and are of opinion that, should they be withdrawn, the Town will be immediately evacuated. And, for the above reasons, your petitioners, as in duty bound, &c.

For and by order of the Committee of Correspondence for the Town of Plymouth:

ANDREW CROSWELL, Clerk,
GAMALIEL BRADFORD, JUN.,
JOHN GRAY.

P. S. The Committee of Correspondence for the Towns of Duxbury and Kingston, which lie on Plymouth Bay, join in the general prayer of the above Petition.

Therefore, Resolved, That all the Small-Arms that are or may be procured by the above order, be delivered to Major Nathaniel Barber, Military Storekeeper at Cambridge, he to give his receipt for the same to the person or persons from whom he receives them; that the same be delivered out to such officers as shall produce orders therefor from the Hon. General Ward, they giving receipts for the same to the said Major Barber, to be returned in good order, unless lost in the service of the Colony. And every soldier who shall receive any such Fire-Arm, shall give his receipt for the same to the officer from whom he shall receive it, to be returned as aforesaid; and in case the same shall not be returned at the close of the campaign, or sooner, the value of the said Fire-Arm shall be deducted out of the wages of the person receiving the same; and that the sum of six shillings shall be deducted out of the wages of each soldier who shall receive such Fire-Arm, for the use of the same, in case he returns it again in good order.

The Committee on the Petition of Edward Parry, &c., reported. The Report was read, amended, and accepted, and is as follows, viz.*

June 25, 1775.

"MR. PRESIDENT: I am, Sir, now upon my return to visit my family; have just been informed by Mr. Isaac Shearman, a baker at Marlborough, that he has been employed by one Francis Moore, of Cambridge, a baker for our Army, for a considerable time; that the said Moore bakes one or two batches of biscuit every day out of the flour belonging to the Colony, to the value of twenty shillings, lawful money, per batch; which biscuit, together with some quantity of eight-penny loaves, are sold constantly for private use to any body who wants to purchase, and no account is kept of the flour used for that purpose, or of the biscuit or bread thus sold. He, the said Shearman, says he inquired of Mr. Fenno, Moore's foreman, upon what conditions Moore baked for the Army, and he told him the Colony made Mr. Moore debtor for the flour he received of them, and Moore made the Colony debtor for the bread he delivered to the Army; that there could be no other way. Shearman says, if that is the case, Moore must make a very large advance; that the bread made with thirty pounds worth of flour would amount to forty pounds; that Moore supplies about that quantity every day: so that if he took some of the Colony flour for private use, and is honest in the weight of the bread, he would advance ten Pounds, lawful money, per day. Besides, he says one of Moore's boys reported, that the loaves were not weight, and the Commissary examined and found it so; that Moore severely corrected the boy for telling. Upon the whole, Shearman supposes Moore is in a way of making money fast. Shearman says he is personally knowing to these facts, and they may be sufficiently proved. Thus far, Sir, I thought it my duty, as a member of the honourable Congress, to inform, and hope every unfaithful servant will be dismissed. All which is humbly submitted. Yours, &c. ISAAC STONE.

* To the Honourable Gentlemen of the Provincial Congress for the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

GENTLEMEN: The humble Petition of the Inhabitants of Goldsborough, Number Four, and Narragausus, in the County of Lincoln, in said Province, humbly shews: That the particularly alarming situation of this County, as well as the whole Continent, induces us to address your Honours, and particularly to lay before you the distressed situation of said Towns, holding ourselves as true friends to the cause that all America, as well as ourselves, are now supporting. At present we are almost destitute of all kinds of provisions, as well as ammunition; and the many reports we have that we may expect the Indians on our backs, and the tenders in our harbours to distress us, oblige us to pray that your Honours may assist us in that way that you in your wisdom may think best; for which we shall be always ready to make you full satisfaction. Whereas, the publick interest often makes it necessary that a very considerable number of the Committee of Supplies should be absent on business of the Colony, and as no orders can be paid by the Receiver-General but such as are signed by the said Committee, or the major part of them, by reason whereof the publick service may be obstructed and greatly delayed; for the prevention of which, it is

Resolved, That three of said Committee of Supplies, the Chairman, David Cheever, Esquire, being always one of the three, shall, when there are less than five present, be considered as a quorum; and all orders, bargains, and contracts by them made, shall be held good to all intents and purposes, as fully as though the whole of said Committee were present and assenting to such orders, bargains, and contracts, and that the Receiver-General of this Colony be, and hereby is directed to govern himself accordingly.

The Letter prepared to be sent to the Committee of Albany was accepted, and is as follows:

"GENTLEMEN: This Congress have received your very obliging letter by Mr. Price, of the 23d ultimo, and they cheerfully embrace the opportunity to forward to you by the same hand, as particular an account of the late engagement with the enemies of America as we, in the present hurry of our publick affairs, are able to do. On the night of the 16th of June instant, a body of our Troops took possession of a hill in Charlestown, where they began some intrenchments; but as soon as the morning light appeared, they were fired upon by some of the ships in Boston harbour, and also from a battery on Copp's Hill, which is on Boston side. Soon after, several ships and floating batteries drew up as near as possible on each side of Charlestown Neck, in order, with their cannon, to annoy our people, and prevent any recruits going from our main body to their relief. About two o'clock, P. M., a large body of regular Troops, consisting of several thousands, commanded by Lord Howe, suddenly crossed Charles River, and landed near the hill on which our people were posted. They immediately marched up, in order to force our infant intrenchments; but our people gave them so warm a reception, that they thought best to retreat, but soon renewed their attempts, but were repulsed the second time with great slaughter; but on their third attempt our people (being almost destitute of ammunition, as the enemy's constant fire from their ships and floating batteries had prevented any supplies from our main Army) were obliged to retreat, with the loss of about fifty men killed, and two hundred wounded, as near as has yet been ascertained, and about thirty taken prisoners, many of whom were wounded, and some are since dead of their wounds. The loss on the part of our enemies is much greater. Some persons who were on the field of battle soon after the fight, affirm that they saw eight hundred men dead on the ground, and that there were as many more wounded. The lowest accounts we have had is one thousand killed and wounded, among which are eighty four commissioned officers. On the same day the Town of Charlestown, consisting of near five hundred houses and other buildings, was, by those bloody incendiaries, set on fire and consumed to ashes. We cannot, however, but assure you, gentlemen, that, notwithstanding our present distressed situation, we feel a peculiar satisfaction in finding our patriotick brethren of the City and County of Albany so cordially interesting themselves in our particular welfare, and so kindly offering us their assistance, as well as manifesting their zeal for the rights and liberties of America in general. It is our ardent desire to cultivate harmony and friendship with all our neighbouring brethren, and we hope you will not fail to continue your favours; and we assure you that we shall always take pleasure in conveying to you any intelligence that shall afford satisfaction. As to the benevolent donations you mention, which are collected for our distressed brethren, as the transporting the article you make mention of is almost impracticable, we think it had better be exchanged for cash, or some necessary specie, which may be more easily transported. We are sorry to hear there is any prospect of an attack upon Ticonderoga, &c., but we trust those important fortresses are sufficiently garrisoned, and doubt not but our brave countrymen stationed there will be able to repulse any force which can be sent against them from Canada. Finally, brethren, we ardently wish that the great Supreme Being, who governs all things, may so direct all our military operations, that they may speedily issue in the full restoration and peaceable possession of the natural and constitutional rights and liberties of every American.

"P. S. Some make the number of our killed and missing to be near a hundred."

The Committee on the Account of Messrs. Fish and Toby, reported. The Report was accepted, and is as follows, viz:

Resolved, That Simeon Fish and John Toby be allowed and paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, six Pounds, seven Shillings, for their time and expenses in bringing Robert Campbell, a prisoner, from Falmouth to this Congress, and also for their time and expenses back to Falmouth again; and the Receiver-General is hereby directed to pay the said sum of six Pounds, seven Shillings, to the said Fish and Toby, in full discharge of their expenses as aforesaid.

The Report of the Committee respecting absconding Soldiers, was put off to three o'clock, P. M.
